Illinois and Kenkekee rivers the double-berrels are cracking. They used to hallow, hut that was in the old days before the inveution of the nitro powders. Now they have a spiteful snap, which sounds like nothing et all to old-fashioued sportsmeu, who like to hear the gun.

"The woodcock country of Illinois is difficult. It is marshy and growu up with underhrush. Tall willows fringe the streems or spriug from the damp pleces. It is a rare thiug when the shooter gets fifty feet of cleer spece in which to center his hird. Generally the querry is in opeo, unobstructed sight for not more then twenty feet. In coussqusnce, it is almost wholly snap shotiug. The gun is pitched to the shoulder and fired in the tenth pert of a second, end the woodcock goes on about his husiness. Even when hard hit, he fells iuto some seemiugly hopsless tengle of bushes, reads and willows, end the nicest ert of the retriever is needed. It takes an old hend—a very old hand—to lose cock after cock in this way with never a creese of the forehead or tighteniug of the lips. The only men in Chicago who has ever reeched the point where a loug day of disaster is a suhject for mirth is Rolla Organ of the Macksawba Club who went to the Kankakee on July 15, the opsning day, exploded thirty-six cartridges, lost thirty-six hirds, and has not got througb smiling over it yet. Mr. Orgen, however, is a philosopher of so sublimated a kind that he is ruuning for Congress as a Democret in a district that is Repuhlican hy 15,000, aud he is having a good time doing it.

"Sometimes the sportsmeu of Cook county huut the woodcock with cocker spauiels, the dog of dogs for the pursuit,hut oftenest they use pointers or setters. The letter are the better for the purpose, siuce their heavy coet gives them more protection from the briars, and there is plenty of water for their thirst. Per contra, they hecome overcoeted more easily, and under this couditiou their scent is not so good as that of the pointers. The cover is so thick that the shooter cannot see the dog helf the time. As the animal is supposed to he trained, end will not flush when his point is made, a small hell is hnog about his nsck. When the hell stops tinkling the owner knows that his dog has found his game. He pushes his way centiously through the undergrowth aud finds him, mayhe lying still in a mudhole, with his tongue hanging out. Theu things grow warmer. If there really is game there the man with the gun steps as if on eggshells. Slowly aud more slowly he moves. He is in front of the dog now—five, ten, fiftesn feet away. The scoundrel is lying. Thet's what's the matter with him. He didn't do this lest seasou. Must have heeu spoiled hy folks on the street. A helf hour of whip will do him good. Whir-r-r! A brown object that ssems as big as a baloon hounds thirty fest into the opsu air, then whirls to the left, and is gone. In the hundredth part of a sscoud it hes decreassd from heloon size to cocoennt sizs, then to walnut size, then to pinhead sizs, then to nothiug. The gun has goue off somehow, aud light green willow leeves heve fallen to the ground. The dog, which has charged as a dog should, with his heed hetween his paws, glances up reproachfully. He is caked with mud from foot to heckbone. He is scratched hy hriars. Saliva trickles steadily from his open jaws. His extended tongue is a fiery crimson. He is too hot to think. Dog telk cannot express his disgust. He sees nothing in it for him or for any one else, hut he gets up and limps on, determined to give his worthless mester one more chence, thsn jnmp tbe ressrvation.

The chance comes neer a little spring thet gushes from undsr the rotting roots of a sycamore. The ground ahout it is derk and marshy. It is filled with little round boles from which worms have been extrected. The hushss grow spercely here, and there is some grass. The bell ceeses its thin jangle. The dog form is rigid as an iron har and the eyes glow like molten gold. The hanner-tail waves slowly to and fro, and the legs are planted far apert and the sensitive pink nostrils expend end contrect within an inch of the ground, drinking draughts of a perfume that is not tengible to human olfactories, but is atter of roses to the dog. Once agein the bird thunders up almost between the feet of his persuer, hut there is no willow thicket, and he goes straight away. The gnn cracks behind him and he pitches forword from a height of twenty feet, turuing over and over. As he lies upon his beck, with his slender legs drawn up close to the body, he seems all bill end hreest. Indeed, the rich mottled chest of him sticks out like the front elevation of a pouter pigeon. There is flesh heneath the heantiful feathers, much of it, the richest, tenderest, juiciest, most delicious of all flesh. The man with the gun picks up the dead thing and rubs it against his dog's nose.

"Abs!" he says, "you woolly freud! Thought the old man was out of it, did you? What do yon think, now, eh? Ain't I one of 'em, eh? Ain't I the whole thing, eh?"

"The dog's eyes gleam with joy. He is stiff with dirt and tired, but he essays a gembol. He would like enother smell of that delightful bird and gets it. He utters three short, tremulous herks, which sey more plainly than printed words cen: 'There can he no possihle doubt whetever that of all mesters this master is the most excellent aud agreeable. He is also the hest shot in the world. I am fortunate to be permitted to go abont with him sometimes, though I wonld like to go oftener.' The man with the gun looks at him as he stuffs the woodcock into his shooting coet and muses. 'Just like a woman,' he says. 'If his brain were es hig as his heart he would own me.' Chicego sportsmen tell teles of invaluahle pointers lost along the Fox and Kankakee rivers. The bells stopped tinkling; the dogs could not be found; they were too stench to hreek; they starved miserebly to deeth waiting for owners who never came; their erect skeletons were fonnd five seasons after, a little hide still clinging to the fremes, their heads still lowered on the point.

"It is not at ell difficult for a men et this season to obtain forty shots in a day's hunt. If he hsgs a dozen and a helf of woodcock he has no right to be cross. Later on the hirds will become shyer and scarcer. By the middle of August it will he difficult to flush more then a dozen on a ten-honrs' tramp. Early in September they all fly sonthwerd. They winter in South America in swarms. Greet shooting is had along the Oriuoco. Thousands of hirds, however, stop in our Sonthern Stetes and may be shot on any day hetween October and Merch in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texes.

"The woodcock is singuler in one respect—the femele is much larger than the male. They breed early in the spring, going north of the St. Lawrence, hut, like the jacksnipe, they have been known, in rare instances, to rear younu in this latitnde. The female lays from four to five eggs, and is especially careful of her brood, whose members are plump, downy things, not unlike Leghorn chickens just ont of the shell. At one time there was an idea prevaleut, not only amoug shotgnn people, hut also among naturalists, that the woodcock crossed the Atlantic each year, going to England to mete, aud returning in midsummer. He is a strong flyer, but not equel to the trip. The hird has another peculiarity—his cell to his mete is a soft wooiug gurgle, hut he cannot utter it while on the ground. He tries it sometimes, hut his bill droops to earth and his teil tilts spasmodically up. This eccentricity cams up for discussion at the last meeting of the C. C. I. A. G. H.—Cook County Independent Association of Good Hunters—commonly known as the Cook Couuty Industrious Aggregation of Game Hogs, aud Most Snpreme Worthy Custodian Mitchell exoressed regret that some human singers were not similarly afflicted. The woodcock's mild cluck-cluck when feeding has heen trausleted by the negro into 'Good Lord,' aud it is supposed to he a preyer for worms.

"Taken by and large, this bird furnishes more difficult shooting thsn anything that flies over American soil. This is due partly to his habits, which, except at night, keep him in thick woods, swamps, aud cenehrakes, and partly to his flight, which is rapid and spiral. The hird is easily stopped when centered, but the centeriug process hes its drawhecks. Of all guns the 16 gauge is preferahle. The woodcock is killed nearly elways at short range, end the lack of weight of this weapon enables one to handle it quickly. The berrels should he cylinder-bored. In tbe South the quarry is found in the canebrakes, whicb grow to a height of forty feet.

"According to Mr. Organ, Congressioner candidate and Kesper of the Great Seal of the Macksawba Club, there is hut one way in which to cook woodcock. He has heen shooting et thsm for thirty yeers, and says that he ought to know. This is his recipe, taken stenographically in the big gunroom of the club down on the Kankakee the evening of July 15th, when the day's missing had ended aud dinner had besn eaten and julep time had come.

"Take a deep earthern dish large enough to hold four, Ya-es, four woodcocks. I seid 'woodcocks' didn't I? You fellows ein't as fuuny as a funeral. They will he just snough for yon. If your wife likes woodcock get another dish. Lay them in the hottom on thsir becks. Put in enough water, some hutter, salt and pepper to the taste and add a strong dash of good Madeira. Nsedn't he particnlar to put it down 'good' Madeira. There ein't eny bed. Put on a fleky crust and let the four bills stick up through the center. Briug me another julep. Bake 'em slowly. Don't be in a hurry. Don't let the crnst get broken. Yon want to keep the steem in. Funny thing you can't get straws without slits in 'em. Take 'em ont of the oven when the crnst is brown. Be careful. Cnt a circuler hole in the crust 'bout as hig as a gun wad, put your nose to it and smell. They'll be done all right, hut that sort of makes yon feel more like doing hnsiness. Lift the hirds ont by their legs, pour the gravy over 'em end take some of the pastry. Thet's all yon want to know. I never could leern that stewerd to keep from hrnisin' the mint."

Willows Trap Shoot.

Next Saturday and Sunday, September 17th and 18th, nnder the auspices of the Willows Gun Clnh a tournament will be given in Willows thet promises to be a very entertaining affair.

For a loug time there has been a great rivalry in the renks of the gun clubs of Northern Californie; and in Woodlend, Marysvile, Chico, Red Bluff, Reddiug,end other towns, there are some of the most expert shots in the State. The tournament which has been arranged by the local gun clnb will bring the champions together, and the events will be of more than ordinary interest. The rnles of the American Association will govern all of the events end the prizes will be worth striving for. There are five events of live bird shooting scheduled for the first dey, the second event being for fifteen hirds with prizes of $100. There will be four moneys for this event and three for eech of the other four shoots. Entrence in the first six bird event will be $1.50; the fiftesn bird rece $5, and in the other three live hird metches of the first day $2 50 each. Blue-rock shooting will he held on hoth days at the pleesure of the shooters, All of these events are confined to shooters north of Sacremento, the capitol city barred. The management are much gretified over the report of entries already received. Chas. Branham the Clnh's secretary, should oe notified of intending entries.

The second day will he given over to a mixed progrem, which will he of exceptional interest. There will he a splendid lunch spreed at the grounds (Agricultural Park) and the committees in charge will leave nothing nudone in the way of arreugements for hospitality to their guests.

The officers of the Willows Gun Club ere: Presideut, George Mellor; Vice-president, William Bielar; Secretary, Charles Brenham; Treasurer, Chester Brenhem; Captain, Thomas Ajax. Directors: B. H. Burton, Frank Freemen, Wm. Winter, John Sersanous and Ed. M. Sehorn.

At a practice shoot held at Willows, Sept. 4th, at twenty hlne rocks, the following scores were made:

Thomes Agax	18	Frank Burgl	14
Charles Branham	17

At the Traps To-morrow.

The Olympic Gun Club will shoot live birds at Ingleside to-morrow, this being the club's closiug shoot for the yeer. This meeting will determine who the winners of the medals for the year will he.

The Empire Gun Club will smash blue rocks at Alameda and the Sonth Ends will shoot at Colma.

At Ingleside Traps.

The veteran trap-shooting organizetion, the California Wing Club, closed its live-hird season for '98 last Sundey on the Ingleside grounds. The attendance was fair, the birds being good ones as a rule.

The club championship medal for this year was won hy Otto Feudner on a total score of 81 out of a possible 84. Last year C. A. Haight wes the successful shooter for this trophy on a similar score. The second medal was taken hy Clerence Naumen, who scored 76 out of 84. Three men tied for third medal, C. A. Haight, Andrew Jecksou aud P. McRee, with a score of 75 hirds esch. Clarence Haight waived his claim for the medal aud McRae and Jacksou shot off the tie at five birds eech, in which eveut Jecksou came out victor aud won the medel on a streight score, whilst McRee lost his fifth bird.

The scores iu detail were es follows:

Golden Gate Gun Club.

The closing shoot for the season of the Golden Gate Gun Club took plece on the Pecific Tournament grounds, Alameda, last Sunday. The day was favorable to trep-shooting and the attendance of club members was good. The averages for the season show that the first cless medal was won by "Pnmp," the secoud class medal went to C. Wollam end J. Pisani took the third class medal. The attendeoce of the members during the orief season has been very good and a noticeable increase in scores hes been made considering tbat a nnmber of the shooters were novices.

Succeeding the clnh shoot a pool race at ten birds was held, Mitchell and Micbelssen divided first money and Wollam won second money.

A very successful hunting trip was teken last Saturday and Snndey in the vicinity of Trespers on Austin creek, the hunters composing the perty were, General J. H. Dickinson, Major Miles, S. A. Sharp, Tom Berney, Chas. and Fred Ingram, Ernest and Drake Tresper. The combined hag counted eight fine fat bucks, which is a pretty good record for two deys' shooting, even in that favoreble deer hunting district.

J. B. Hauer, Secretary of the Empire Gun Club has issued the following notice to the members: "The regular meeting of the Empire Gun Club will be held in room 7, Crocker Building, Tuesday evening, September 6th, promptly et 8 o'clock. This being the last regnlar meetiug of the Club prior to the opening of the duck season, end as much detail work concerniug our preserves is to be considered, yon are earnestly requested to attend."

The hnnt last Sunday at the Country Club shows a count of three fine bucks; one of them, weighing 137 pounds dressed, was shot by J. Le Roy Nickel. W. S. Kittle howled over a game old veteran of the chase who shook the hounds off several times before coming to bay and offering a chance for a favorable shot. Van Sicklen gathered in the third, and he, hy the way, has now the club record up to date, having killed four bucks averaging in weight 120 pounds each, which, by the way, is a very fine season's record.

FARM.

How a Dairy Herd Has Been Built Up.

An instructiva illustration of tha manner in which the milk and butter yielding capacities of dairy cows may he developed hy carefnl selection is afforded hy soma datails recently given publicity to in connection with a prominent herd on tha other side of tha channal. About a dozen years ago the milk of all the cows comprised in this herd—over sixty in number—was carefully analysed. Nina of the cows were found to hs yielding milk showing over 5 per cent. of hutter fat, 22 were yielding over 4½ per cant, and 23 were yielding undar 4 par cent. From this data onwards calves wera only kept off the cows which yielded milk showing over 4½ per cent. of hutter fat, and tha tribes of the others were gradually weeded out. By tha aid of a regularly kept milk record tha prodnct of avery cow is known, and nona is kept for any leugth of time which does not yield over 600 gallons per annom. By combining what is learned from tha analysis and tha milking record, and ouly keaping calves from cows whosa produca is up to standard, alika in quantity and quality, tha milking properties of tha cow hava hean so improved that at presant over 50 per cent of its membars are yielding milk showing over 5 per cent. and 75 par cant. ara yialding milk showing ovar 4½ per cent. of hutter fat. This result has only hean attained hy the exercisa of great care and ecrupnlous attention in the selection of hulls, and no sire is nsed without every inquiry haing mada as to tha milking records of his female ancestry.—Dnblin, Ireland, Farmer' Gazetta.

Importing Horses.

For savaral yaars American hnyers have heen few and far hetween in tha foreign market for pure-hred horses, hut thay are again appearing and ara haartily walcomed hy tha English, French and German breeders. It is a safe prediction that in the current fiscal year treasury reports will show more pura-hred horses imported than in any year since tha great collapse in the breeding hoom. Importars are hrioging these horses across the water because they helieve they can find a good market for tham hara, and thay can. Buyers for good stallions are decidedly more numerous, and they come from all quarters. Ranchmen as well as farmers are encouraged over the prospect and are preparing to grade up their hards. Ona thing noticeahla is that huyers are calling for a better class of horses than they did during tha palmy days of tha husiness a decada or more ago. Thay are looking to the horsa and pedigree as well, and it is going to take both to fetch a long prica in the future. The day whan anything that is "importad" will sell has gona hy.

It has heen tha axperienca of cattle feeders that they must either feed good stock or very cheap stock in ordar to maka money. The feeder who gets a lot of cattle that will make a good gain and put it in tha right placa is in hest position to make money if othar things are ordinarily favorahla. Tha advanca par cwt. on tha whola steer is greatest on the hest kind. Tha cattle that ara of a coarser quality, though they maka just as many pounds gain, do not have the advantaga of such an advance over first cost. But very chaap cattla often maka more money than the othar kind hecanse thay sell for such an advanca over first cost when made fleshy. They may still sall low as compared with good cattle, and must do so as a rule hecause they are of a low quality, that no amonnt of feed will maka good. It may he added that there ara very few of thase cattla to he had now. Tha cheap quality cattla hava sold high as compared with hettar kinds for a long time.

Devon cattle hava not haen as popular in Colorado as soma other hreeds hut those who hava hards of Devons ara greatly pleased with them. Frank S. Byers of Grand county writes: "This is a vary dry season hara, and feed is hurnt up and scarce. But with all, the Devons look hettar than any other cattle. Tha Devons ara gaining ground hera very fast in thesa mountains. My neighhors hegin to realiza that they ara tha cattle of this rough country, and hy another year I expect to sell all my hulls hara at home." A. E. Bakar of Boulder county says: "I have had good succass this season with my Devon calves. I have mora calves from fewar cows this year than since 1893. I am much encourgad."—Denver Field and Farm.

A London paper puhlishes quite a list of pure-bred draft stallions that hava been shipped to Buenos Ayres for tha purposa of gradiog up the horses of Argentina. Another paper, of ahout tha saa a date, records an extensive shipmant of pura-hrad hulls of haef hreeds to the sama point. There is no douht about the detarmiuation of Argentine hreeders to improve their stock, and in time hecoma more formidahle competitors with this country in supplying the world with horsas, cattle and sheep.

We have found hy analysis that the average pomace of California grapes is worth ahout $2.50 per tou as a fertilizer, counting nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid. Whan allowed to lie out in tha opan air farmenting, the losses hy hleaching and avaporation rednca this valua to the extent of $1 to $1 50. Pomace is tharafore eminently worthy of heing saved as a fertilizer and can readily he preserved hy siloing in cass the farmer is not raady to plow it in green.—E. W. Hilgard, California Experimental Station.

At a cost of $70 a farmar fad 200 sheep fiva months in the winter on straw and an avening ration of one and a half hushels of oats. The fleece easily paid for the keap of the flock; tha straw was turned to manure; a good ravenue resulted from tha sale of lambs and mutton; he still had his 200 laft.

The Chicago Drovers' Journal in refarring to the prospects of the cattla market this fall makes the following perlinent remarks: "With no large supply of ripa heavy cattla in the country, this is not an easy year to depress cattla value. Thera is so much demand for thin young cattla and they are held at such high prices everywhera, that if huyers depress the markat much for unfinished cattla, country peopla will simply hold and faed them, wall knowing they cannot replaca them anywhare at corresponding low prices. Add to this the acknowledged fact that there is no larga supply of ranga cattle and it looks as if the difficnlties preventing slaughtarers and dealers from making fair margins wonld hava to ha adjusted from tha consuming rather than from the producing end. In other words, there seems to he mora reason at present to look for higher heef at homa and abroad than for lower cattle."

A letter received from Dawson City, dated June 22, from a man who left Miles City, Mon., with a shipment of horses and heef cattle, and ahout thirty cases of eggs, states that his outfit reached Dawson in good condition, and he reports that for seven cases of eggs ha realized $450. Ten head of hie steers sold for $10,400. Thesa cattled were slaughtered and retailed at $2 per pound.

Bettar overstock a sheep pasture than to let a surplus grow which will ha hard to get rid of. Pasturage properly cropped tends to make tha growth of grass permanent, while that which goes to seed is short lived.

It is thosa men who make it a study who helieve that there is a profit in sheep keeping on the farm if it is adhered to in good and evil times, and pursued with perseverance and intelligence.

In tha mutton markat poorly fatted sheep are poor property. No profit results to the owner in offering them hefore they are fitted for the huyers.

Pomona, Cal., June 7, 1897.

Since I have practiced my profession (veterinary surgeon) in this place I have had occasion to prescriha your "Gombault's Canstic Balsam" contrary to my usoal method of practice, which is to avoid the usa or recommendation of any propriatary medicina, hut experience has shown ma its valua. When I cama hare in '93 tha ramedy was unknown. I think if I can make some arrangement with you for an exclusiva agancy for this community I can push the sala of the same in a way that will ha highly satisfactory to you and profitable to mysalf. If you will come to some understanding with ma pleasa advise me of the terms yon are willing to give.

ADDRESS NOMINATIONS AND ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO SECRETARY, 204 SUTTER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

R. B. MILROY, Secretary. THOS. H. WILLIAMS, Jr., President.

Mule breeding is one of the unknown erts in meny parts of the West end yet there ere plenty of good jacks, and at the same time there ere quite e number that at the best ere very poor for breeding purposes. In fact they ere not worth breeding end a farmer makes e serious misteke in breeding his mares to such enimels. There is demend for well-formed, good-sized mules, end they readily bring such prices as will leave a farmer e good profit for the trouble of raising them, Poor mulee, small and not well-built, ere poor property for any man to own. A good team of young mules can be made to do considerehle work for eighteen months or two years, and then he sold et four years old, just at e time when they will, under ordinary circumstances, bring the best prices. With good care, mules can he broken end worked easier then horses.

For the farmer the district fairs have heen e school of leerning, seys an exchange. They have encouraged him to engege in agriculture es an occupetion. They have taught him to cultivate thet which will yield him the greatest profit, to procure that which will make his work pleasant, end not to impoverish hy wasteful expenditures for useless erticles or tools, or hy unnecessary calculation for improhehle results of certain methods of cultivation. In connection with the press they have brought the agricultural interest to its present prominent position in the world They have encouraged the young man and young woman to stey on the ferm, and tanght thet agricultnre, in its truest sense, should he recognized hefore any end heyond ell others.

The walnut husiness is one of our infant industries in this State. The output has heen increasing rapidly for the lest six yeers. Last year it emounted to ahout 3,700 tons, and this year there will he 5,000 tons to merket. Or put in ten-ton cerloads there will he 500 of them. The totsl consumption of walnuts in the United States is 7,000 tons, or less than 50 per cent. more than the California crops. The imports come from Southern Italy, the nuts from there heing known as Neapolitan, and from Southeastern France, the product of that district being known as Grenobles. The Italian nuts are inferior to those grown in California, hut the French are equel to any in the world.

Sheep drovers celculate on a loss of from one to three per cent. in the drive hetween Oregon renges and Eastern destination. The principal cause of loss is poison along the trails. This poison is a very mysterions thing, as one hand of sheep may pass over a given point and a number will take sick and die; the next hend may pess over the seme gronnd and lose none. The third mey suffer as much loss or more than the first. A practicing physicien who took to speculating in sheep thought he would go along with his flocks and discover the cause, but after three years' experience he is as much mystified es the most ignorent herder in his employ.

The breast of the Indian Game resembles that of the pheasent or preirie chicken, says en American fancier. The heft of the meat lies on the hreast, and this fact, with its hright yellow skin and legs, mekes it the broiler fowl. The quality and appeerence of the Asiatic and American hreeds cen he greatly bettered hy crossing with the Indian Game. The fast growing qualities and plump hreest of the Indian Game is added to the large form of the Brahma, Cochin end Plymouth Rock, and makes the finest kind of a hroiler.

Ducks intended for market should he killed et ten weeks and should weigh 4½ pounds dressed at thet age. Ducks intended for hreeders should he fed a variety and plenty of green food. Do not feed whole grain, hut give a mixed feed of hren, corn meel, heef scraps, ground oats and hoiled vegetables of eny kind, turnips, cabhages, rutahagas. Ducks require plenty of green food; celery makes en excellent food. With celery-fed broilers the epicurian can he supplied with dainty dishes fit for a king.

We have heerd it stated thet upwerds of $3,000 per day is heing peid into this county for elfalfa hay, and the shipments have been going on for ahout sixty days. It hardly seems possihle that our little county of Kings, efter feeding stock from the coast and other dry counties, as well es all its local stock, can in one dry season ship ont over $200,000 worth of hay and still keep on hend an ahundance for home consumption. But such is the virtue of alfalfa.—Hanford Sentinel.

Stehle mannre and ashes should not he put on land et the seme time, as the potesh would liherete one of the most valuehle elements in the menure, emmonie, which would then escape into the air end be lost to the trees or the crop, says The National Stockman. Six months apart would do well, using eshes in the spring and manure in the fell.

It is not in accordence with the fitness of things that our finer wool is imported. Nowhere are the climatic conditions more fevorahle to production then in America, and there is no end to the wealth for the sheep grower in his valleys and hills.

The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three-hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed superbly illnstrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, galting, driving, keeping racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Silby, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develope to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

TO BE RUN DURING THE SPRING MEETING OF 1900 AND TO CLOSE FOR STALLIONS SEPTEMBER 15, 1898.

CONDITIONS FOR ENTRY OF STALLIONS.

For then two years old, foals of 1898, to run at the spring meeting in 1900, the progeny of stallions nominated. Such nominations to close September 15, 1898, at $50 each, or only $25 for stallions which have not sired a winner prior to December 1, 1898. Of the subscriptions for stallions the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third horses shall receive 25 per cent., 15 per cent. and 10 per cent. respectively. Nominations to be addressed to the Clerk of the Course, Westchester Racing Association, 173 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Foals, the progeny of stallions nominated as above, to be entered by December 1, 1898, at $10 each, the only forfeit if declared by December 1, 1899. If left in after December 1, 1899, a further subscription of $25 each. If left in after May 1, 1900, a further subscription of $50 each. Starters to pay $150 additional.

The Westchester Racing Association to add sufficient to make the gross value of the race $20,000, all to the winner, less the following deductions: To the nominator of the winner, $1,000; to the owner of the second, $1,000; to the owner of the third, $500. The owners of the second and third horses shall also receive 20 per cent. and 20 per cent. respectively of the starting money. Of the subscriptions for stallions the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third horses shall receive 25 per cent., 15 per cent. and 10 per cent. respectively. To carry, colts, 122 lbs.; fillies and geldings, 119 lbs.

The produce of stallions which have not produced a winner prior to December 1, 1898, allowed 5 lbs., if claimed at time of entry. In case of a stallion nominated by other persons, as well as his owner, the owner shall have prior right. Should a stallion be nominated by two or more persons not his owners, priority of entry shall determine claim to the engagement.

By filing with the Westchester Racing Association, prior to December 1, 1899, an accepted transfer of the foal's entry, the original subscriber shall be released from liability as to the engagement of the horse, except for the original forfeit of $10.

Entries shall not be void by death of the nominator or transferee if the engagement is assumed by the then owner of the horse, and notice in writing to that effect is given the Westchester Racing Association within ninety days after such demise, together with the payment of all accrued liabilities.

Last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course.

NOTE—The attention of nominators to the National Stallion Race is called to the third paragraph of Rule 72.

In produce races, or races for which nominations of foals are made, the nominator will be released from further liability by filing prior to the date of the first declaration stated in the conditions of the race, an accepted transfer of the entry, accompanied with all forfeits to date of such declaration.

STATE FAIR A SUCCESS.

Large Crowds Visiting the Park and Pavilion This Week.

While the first week of the California State Fair at Sacramento did not give promise of a very successful meeting in point of attendance, the second week which opened Monday, began drawing the crowds, and Thursday last, on which day the Futurity was run, about eight thousand people crowded into the park to witness the races. This is said to be the largest attendance ever seen at the Fair. The day before was Governor's day, but Mr. Budd did not prove as much of a drawing card as the great colt race. The display at the pavilion this year is not quite up to former exhibits, though a visitor who desires to know of this State's great resources can spend many hours there in profitable study of the object lessons spread in profusion before him.

Thursday of last week was devoted to the runners at the track, and although the fields were small in the majority of the events there was a fair attendance and some good racing.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

The day's race opened with the Shafter selling stake, six furlongs, for maiden two-year-olds. The starters were Jennie Reid 2 to 1, Casdale 4, Nilgar 2½, The Miller 8 and Midlove. The youngsters went off at the first attempt, Casdale showing in front, but was soon passed by Jennie Reid. Then Midlove set the pace for a while, but at the three-quarters, where they were closely bunched, Jennie Reid began to pull away and won in a drive in 1:16½ by a half-open length from Casdale, Nilgar third by the same distance.

The second race was one mile, for four-year-olds, selling, and the starters were Kruna 3 to 1, Cromwell 1, Shasta Water 1, Joe Terry fi.

At the first break the horses were sent away with Kruna slightly in front. At the quarter it was Shasta Water, Cromwell, Kruna and Terry. Up the stretch and around the turn there was no change in the positions, but on entering the last stretch Cromwell evened up with Shasta Water, the others well bunched. Whips sawed the air in a lively fashion down the stretch, and at the seven-eigths Cromwell shot to the front and beat Shasta Water by an open length in 1:42, Joe Terry third and Kruna last.

San Mateo was a warm favorite in the six and one-half furlong race for three-year-olds at 1 to 4, the others being Major Cook 6 to 1, Rose Maid 20 to 1, Lady Brittanic 12 to 1 and Nonchalance 10 to 1.

The Major was pacemaker for the most of the way to the three-quarters, the favorite trailing, and Lady Brittanic close up. When Snider got ready he sent San Mateo to the front and won in a jog in 1:22½, Major Cook second by a couple of lengths, Brittanic third.

In the fourth race, for maiden two-year-olds, five furlongs, the starters were Napian 3 to 2, Almoner 8 to 5, Faversham 8 to 5, Crossmolina 10 to 1, Alcatraz 6 to 1 and Cleodora 3 to 1.

The colts got a straggling start, with Faversham in front. Around the turn Napian went up even and led into the last stretch by a half length. Here Almoner came up and with Napian made the struggle for the race, Faversham falling back to third. It was a driving race to the outcome, but Almoner won by a nose in 1:03½ from Napian, Faversham third.

The fifth race, one mile, brought out Manzanilla 4 to 1, Libertine 2½ to 1, Lost Girl 4 to 1; Scarborough 7 to 10 and Stoic 30 to 1.

The race was between Scarborough and the old veteran Libertine, which ran lapped all the way to near the outcome where Scarborough went out and won by a length and a half in the slow time of 1:43½, Lost Girl third.

Last on the day's list was a six furlong race for three-year-olds, sellings. There were seven in it—Fig Leaf fi to 1, Moringa 2½ to 1, Ockturuck 8 to 1, Fleming 10 to 1, Finnegan 3 to 1, Harry Thohurn 8 to 5 and Venis 3 to 1.

Harry Thohurn, the 8 to 5 favorite, sustained the confidence of his backers by going out and winning the race handily in 1:15½. Moringa second by a couple of lengths and Venis third. Following are the

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 9.

Five harness races were the attraction on Friday and the attendance was greater than any previous day of the Fair. The 2:10 trot, in which Toggles, Mootsre y, Zombro and Galette were the starters, was expected to be a contest between the two first named, but Monterey was too unsteady to give Toggles an argument, and the latter won easily in straight heats, lengths ahead of the others.

Mamie Riley annexed the 2:40 trot after a drive through the stretch with Phoebe Childers and Joe Selby, beating Phœbe a length, who in turn was three or four lengths ahead of Joe Selby. The fourth horse was at least ten lengths away, the balance strung out. Mamie is a fast and game mare and Phoebe Childers is showing form that may develop into 2:10 material in another year.

In the 2:16 trot J. B. Iverson's gelding, Prince Gift, won very easily in 2:16½, which is not within five seconds of his ability. He started off in the lead and was never headed, but pulled up and finished in a jog. Silver Ring showed lots of speed for a half mile, but broke and dropped back. The scoring was tedious in this race, Starter Wilson not getting them away until the seventh score.

Rex Alto turned the tables on Much Better in the 2:14 pace and beat her in 2:12½. He got off in the lead, with Floracito second, while Much Better was fifth. Mr. Bunch got his mare going, however, and by the time the head of the stretch was reached Much Better was a good third and coming very fast, but she broke and fell back at least twenty lengths. Rex Alto when going squarely, can speed a two-minute clip.

Diablo's son, Diawood, placed another race to his credit by winning the 2:17 pace. He did it easily in 2:14½ and seemed to outclass his field, with the exception of Rex Alto, the winner of the precious race, who got off badly, was tangled up in a break and was never better than sixth, although a favorite at one to two. Following are the

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.

Saturday was favorites' day, five good things pulling down the money out of six races. Grady was the horse that helped out the long-enders, though the best that could be had on him was 6 to 1.

There was lively betting throughout the afternoon, and all the conditions were favorable for good sport. The weather could not have been improved if it had been made to the order of the Agricultural Society, and the attendance was good.

The opening event of the day was for three-year-olds, six furlongs, the starters being O'Fleeta 10 to 1, Lost Girl 2, Sport McAllister 2½, Himera 10, Sea Spray 8, Homestake 12, Losette 10, Amasa 6, Major Cook 3, Mollie A. 20 and Osculation 8 to 5.

Sport McAllister led the field up to the half, where Osculation, the favorite, passed him and won by a length. It looked as if Sport McAllister should have won if well ridden. Major Cook was left at the post.

Next came the California annual stake, for two-year-olds, six furlongs, in which the starters were Obsidian 6 to 5, Ranier 4 to 1, Alcatraz 15, Faversham 15 and Jennie Reed 7 to 10.

Faversham shot away in the lead with a length of daylight between him and Obsidian. At the half Jennie Reed moved up to second place, and was crowding the leader as they entered the last stretch. Half way from the outcome Piggott called on Jennie and put her to the front, winning in 1:16 by a length and a half, Faversham three lengths ahead of Obsidian.

For the Capital City Handicap, one and an eighth miles, the line-up was: Marplot 8 to 5, Scarborough 2 to 1, Buckwa 3 to 5, Grady 6 to 1.

This was a horserace from start to finish, although the time made was slow, 1:56. Marplot led by the stand in the send-off, with Scarborough, Buckwa and Grady all in a bunch. At the quarter Buckwa had taken the lead, Marplot

DRIVING ASSOCIATION RACES

Nearly Four Thousand People Visit Ingleside Admission Day and Enjoy the Sport.

When the Golden Gate Park Driving Association starts out to give a meeting at which the members can test the relative speed of their horses, they know no such word as feil, and from the time the association was first organized its meetings have been largely attended and very successful. The first meeting ever given by the association was held on September 9, 1896, and last Friday, two years from thet date, the sixth meeting was held at the seme place. It was the first meeting of the association at which an admission fee was cherged, hot that did not keep the crowd away, and in spite of a half dozen other attractions which were advertised for that day, nearly four thousand people passed through the gate at Ingleside treck and thoroughly enjoyed one of the best programs of mixed trotting and pacing events that has ever been given by this orgenization.

The officers of the association are as follows, end we believe every one wes present without exception: J. C. Kirkpetrick, President; Ed. H. Aigeltinger, Vice-President; E. Stewart, Treasurer; F. W. Thompson, Secretary. Directors—Frenk G. O'Kene, Geo. Berry, Harry Patrick, Jas. Chesley, Dr. W. F. Egen, H. W. Miller, J. C. Ohlandt, W. Hamerton, I. B. Delziel, R. F. Gallegher, C. F. Kepp, F. Vetter.

In the judges' stend Directors O'Kane & Gellsgher officiated, while Mr. T. Crowley acted es starter. Dr. Ira B. Dalziel was Mershal, and to his untiring energy and enthusiesm much of the success of the meeting is due.

The track, which was in no condition for fast time, wes safe, hnt as it had been cut by the harrows to a depth of three inches, good judges were of the opinion that it was at leest eight seconds slow, while some claimed ten seconds would be nearer the mark.

During the two days of mixed trotting and pecing, ten races were given, and in every heat but one every horse was driven to win. In this instance the offender was punished immediately by a fine, and another driver was put up behind his horse.

The weather could not have been improved upon, end the grounds at Ingleside never looked more heautiful. The grand stand on Friday was filled with ladies and their escorts, and a more refined or better class of people has never attended a race meeting in San Francisco.

The races brought out prominently several road horses that have not heretofore been suspected to be as good as they showed to be. Localeer, a pacer bred at Palo Alto, by Mec Benton and from an Electioneer mare, paced to a mark of 2:30, and on a good track should be able to shade 2:20. He is owned by E. Stewart, the association's treasurer. King Cadenza, by Steinway, owned by Chas. F. Kapp, is anothe that should get a low mark. He was splendidly driven by his owner and won his race handily with speed to spare. Maud Newman, Chas. Newman's well-known trick mare, by Anteeo Jr., trotted to a record of 2:26¼ and won a hotly contested race in the gamest fashion. Wayboy, a little chestnut gelding by Strathway, when he gets to acting well, would not surprise those who saw his race if he paced in 2:12 next season. Alfred H. won his race so handily that he must have had lots of speed to spare. That prince of all road horses, Chris Peterson, 2:13½, trotted a mile in 2:20, which, considering the track's condition, was a better mile then he trotted when he gained his record. Al Gregor's mile in 2:19 was also a splendid performance. Geo. Berry has these horses in splendid shape and there are none that can beat them down the speed track.

In the second heat of the race won by King Cadenza, it looked for a time as though he could not possibly win. Going around the first turn Mr. Kapp's right line broke right at his hand and the King went to a bad break. With the coolness of a veteran Kapp reached over, got a grip on the remaining portion of the line, brought his horse to his geit and finelly won the rece. It was a very neat display of good horsemanship.

Those who had bet their money on Correct the last day of the meeting were dissatisfied with the decision of the judges in taking a heet awey from that horse and giving it to Maud Newman. The races were under the Nationel rules, which prohibit a horse from winning a heat that does not maintain the same position in the stretch that he takes when entering it. There is no doubt but Correct either swerved or was driven across the track when neering the wire, going from the outside to the pole. Under National rules a horse doing this cennot win, and the judges hed no alternative hnt to award the heat to Maud Newmen. Correct was driven by Nick Hottna, who is hnt a youth in years, and his horse had the speed of the field, carried the most money and was naturally a favorite, so that the decision, although perfectly proper, was not populer.

Old Haviland, the pecer owned by J. Ohlandt is one of the popular horses belonging to the association members. He is nearly old enough to vote, but is as game as ever and probably as fest as he ever was. Bishop Hero, Eugene Cercial's geme five-mile trotter is another of the club favorites. He won the first race of the meeting which was a hotly contested one from start to finish. The finish between Bishop Hero, Maud Newman end Haviland in which they crossed the score noses apert, was one of the most exciting ever seen on a rece track and brought the crowd in the grandstand to its feet.

Lazy Charley is not so lazy as his name indicates. He is fast as a ghost and though hitched to a big high wheel cart led his field in both heats to the fer turn. Hitched to a bike and properly rated he should win in the same class.

The sweet little mare Fanadma had only ten days' work before her race and was in no condirion to trot a split heat rece on such a heavy track. She won one heat, however, and made a splendid showing in the race. Fanedma should be able to lower her record of 2:19¼ most any time on a good track.

Teken altogether, the meeting was one of the most successful ever held in this city, and the Golden Gate Park Driving Club is certaioly entitled to great praise for the menner in which they managed it. Following are the summaries:

Three Days at Independence, Or.

The first day opened with good weether and a fast treck. The card wes a good one, and 2:20 was beaten in the 2:17 trot, which showed the ability of the horses on the grounds. The first race was the two-year-old stake and had five starters—Prince Almont Jr., Isabel and Egypt. Ed Mosher drove Egypt well and won the race after a herd drive in the third heat.

SUMMARY.

Prince Almont Jr.	Gaushutt	1	2	2
Isabel	Statts	3	3	3

Time—2:56, 2:58½, 2:50.

The 2:17 trot also had three starters and was won in straight heats by Bonner N. B.

Meteor	Miller	2	2

Del Norte, who has been advertised as a guideless pacer, made his first public appeerance here and paced a mile in 2:15.

The second day opened fine and with a fest track, hnt a very light attendence. The first event on the card was the 2:38 trot, with three starters. Coral, driven by Ed Mosher, handled his charge to perfection and drove es good a race as was ever witnessed on the treck. He won the first heet very handily. In the second heat Lady Careful, driven by Lute Lindsay, surprised herself and everyone else by winning in 2:25. This wes a brilliant stroke on the pert of Lute, and the smile that he wore was probably ceused by the fect thet for this record he would receive at leest $1.75.

Best time, 2:29¼.

Meteor and Almoline, by Coeur d'Alene, went a couple of exhibition miles in 2:22 and 2:23. Almoline is a green mare and has every appearance of being a very fast one. Del Norte paced a mile in 2:08½.

This closed the meeting. Mr. Mosher has worked hard and faithfully to make this meeting a success, and his efforts should have been better rewarded, but he carried out the program to the best of his ability, and has the satisfaction of knowing that he had done just as he promised to and the horsemen are satisfied with their treatment.—Rural Spirit.

Racing at Hanford.

The Hanford Racing Association held a two day's meeting on the track at that place Sept. 2d and 3d. The contests were close in nearly every event, and were much enjoyed by a large crowd of people who came from the surrounding country, many coming from as far as Bakersfield.

The betting was brisk and considerable money changed hands. The results of the races were as follows:

Race for Buggy Horses.

Time not given.

Running—Half mile dash. The first heat was a dead heat between Field's "Defender" and Burris' "Evans," with Batillo's Lady Kern third. The second heat was won by Defender with Evens second. Time 0:51 and 0:50½.

NEW USE FOR THE TROTTER.

He Can be Trained as a Hunter and Sold in England.

Mr. Walter Winans, a well-known American, whose home is at Brighton, England, has recently written the following to the Chicago Horse Review, which should be of interest to California breedeas of trotters who desire to keep up with the times and take advantege of avary opportunity offered whereby they can secura markets for their surplus stock. Thera are many trotting-brad horses used in this State for riding purposes, and some make ideal saddle horses for park use. We advise the breeders to read Mr. Winans' letter, and believe they will find in it suggestions that will be of value if acted upon.

"There is a market for misfits in trottar stock which, in my opinion, ought to be worked; this is turning them into hunters for the English market. The qualities of the American trotter are just those required in a hunter. The popular idea of the huntar, in the States, is that he is merely a jumper, and the idea of English fox hunting is rushing across country and jumping everything that comes in the way—gates, rails, etc. The real thing is like this: Of a "field" of say 300 horsemen, some fifteen or twenty ride "straight" and go into each field as near as they can the way the hounds have gone, but even they generally draw the line at gates and rarely jump them or high rails, but if a gate is not locked they go through it, especially towards the end of a run, when their horses are all blown or tired. Of the rest of the "field" some hundred follow the general line of the run, jumping the places which are not too big or likely to make a horse fall, and whenever a fence looks too big, or there is a ditch or brook more than a very few feet wide, they go round it, or over it at the nearest bridge. The remainder, or great mass of the "field," frankly shirk the jumps, and pound along the roads and lanes, or occasionally gallop across a few fields if they see a line of gates, so that they can get from one to the other without jumping. They are called "road riders." Some men get very clever at this and manage to see all the fun without any more risk than the horse making a false step and falling in the road. These get known, and each has a long string of men following his lead. I merely tell these facts to show what is wanted in a hunter in England. The great mass of hunting men want a horse able to carry from 160 pounds upwards; the more he can carry the more valuable he is. A hunter need not be a fast galloper, but he must have the qualities which the American trotter possesses in such perfection, that is, good temper, tractability, intelligance, endurance and sure-footedness; a horse possessing these qualities, even if he cannot jump six inches high, would command a very high price if sold to a "road rider." What a "hunter" has to do is to jog slowly to the beginning of a "meet" through a town, without stumbling, pulling, fretting, trying to turn back or getting scared at anything. When he gets to the "meet" has to stand about amongst a crowd of horses, without fretting or trying to kick those which crowd round him, or if the "field" jogs down a lane and through a gate-way all crowded together and jostling each other, he must be a "gentleman" and wait his turn without fighting or rushing. He must do all this and be willing to stand for hours at the covert side, even when hounds are rushing about after a fox inside and the wind and rain is chilling him to the bone after a fast gallop, and be willing to stand till his rider wishes him to go on. Then when the fox does at last leave the covart, the horse has to gallop after the hounds; in the great majority of cases all he has to do is to go at a moderately fast gallop, and, as I have explained above, occasionally jump a small fence or trot up to a gate and let his rider lean over and open it if the fence is large. Now would not the American trotter be just the horse? (I forgot to say he must be able to jog home many miles after his day's work without being leg-weary and stumbling, and then eat all his supper and be ready to repeat the work in three or four days' time.) A horse, such as I have described, if good looking, able to gallop about a three minute gait, able to carry some 224 pounds and able to jump a hurdle say three and one-half feet high or a ditch eight feet wide, sells from some $300 to $1,000 to $2,000, and I have known them to go up to $5,000. That the American trotter can be taught to jump I know, as one of the leading hunters in England last year was an American trotter taught to jump, and he used to lead the field over the largest jumps in Leicestershire. A former driver of mine told me he, for a bet, some years ago rode an American pacer who had never seen a jump before in a run with foxhounds, trying to jump every fence as it came in his way, and got through to the end of the run, although he had several falls. The high-acting trotter, if too slow, sells in England already as a heavy harness horse for a good price, and this year at the horse shows has carried all before him in the heavy harness classes. The trottar who does not step high is at present of very little account to turn into a heavy harness horse, and scarcely pays for sending over, but this is the very horse for a hunter! The English, who will have nothing but high actors for their harness horses, dislike the high actor as a hunter. For a hunter they like a horse who only lifts his feet high enough to be safe from stumbling. If a hunter steps high he is called "harnessy," which is a term of reproach. If trotting horse breeders imported a man or two from an English steeplechase stable, or who had been "second horseman" or "whip" in an English hunting establishment, and got him to teaching horses too slow for racing and not high actor enough for heavy harness, to jump, I I think they would find a ready market in England. Just half a dozen fences, consisting of the following, would do to school over: A low gate, made to knock down; some rails; a bank with some brushwood on top; a double, and a small ditch would do. Of course the first few lots would not sell well, as there is such a prejudice in England against American horses, but the English dealer would most likely buy them and sell them to their customers at a profit, and if they turned out well, would most likely get up a trade with the States. A man who used to pay very big prices for his hunters was looking one day at a horse which a dealer was showing him. The dealer had the horse jump over a lot of fences, trotted, cantered and galloped, etc, The purchaser then said, "Is that all?" The dealer was astonished and said, "Why, what more do you want; he can jump any fence you put him at, will not turn his head at anything and gallops fast enough to win a race." The purchaser said, "You have not shown me if he can stand still, and that is the principal thing in a hunter."

The New Registration Rules.

November 1st of the present year is the date set by the American Trotting Register Association for the new rules to go into effect. Those of our readers who own horses that they desire registered should make a note of this fact, and if the new rules will bar those eligible now, an effort should be made to register them at once. The new rules are as follows:

1. The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse and a registered standard trotting mare.
2. A stallion sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, and he himself has a trotting record of 2:30 and is the sire of three trotters with records of 2:30 from different dams.
3. A mare whose sire is a registered standard trotting horse, and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered trotting horses, provided she herself has a record of 2:20 or is the dam of one trotter with a record of 2:30.
4. A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided she is the dam of two trotters with records of 2:30.

As will be readily noticed by reading the above, the conditions which entitle a horse to registration under the new trotting standard are vastly different from those required under the old rules. The latter are as follows, and it will be observed that the same order in numbering has not been followed by the Register Association, which makes them a little difficult of comparison, but a careful reading of both will make the differences clear.

First—Any trotting stallion that has a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30), or better; provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 trotting, or better; or provided his sire or dam is already a standard trotting animal.

Second—Any mare or gelding that has a trotting record of 2:30, or better, whose sire or dam is standard,

Third—Any horse that is the sire of two trotters with records of 2:30 or better.

Fourth—Any horse that is the sire of one trotter with a record of 2:30, or better; provided he has either of the following additional qualifications: 1. A trotting record of 2:35, or better. 2. Is the sire of two other animals with trotting records of 2:35. 3. Has a sire or dam that is already a stadard trotting animal.

Fifth—Any mare that has produced a trotter with a record of 2:30.

Seventh—Any mare whose sire is a standard trotting horse, and whose dam and second dam are by a standard trotting horse.

Del Norte is Guided.

A correspondant writes as follows from Salem, Oregon, to the Portland Rural Spirit, in regard to Del Norte, the said-to-be guideless pacer: "Noticing in the last issue of your paper an item stating that Del Norte paced his initial mile at Independence as a guideless pacer, I beg leave to state through the same medium that my understanding of a guideless pacer is a pacer that goes without being guided by any one in any way. This is not true of Del Norte, for the writer saw him make this exhibition, and he was hooted, hobbled and guided by a man on a running horse by his side. Such exhibitions, in my opinion, are good enough, but the public should not be deceived, and I trust that your fairness in all such matters will permit the publication of this short notice. We hope that some day Del Norte will be a real guideless pacer, but it is not reasonable expect it this season, as time and patience are required to develop such horses. Most any well-broke horse will go through the performance I saw Del Norte do."

HANS MCGREGOR, who was thought likely to be the champion trotter of the year early in the season, was distanced by The Abbott in 2:14½ at Fort Erie.

GOV. BUDD says there is a million dollars in the State Treasury and they don't know what to do with it. Why couldn't a little of that money have gone to the district fairs?

Stop the Dead Heads.

A well known Secretary, in commenting upon the difficulties that lie in the way of associations making their meetings profitable, writes in this strain to The Trottar and Pacer: "Some people think because they see a big entry list that money must be made by the barrel. But the truth is there is very little gate money nowadays. They talk about reducing the entrance fees. I have tried it long enough to know it can't be done. There is only one remedy and that is for horsemen to buy their admission tickets for themselves, their drivers and their grooms, and at the end of the meeting come and get their money back. Then if the grooms lose, sell or give away their tickets, the owner can charge it to them. As it is now for almost every horse entered there is demanded two grooms' tickets, a driver's ticket, and generally two owner's tickets. Then they will want a ticket also for their wives. Most of the prominent betting men demand tickets, then there are the newspapers, police, etc., to be provided for. Many go to the races one day, and and then go away, giving away or selling their tickets. At a recent meeting a darkey was seen selling owners' tickets. Where did he get them?"

Our correspondent pretty strongly states one of the reasons why the revenue from the gate is so cut down as to be in many cases a paltry total. He is entirely right in pointing out that the free list is entirely too big for the good of the associations' finances. At almost every meeting to which one goes he can see even unemployed "swipes" and the camp followers, that in some way keep up with every circuit weering and sometimes selling complimentaries. This abuse is more prevalent at the smaller meetings, but in more or less aggravated form it can be noted at Grand Circuit towns. Its abatement could result in nothing but good, not only to the associations, but through them to campaigning owners, and the "suspension of the free list" would tend to improve the average quality of the audiences by shutting out touts and hangers on, and at the same time it would increase the revenue at the gate. Owners and necessary grooms, the press and the police of course have to be provided for, but just why those who follow the horses as professional betting men have any legitimate claim to free entrance is not apparent. We think the views of the secretary whose letter we have quoted will appeal strongly and favorably to track manager and others who have an interest in seeing the associations prosper, though they may possibly not meet the approval of the numerous army who "dead-head" their way wherever they go.

Death of Col. R. G. Stoner.

At his home, Paris, Ky., Col. R. G. Stoner, one of the best known breeders of Kentucky, died on Monday morning after an illness of some weeks. The best horse bred by him was Baron Wilkes, now owned by Col. John E. Thayer of Massachusetts. His stud at one time was large and many winners came from it. Col. Stoner was an officer of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association from its beginning and no man was better known to the visiting delegations to the Blue Grass district in October. His death removed from that section a prominent figure. He has crossed over the river to renew relations with such men as Col. Richard West, Dr. L. Herr, Col. R. S. Strader, W. H. Wilson and other identified with the breeding history of Kentucky.—Turf, Field and Farm.

I see you are still handling the Gombault Caustic Balsam. I wish to say, right now and here, that it is far the best liniment I ever used, and I have in years past used a good deel. I would rather have one bottle of it than a barral of any other kind I ever used. It never failed to cure for me.

second, Scarborough third and Grady trailing, but with no daylight between them. Rounding the far turn Scarborough went to the front, and led into the stretch by a half length from Buckwa, Marplot third and Grady still in the rear. Down the stretch the quartet came abreast, but at about the seven-eighths pole Grady showed in front, and amid the cheers of the multitude he pulled away and won easily by two lengths. Scarborough and Buckwa ran a dead heat, and second and third were divided. Buckwa pulled up lame.

The fourth race was for two year-olds, selling, five and one half furlongs. The starters were Ventoro 11 to 20, Magdalenas 2½ to 1, Gold Pin 4, Cleodora 7, the Miller 10, and Leo Vertner 4.

Ventoro had an easy victory, winning by two lengths from Magdalenas in 1:10, the Miller third by two lengths. Cleodora had cut out the pace, but Magdaleoas led into the last stretch. Then Ventoro went out and won handily.

The quartet that faced the rope for the seven and a half furlongs, for three-year-olds, was composed of Moringa 1 to 5, Stoic 30 to 1, Octuruck 4 to 1, and Roulette Wheel 6 to 1.

Octuruck, Moringa and Stoic were in line at the quarter, Ronletta last. Up the stretch Moringa moved to the front, with Octuruck second and Stoic third. Coming into the last quarter Morioga led by a laogth and a half, Octoruck still in second place. It was a walkover for Moringa from there to to the outcoma, winoing by twenty yards in 1:39, Roul tte second and Stoic third.

The last race of the day was a mile handicap for four-year-olds and upward, the starters being Harry Thoburn at even money, Rey del Tierra 7 to 10, Lomo 3 to 1 and Nonchalance 12 to 1.

Thoburn went off io tha lead, but at the quarter Lomo became the pacemaker and led the group up past tha half-mile pole and into tha turn, where Thoburn moved to tha front and came first into tha homestretch. It looked like a cinch for him, but Snider had by that time whipped the sulks out of Rey del Tierra, and the grandson of Norfolk ran away from the rest of them, winning easily in 1:43¾, Harry second, Lomo third. MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.

The second week opened with a very good attendance. The Stanford Stake, mile heats, three in five, for three year olds, was the first on tha program, and it did not take long to decide as Don Minutos, Mr. D. E. Knight's chestnut colt, by Melvar, distanced Dr. Frasse, George Buckman and I. L. B. in the first heat, trotting his mile in 2:30. This race was worth $750 to the winner.

There were eight starters in the 2:30 trot bnt Phoeba Childers, who won, Shelby and Mamie Riley were tha class in the field, the last named being favorite. W. Durfee was so confident that he could win that he waited a little too long to go to the front after getting off badly, and finished third, two lengths behind the winner.

Prince Gift won the 2:17 trot easily as he wins all his races. He is a steady, reliable horse and can trot rings around most of the horses he has met at Sacramento.

A pretty race resulted in the 2:25 pace. Belle W. was the favorite, but Lady Margaret after getting away well took the lead going round the turn and was never headed, winning by two lengths from Majella B., who took Mr. Wempe's mara three lengths. Harry J. was fast and looked as if he might win in the stretch, but a break put him out of it.

The last race of the day was spoiled by a bad start. The field were sent off by Director Tarpey with Rex Alto at least sixty yards in the rear of all tha others, and then as the word "go" was given Mr. Tarpey tapped the ball, which caused confusion. When Donathan got Rex Alto to going he paced like a demon and was overhauling Much Better in tha stretch, bnt tha last half of the mila had been at such a tremendous speed thet ha broke at the draw gate, and ran to tha wire before he could ba pulled to his gait. He wes placed last. Following are the

The first event was a selling race for three-year-olds and upward, six furlongs, in which the starters were P. A. Finnegan 7 to 1, Amasa 4, Lady Britannic 10, Ockturnck 15, Montallade 4, Major Cook 2 and Sport McAllister 3 to 4.

Sport McAllister cut out the pace, with Amasa next. In tha first eighth Amassa got the lead and ran two lengths to the front around tha turn and into the stretch, McAllister second and Major Cook third. Down the stretch McAllister was called on and spurted to tha front, finishing a nose in front of Lady Britannic in 1:15½, Major Cook third by e half-length. Many thought Lady Britannic had won.

For tha six and one-half furlongs, selling, for three-year-olds, the starters were Manzanillo 5 to 1, Ringmaster 4, Tenrica 20, Koko 5, Rose Maid 15, Glenn Ann 6, Adam Andrew 8 and Stepabont 2 to 5

Stepahout had the race from the stert. Glean Ann ran second to the last stratch, Manzanillo third and Koko fourth all lapping one another. In the stretch Manzenillo came up into second plece and Koko third, finishing in that order, with a length of daylight between, in 1:25¾.

Shasta Water 10 to 1, Polish 6 to 1, Joe Terry even money and Harry Thoburn 7 to 10 lined up for tha mile handicep for four-year-olds, selling.

It looked like Thoburn's race up to the seven-eighths, to which point he led from the start. Shasta Water ren in second place from tha half, with Polish third. At the seven-eighths the Burns & Waterhouse mare went to the front and beat Thoburn out a half length in 1:43, Polish a close third.

For the six furlongs handicap for two-year-olds, the starters were Casdale 2½ to 1, Faversham 4 to 1, Ranier 7 to 1 and Ventoro 2 to 5.

The horses got away quickly and to a fine start. Ventoro went away well to tha front, bnt Hennessy held him back, and at the half the gang was wall bunched. They were in a heap around the turn, with Ventoro showing in front. Half-way down the last stretch Casdale made a hard brush for the race, and was beaten by Ventoro by a short head in 1:15, Ranier third. Had the run been fifty yards farthar Casdale would have won.

The fifth event was a mile and one furlong handicap for three-year-olds, the starters being Cromwell 7 to 10, Grady 8 to 5, Scarborough 3 to 1 and Moringa 3½ to 1.

It was a horse race all the way and ona that enthused tha large crowd. The handicapper understood his business when he gave these horses their weights. When they passed the stand the first time they were aboot on a line, but at tha quarter Scarborough showed a part of a length in front of Cromwell, Moringa third and Grady last, but all in close company. These positions were unchanged until tha three-quarters was reached, where Grady came up and then thare was a driving race to tha ontcome. Thay passed the pola with all tha jockeys riding for all that was in them, Scarborough in tha lead by a head, Cromwell second, a head the hatter of Grady.

The last race on tha card was for four-year-olds, six furlongs, in which the starters were Ootgo 20 to 1, Christine 15 to 1, Fig Leaf 8 to 1, Juanita 6 to 1 and San Mateo 1 to 8.

San Mateo weot out to win almost at tha start, and ha did the trick without being headed at any stage of the game. Outgo was second all the way, and finished a scant length behind the winner, Fig Leaf third. Tha run was made in 1:16. Juanita was not in proper shape for a race, sulked at the start and finally ren under protest. Followiog ara the

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14.

This wes Governor's day at the State Fair and Governor Budd and his staff visited the track for a short while during tha afternoon. Tha attendance continues to be good both at the track and pavilion. To-morrow is Sacramento day and it will be celebrated in due form.

The races at the park this afternoon were a little slow. In the first race, trotting in the 2:22 class, mile dash, Dr. J. distressed his backers by breeking at the turn and falling to tha rear, finishing last. Ned Thorn had the pola and kept it the entire mile, finishing first in a walk. Shelby moved up from fourth position at the head of the stretch to an easy second. Lynall got the show money.

The fast ones came ont in tha second race, 2:14 class, purse $400, one mile and repeat. Monterey and Prince Gift were listed at 4 to 5, Thompson and Osito being posted at almost any price and the unwary were lured on. Monterey broke badly as the word wes given to go and was pulled to a standstill before he canght his feet. He moved rapidly up the back stretch, bnt broke again at tha five-eighth pole and wee distanced. Prince Gift, however, with never a wobble nor movement of hesitation, trotted the mile like the magnificent horse that he is in 2:12½. Osito finished ten lengths behind him and Thompson. Prince Gift won just as easily as before, Osito second, and Thompson third, and the money went that way.

The third race was the 2:27 class trot, in which there were four starters, and it resulted in one of the best races of the meeting. They got off to a good start, Aggregate leading until they reached the stretch, when Shelby, Mamie Riley and Phoebe Childars came fast, finishing: Shelby first in 2:20, Memie Riley second and Phoebe Childars third, there not being over a neck between the first four horses.

Eight pacers got off fairly wall in the fourth race in tha 2:20 class, mile dash, Diawood being tha favorite at 2 to 5. Charles David went off his feet at the eighth, closed up a great gap going up the stretch and finished third. Diawood won in 2:15, Don getting second money. It was hard to call the fourth horse between Brummel, Nutway and Geff Topsail.

For tha fifth race the talent could see nothing but Much Better and Rex Alto. Thay were both played well at 4 to 5. The winner turned up in a long shot, Floracito, at 30 to 1, Beachwood at 4 to 1 getting the place and Rex Alto showing. Little Thorne at 15 to 1 beet Much Better in. Dictatress, 12 to 1, finished last. Tha last event of tha day was a running race of six furlongs, in which Hermanita, even; Stoic 20 to 1, Fig Leaf 4 to 1, Losette 5 to 1, Durango 8 to 1, Himera 5 to 2, and Oak Leaf 2 to 1, were entered. Fig Leaf won from the eend-off in 1:15, Losette second and Hermanite third. Following ara tha

LOS ANGELES entries close to-day.

FLAKE UP, 2:14, by Chas. Derby, is out of the dam of Javelin, 2:08¼.

ED GEERS and John Kelly have won about $20,000 as drivers this season.

ANDY MCDOWELL says Pilatus, 2:11½, is the best trotter he has driven since he drove Azote, 2:04¾.

TOM KEATING expects to be at the Los Angeles meeting with his wonderful string of pacers and trotters.

THE game old pacer B. B. is fifteen years old, but lowered his record to 2:10¼ this year. He will now be retired.

NEERNUT got third money in a race trotted at Bloomington, Illinois, September 1st, in which the fastest time was 2:11.

FRANK FRASIER has finally sold Chehalis, 2:04½, the fastest hopple d pacer in the world, to Ed. Mills, of Boston, for $7,500.

IT is claimed that eleven two-year-olds in training at the Lexington, Kentucky track, have beaten 2:30 this year in their work.

TRAINER MARSH says that Betonica, 2:10½, has been off a good part of the season, but is improving, and may yet be started this season.

INDIANA, 2:09½, should be able to give the four-year-old gelding record for pacers a shaking up this fall. W. Wood, 2:07, is the present champion.

THE fastest pacer that has shown in California this year is F. W., son of Dorsey's Nephew. He paced the last half of a mile in a race in one minute flat.

IT is stated upon good authority that W. B. Fasig will in the future after the coming Charter Oak meeting give his entire time to his immense sale business.

NONE BETTER, the dam of Much Better 2:07½, is a full sister to Strong Boy 2:11½, by Allandorf and half sister to Carrie 2:29¾, the dam of Maneger 2:06¾.

CRYSTALINE, the two-year-old sister to Cut Glass, is pronounced by good judges to be the best two-year-old trotter the turf has seen since the days of Arion.

FLIRT, 2:10½, is a wonder if she can stand the racing she is getting just at present. She had four races within a week, and won three second and one first money.

DAVE MCCLARY would like to step Star Pointer 1just one mile over Rigby next week. Dave thinks with a good day his horse can go in 1:58½ or better over the Maine ring.

ANNIE LEE, 2:07½, one of the fastest pacers of the year, was sired by Alfred G., son of Anteeo and Rosa B, by Speculation, a Sonoma county bred horse, and a great sire of speed.

THERE has been but little difference in the attendance at the State Fair between running and harness days. The betting is heavier, however, when the runners have the track.

ONE of my idols has been shattered and unless the reports show that some accident befell him I shall be compelled to think that Nico is not of the same class as Directum Kelly.—Hawley.

SPEAR & NEWGASS will hold their next sele at the Dexter Park Horse Exchange, Chicago December 13th to 17th. California owners who are looking for a market should remember this sale.

WHEN Kentucky Union was out last year it took two man to turn her around in scoring and she was controlled by a rope. Jack Curry has her as well behaved as anybody's horse now.

IT seems strange that three of the greatest race horses ever bred by Marcus Daly got away from him before they lat on that they had speed. John Nolan, Querist and Dr. Spellman are the guilty parties.

C. J. HAMLIN is very much in love with the The Corkar, a youngster by Rex Americus, 2:11½, out of Lady Bonntiful, a sister to Lady of the Manor, 2:07¾. For breeding it would be hard to beat The Corker.

MUCH BETTER, 2:07½, is acting as though she has been getting too much racing lately. She was the steadiest and easiest driver imaginable when she first started out this year, but has not been acting well lately.

THERE is talk of arranging a stallion race this fall between Crescens, Tommy Britton, Askay, Grattan Boy, Directum Kelly, Stamboulette and perhaps one or two others. Such a race would be a great drawing card.

CHARLEY B., the hobbled Canadian pacer on whom "Nick" Hahinger dropped such a "wad" at the Columbus, O., circuit meeting, won a great race at Rigby Park, Portland, Me., and took a record of 2:07¾.

CAPTAIN JACK, 2:09½, sold at auction last winter for $925, and Fred B., 2:11¾, was sold last spring for $525. Captain Jeck has distinguished himself this season by defeating Alcidalia. Fred B. has won a race from The Abbot.

LENNA N., 2:05½, Dr. Leek, 2:11½, and Monterey, 2:11, hardly support the hypothes s that the Sidneys are inherently soft. No one sire has three better ones out this season.

ED. GEERS holds another record, and that is the slowest winning heat in the Grand Circuit in years, when he won the third heat of the 2:15 pace at Glens Falls in 2:30¾, with Argetta. The record will probably stand for some time.

REPORT says that since Mattie Patterson, 2:09½, was sold for $7,000 horsemen are prospecting for fast trotters in South Dakota as earnestly and with as good assurance of success as the miners are for the rich claims in the Klondike region.

VEBA SHAW, manager of the Crystal Palace Horse Show, London, England, who is in this country for the purpose of endeavoring to bring about an international competition of show horses, was one of the judges at the recent Saratoga Springs exhibition.

OF all the starting that has been done at California harness meetings this year Samuel Gamble's efforts have given the most satisfaction to the horsemen. His work at Santa Rosa is still being praised by the trotting horsemen who took part in that meeting.

THE ex-champion pacing champion, John R. Gentry, now heads the list of 2:04 stallions as a sire of speed, having three in the list, with two of them inside the 2:20 list. Jim Ramey, the latest and fastest of the trio, is appropriately named after Gentry's first driver.

THE outlook for a demand for draft stallions throughout the United States this fall is very encouraging to importers. The past four years this class of stallions have been little sought after. But the recent high prices paid for draft horses will boom the draft stallion demand.

UP to date Baron Wilkes 2:18, is the leading sire of new 2:30 performers of 1898, with eight additions to his credit. This gives him a total of sixty-five sons and daughters with records of 2:30 or better, and six of the lot, or nearly 10 per cent., have made records from 2:10 to 2:04¾.

REGINA, 2:08½, has been sold to Robert L. Davis of Lynnbrook, L. I. The sale was made through J. J. Bowen, who has raced the mare since her first appearance in public during the spring of 1896 The gray mare has paid for herself, so that when Lewis Whitaker received Davis check it was all profit.

DIONE won another good race at Rugby Park, Maine, on Thursday. The fastest heat was 2:09¼. The purse was $2,500. Searchlight won a race the same day, 2:06¾ being the fastest heat. Tommy Keating will have to charter a special car to bring all his money home if he keeps on at this rate.

THE converted trotter, Exploit, by Clay, who has paced in 2:08¾ this year, races very free of incumbrances—knee-and-arm, shin-ankle-and-tendon and quarter boots, and a pair of toe weights in front, side scalpers, ankle-and-speedy cut boots behind, a nice set of hopples and a patent controlling bit—that's all.

AT the close of the week ending August 27th, nine of the fourteen best records for 1898 was held by California horses or descendants of California-bred ones. Oregon has another; Montana had two and California-owned horses came in for some of the rest. The far West seems to have both feet in the trough.—Horse Review.

MR. FRANCIS WARE, manager of the American Horse Exchange, New York, is credited with predicting that prices on good horses suitable either for track, road or carriage purposes, will advance from 50 to 60 per cent. during the next five years. Prices will undoubtedly advance, but those who have horses to sell had better not refuse a good offer.

THE general council of Nantes has adopted a resolution declaring that as the importation of American horses has so increased as to have become a menace to the breeding of French horses, urgent restrictive measures regarding such importation should be taken. A regulation was issued that every horse imported should have its origin branded under its mane.

C. J. HAMLIN, for reasons of his own, does not like the blood of George Wilkes, and he has a perfect right to hold any view he pleases on the subject. Gayton, however, with three crosses of the blood of George Wilkes, proved too hard a nut for Battleton to crack at Fort Wayne, while Eagle Flanegan and Rilma have each taken a fall from the gilt-edged Abbot.

IF all cities would support the races as Dubuque, Iowa, does, trotting would be more profitable to all concerned. The Chamber of Commerce of that city purchased 10,000 tickets for the meeting now in progress. Meetings on the mile tracks attract hundreds of liberal horsemen and in their week's stay in every city they materially increase nearly all branches of business.

THE blood of the old pacing mare Pocahontas, who was the Star Pointer of forty years ago, comes to the surface now and then in the winner of to-day. May Bloom, that stepped and broke the slate in the 2:28 class at Fort Wayne, trotting her three winning miles in 2:17, 2:14¾ and 2:14½, and has since then cut the mark down to 2:12¾, is out of May Morning, by Daniel Lambert, and she out of May Queen, the daughter of Ethau Allen and old Pocahontas.

MR. H. W. BROWN, Salt Lake City, Utah, suffered a great loss at St. Joseph, Mo,, August 26th, when his four-year-old filly Thorn, by Wilkes Boy, dam Kiucora, by Mambrino Patchen, died of inflammation of the bowels. Thorn won the Kentucky Futurity, valued at $6,000, last year, taking a three-year-old mark of 2:14, which she has reduced to 2:11¼. She was regarded as one of the very brightest prospects for extreme speed, and her owner has the sympathy of the public.

WHILE a horse attached to a furniture truck stood quietly in front of 404 Fifth street yesterday a vicious dog sprang at it and fastened its teeth in the horse's nose. The surprised beast gave an almost human yell of terror and pain, and jumped upon its assailent with both fore feet. The dog was killed on the spot.—N. Y. Sun, August 28th.

GOOD cobs ranging in height all the way from fourteen and one-half to fifteen and one-half hands are just now bringing more money in the market than ever before in this country paid for the same class of horses. At Indianapolis lately geldings of this type have been sold at the auctions for $500, $355, $235, and other similar prices; and in Chicago values have varied from $1,000 for a handsome fifteen-hand cob ready to go right into city work, down to $250 for good individuals out of the auction ring.

B. O. VAN BOKKELEN, who is training and driving the California horse, Stamboulette, in the East this year, has won many good purses this year. Van's many friends will be glad to hear of his good fortune, for no more hard-working trainer and pleasant gentleman ever lifted a line over a trotter. He won third money with Stamboulette in the Charter Oak stake at Hartford, September 6th, which amounted to $1,500. Stamboulette is owned by the well-known mining capitalist, Alvinza Hayward, of this city.

MONTEREY 2:09½, has tender feet and that is the cause of his breaking in his races. No stallion in California ever showed the speed he does at the trot,and when Mr. Williams gets him shod so that his feet will not hurt him, he will come nearer Directum's record than any stallion ever bred in this State. Monterey is a very bad breaker and when he leaves his feet has to be pulled to a jog before he gets to trotting again. If he possessed the faculty of making a revolution or two when thrown off his stride and then squaring away again, he would come very near being the champion trotting stallion.

KLATAWAH, the great three-year-old pacer, won the three-year-old pace at Independence in straight heats, pacing the third mile in 2:07½, which was the best heat in the race. He won with ease and was driven by McHenry. He paced the last half of the third mile in 1:02, and finished in a jog. If not injured and not given too much work this year, and carefully cared for, next season what a great four-year-old he should make. Age certainly will give greater strength to him than he has now, which must enable him to carry his great speed farther than he can now, possibly making him another two-minute horse.

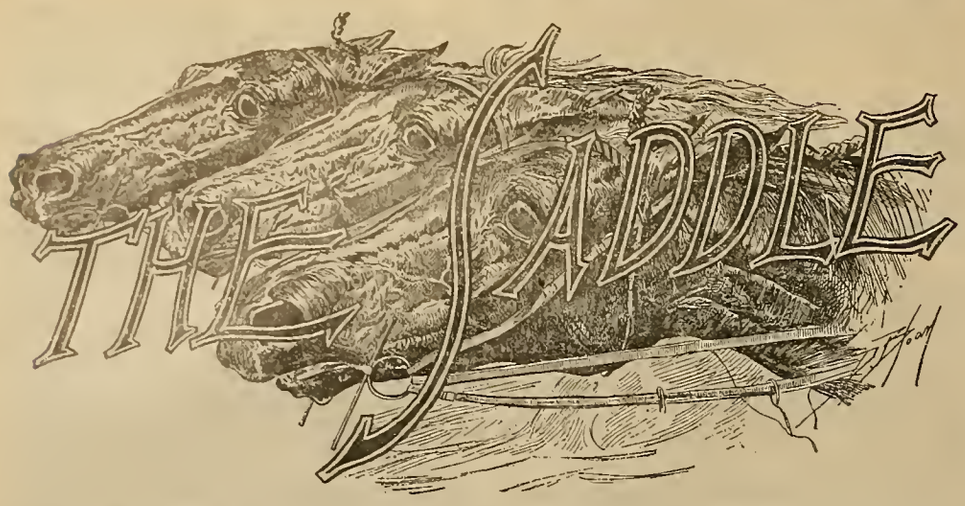
EASTERN horsemen say that Jasper Ayres is a very handy breaker. He was that way out in California and it always aided him in winning. Talk as they may about the honest trotter, the horse that has the faculty of getting back to his gait soonest after his break, and does so without losing ground, probably has more of the trotting instinct than the one which refuses to resume the gait until he is pulled to a walk, and will always be considered the best race horse of the two. The trotter that is most desired is the one that refuses to break at all, but pegs away at the gait when urged to make his greatest effort.

ARION 2:07¾, is the latest edition to that very select band of stallions that are themselves members of the 2:10 list and are represented therein by their get. Direct 2:05½, stands at the head of this little band with Directly 2:07¾,and Directum Kelley 2:08¼, and unless appearances are deceitful he should before long have one or more representative beside these in the innermost circle, Ed B. Young 2:11, being, for instance, a most promising candidate,one would think, for 2:10 honors. Gazette 2:07½, now in Canada, is represented in that list by the fast mare Aileen 2:07½; Arion 2:07¾, has Nico 2:09½; and Lockheart 2:08½, has the pacer La Belle 2:09; Atlantic King 2:08¾, has Frank Bogash 2:04½, and Heir-at-Law 2:05¾, has Passing Belle 2:08¼.

AMONG the winners in the classes for standard bred trotters at the recent Culpeper Horse Show, were a couple of two-year-old chestnut colts owned by Mr. W. N. Wilmer of the law firm of Wilmer & Canfield,48 Wall street,New York, and bred by him at "Plain Dealing Farm," near Charlottesville, Va. Both colts were sired by Mr. Wilmer's stallion Virginia Chief, son of Kentucky Prince and Nina, by Messenger Duroc, from mares owned at Plain Dealing. The youngsters were exhibited in the same class and one of them, the colt out of Albina, daughter of Albion and Violet, by Electioneer, captured the blue ribbon, while his mate, a son of Barbara, who was by Alcantara, out of Helen, by Daniel Lambert, carried off the red.

GOV. STANFORD is dead, but progressive trotting horse breeders will profit through all coming time by his success-experiments in improving the speed of trotters by means of a close thoroughbred cross from the best race winners of their day, like Lexington, Planet and horses of that stamp. C. J. Hamlin, who did not profit by the advice of turf writers, but kept right on breeding in accordance with his own views, is to-day the most successful breeder of fast light-harness horses living, in spite of the fact that failure was predicted when he placed at the head of the stud a horse so full of running foolishness as Mambrino King, by Mambrino Patchen. The fastest trotter got by Mambrino King was Nightingale, 2:08. The dam of Nightingale was by the short-pedigreed Wood's Hambletonian, out of a running mare.

THE Pacoast family has made a substantial gain in the estimation of the public through the performances of the get of Prodigal and Patron. John Nolan and Laurels, both by Prodigal, captured first and second moneys, respectively, in their classes at Readville. The former trotted the third heat in 2:12¾, and the latter finished ahead of Charley Herr in the first heat in 2:12¾, but was set back for a break. Dr. Spellman, another three-year-old trotter by Prodigal, won a race at Independence, Ia., and took a record of 2:12¾, which is only one-fourth of a second slower than the fastest heat yet won by a three-year-old this season. Neither of the above had a record so fast as 2:30 at the beginning of the season. Caracalla, by Patron, a full brother of Prodigal, reduced her record of 2:10 in the 2:14 trot and got third money. May Bloom, by Patron, took second money in the 2:23 trot. It is needless to remark that Patron and Prodigal are full brothers of Patronage, sire of the world's champion trotter, Alix, 2:03¾.



JUDGE MURPHY'S COMMENTS.

The Well Known Presiding Judge Writes Interestingly on Several Turf Questions.

Joseph A. Murphy, who will again be presiding judge at Oakland when the California Jockey Club begins its fall meeting, writes a most interesting letter to the New York Spirit of the Times from St. Louis, where he has presided during the summer race meeting, and from it we make the following extracts:

When I arrived from California I found the local horsemen agitating the question of starting horses without a recall flag, and a petition was presented to us asking that the much discussed piece of hunting be dispensed with. The request was refused. I must confess that I have a leaning toward the recall flag. True, horses are probably used more under the system of a recall than without it, but I believe the average racegoer would rather have his horse break away once or twice rather than take the chances of having him standing flat-footed when the machine goes up. It seldom happens with the machine that any horse's chance is actually ruined by delays at the post. I have seen by dodging under the machine, breaking through it and doing other various and divers tricks which the ingenuity of the thoroughbred can devise, a field of horses fretted at the post more than if a recall flag was used. Both systems, of course, have their advantages, but I believe there are apt to be less heartburnings and less weeping and gnashing of teeth when the recall flag is used than when the red swisher is abolished. My philosophy has reached that epoch that I am no longer trying to borrow trouble. If the letter in the concrete and myself meet on the same road I won't turn out, but I would prefer to be going in the same direction, out in front and with the foot of my adversary. The abolishment of the recall flag can bring about more different kinds of trouble on a race track than almost anything. Last winter in a stake at Ingleside the field darted into the machine, one end of it went up and away went the jockeys on their journey. Luckily the accident happened in front of the judge's stand, and by dint of an energetic use of the surplus brawn nature has furnished me with, I made the hills ring with the judges' bell and stopped the field before half the journey had been covered. If an event like that should occur on the back stretch, with no code of signals between the starter and judges, the field would run the entire journey without question. My argument has always been that if horses can be started without the recall flag and a guarantee given that all will get away, no association would need a flag at all. But some have judged it a necessity. I have seen four horses out of a field of seven left at the post, one of them an even money shot. While it may be seen that I am an advocate of the use of the recall flag, I am just as firm against its abuse. I firmly believe that what would be termed a "fair start" secured at the first break is a thousand times better than a perfect" one after a dozen breakaways. At Oakland, Cal., the rules governing the start are as follows:

"If every horse is in motion when the barrier is raised, it must be a start, whether straggling or not. If a horse is left flat-footed the starter shall bring the field back."

This rule, properly lived up to, seems to me the best of all.

The defect in this rule, so often vaunted, that under it a jockey will pull up if the start does not suit him, is no defect at all if the starter and judges will simply use the power given them under the racing rules. A jockey given thirty days on the ground for pulling one up is likely to find little use in the future for the muscles brought into play in performing so tantalizing an act.

Captain Jack Price, who is in the stand with me, and myself have rather radical notions about foul riding and fouls, and we wish to be well convinced that the result of a race has been changed by the cupping or crossing before we will consent to a disqualification. The more I study racing the more I am convinced that, except in extraordinary cases, bets should be paid and the purse distributed as the horses flash past the finishing post. I have disqualified horses believing that I was right, and I have never had occasion to change that opinion, but I am steadily growing to believe that punishment for four foul riding should be meted out to the riders and not to the public and owner. When a foul is committed but few spectators see it, and each and every one who suffers by the decision feels that a great injustice has been done him. Than, too, foul riding as a rule is taken official cognizance of only when it occurs in the stretch. I have seen horses put on the fence at the first turn by some horse crowding from the outside and no official notice taken of it, while the rubbing together of two horses at the eighth pole has been deemed sufficient cause for disqualification. Of course, the argument will be advanced that a horse crowded at the first turn has plenty of time to recover lost ground, while a foul at the eighth pole deprives a horse of his chance in the race. The argument is sound, too, from some point of reasoning, but the fact remains that a foul is a foul wherever it occurs. I am not criticizing the acts of any of my contemporaries in the stand, as my decisions fell within range of the same shaft. If your jockeys crowd and jostle put them out of business temporarily or permanently, according to the gravity of the wrong-doing, but do not punish your public unless you are certain you are right, is the set rule which I shall follow until I am satisfied that I am wrong. Tired horses will lean and bump, and it sometimes takes the wisdom of Solomon to fix the blame. If you in your official capacity, with no interest in any particular horse and from the best position to see on the race track, cannot place, without doubt or question, the blame, it is absolutely certain the public cannot, and their opinion will be guided entirely by the way their money is placed. Of course, there are fouls in which boys are not to blame, but I believe that if jockeys were given to understand that foul riding would be visited with the severest kind of punishment, they would find some way to steady some they horses when begin to tire.

The New Starting Gate.

During the State Fair which closes at Sacramento to-day, Starter Hevey has used a new appliance to line up the horses in the running events, and it must be admitted that the starts have been remarkably good. It consists of a simple piece of elastic rubber tubing about a half inch in diameter, long enough to reach twice across the track when stretched tight. One end of this elastic "rope" is fastened to the outside fence directly opposite the starter the other end being also fastened to the outside fence about thirty or forty feet from the first fastening in the direction the horses are to run. The middle of the rubber rope is then grasped by the attendant and carried across to the starter's box, being stretched so that there is a strong pull on the clasp which holds it. It will be seen that the rubber crosses the track like this ⩗ with the apex at the starter's hand. When the clasp is released the rubber flies back so quickly that the eye can hardly follow it. This starting device was used in Montana during the season's racing there and was fairly successful. To the writer who saw this gate used for the first time last week, it seemed as though there would be danger, in a large field, of the outside horses becoming entangled in the rubber cord, and we believe this did occur once or twice in Montana this year. The jockeys farthest away from the inside rail acted as though they were a little afraid of such an accident, and it may be that this very fear is the cause of the good starts made by it. In Mr. Hevey's hands it has been a success at Sacramento, but it is more than probable that the Australian gate would have worked just as well in his hands.

Close of Anaconda Races.

Anaconda, Mont., September 10—The twenty-seven days' race meeting which closed here to-day was the most successful ever held in this State. With many outside finances to combat the attendance has been fully up to that of last year. Notwithstanding the absence of many big plungers, nearly $1,000,000 has passed through the pool boxes, and Manager Ed Tipton states that over $2,000,000 has changed hands at the Butte and Anaconda meetings together.

The present meeting was responsible for a slight tilt between E. C. Hopper, presiding judge, and Marcus Daly, resulting in the former tendering his resignation on August 22d. Since that date F. E. Mulholland of San Francisco has filled the position of presiding judge, which he occupied before the arrival of Mr. Hopper from the East.

Mr. Mulhollands work has given great satisfaction, both to the public and to the owners of horses.

September 7.—First race, three furlongs—Lou Watkins won, Pet Tucker second, Rattler third. Time, 0:33¼.

Second race, six furlongs—El Mido won, Tagheirm second, Ocorone third. Time, 1:16½.

Third race, five furlongs—Lane Williams won, May Boy second, Irish Girl third. Time, 1:03¼.

Fifth race, five and one-half furlongs—Quicksilver won, Temmeny second, Bill Howard third. Time, 1:07¾.

Sixth race, four and one-half furlongs—Wanoma won, Blue Sign second, Lo Lo third. Time, 0:57.

September 8.—Three furlongs—Lady Heloise won, Tommy Tucker second, Miss Millar third. Time, 0:35¼.

Five furlongs—Royal Fen won, Reapan second, Sir Urien third. Time, 1.03.

One end one-sixteenth miles—New Moon won, Charlotte M. second, Berrecan third. Time, 1:50.

Five furlongs—Jim Gore won, Etta H. second, Miss Rowene third. Time, 1:01¾.

Six furlongs—Midas won, Treppeen second, Inbred third. Time, 1:17.

September 9—Five furlongs—Jollimont won, Bernice second, Merk Henne third. Time, 1:04.

Six furlongs—Jim Gore won, Pet Morrissey second, Temmeny third. Time, 1:15.

One mile—Ping won, imp. Bitter Root second, Inbred third. Time, 1:43.

One mile and a quarter over five hurdles—Granger won, J. O. C. second, Lord Chesterfield third. Time, 2:20.

Seven furlongs—Doubtful won, Barneto second, McPryor third. Time, 1:31.

September 10.—Harry N. won, Lou Watkins, second Dutch third. Time, 0:35½.

Second race, five and one-half furlongs—Kootenai won, Tagheirm second, El Mido third. Time, 1:09¼.

Third race, five furlongs, the Lest Chance stakes, $1,000—The Light won, White Fern second, Eloper third.

Fourth race, one mile and a quarter, the Copper City handicap, value $1,500—Senator Blend won, Scottish Chieftain second, Tempo third. Time, 2;08¼.

Fifth race, five furlongs—Seticoy won, Pettigrew second, Jim Brown third. Time, 1:02¾.

Sixth race, two and one-sixteenths miles—McPryor won, imp. Devil's Dream second, Veto third. Time, 3:44¾;

Saddle Notes.

JOE PIGGOTT has been in splendid form at Sacramento. He rode four winners in one day last week.

SACRAMENTO has pretty stringent laws on gambling, but poolrooms, faro and stud poker are in constant operation there, not only during the Fair, but at all times.

WM. HENDRIE, owner of Martimas, recently refused an offer of $20,000 for the colt. Mr. Hendrie has offered to match Martimas against any two-year-old colt for $10,000.

FEW closer finishes have been seen in California than the one between Scarborough, Cromwell and Grady at Sacramento last Tuesday. They were little more than heads apart.

THE handicapping at the State Fair has been remarkably good and there have been many close and thrilling finishes. Assigning the weights has fallen to the lot of Secretary Smith for several years past at the State Fair and he does his work well.

JUST before starting to California Hugh L. Jones purchased the four-year-old colt Truxilloand brought him along. Truxillo has been ailing this year but toward the close at St. Louis gave signs of recovering form and is likely to prove a bread-winner at 'Frisco.

MONK OVERTON, the one-time famous jockey, realizing that his riding days are about at an end, has followed in the footsteps of others who were once famous knights of the pig skin. He has now gone to training, and has made application for a trainer's license.

AT the last day's racing of the Derby September meeting, September 1st, the Lorillard—Beresford Stable's bay gelding Manatee, by imp. Sir Modred—Miss Motley, won the Rangemore Stakes of two sovereigns each starter, with 100 sovereigns added for two-year-olds, five furlongs. Seven ran.

BURNE & WATERHOUSE do not own Candalaria. Jimmy McCormick let the son of Midlothian go to the bid of $1,500 made by A. Covington at the close of a selling race Sept. 8th at Hawthorne. Covington's horse Oregon Pilot ran second in the race,and after McCormick had allowed Candelaria to go, he claimed Oregon Pilot for $500 and took him.

IT is freely admitted that the main trouble in connection with racing near Cincinnati, outside of the fact of there being too many tracks, lies in their being over half a dozen pool-rooms in Covington and Cincinnati. These absorb the bulk of the speculative money that would otherwise flow to tracks and in that way they materially injure the local racing game.—Philadelphia Record.

A. BARRETT, the well-known jockey, had the mount on St. Lorenzo in the Great Eastern handicap at Sheepshead Bay last Saturday and in making the turn into the homestretch there was considerable crowding. The colt bars crossed his legs and threw Barrett and fell on him. He was carried off the track in an unconscious condition, and died from his injuries at the King's County Hospital in Brooklyn at 10 o'clock to-night.

FRED MULHOLLAND, of the San Francisco Call, who has filled the positions of presiding and associate judge at Butte and Anaconda this summer, returned to California a few days ago, and will probably act as editor of the racing department of the Call during the winter. Mr. Mulholland discharged his duties so acceptably in Montana this season, that he will probably be requested to act as presiding judge during the entire season in Montana next year.

TWENTY entries have been received for the Morris Park Special of $5,000, distance two miles, over the Withers course, to be run on Saturday October 8th. This is the latest stake opened by the Westchester Racing Association. The score are: Ornament, The Friar, Ben Holladay, Algol, Don de Oro, Sir Walter and Lansdale, four-year-olds and upward, and Plaudit, Pink Coat, The Huguenot, Mirthful, Warrenton, Sir Gawain, George Kenna, Floronso, Alica Farlay, Rappahannock, Latson and Longacre, three-year-olds.

"AMONG THE BARRELS"—This is the catchy name of the new resort which B. F. Armstrong and James Hood have fitted up at 863 Market street, in a novel and eminently convenient way. Absolute purity of all liquors sold is the guarantee and the comfort and satisfaction of visitors the constant care of the proprietors. Mr. Armstrong is the Pacific Coast agent of Wright & Taylors, Distillers, of Louisville, Ky., and is said to be one of the best judges of whisky in the country. Visit them out of curiosity and you will do so afterward from desire. *

WHEN the ball rung for the horses to go to the post in the second race at Sacramento on Tuesday of this week, Stepahout was not ready, and after the others had all paraded by the judges' stand, a second bell had to be rung. "Perhaps they are giving her a shot," said an old-timer who sat on the fence near the drawgate. "That's what's the matter," he added, as Stepahout finally came through the gate and some one called out to the jockey, "Take your time going to the post, she'll be all the better in a few minutes." Stepahout went to the post slowly, but she ran like a scared wolf when she got the word a few minutes later.

FORTY-TWO yearling fillies from the Rancho del Paso Farm, the property of Mr. J. B Haggin, were shipped to England on Saturday, September 3d, as an experiment. Mr. Haggin, their breeder-owner, believes that the Old World is in need of fresh American stock. The yearlings were shipped on the steamship Alexandria and were under the personal care of Mr. Haggin's manager, John Mackey, who was accompanied on the trip by Dr. A. M. McCollum of Rancho del Paso. There is no reason why these youngsters should not find a ready demand in the English market, and the experiment will be watched with great interest by all American breeders.

THE Fall meeting of the Queen City Jockey Club opened at Newport, Ky., on Saturday, September 3d. There are over 400 horses at the track, and the prospects for a good meeting are very encouraging. L. P. Tarlton is presiding judge, and his associates are H. M. Queen and Secretary J. Gratz Hanly. H. D. Brown will handle the flag and the meeting will continue twenty-four days.

C. T. PATTERSON has some very promising yearlings among the lot of youngsters which he has been handling at Louisville, while in the chestnut colt by Lamplighter—Harahall (dam of MacIvor) he thinks he has the best colt he ever handled, not excepting Ornament and Hamburg. This colt, for which Mr. Patterson paid $6,100 at the sale of the McGratbiana yearlings in June, writes "Kalaton," was perhaps the finest youngster seen in any sale ring during the past season, and it says a good deal for Mr. Young's judgment that in the first of the get of Lamplighter there is every prospect of his expectations that Lamplighter would be a great stud success, being partially realized.

PRESIDENT THOMAS H. WILLIAMS, of the California Jockey Club, has made public the following regarding the racing officials of the Club: Charles F. Price, of Louisville, Ky., will be presiding judge at the meeting given at Sacramento under the auspices of the California Jockey Club, which will begin next week. Next winter Mr. Price will be chairman of the board of stewards at Oakland. Joseph A. Murphy, of St. Louis, will again be presiding judge at Oakland, and his associates will be John J. Cartar, of Nashville, Tenn., and Mr. Price. Ten or twelve years ago Charles F. Price, who is now Secretary of the Louisville Jockey Club, was a compositor on the Courier-Journal of that city, and a first-class compositor at that. He afterwards filled the position of city editor on the Evening News and then drifted into the racing business, where he has made the same success he made in everything else he previously engaged in.

SAYS an Eastern turf writer: "In a conversation with a prominent and well-informed racing man, who had returned from Saratoga, he told me that it was pretty generally understood in the East that if Walhaum determined to part with his Saratoga interests they would be taken by probably Mr. Balmont, Mr. Keene, and other wealthy members of the Jockey Club. These gentlemen, my informant said, had become alive to the lately increased popularity of Saratoga as a summer resort, and were quite willing to take a chance on the racing property of the Saratoga association. Under their direction it was thought that an arrangement of dates could be secured that would avoid the present clash with the metropolitan tracks, and that Saratoga would thus become one of the most prosperous and popular of the Eastern racing grounds. Under the present management the late meeting can hardly be said to have been a gold mine, $1,000 over all expenses being the profit on the season."

IT was the opinion of nearly every one but the judges that Lady Brittanica won at Sacramento Tuesday by a half length from Sport McAllister who was placed first. The mare came up on the outside of the track and was probably overlooked. In the press box Mr. Egbert, who was calling the positions of the horses, placed her first by three quarters of a length and everyone in the box agreed with him. When the numbers went up and it was seen that Sport's was first, all waited and thought surely a mistake had been made by the employe who handles the announciator, but the regular announcement soon confirmed the figures hoisted. A gentleman who had a ticket on Sport McAllister, and who sat within six feet of the wire started to tear the pasteboard up, but desisted when he saw the numbers. Probably three-fourths of those who saw the race thought the mare won,but there was not a loud word spoken against the verdict of the judges,which shows that State Fair audiences are well behaved and willing to abide by the decisions of the men who are in the best place to know how the horses finish.

SAID a turfman recently, that has just been in Chicago: "Some of the old-time jockeys can be seen at the local tracks every day, their riding days being over. Ten years ago Storal was a successful jockey, but he has not ridden in public in recent years. He exercises horses now and then, and manages to eke out a living. Narvaez, who did good work half a dozen years ago, is doing minor stable duties now, while a younger brother is seen in the saddle nearly every day. J. Murphy was a fairly successful rider a few years ago, but he now owns a stable, while his brother, T. Murphy, is riding in the East. Ike Lewis, who used to ride for the Laiholds years ago, is now too heavy for saddle duty, but keeps up a stable connection. Tom O'Hara told me the other day he would like to resume riding, but I judge his jockey days are over, as he is well on in years. He rode for Captain Sam Brown ten years ago. Hazlitt hobbed up the other day by taking a mount, but, like Tom O'Hara, he is more of a matured roostar than a spring chicken. Johnny Schorr rode his last race a few years ago. He is now part proprietor of the leading Western Stable."

TURFMEN and the patrons of racing in the East are amazed at the success of the horses owned by William J. Whitney and Sidney Paget. The stable is managed by Mr. Paget, and the horses are trained by a man named Hogan, who is evidently a skillful trainer and a shrewd and astute judge of thoroughbreds. If ability is measured by success Hogan is all that is required. Every horse that has been purchased since the opening of the racing season has improved wonderfully under his training. Moreover, he is a skillful rider, and is capable of bolding his own with any of the riders in the hurdle and steeplechases. Hence, he cannot be hoodwinked by vapid explanations by jockeys who ride suspiciously hungling races. Hogan is a newcomer to the trainers of the East. He has no liking for the pastimes of some of the trainers who strut about the stretch in the morning with watch in hand and spend the afternoon in the betting ring holding whispered conversations with the cherubs that perch upon stools. There are many trainers who look with longing eyes toward the Paget stable, while others who have thrived in a more or less mysterious manner for many years appear willing and anxious to act as the advisers of Mr. Paget.

THE horse, McAllister, which was reported killed as the result of a collision with another horse at Saratoga a few weeks ago, it turns out was not only not killed, but not seriously injured. In any event he is now at Newport in the string of J. T. Stewart, and is getting along all right.

THE jockeys who are riding at Newport will not have long long "tabs" of uncollected and uncollectable fees for their services at the close of the meeting. They got up a petition lately requesting the association to provide for the collection of their fees. The judges accordingly issued a notice to the effect that the losing jockey fee must be paid to the clerk of the scales in every race before the time for weighing out unless the jockey is riding for his contract employer. Notice was also served that Rule 93 will be enforced against every owner failing to conform to the requirement as to depositing fee with the scales clerk. Rule 93 is as follows: "The owner of a horse which is prevented from starting in a purse race because of unpaid jockey fee or of arrears against him or his horse shall be liable for the declaration fee, and he and his horses shall be suspended until such is paid." It has been reported that Colonel Clark, at Harlem, has said that there is nothing in the racing rules that gives an association authority to require owners to pay jockey fees in advance, but the rule above quoted certainly implies that an association has such authority. The order issued by the Newport judges is the same that was enforced at Latonia's spring meeting and gave satisfaction to all concerned.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

OF course, everybody connected with the turf knows that Mr. Sydney Paget is Mr. William C. Whitney's representative. A bookmaker who has made a conservative estimate of the winnings of the Paget stable during the racing season beginning with the Morris Park meeting declared that Mr. Whitney and his associates are fully $250,000 to the good. Paget has not only bet heavily on his own stable, but has taken a chance on any betting proposition which he fancied. During all the time that Tod Sloan was winning with clock-like regularity, Paget and his friends were hacking his mounts. And when one considers that Paget bets all the way from $2,000 to $10,000 to a race when he feels that he's got a good thing, it isn't hard to figure out where he could win half a million during the course of the season. Tod Sloan's connection with the Paget stable also appears to have changed his luck. Sloan not only could not win on horses he rode, but besides he was over $15,000 behind as a result of repeated attempts to break the bank at Saratoga when he joined the Paget stable. But after he affixed his signature to a contract with Paget it was different. He rounded to his old-time form in the saddle and actually discovered a system by which he could beat the bank. When he left Saratoga a week or so ago he had not only won back the $15,000 which he had lost, but about $5,000 besides.

TEN thousand people saw the great Labor Day handicap at Anaconda, the chief racing fixture of the year on the Montana turf, and 10,000 people cheered with delight as they saw Marcus Daly's grand four-year-old colt, Scottish Chieftain, win the prize by the scantiest of margins, from the rank outsider, Tempo. The handsome son of Inverness and Miss Dareble, ridden by Jockey Duffy, had all he could do to lift his charge into winning the $4,000 end of the stake. It was the most spirited and exciting race ever seen in Montana and it may be a long time again until such a choice group of thoroughbreds will be seen in a similar struggle. The despised Tempo, carrying the midget, Gray, and only 88 pounds in all, proved himself a surprisingly good race horse. Ed A. Tipton bought Tempo in Kentucky last year for $700. A few weeks ago in Butte he sold the colt to D. S. Fountain for $70. As a two-year-old Tempa won five out of eight starts and was a colt of much promise. He ran disappointingly in Butte, however, and Mr. Tipton decided to get rid of him. Monday Tempo won $700 and has two races to his credit since he changed ownership. Tampo is by imp. Whistle Jacket—On the Lea. W. D. Randall's "iron horse," 'Ostler Joe, by Fresno—Sister to Jim Douglas, was third and got $300 of the stake. Han d'or, the much-heralded son of Hanover—Fleur d'Or, ran a disappointing race, while Senator Bland's showing was very discouraging. The other contestant, Rubicon, did as well as was expected. Scottish Chieftain won by a nose from Tempo, who was two lengths ahead of 'Ostler Joe, he the same distance ahead of Senator Bland and Han d'Or, a half length only separating these two. Ruhicon was fully three lengths back of all. The track was lumpy and slow, but much better than was expected.

THE defeat of Jean Beraud, the crack two-year-old of the year, in the Flatbush Stakes; the handy victory of Martimas, the Futurity winner, in the same and his disqualification on a sustained charge of foul, which served to award the stake to Autumn, were among the surprises at Sheepshead Bay September 3d. Martimas was the prominent contender throughout. He showed in front at every pole, and won handsomely by a length. Autumn beat Frohsin half a length, while the Madden colt finished only a neck in front of Ethelhert. It was a stirring finish between this quartet, with Kingdon, Filigrana and Manuel also pretty close in line. There had been some bumping on the backstretch, and also in the run home, and some of the beaten jockeys protested. The result was the disqualification of Martimas. His owner, who stood by the judges' inclosure, accepted the ruling in most sportsmanlike fashion, and contented himself with the remark: "I won the Futurity. I won again to-day, and I am satisfied. I don't care a blank for the money." Meanwhile the confident backers of Jean Beraud were wondering what had happened to the crack. If he had ever been a factor they would have been satisfied, but he never seemed to have speed enough to go up to his field. He went to the post looking fat, but he is of such stocky conformation that few of his admirers wakened. Sloan apparently worked hard on him, and the collapse of the colt can only be set down as one of those uncertainties to be looked for in horse racing. It is current paddock talk that he had been tried out recently as better than High Degree, and the rumor is supported by the significant fact that Sydney Paget bought the latter filly since she ran second to Martimas for the Futurity. Horsemen accept the situation philosophically as a parallel case to the failure of Hamburg in the Belmont Stakes at Morris Park last Spring. The three-year-old has redeemed his reputation gloriously since, and the chances are that Jean Beraud will yet reward those who think he is the best two-year-old in training.—New York Sun.

MONTANA AND COLORADO MEETINGS.

Dillon, Montana	Sept. 21st to 24th

A DUTY which every voter who is interested in the continued development of this State owes himself and the people is to use every honorable effort in his power to have the appropriations for district faira restored next year. These appropriations have always been made by the Legislature and by an almost unanimous vote. The taxpayers in the farming, fruit-raising, stock-growing and mining districts, as well as in the cities and manufacturing sections, have always favored this aid to the district fair by the State, and the Legislature has but followed the desires of the people when it has voted to make these appropriations. Two years ago, the present Governor, on the plea of economy, cut out every district from the fair appropriation bill, thus inflicting with one stroke of his pen a loss to the various interests ot the State, especially that of stock-breeding, which was more severe than any injury caused by floods or drouth or other causes since the State was organized. That the Governor's reason for this act is not supported by the facts in the case is plain from the following which is taken from the Examiner, a paper that is most earnest and loyal in its support of the present State administration.

"The State Treasury is overflowing with money and the executive officers of the commonwealth are said to be embarrassed for lack of legitimate objects on which to expend the accumulating funds. It is computed that the present administration of California's State affairs will be in a position to turn over a surplus of about a million dollars to those who are to come into office next January. While the State Treasury has become thus plethoric, many of the counties in the State have found difficulty in making both ends meet. In some of the counties where the current expenses have been met there is yet a feeling on the part of the boards of supervisors that the resources available are not adequate to the legitimate demands of the community."

With such a showing what becomes of the Governor's claim that the district appropriations (which were distributed among the counties) could not he made because there was not sufficient money in the Treasury to pay them? A million dollars in the State Treasury in spite of the fact that a dozen or more useless and expensive commissions drew thousands of dollars from it to pay big salaries to useless officers. This journal has never allowed political questions to be discussed in its columns, and it will continue its course along the same lines, but when it sees some of the greatest industries of the State attacked and injured by an administration, it cannot help but raise its voice against such action. The convention which nominated Mr. Maguire at Sacramento indorsed the administration of Governor Budd, and refused to insert in its platform, though requested to do so, a plank favoring the restoration of State appropriations to the district fairs. The convention which nominated Mr. Gage inserted a strong plank favoring these appropriations, and Mr. Gage has indorsed that plank. With these facts before him, how will the breeder of cattle, the owner of horses, the agriculturist and the horticulturist cast his ballot on election day? Will he consider he is doing his duty by giving aid and support to the candidate who by indorsing his party platform indorses the act by which the district fairs were killed and a loss of thousands inflicted upon every agricultural district? Will the horsemen who have failed to find a market for their horses during the past two years, aid to place in power an administration that will, if it carries out its platform, do just as the present one has done, and refuse all aid to district fairs? We think not. They know where their interests lie in this matter, and in whose hands they will he conserved. As was said in these columns last week, "if the various candidates for Governor should pledge themselves to favor the appropriations, the breeders and stock growers will not enter this fight on either side as an organized body of voters, otherwise they will vote solidly for the candidate who is pledged to support their interests." But it is not probable that the candidate of the Democratic party will do this. He indorses his platform and the platform endorses Gov. Budd's actions. Therefore Mr. Maguire cannot be logically expected to favor the appropriations. Such being the condition of affairs, the Breeder and Sportsman sees only one course for the stock breeder and the agriculturist to pursue and that is to stand by those who are pledged to stand by us. To give support and votes to the men and party that have taken from us our just dues and sustenance is utter foolishness from a business or sentimental stand point. There is no politics in this matter. It is simply a question of business sense.

THE SECOND ANNUAL SALES of thoroughbred yearlings and horses in training will be held at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 721 Howard street, this city, during the months of November and December this year. The manner in which the first sales were conducted last year assure Wm. G. Layng & Co., the proprietors, of continued large consignments from our leading stock farms. One of the leading features of these sales last year were the splendid catalogues issued in connection therewith. The pedigree of every horse was tahulated, and copious notes setting forth the characteristics of the racing families represented in the pedigrees were compiled by experts and inserted in the catalogues. The building where the sales are conducted was built especially for Messrs. Layng & Co., and is the largest of the kind west of Chicago. It is fitted with electric lights, comfortably seated with chairs, and can be used in any kind of weather. The advertisement of the Occidental Horse Exchange appears on another page of this issue.

THE CALIFORNIA FUTURITY, a two-year-old stake valued at $4,500 this year, was won at Sacramento Thursday by Bonibel, a filly by Take Notice—Talluda, owned by Burns & Waterhouse, though it was the general opinion that Olinthus was much the best colt in the race. Piggott, on Bonihel, went out when Starter Havey sent the field away to a pretty start, to make a runaway race of it. At the end his mount was stopping badly, but by superb riding he kept the roan filly up long enough to get the decision in a terrific drive from Almoner and Olinthus, the three finishing heads apart on the wire. Shields on Olinthus had a tempestuous voyage or he would have won, the big chestnut colt clearly showing that he was the best. The best jockey won on the poorest horse of the trio. Saintly showed none of his old-time speed. The track was dead and the time—1:17—indicates a very poor race.

THE STATE FAIR closes to-day after a very successful two weeks. On Thursday last the largest crowd ever seen inside the grounds attended the races. The live-stock display has not been up to its usual standard, hut this is attributable to the drouth which has affected such a large portion of the State this year and made the mere keeping of live stock expensive, let alone getting it in condition for show purposes. The display was creditable, however, that of cattle being especially fine. We believe that the amounts given as premiums for cattle, horses, sheep and swine should be much larger. A first-prize stallion or bull should be awarded at least $100, and other stock in proportion.

LOS ANGELES entries close to-day. A letter from Secretary Thorne received this week states that the races in which the new conditions prepared by this association are to take effect, and which provide that the last horse shall drop out after every heat, will not be so constructed as to have third and fourth moneys revert to the association as was feared by some of the horsemen. Mr. Thorne has written the horsemen at Sacramento at length on this matter and there is no doubt but that the entry list will he a large one. The purses are so large compared with any others offered in California this year, that more money can be won in one race there than could have been gathered in by three or four wins at other meetings. These purses are made possible hy the large attendance which is always the rule at the metropolis of Southern California, which is the best city on the Coast in which to hold a week's meeting.

THE Sacramento race track is for lease for one year. Bids will be received by Secretary Smith, of the State Agricultural Society, up to October 1st for the same. This track and the grounds should pay a good profit in the hands of a good manager. Read the advertisement in another column.

BIDS for the privileges of the Los Angeles track during the meeting to be held there in October, will be received by Secretary Thorne up to September 20th in accordance with the terms set forth in the advertisement printed in another part of the Breeder and Sportsman.

Monday as a Race Day.

Managers of rece meetings who have had any experience at all will herdly agree with the Eestern writer who wants all race meetings to hegin on Monday and who expresses his opinion in this manner: "It hes heen a mystery to me that trotting meetings of four deys' duration do not hegin, as a rule, on Mondey, instead of Tuesdey. The chences of rein ere so great thet an extra dey leeway is a very desirahle thing. In 1866, when Buffelo instituted the system of four-day meetings, it wes decided to hegin Tuesdey hecause many people comiog from a distence would have to start on Sunday to he in time for Mondey's races, and some might object to Sebhath travel. Treins run faster then they did thirty-two yeers ago, and people who attend races are more liberal in their views. It seems to me an approach to idiocy to start a four-days' meeting Tuesday in place of Monday." The fact that trains run faster than they ran thirty-two yesrs ago does not mean much, as no great number of people go greet distences to reces. Even if that were en ergnment, it could have little heering on the cese. As a rule, a race meeting is given with a view to attractiog large audiences, and it is a fect heyond a dispute that Monday crowds are not large ones. In the averege community Monday is a generel cleering-up dey in all husiness houses efter the Saturday rush and the Sundey suspension of husiness, hence, neither employer nor employe can find time to go to the reces, and the Monday program, if there is one, is given at a loss hecense of leck of gete fees. If the gentlemen qooted had ever conducted a race meeting he woold prohahly heve heen slow to charecterize as idiocy that which hes so long ego proved to he good husiness sense. Mondey and Seturdey are poor days on which to get attendance at out-door sports save in the lerge centers of population. Almost any treesurer of a racing essociation will testify to the truth of that assertion.—Horse Re view.

The Hobblee Again.

Now that the trotting seeson is within 60 days of the melancholy time when the Novemher frosts nip the chestnuts and the air is too chill with horeel hlests for harness recing, the much discussed hohhle is egain in the dehate. The observetions of the seeson, thus far, are that there has been little or no diminution of hobbled pecers as compared with last season on any of the tracks, not exceptiog the big circuit. Indeed, more hohhled pacers heve won money in the big circuit then last year. It wes e pecer with the hobhle hendicep thet won the $5,000 Chemher of Commerce Stake et Detroit. It was the same hobhled pecer, Frank Bogesh that won the 2:05 pece et Fort Wayne, and would have won in Cleveland but for one of those mistekes that Moses made (according to Boh Ingersoll) in giving the Israelites too mnch rein on the start. And it was Chehalis, another hohhled pecer that won at Columhus, Buflalo and Glen falls, and now holds the race record of the season, 2:04½. On all the half-mile rings, eest end west, the hohhled pecers are three to one over those without the straps, end as good luck now has it there has heen no serious accident ceused hy hohhled pecers this season up to this writing. And now for the dehate. Will the rule of the National Association harring hohhled pacers on all Nettonel Association tracks in 1899 he enforced, or will it he repeeled? A majority of horsemen cleim the associetion will either revoke the rule or suspend its operetion another year, or until the rosy dawn of the twenlieth century throws a more lurid light on the subject.—American Sportsmen.

A. T. Vogelsang and John Siebe enjoyed the fine fishing on the Truckee near Boca last week.

Benn's Royal Governor, Professor and Royal Coachman have been the killing lures on the Truckee lately.

The Tahoe hatchery was closed on the 15th inst. and the Tallac hatchery has been closed since September 1st.

Evidences of civilization will soon be found along the banks of the stream from Singley's to Grizzly Bluff—bottles and things.

Bay fishing has been excellent recently. Last Sunday all the available boats at Sausalito and Tiburon were out. The best catches were made at Angel Island, off Point Blunt.

Striped bass fishing has been in vogue with Vallejo anglers lately. Some good catches have been made near the Navy Yard. Live minnows on a spoon is the killing bait used.

Reports from the U. S. Fish Commission station at Baird are to the effect that all previous records are beaten this season, the total take of salmon eggs it is estimated will reach 15,000,000.

Billy McRae returned from Boca this week—he brought down about thirty pounds of splendid Truckee trout which he distributed among friends. "Beel" looks very much improved by his month's outing.

C. E. Shaw writes to a friend in this city that the fishing on Eel river at present is better than he has known it to be for years past. The fishing commenced as early as July this season. One day recently he took fifty-five fish, weighing from one-half to two and a half pounds each, with a fly in a few hours fishing.

E. W. Hunt and W. O. Fawcett started yesterday for the Eel river hatchery. They will place that station in running order for the reception of salmon eggs from Baird hatchery early next month. W. B. Hunt will proceed to the Battle Creek hatchery for the purpose of resuming operations at that point.

John Lemmer, Esq., at the earnest request of the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners, has consented to accept the necessary authority to act as a Deputy Commissioner. Commissioner Vogelsang, on Wednesday evening, on behalf of Mr. Lemmer's numerous friends, presented the new State official with an elaborately engraved brass badge, accompanying his action with a few appropriate remarks, which had the effect of making his audience very thirsty. Mr. Lemmer immediately proved the wisdom of his appointment by creating a humidity, etc., that was very palatable.

Fish Commissioner C. B. Gould recently returned from an inspection trip along the Truckee river, embracing the distance from Lake Tahoe to Pyramid Lake, Nevada. He has secured a series of photographic views of all points along the river that can be improved for the purpose of enabling the fish to ascend the stream. It is very probable that action tending to the improvement of the river in Nevada will be taken by the Legislature this winter. That portion of the river under the jurisdiction of the California Commissioners is reported to be in first-class condition.

Among those who left on the steamer yesterday bound for Eureka, Humboldt county, for a try at the steelheads in Eel river were Judge O. P. Evans, Rev. John Butler, Fred Venker, John Benn, Dr. Von Hoffman, Charles Green, W. W. Foote, Jas. V. Coleman and Dan O'Connell. John Gallagher and Col. Keliehor are already on the stream. C. G. Young and Fred Johnson propose going up next week. Advices from there state that the fishing promises to be better than at any time in ten years which is saying a great deal in the light of past angling successes on this fascinating body of fishing water. One of the anglers who goes north with Butler's Rough Riders is somewhat of a novice at the game, but none the less an enthusiast. He gave an ad lib order to one of the leading spirits to fit him out with the necessary tackle. He is now equipped with a twenty-four foot bamboo pole fitted with a wooden surf reel around which one of Lemmer's chalk lines is artistically wound, a supply of assorted sinkers and rock-cod hooks made up the balance of his unique steelhead outfit.

Coming Events.

Sept. 18—Lincoln Gun Club. Picnic and live bird shoot, Greenbrae.

Otto Feudner gathered in another medal at Dixon on Admission Day, the occasion being the trap shoot of the Rising Sun Gun Club.

Frank Vernon was working his dog on Sunday over in Marin county and had a chance to kill a spike buck, which he did in his usual effective style.

The Du Pont Powder Company have recently been awarded a contract to supply the U. S. Government with half a million pounds of smokeless powder.

E. Holling, C. Rohmer and Wm. McCully, of Dixon, have just returned from a three-weeks' outing in Trinity county. The party bagged fifteen bucks during the trip.

W. S. Kittle bowled over a spike buck on the Country Club preserve last Sunday and the Tamalpais Club hunters are credited with a bag of three bucks on the same day.

Deer hunting in Trinity county has afforded a plenty of sport to hunters this season, among other sportsmen, A. H. Ross is credited with a record of ten bucks during the month of August.

The Suisun marshes will be vigilently guarded by the county authorities who propose to adopt vigorous measures in preventing illegal hunting, prior to the open season, by unscrupulous hunters.

The Spooney Gun Club have prepared their grounds at Mt. Eden for the coming duck season. Among other improvements an artesian well has been sunk, thus insuring a supply of fresh water for the ponds.

Lloyd Eaton, Chas. Dietz and Al Newman spent three days deer hunting in the hills near Toceloma last week. Many deer were jumped up but the hunters were unlucky and failed to bag the coveted venison.

The close season for deer in Marin county commenced on Thursday, September 15th. The close season also prevails at present in Contra Costa, Monterey, San Benito, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, San Mateo, Shasta and Ventura counties.

The Black Jacks will hold a convention to-morrow by order of the President. A coaching trip, with Prof. Markland handling the ribbons, will be indulged in during the afternoon. The point of destination will be Fred Johnson's farm near Redwoods. Johnson, by the way is reported to have a fine kennel of Irish setters and several imported pointers at his place.

Geo. Roop, of Gilroy Hot Springs, reports first-class shooting and fishing in the Rogue River region, Oregon. He had some fine pheasant shooting on the trip, bagging 74 birds one day. His pointer dog evidently thought the birds were chickens at first as he did not retrieve until five or six had been killed. Roop is inclined to think that the pheasant is not in it with our valley quail.

The United States Smokeless Powder Company, manufacturers of the well-known Gold Dust Smokeless, through Timothy Hopkins, Esq., the President, has issued the following circular: "To the trade—Mr. D. E. Newell, long connected with the Selby Smelting and Lead Co., has associated himself with the United States Smokeless Powder Co. Communications should be addressed to him, as General Manager, at the office of the Company, Mills Building, San Francisco, Cal."

Ducks are reported to be coming in and rather plentiful on the marshes of the bay counties, this is partly accounted for by the fact that Tulare lake is dry, the cracks in some places are wide enough to engulf a horse; other natural breeding and feeding places in the Yolo basin and along the Sacramento down to Rio Vista are also dried out, thus compelling the quackers to seek new feeding grounds, this promises good shooting for the early part of the season on the bay shores.

Four new guns have recently come on the market. The makers are well known, the grades various enough to satisfy the most captious and the prices scaled to meet any demand. Sportsmen are invited to make an inspection of these goods at the salesroom of E. T. Allen & Co., 416 Market street. Anything and everything required in the line of sports of the field, forest or stream can be found in this well-known sportsman's emporium. Athletic and general sporting goods are carried in full and up to date lines.

John Fanning at Haverhill, Mass., on September 7th, at the last Interstate Shooting Association tournament for this year and held on the grounds of the Haverhill Gun Club, was high gun in ten sweepstake events; his score was 162 out of a possible 170. The Eastern blue-rock events of principal importance during the month of August, 1898, were the Inter-State tournaments held at Waterville, Me., and at Merideo, Conn., both of which were attended by a large number of the Eastern shot-gun cracks. Each event lasted two days, during which our California shooter, Fanning, made his skill at the traps tell signally in the various contests. The general average in the latter two events was won with Gold Dust Smokeless with which powder he also won out at Haverhill.

Among the sportsmen active preparation for the coming shooting season is being made. The careful hunter or angler is always ready at the proper time. An inspection of the window of Clabrough, Golcher & Co., 538 Market street will show the observer a line of various articles, from the highest grade of guns or rods down to the many comparatively smaller or unimportant sporting appliances. This inspection, however, strongly offers the suggestion that the shelves inside must contain a variety that will satisfy any demand in the line of seasonable sporting goods of all kinds. The house has a reputation for quality and standard of goods that is enviable.

Great interest among Eastern trapshooters is being shown in the contest for the Sportsmen's Review Trophy, emblematic of the live-bird championship of America. The first match for this beautiful prize will be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, on the grounds of the Cincinnati Gun Club during October. The trophy itself is an elegantly designed gold and silver cup valued at $500. The introductory shoot will be at 50 live birds, A. A. rules, 30 yards' rise, 12-gauge guns, $25 entrance, birds extra. The Sportsmen's Review guaranteeing a purse of $500, five moneys, class shooting, ties to be shot off at 25 birds. At the expiration of three years from the date of the first contest the winners of the cup, in open competition or by challenge, will shoot a special 25-bird match, $25 entrance, for final possession.

Two trophies are now in the field, each claimed to be emblematic of the live-bird championship of America; one of them, the Cast Iron medal, is now held by Rolla Heikes, who recently at Eau Claire, Wis., defended it successfully against Fred Gilbert by killing 99 out of 100 pigeons against the latter's 94. The second trophy, the Du Pont cup, is held by Gilbert, who won it from J. A. R. Elliott at Chicago in December last. Championships are evidently becoming a commodity in the home market that are intended to fill a long felt want. After October next there will be a chance for an admiring fraternity of trap-shooters to gaze on the Drei-Bund of live-bird champions and guess under which shell is located the "original Mr. Jacobs."

The Lincoln's Outing To-morrow.

The picturesque spot on the line of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway in Marin county known as Greenbrae Station, will be the scene of the annual outing of the Lincoln Gun Club to-morrow. The shooting men will gather in force with their wives, sweethearts and friends, for the announcement is, that "all are welcome." Under the guiding hand of Edg. Forster, arrangements have been made that will insure the comfort and enjoyment of everyone. For the trapshooters the following program has been prepared, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M: The first event will be a race at twelve live birds, entrance $2 00, side pool $1.50, three moneys, class shooting. Event number two will be a six-bird match, entrance $1 00, side pool $1 00, two moneys. The third event will be a freeze-out race, entrance 50 cents, birds extra. The shooters will face the traps in squads of five at a time; each man will shoot two birds sprung from unknown traps before leaving the score. The traps will be ten in number.

The majority of the excursionists will take the 8 o'clock boat. The Club will serve a lunch, free of charge, to members and guests. A happy time and large attendance is anticipated.

South End Gun Club.

At the Colma trap grounds last Sunday the South Ends bid good-bye to blue-rocks for this season. Their next shotgun efforts will be devoted to the sprig and spoon-bill communities in the vicinity of Mt. Eden. A fair attendance of members, notwithstanding the warm weather, participated in the shooting, the principal event for the day being the final club match at twenty-five blue rocks. This race decided the distribution of $50, of which $30 was divided among the first class shooters; McRae winning first money, J. McDonald taking second money and M. McDonald getting third money. Of the balance, $20 for the second class shooters, Peterson won first money; Belloff, Itgen, Grimes and Taylor divided second money and third money went to Wichman. Practice and pool shooting followed the regular club shoot; a match between Tom Lewis and Dick Itgen resulted in a tie on fourteen birds apiece, each contestant had previously won a race at twenty targets, the winner of the best two out of three races will now have to be decided next year. The scores in the club match were as follows:

C. A. Haight is the Olympic Champion

The event of the year among sportsmen who devote themselves to trap-shooting and particularly live bird matches was the shoot of the Olympic Gun Club held last Sunday at Ingleside. Considerable and increasing interest has been manifested among the devotees of the shot-gun for some time past as to the final placement of the club medal honors. The results last Sunday show that the laurels of the champion class were won by Clarence A. Haight, who has, throughout the shooting season this year, made a strong and winning bid for the principal club trophy by the application of unerring skill with the gun and almost unfailing judgment that at times placed kills to his credit which, in the case of a shooter less cool and even-tempered, would have shown ragged edges in an individual score.

The contest between the experts in the champion class was one of absorbing interest to those in attendance. The pigeons were generally a good, strong lot of birds. The day warm, with scarcely, if any wind during the shooting. Among the high guns, H. C. Golcher, W. J. Golcher and M. O. Feudner commenced the shoot on even scores, with Haight, the popular representative of the Do Pont Powder Company, in the lead with a narrow margin of one bird. Frank Maskey, after killing eleven birds on a back score, was in position for place, being but two birds behind the high man. The relative positions among the leaders changed after Haight had lost his fourth and tenth birds, thus giving W. J. Golcher, who had a straight string np to the twelfth round, a lead of one bird, which temporary advantage faded away after the loss of three out of his next eight birds. Mr. Golcher then withdrew, having no chance for the medal. Otto Feudoer also withdrew after losing three out of twelve birds. H. C. Golcher, shooting in excellent form, finished two birds behind the high score for the season, Maskey also had the same credit of kills on his score. Haight after losing his tenth bird killed the remaining fifteen in telling style and finished with a score of twenty-three.

Clarence Naoman and F. J. Schultz, with twenty-four each out of a possible twenty-five, were the high score men for the day. Nauman won the first class medal with credits to spare. The race for the medal in the second class, between Green, Unger and Neustadter was close. The former shooters had a lead of two birds over Neustadter and were tied on scores. Unger scored nineteen and won the medal over Green, who finished with a total of eighteen kills.

The championship score, eighty-nine out of a possible ninety-seven, is the clever record which won the principal medal for Clarence Haight. The next high man, H. C. Golcher and Frank Maskey, each had a total of eighty-seven to their credit, C. Nauman's medal was won on a total score of eighty-five and seventy-two dead birds placed the second class medal to Unger's credit.

The order of shooting, handicaps and scores in detail of the final and deciding match for the season is as follows:

Empire Gun Club.

The wind-up of the trap shooting season for the Empires took place last Sunday on the club grounds at Alameda. A perfect day for smashing targets brought to the traps only a fair attendance of shooters. The first regolar event of the day, the classification race at twenty-five blue-rocks, saw but eleven men at the traps, the scores in this event, in detail, are as follows:

Active preparation is being made by the club for the coming duck season, the grounds at Black Point having been leased again for a year. Next week a number of the members will be at the club house putting things in order; a keeper will be located on the preserve and everything arranged for the open season. From present indications the Empires are promising themselves many good bags in the near future.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

W. H. McFee, of Los Angeles, is about to leave the State and is offering the whole of his kennel of fox terriers for sale at very low prices.

A string of fifteen dogs, owned by prominent sportsmen are now at the Lucas Kennels at San Clemente where they will be put in fine fettle and perfect condition for the opening of the shooting season.

W. W. Howard, a prominent fox terrier fancier of Los Angeles, was recently on a visit to this city and while here embraced the opportunity to visit some of the local kennels.

Fred Butler has been commissioned by Mr. F. W. Tallant to devote the artistic skill of his brush in the execution of a painting in animal life, the subject being the well known deer hound Gabriel.

James Sargent, of Sargent's, California, has been unfortunate in losing his fox terrier bitch, Golden Sunset (Starder's King—Blemton Brilliant); she was at the time of her death in whelp to J. B. Martin's Warren's Sage.

Ill luck still pursues that once enthusiastic fox terrier fancier, C. A Sumner, of Los Angeles; recently Champion Raby Rasper disappeared and has not been found, whether he was poisoned and his body made away with or stolen cannot be determined.

The Stockton Mail seems to have a strong grievance against one Dave Winders of Stockton, who has for years past posed as an authority and breeder of cocker spaniels. An article published on September 7th in that journal scores the dog man unmercifully.

John E. Lucas has another prominent candidate for field trial honors in a five-months-old liver and white pointer dog puppy by Alec C.—Cora. Lucas is sanguine that the intelligence and thoroughbred qualities shown by this puppy in preliminary work will give him a strong recognition from the participants in the coming field trials at Bakersfield.

Challenge Melro Sylvia (Champion Melrose—Lady Sylvia) recently purchased by F. H. Bushnell, arrived in this city last week. Previous reports as to the beauty and appearance of this grand brood bitch are fully borne out by her appearance. She was bred, before leaving the Alta Kennels, Toledo, O., to Prince Sylvia (Le Prince—Sylvia's Lola).

The first litter on the coast to F. H. Bushnell's smooth coat St. Bernard Le Prince Jr. (Le Prince—Judith's Rachel) out of G. A. Mudgett's R. C. St. Bernard bitch (Mollie Marshall (General Blucher—Carlton Dolly), have all been eagerly sought for by lovers of the St. Bernard breed—the puppies, six bitches, are all a fine lot and give evidence of becoming beautiful specimens of the type.

A Leeeon in Breeding.

Breeders frequently use the terms in-breeding, line-breeding, pure-breeding and cross-breeding end it is well to have a clear idea of what these terms actually meen. In-breeding is the breeding of closely-related animels sucb es sire to daughter, dam to son, brother to sister or uncle to niece. In-breeding was precticed hy the early breeders and was jostified hy necessity and wes comparatively sefe beceuse the stock with wbich they deelt had great vitelity. Tbis is tbe short and easy, but not elways tbe safe wey to fix a type.

Line-breeding is the meting of animels belonging to the same families within the breed but not closely related. For example, the men who confines himself to animels of one femily, such es the Docbess or Young Merys, would be line-breeding. In a broeder sense he would be hreediug in line if he confined himself to the Betes families or the Cruickshank femilies.

Pure-breeding means the mating of animals all of which are entitled to registry or have a recorded or recordable pedigree and confines himself to the limits of the breed. He might use Cruicksbenk or Bates or yice verse or either of these on Seventeens or eny of the old standard sorts and it would still he pure-breeding. The term thoroughbred epplies to race hore s. Cross-breeding is the mating of animals of distinct hreeds; for example, Sbort-hort or Hereford. Red Poll on Polled Angos or Jersey on Holstein. The progeny of these crosses, no matter what individual merit it might have, is not entitled to registry.

Grading-up is an effort to improve the common stock of tbe country by using sires of any of the definite and important breeds and is the method used by most farmers to improve their stock. It is the sbort and easy way to secure great improvement in a short spece of time if it is followed with judgment in the selection of t e sire and in feeding the herd and especially tbe progeny. Grading-np is tbe attempt of farmers to improve their stock by nsing first a sire of one breed and then of another. It is the shortest way to pocket a loss while looking for profit and to demoraliza the stock under pretense of improvment, and unfortunately it is the method that many stockmen follow, notwithstanding all that can be said on tbe subject. It results from lack of knowledge end in lack of cash.

It is nothing nncommon to beer farmers who heve been breeding Poland China or Berkshire hogs, for example, complain that tbey are getting too fine in the bone, too short, too fat aud fail to prodnce large litters. Tbey think they will remedy this by getting a Jersey Red. They are so mnch pleased with the cross that they conclude that they have at last found the key to knowledge and that if one cross is good another must be twice as good, bence the next time they take a Chester White to breed on the produce and if this is not qoite as satisfectory as they expected they try a Tamworth or Yorkshire. By this time the evil resnlts begin to eppeer.—Farmer's Gnide.

Northern California Stock Notes.

The haying business seems to be very good in most sections of Siskiyou county, especially at Gazslle and Edgewood, where some of the ranches will produce a third crop. Prices are also good, ranging from $6 to $8 a ton for alfalfa, that sold last year at $4 50 to $6. Good red top and timothy is held at $10 and $12 a ton, and will probably bring better prices when the wioter sets in. Cattle will be up to last fall prices, if not higher, as soon as tbe principal shipping period commences, to create a demand for the hay. At present tbe stock is being fed on tbe mountain renges, but will have to be driven to the low valleys before winter, in order to be out of the deep snow regions, where the feed is covered too deep for sustenance.

Henry Wadsworth, of Yreka, shipped a large band of cattle last week, from his ranch in Shasta Valley, near Gazelle. Others have also heen shipping cattle from Edgewood, Gazelle, Montague and Hornbrook, but the heavy shipments will be made later on, when cattle are driven in from Modoc county and Southern and Eastern Oregon.

Lake county will not turn off her usual quota of fat beef steers this fall on account of the scarcity of water on the ranges, the same may be said of Modoc county to a certain extent, although it is generally understood that cattle are in pretty fair condition considering the late start that feed on the ranges got this spring. Rodeoing will commence within the next few weeks.

Cat in Butte Creek Valley, cattle are doing well, and there will be a large supply this fall for shipment. The stock men are making good preparations for feeding, by putting away considerable hay, taking no chances for a favorable open winter like the last. Although the winters are generally very mild compared to more northern and eestern seasons, there is sometimes considerable snow in the best stock raising sections of Siskiyou.—Yreka Journal

Selling the Fertility of the Land.

The dairymen who ships milk hes but little idea of how much fertilizing meteriel be is sending awey with it. Every hundred pounds of milk contains about half a pound of nitrogen, a querter of a pound of potesh and one-fifth of a pound of pbosphoric acid In a yeer a cow producing 4,000 pounds of milk wonld send eway from the ferm 22 lbs. of nitrogen, 11 lbs. of potesh and 9 lbs. of phosphoric acid to say nothing of tbe chemicel composition of the calf which is produced every year. It is easily seen that if this drain on the fertility of tbe farm is kept up for years, a decided decreese in its productive cepecity must be looked for, nnless a corresponding amount of fertility is snpplied by meens of fertilizers or use of concentrated feed.

There are meny farmers wbo do not recognize how great this loss may he, until e sudden drop in tbe returns showe them thet the availahle fertility has been lergely removed.

To return this fertility and at the seme time draw from tbe soil sufficient crops for his maintenance, is, in meny ces s, beyond the ability of the fermer, and such land is left to grow np to brush and weeds. To improve such worn ont land and bring it beck to its previous condition of fertility would necessitate such a redicel chenge in all the habits and methods of the fermer that the alteretions and adeptations of old metbods to meet changed circumstances are but slowly adopted. True, a few men here and there are looking ahead of the present conditions and are endeavoring to retain the fertility of the farm by shipping such products as do not make a large draft on its resources. Botter, fruit, vegetables, etc., cause bnt little decrease in the fertility of the soil but, unfortunately, few farmers are so situated as to markets, etc., as to be able to confine themselves to such products. By far tbe greater majority of farmers must continue to depend on crops that rob tbe lend of its fertility. We are sending $70,000,000 of fertilizers to Europe every year in our grain exports. We are sending many millions to the great cities of the country in the form of milk and grain, and the drain on the land is increesing every year. It is very evident where we shall bring up if this drain is not stopped and more careful methods of farming put in practice. Unfortunately, we have no river Nile to keep up the fertility of the land by its yearly overflow, and consequently must depend on phosphates from Carolina and potash from Stassfurt. Bnt even these immense supplies will be exhausted some time, and after the stored-up fertility of our prairies has been sent to Europe, what then?—Hoard's Dairyman.

Pumpkins for Sheep.

A correspondent of tbe Breeders' Gszette writes as follows about pumpkins as food for sheep.

The value of pumpkins as food for sheep is not well known. I esteem them above roots, rape or any succulent food that I know. We feed them in great numbers when we have them, not trying to keep them during winter, but feeding them on pasture in fall.

Our manner of feeding is to haul out our large loads and scatter tbem about the pasture. We do not break them open, but allow the sheep to gnaw tbeir way into tbe fruit. They eat out the soft inside first, seeds and all; tben pay their attention to tbe flesh, which they entirely consume. In all our experience we have never seen tbe least ill-results to follow tbis course, except that some ewes would become almost too fat.

Pumpkin seeds have never in our experience caused abortion in cows, sows or ewes fed in the manner I have described. During the season if the pumpkins are in supply tbey are fed without limit except the appetite of the animals.

If sheep do not know the taste of the fruit cut it open and sprinkle with salt. Ooly let them taste it and your troubles are over until the pumpkins are gone.

The broiler business is a distinct one from that of keeping bens. In fect, as lice always come from hens, not a hen is eilowed on some of the broiler-farms. Then, egein, the broiler-reiser has no time to devote tn hens. There is more money in cbicks, and bis work is all done under shelter, and often on a town lot. Tbe eggs are collected from all sources, tbough such work is a serious obstecle. The only thing that can be done wben one buys the eggs is to keep the farmers supplied with pure-bred males (often giving them the males), so as to get as much quality in tbe cbicks as possible. That is as far es the egg problem has been solved. Good, fertile eggs are always in demand. Any cross that gives a plump, full-breasted, yellow-legged chick will answer, but the crosses give chicks that are of all shapes and colors, hence pure breeds are better. All the work is done in about four months, and it is a winter business. The houses for winter use will not do for summer. Ooe man can attend to fifteen hundred cbicks, and it will keep him busy. He has no time tn devote to hens.

Never begin to milk a cow unless you are in good hnmor. A cow is very delicate piece of machinery at all times, but more so at milking time, for then there is some process going on in her internal machinery that we know very little about. But wbet little we do know shows most conclusively that the amount of cream or fat in the milk is a variable quantity, and may be effected by the cow herself. It is not meent that the cow, at will, may give milk with four or five per cent. of fat in it, hut the process of giving milk is in some wsy connected with the cow's nervous system, end anything that acts upon her nerves also acts upon the amount of fat that she puts in tbe milk —Ex.

AN AUSTRALIAN TROTTER.

Has a Record of 2:14 and Will be Matched Against Any American Horse.

Those who know the difference between Australian and American tracks will not hesitate to acknowledge that a mile trotted over one of the Antipodean courses in 2:14 is a marvelous performance. That, however, is the record made by the horse Fritz over the Brighton course at Sidney, July 25, 1898.

The track is a composite one of sand and clay, and in dry weather is hard, but the rain which fell on Saturday made it soft (says Sydney Mail). In fact the track looked little better than the Kensington one, on which Fritz failed on Friday last to improve on his 2 min. 14 4-5 sec. for the mile, and there were a number of bookmakers on the ground willing to lay money that even 2 min 16 sec. would not be registered. Fritz, driven by his owner (Mr. J. A. Buckland) and accompanied with Carbine II, ridden by J. McGregor, as pacemaker, started to his work at a great clip. The first half mile was done in 1 min. 6½ sec. and then the angle of the track causing many people to think that Eritz was tiring, the bookmakers offered 2 to 1 against the record being broken. Instead, however, of slackening his pace, Fritz was improving it, and this became generally realized as he swept round the home bend. Mr. Buckland urged Fritz up the straight with a few flips of the whip, and the gelding passed the winning post at a faster rate than he traveled over any other part of the journey, establishing a new record of 2 min. 14 sec. The horse and his driver were cheered on returning to the weighing-in inclosure. The performance is a great one under the circumstances, as the track is a few yards less than half a mile in circumference, and was soft and in many places uneven. In addition the distance was measured three yards from the rail of the track, which is sufficient for pony and galloway racing, but a trotter driven in a sulky must perforce run something like seven or ten yards out of the bends, and it is plain that Fritz covered more than a mile in his successful attempt. The official time was taken by Messrs. J. J. Smith and J. G. Deehle, and was confirmed by a number of private watches. In the opinion of a number of judges of trotting, Fritz would cover the mile on a track of the American type in 2 min. 6 or 7 sec.

At the invitation of the Brighton proprietary a number of gentlemen interested in the sport of trotting assembled at the hotel Arcadia on Tuesday afternoon (says the same paper of July 30th) to witness the presentation to Mr. J. A. Buckland on behalf of Mrs Buckland of a handsome diamond and saphire broach, crescent shaped, as a souvenir of Fritz's performance in establishing at Brighton on Monday a new trotting record of 2:14 for a mile. Mr. S. J. Smith in making the presentation, remarked that Fritz was really owned by Mrs. Buckland, and the sporting public of the whole Australasian colonies had been placed under a debt of gratitude to her and to Mr. Buckland for the great advance that had been made in the records of trotting during recent years. It was indeed encouraging to find a gentleman like Mr. Buckland prepared to spare neither time nor money in the advancement of the sport, and it was only to be regretted that there were not more in the ranks of trotting horse owners like him, for then sport would be cleared from the stigma by which it was now handicapped. Not only were the sportsmen of this colony proud in the possession of such a horse as Fritz, but he felt that many of them thought with him that if any of the Americans were enterprising enough to bring here the best horse they could discover, Fritz would be able to hold his own with him. There was no doubt the horse could do much better than he did Monday, and under perfect conditions would come pretty near to the 2:00. Mr. Buckland, in returning thanks, thought Mr. Smith had gone too far in thinking Fritz could do 2:00. There is no doubt that with a larger track he could considerably reduce his record. In fact he had done a quarter mile in 0:31, which was getting towards the 2:00, and also half a mile in 1:03, which showed that after all Mr. Smith might not be exaggerating the horse abilities so much as at first appeared. Mr. Buckland said he was not prepared to go to America, but would match his horse against the best they could bring here for a good stake, and on even terms. They all knew about the last proposed match, which ended in smoke, and in which the Americans wanted it all their own way; but he was prepared to come to any fair and reasonable conditions. Mr. Wilson, secretary of the Canterbury N. Z Trotting Club, spoke of the flourishing condition of the trotting in that colony, and hoped to see the day when it would be as popular here, for there were undoubtedly some very good horses in New South Wales.

SAN JOSE NEXT WEEK

San Jose is in line, and a meeting of five days' duration will open at the excellent track in that city on Tuesday next, September 27th, closing on Saturday. A number of the most prominent horsemen in California are already on the grounds and by the last of this week fully one hundred of the light harness brigade will be at the San Jose track. The stables of James Sullivan, G. Wempe, Walter Maben. W. G. Durfee, James Thompson, Henry Hellman, C. F. Bunch, R. Hackney and many others are already working at the track There will be three races each day, of mile heats, best two in three. Among the fast ones now at the track are Much Better, 2:07¼; Rex Alto, 2:07¾; F. W., 2:10 (trial 2:05); Prince Gift, 2:12; Zombro, 2:11, and others A good week's sport is certain.

Butcher Boy, 2:17 1-4, Changes Hands.

Chas. Newman, proprietor of the Richelieu, purchased the chestnut gelding, Butcher Boy, this week, and placed him in the hands of Jo Cuicello, who will enter him at the San Jose meeting next week. Butcher Boy has been a constantly-improving horse for the past year, and he will surely pace a mile in 2:10 if no accident happens him. He is by Secretary, son of Director, and out of a mare by Gen. McClellan 144. Another of Mr. Newman's horses that has shown great improvement lately is the roan mare, Maud Newman, 2:28½. She was driven a quarter in 0:31½ and a half in 1:06 by Mr. Cuicello one day this week.

SEARCHLIGHT AND JOHN R. GENTRY.

The Two Great Pacers to Meet in a Match Race at Los Angeles Next Month.

The big card of the Los Angeles meeting which opens October 5th, will be a match between those two great pacing stallions, John R. Gentry, 2:00½, and Searchlight, 2:04½. The Los Angeles Directors sent word to T. E. Keating a few days since, making an offer of a big purse for Searchlight and some of the Eastern pacing cracks to contest for, and a reply was received from Mr. Keating this week stating that the owners of John R Gentry were willing to make the trip to California and try conclusions with Searchlight, Anaconda or any of the champion pacers that happen to be there. The match will probably be between Searchlight and Gentry, and will be mile heats best two in three. There is not a doubt but the fastest heats ever paced in California will result, and the great four-year-old son of Darknight will be able to give Gentry the race of his life. Gentry met Jo Patchen at Readville, Massachusetts, last Thursday, and was beaten by the black stallion in 2:05¾ and 2:04¾, but was close up each heat. A stiff wind was blowing which made the time slower than it would otherwise have been.

If there is a good day and track at Los Angeles, and there is almost a certainty of that, two miles below 2:03 will very likely be paced, and there is certain to be the largest crowd to witness it that has ever been seen at the Los Angeles fair grounds. The track is now being worked with the idea of getting it as near perfection as possible.

There will be a lot of horses at Los Angeles when the meeting opens. John R. Gentry 2:00½, and Keating's Champion string consisting of Searchlight 2:04½, Anaconda 2:04½, Klatawah 2:06¼, and Dione 2:09¼, will head the list. Then there will be Much Better 2:07¼, Jo Wheeler 2:07½, Rex Alto 2:07¾, Agitato 2:09, Monterey 2:09½, Toggles 2:10¼, F. W. 2:10, and all the other fast ones that have been racing in California this year.

The best strings of runners now in training in this State will also be present at the meeting, and it is confidently expected that the attendance will be much larger than at any previous fair.

The betting privileges will be open to all bookmakers who wish to cut in. Eight or ten of the most prominent pencilers of the State have signified their intention of making books at the meeting, which insures liberal odds for those who wish to risk their money on their judgment as to the result of the races.

The entry list has not been received up to this writing, but we understand that nearly every one of the big purses filled well and that there will be large fields in nearly every race. Four or five carloads of horses now in San Jose will leave for Los Angeles on Sunday, October 2d.

Rough Rider Horse Sale.

Over a thousand horses that belonged to Roosevelt's Rough Riders went under the hammer at New York last Tuesday and Wednesday. The salesring was crowded with buyers both days and the auctioneer did not dwell long on the horses, which were nearly all broncbos. The prices ranged from $5 to $75, the average being about $16. Many of the horses had never been saddled and but few had ever been shod. They cost the Government an average of $65 each.

The Charter Oak Winner.

John Nolan, winner of the celebrated Charter Oak Stake of $10,000, in the fastest time ever made in that race—2:09½—was, up to tha middla of last season a pacer, and through the Montana circuit was entered in the three-year-old pacing class. One day Dick Benson, who was then his driver, got up behind him and, without any change in shoes, weights or boots, was surprised to find that his pupil insisted upon trotting, and nothing that the trainer's ingenuity could devise would induce him to pace a step. From that day on John Nolan was a trotter, and at that gait, all through last fall, he developed remarkable speed.

Before leaving Montana, early last spring, John Nolan was considered good enough to be entered in the Denver races in June and through the grand circuit. Trainer Willis Foote of Texas, who had in his stable the gray mare Rene, owned by Mr. Huhinger, saw Nolan perform in his earlier engagements and liked him well enough to advise Mr. Huhinger to buy him, which that gentleman did at a reported price of $3,000. Tha horse has been a very successful money-winner, lowering his record from 2:14, made at Denver, to 2,09½, mada in the third heat at Hartford.

The blood lines of John Nolan are powerfully infused with extreme speed. He carries not a drop of Wilkes blood, but is strong in the inheritance of the two great foundation families—Hambletonian and Mambrino Chief. The sire of John Nolan is Prodigal, 2:16, by Pancoast, 2:21½, son of Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½, by Mambrino Chief. The dam of Prodigal is the producing mare, Beatrice, daughter of Cuyler, by Hambletonian. Pancoast's dam is Bicars, by Hambletonian, while Bicara's dam is Belle, daughter of Mambrino Chief. The dam of Beatrice is Mary Mambrino, by Mambrino Patchen. Prodigal is brother to Patron, 2:14¼, who in 1885; with a record of 2:19½, was the champion three-year-old stallion of the world. He is owned by C. F. Emery of Cleveland, and in 1887 won the Charter Oak stake. Prodigal is own brother to Patronage, dira of the queen trotter Alix, 2:03¾, the property of Waldo T. Pierce of this city.

In 1885, when Patron, then a three-year-old, was at St. Louis to race with the famous California filly, Manzanita, John Splan saw Patron and regarded him, as he surely was, a phenomenal colt. Splan bad at the time an order from a wealthy gentleman to buy tha best young trotter he could find, regardless of price. Splan had been informed that Patron could be bought for $10,000, and concluded to look the colt over, and if sound, to take him. Patron had curbs, and Splan was afraid to negotiate. As the son of Pancoast kept on winning races, and became the champion of his age, Splan regretted that he had not given the $10,000, and secured for his costomer one of tha best racehorses that ever lived.

It is seldom wa have a first-class trotter whose mother is not a mare of exceptional quality. Her pedigree may not always be fashionable, or of extreme length, yet upon investigation it will generally ba found that she possesses individual qualities of a high degree. John Nolan is no exception to the rule. His dam, Fantasia, is now 17 years old, and last year, in a race at Butte, Mont., she accomplished the wonderful feat of reducing her trotting record to 2:17¼. She was bred by William Long of Walla Walla, Wash.; her sire is Ranchero, her dam is Lady Kate, pedigree untraced. Ranchero was a chestnut horse, and, if now living, is 21 years old. He has a trotting record of 2:21½. His sire is Clark Chief Jr., and his dam is Mary Eagle, by American Clay.

Strongly inbred as is John Nolan to Mambrino Chief on his sire's side, he receives further reinforcement through Clark Chief Jr., who was by Clark Chief, son of Mambrino Chief.

ANDY MCDOWELL has purchased another horse. He recently paid $1,200 for the bay stallion Oslund L., 2:16½, by Lockheart 2:08½, dam Heiress 2:27, by Woodford Wilkes. Osland L can trot in 2:12 right now, it is said, and in McDowell's hands is certain to he a 2:10 trotter if the reports about his great speed are correct. He was purchased from the Sherwood Stock Farm of Iowa. Andy says he bought him because he liked him.

FOR a mare that has never beaten 2:10, Alcidalia has beaten more 2:10 horses than any other trotter living.

Harneee Horeee in Honolulu.

We have received tha following letter from tha well known trainer and driver M. Costello, who went to Honolulu some weeks ago.

HONOLULU, H. I., Sept. 12, 1898.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—This is ona of tha prettiest places and has the finest climate of any portion of the globe I ever visited. I have only been here a short time but hava seen many of our old-time California track favorites, and it seems as if the climata here has done them all good. Our Boy 2:12½, looks to ha in better form than he ever was in his lifa before. Irish Lassie 2:16, the champion of the Islands up to this time, is a grand looking filly. Loupa 2:09½, looks like a four year old. W. Wood 2:07, is better than I ever saw him; Telephone 2:24¾, by George Dexter, bids fair to make a 2:10 pacer before tha year is out, while that very fast mare Violin is looking ready to race for a man's life. Mr. Sullivan of this city, has a very promising trotting colt recently shipped here from Kentucky. There is some talk of Irish Lassie being taken back to California to race next year, and if she goes she will surely get a low mark, and make the best of the pacers step to haat her.

The roads here are excellent to jog on and the horse owners here are true sportsmen and ready to race their animals at any time. They only bold one regular meeting each year, however, that being generally on the 4th and 5th of July, during which seven or eight races are given each day. The old campaigner Creole, 2:15, is looking well, and his owner, Mr. Norton, believes he will lower his record this year. Mr. McDonald, tha leading horse shoer here, has a filly by Creola that, barring accidents, will give a good account of herself next year. I think thera is sala here for a limited number of good looking roadsters and carriage horses.

Yours respectfully, M. COSTELLO.

Sandy Gete a Send Off

Everybody out here on tha Coast knows "Sandy" who is now head groom for Tom Keating's great string. Sandy's good work with the horsee is not only greatly appreciated by Keating and the California owners, but has attracted much attention in the East. Sandy was written up by the Boston Herald recently in the following manner:

Out on the race track spectators see hut horse and driver, and only a small per centage of the race track patrons ever think of the careful preparation necessary to bring a horse to the wire a winner. Generally the driver is the trainer and he carefully watches his horses by day, and has some one close at hand at night in case of an emergancy.

Bot, hesida tha driver, thare is generally a head caretaker or second trainer, who looks after the horses night and day, and is seldom seen by the general public. The caretaker olten jogs the horses in the forenoon, when none but "railbirds" are around, hut that ends his work on the track.

On this man, who is never seen, and on the "swipes" depend a great deal of the success of the driver. A careless, malicious or ugly-tempered caretaker can spoil the best of horses, while a careful conscientious man takes as much pride in conditioning his horse, cooling him out, bandaging him, etc, as does the man of wealth in owning a champion.

With tha pay generally accorded these people, it is, of course, bard to find saints, hut good caretakers ara in demand, and wise trainers and owners do not let a few dollars stand between them and a reliable man.

W. J. Andrews always accorded a generous measure of his success with the two champions, Mascot and John R. Gentry to his man Abbott, an old man who had been employed for years by him.

Tom Keating, who cama East this year with the phenomenal California string—Dione, Searchlight, Anaconda and Klatawah—bas been sick a great deal of the time, and has always been free to leave his horses in the care of "Sandy" Smith, knowing that in his hands the horses would be in tha best of shape.

"Sandy" is a character on the race track. He bets his money freely when one of tha stable starts, and he often places largar commissions than many of tha circuit followars.

For thirty-five years Mr. Smith has been driving, working and caring for horses. When Charles Marvin was at tha height of his fame with the Palo Alto horses, Sandy was with him, and when Arion made his champion two-year-old record of 2:10½, it was "Sandy" who took care of the phenomenal colt.

He was with Orrin Hikok, the Tallayrand of tha turf, and looked after Alfred S., Hulda, Adonis and Arah. This season he joined Tom Keating at Omaha, whera he was following the circuit and speculating on the races. Keating wanted Smith to particularly look after Dione, the fast mare owned by A. B. Spreckels, the California millionaire. Dione was rather a delicate little thing, hut tha care she has received has been in great measore responsible for the great races sha has gone this season. "Sandy" has become attached to the mare and thinks her one of the greatest little pieces of racing machinery on the turf. With Keating ill a great deal of the time, he spends avery minute possible with the stable, and takes as much pride in the horses as if he were the owner. The pacers are strong, ruggad fellows and for that reason, probably, he pays more attention to the more delicate trotter.

THERE are hut four four-year-old trotters which have beaten 2:08, Directum, 2:07¼, by Director, 2:07; Benzetta, 2:06¾, by Onward, 2:25¼; Fantasy, 2:06, by Chimes, 2:31½, and Arion, 2:07¾, by Electioneer. Of these two are stallions and two are mares. All four trace to Hambletonian in the direct male line.

SYMBOLEER, by Campbell's Electioneer, who took a two-year-old pacing record of 2:11 in 1894, reducad it to 2:09 at the record meeting at Readville, September 5th.

Another star has appeared among the great trotters of the saason, and it is ona that must he taken into consideration when the talent is making its calculations for future events. Askay, who won the 2.18 trot at Independence and took a mark of 2:08¼ in tha third heat, equaling tha best record of tha year, held jointly by The Abbot and Directum Kelly, is ona of the most remarkable stallions that has been seen on the turf in recent years. Ha was bred by Henry Bruce, of Howard, Kan., was foaled in 1890, and is consequently eight years old. He came out green last season, starting six times in the Kansas circuits. Ha won all his races, and gained a record of 2:20¾. He kept on winning in the spring campaign this year, and when he started at the Detroit Grand Circuit meeting in July, he went to the score with a mark of 2:11¾ and the remarkable record of having never lost a heat. H. M. Hanna's South Dakota mare, Mattie Patterson, beat him there and at Cleveland, after which the stallion was laid up until the Dubuque meeting in the Great Western circuit, having been sold by his breeder, Henry Bruce, of Howard, Kan., to R. C. Rawlings, of Chanuta. John Hussey, who gave Allerton, 2:09¼, his early lessons and later brought out Oncqua, 2:08¼, drove Askey in his winning races at Independence and Dubuque. Tha horse will probably start in the Transylvania next month, where he is likely to meet James Butler's four-year-old Directum Kelly, 2:08¼. Askey is built more on tha lines of a park horse than a race horse of extreme speed, standing only a shade over 15 hands high and weighing nearly 1,100 pounds when not in campaigning condition. His sire, McFarland, 2:29¼, was by Charles Caffrey, the son of Gen. Knox and old Rosalind, 2:21½. On tha side of the dam McFarland traces back to Lizzie Walker, the dam of Robert Bonner's old-time trotting stallion, Startle. Askey's dam was Strange Girl by Strangemore, 2:29½, a son of Columbia Chief; grandam a pacing mare called Queen D., by Gaines' Denmark.—American Stock Farm.

Sonteg Mohawk Dead.

One night last week, at Palo Alto Stock Farm, that famous old gray mare, Sontag Mohawk, died full of years and honor. She had brought a foal by Monaco into the world, and when found was lying dead beside it. Sontag Mohawk was foaled in 1875, the property of Charles Stanford, Schenectady, New York, from whom she was purchased by the late Senator Stanford. She was sired by Mohawk Chief, son of Hambletonian 10. Her dam was Sontag Nellie, by Toronto Sontag. The dead mare, Sontag Mohawk, was tha dam of no less than eight standard performers, three of whom were in the exclusive 2:20 list, while two of the fifteen foals died very young. In 1879 sha produced hy Electioneer tha brown stallion Eros, 2:29½, sire of Dione, 2:09½; Wanda, 2:14¾, and fourteen others in the list. In 1880 she produced hy Genaral Benton the gray mare Sallia Benton (4), 2:17¾, tha world's record at the time for that age. Sallie Benton is the dam of Serpol, 2:15½; Starlight, 2:15¾, and Nordica (3), 2:19½. In 1881 she produced hy General Benton the bay colt Edos. He was gelded, and died in 1885 Sha produced in 1883, hy General Benton, a brown filly that died as a two-year-old. In 1884 she produced hy Piedmont, 2:17¼, tha great show horse of Palo Alto, the gray stallion Sport, 2:22¾, now dead. In 1885 she produced hy Electioneer 125, the gray mare Sonoma, 2:28, now a broodmare at Palo Alto. In 1886 she produced hy Electioneer 125, the gray mara Colma, 2:25½, sold in New York. In 1887 she produced by Electioneer 125, tha gray stallion Condoctor, 2:14¼, who was sold for $35,000 In 1888 sha produced hy Norval, 2:14¾, the brown stallion Baron Sontag, a fast, bot unfortunate horse. In 1890 she produced hy Wild Boy tha brown mare Serenata, 2:25. In 1891 she produced hy Lottery the bay filly Montag, sold from Palo Alto. In 1892 she produced hy Azmoor, 2:20½, the gray stallion Soqual, sold from Palo Alto. In 1893 she produced by Paola (Lona Pine), 2:18½, tha gray filly Parmita, sold to J. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston, the owner of Arion, the world's champion two-year-old.

Marion Mille' Value.

The probable earnings of Marion Mills, the best of all the guideless pacers, during har career as a pacing wonder have been discussed hy many since the death of the noted animal. Few, if any, hava any idea as to tha sums earned by the "Oshkosb wonder." During har career of two years she paced about 110 public exhibitions miles. For each of these exhibitions Mr. Athaarn received the sum of $150. Any person can multiply these figures together and they will ascertain that tha earnings of Marion Mills in two yaars were not far from $17,000. When the size of this sum is taken into consideration, it is of little wonder that a value of $20,000 was placad on her. She had sufficient engagements ahaad to increase her total earnings to $20,000 had she lived. Marion Mills, says Tha Horseman, was a pretty mara to look at and was always tastefully herihboned and bedecked, and always well done, too. She caught the feminine and the juvenile fancy to the extent of attracting to meetings thousands of admirers who would not otherwise have ever been persuaded to enter the gates of a racing ground. In this way she did much good to tha turf and though her intelligence was no greater than that of any other of a million horses, she held the record at her way of going and a champion always draws. Skillfully managed and pushed to the front, on every possible occasion, she had the best possible chance and she always did her part well. She was not a race mare, but she filled her unique place admirably, and her death has caused a great loss to the turf as well as to her owner.

JOHN NOLAN, the four-year-old galding that won the Charter Oak Stake on Tuesday, won in that race a special record. He is the fastest trotter graduating from the maiden classes in one season. Without a mark he started first at Denver in June last, and now holds a record of 2:09½. He displaces Page, who in one season came from the green division to a mark of 2:09¾, and then Page was a six-year-old when he was campaigned in 1896.

CLOSE OF THE STATE FAIR.

Big Crowde and Hot Weather the Featuree of the Laet Three Daye of the Meeting.

Large crowds were the rnle at both psrk and pavi lion on the last three days of the California State Fair of 1898 Thursday prohably the moat people were at the races, as it was Sacramento day and the hnsiness honses had declared a half holiday that everyhody might get a chance to eee the Californ a Futnrity, the richest stake of the meeting, and the Vinctor Staka decided. Tha Futnrity was valned at $4,500, of which $250 went to the sscond horse and $150 to the third. There were 170 entries in this event, hnt only six of that namher of two-year-olds came to the post.

Byroes & Co.'s Saintly, ridden hy John Webber, and Himera, on which Hennessy had the mount; Burns & Waterhonse's Bonibel, with Piggott np, and Panimint, piloted hy Snider; H. F. Cassidy's Almoner, with Bozeman in the saddle and I. P. Diggs' Olinthns, ridden hy Shields.

Tha Byrnes stahla was at all times the favorite at 4 to 5. The weight of coin, however, cansed Olinthns' price to he cut from 8 to 5 to even money. The Burns & Waterhonse pair receded from 5 to 2 to 5 to 1, while Almoner was hacked from 10 to 1 to 8 to 1.

The start was a splendid one. Olinthns went ont a little in the lead, hnt Shields took him hack to fonrth position ahont four lengths hehind Bonnihal, who assnmed command as eoon as they were all going. Entering the stretch, Bonnihel led hy two lengths, Almoner second, a half leogth in front of Olinthns, whose jockey seemed to he making a waiting race of it. There was a little humping hetween Olinthns and Almoner near the drawgate, and at tha end a driving finish hetween the three, Piggott putting np a splendid ride on Bonihel and just landing her hy a nose from Almoner, who was the same diatance in front of Olinthna. The last named wonld have won had he made his effort a littla sooner. Hia head was in front three feet heyond the wire. Those who saw tha Futnrity of 1898 will prohably alwaya refer to it as won hy Piggott.

The Vinctor Stake was won hy Scsrhorough in the slow time of 1:43 and did not cause mnch excitement.

On Friday the trotters and pacers drew a very large attendance. Tha most interesting race of the day was the free-for-all trot, in which Toggles was selected hy the talent to win. He rattled off the first heat in 2:10½ with Monterey only a neck hehind him, hnt as Toggles wes not at his hest form, the hig son of Sidney had no tronhle taking the next two heats and tha race. The time of the first heat is the track record for trottere, and the mila was even hetter than the figures make it appear, as tha track is donhtless a second or two slow. Monterey is one of the gamest, as well as prohably tha fastest trotter in California to-day. Ha shows wonderful hursts of speed whenever ha is steady.

The two-mila dash for trotters was won easily hy Nellie Bly, a daughter of Starhnnl and Sadie McGregor, in the elow tima of 4:47.

There were two rnnning races added to Friday's program, and in one, three of the horses got away on a false start and ran the full distance. The horse that remained at the post, Sport McAllister, then won the race without any tronhle.

Satnrday, the closing day, was vary warm and a hig crowd sweltered in the grand stand and also in tha betting ring. Tha racing was good, hnt not of a particnlarly high class, tha mile and a qnarter handicap heing ahont the heat. It was won hy Grady in 2:08¾. Piggott rode Grady in this race and was the only jockey that did not have to use the whip at the finish.

The Fair was very snccessfnl considering the condition of affairs in Californoia this year, and tha attendance hetter than the Directors expected. With the sdmission fee cnt down to 25 cents at the pavilion, the receipts were nearly np to last year. Owing to the fact that so few horses have heen in training in California thia year, tha class of racing at the Fair was not np to its nsnal high standard, hnt taken altogether the President, A. B. Spreckels, Secretary Edwin F. Smith and the entire Board of Directors, deserva great credit for the excellent manner in which everything was carried out and hronght to a very snccessfnl ending.

Arab Blood.

Twenty-five or thirty years ago Keene Richard of Kentucky imported to that State from Arahia a few stallions and mares of the choicest hlood and highest valoe that could possihly he ohtained in the Orient. To those who knew the Arahian steed only as depicted in song and story, it was thonght that tha introdnction of the Arahian horsa into Kentncky might prove a great hoon to breeders and of permanent valne to the horsa intereats of the Stata.

After a trial of so many years. "Iconoclast," a Kentnckian, and close observer of whatever affects the horse of tha "Blna Grass region," writes: "I hava noticed a statement to tha effact that tha third dam of the three-year-old Charley Herr, 2:15½, is hy Arabian Fysaul. If the statement he trne he is ahont the only thing of mnch account that I have ever heard of descended from any of Keene Richard's importation of Arah horses. The original horses, thoogh helieved to ha of tha hest hlood Arahia acquired and imported at great expense, wera the most completa failnres ever hronght to Kentncky. They could neither ron nor trot. A secondrate selling plater conld heat the heat of tnem ont of eight. When crossed with tha thoronghhreds, the horses resolting wera dead failnres, and it got to he so that a fourth or fifth cross to them was considered as a hlot on tha pedigrea of a thoronghhred. Tha Kentncky people who knew them wera cured of the Arah illnsion. They were good for nothing except saddla ponies, and as they had no saddla gaits, they were inferior to the native hred ponies for that. The thoronghhred is so immensely superior to tha Arahian that tha latter does not desarve mention on tha same day.

"Tha idea that tha thoronghhred, as wa know him, is dacended from the Arahian, is ona of tha pleasing myths of poetry and romance. Of tha two greatest progenitors of the thoronghhred, one, the 'Godolphin Arahian,' was a French horse of nnknown hlood. He worked to a cart on the streets of Paris. No man ever preteoded to know that he had a drop of Arahian blood in him. The 'Darley Arahian' was not an Arabian, either, and, so far as known had no Arah hlood. Of all the pitiful humhngs known to civilized man prohably tha most pitiful is the pretended descent of the thoronghbred from the Arah. My own impression is that if the third dam of Charley Herr was hy Arahian Fysaul, the fact has abont as little to do with his speed as if she were sired hy tha venerahle old Eohiaspos of hlessed memo.y."

Direct and Pointer.

James A. Murphy, the owner of Star Pointer, and James Butler, the owner of Direct, are talkiog ahoot hreeding a pacer that will heat the record of Star Pointer. The latter is the longest striding fast pacer in the world and Direct is the quickest gaited, with the possihle exception of John R. Gentry. Murphy and Butler fignred it ont at Hartford that if they could only raise a pacar having Direct's rapidity of action with Star Pointer's length of stride, it would heat two minutes away off, and the hig son of Brown Hal may he taken to Butler's farm next apring and hred to several dsnghters of Direct that ara there. Direct is both a trotter and a pacer, having mark a of 2:18½ at one gait and 2:05½ at the other, and he gets both trotters and pacers. Only the fillies that are pacers wonld he hred to Star Pointer. If the experiment is tried it will he watched with interest hy every hody in the horse world.

RACING IN ENGLAND.

A Correspondent Who Pictures the Conditions There as Anything but High Class.

We in America are accustomed to hearing a great deal said about the high-class racing in England, but if the special correspondent of the New York Sun is to be believed a condition of things exists there that would not be tolerated on any American track. The correspondent writes as follows:

The indignation long felt at the ruffianism permitted to flourish with impunity on English race courses seems at last to have come to a head. A morning paper opened the subject, and the response from public and press alike was immediate and unanimous. Anyone who is familar with English race courses, especially those near London, who has frequented the rings and enclosures, and has had eyes that see and ears that hear, will know what is complained of.

Many organized bands of swindlers go from meeting to meeting simply to thieve in one way or another, and are ready to use violence on the slightest provocation, or, indeed, without any provocation at all, for many of them do not wait for resistance. Many of these gangs start their day's work on board the train that takes them to the meeting. Cards are usually the chosen method, and the "three-card trick" is the favorite game. If the swindlers cannot get money out of their victims quietly in this way, they will often frighten it out of them by threats and violence. On the course itself different methods are pursued. A gang will either go about robbing with violence, or one will set up in the ring as a bogus bookmaker, or welcher, while his friends cover him, ready to lay out any unfortunate backer who should be so ill-advised as to create any disturbance.

If cases of this kind were few and far between, the impossibility of running a race meeting as decorously as a church bazaar might well be argued. But the fact is that these ruffians swarm on nearly every course. For this the Jockey Club and the police are blamed, the former because it does not insist upon proper measures being taken to stamp out the evil at every meeting, and the latter for looking on or even conniving at the game.

There is one point that should help to make it easier to effect some reform. These race course ruffians are not occasional malefactors. They form a regular professional class, and are well known to the police, the race course officials and such men as regularly frequent race meetings. It is among the vast majority, composed of the occasional visitors, that they find their victims. At every meeting a number of unfortunates are welched or knocked on the head and robbed.

At Alexandra Park, on August 13th, fourteen brutal assaults were committed on the course. One gentleman standing at a refreshment bar was hit on the back with a bludgeon, felled by a blow between the eyes, and then had his pockets rifled while he lay half stunned. This is a typical case, taken out of scores similar. No arrests were made. In the betting ring at the same meeting two men went to claim their winnings from a welcher. The first was promptly laid out by the sharper's gang, and the other preferred to pass on without asking for his due. This, too, is no isolated case; hundreds of the same sort could be told every season.

These welchers, as I have said, are perfectly well known, but no attempt seems to be made to keep them out of the betting ring and inclosures. At the last Goodwood meeting a notorious welcher was seen standing close to a substantial bookmaker, occasionally pocketing an investment for the latter and giving a bogus ticket in acknowledgement of the deposit. The bookmaker knew, but prefered to hold his peace. Why, the following extract from a bookmaker's letter to the press will explain:

"Some of your correspondents have not hesitated to accuse the bookmakers of being in league with these roughs, but my experience is that one and all of us would be only too glad to be rid of these obnoxious persons. I, personally, bet in the small or silver rings, and know most of these boys by sight, and should they have had a bad day—that is, the favorites go down—they resort to any means to 'get a bit.' There is not a week passes but what some of them come and demand money from me, which I am compelled to give to insure my safety in getting to and from the meetings. If I did not give, a crack on the head with a stick and 'the rule run over me' would be my reward, and I dare not say a word or give information, or my life would not be safe."

The demand now is that the Jockey Club shall use its power to make all managers of race meetings exclude these notorious swindlers from all inclosures and from the race course itself. At a recent meeting no fewer than twelve ex-convicts were counted in the 10 shilling ring, and a considerable number in Tattersalls. It seems quite clear that both the gatekeepers and police are to a great extent in the pay of these men. The gatekeepers now get only 4 shillings a day, whereas they used to get a pound. Consequently admission tickets are easily obtained on the basis of a share of the swindlers' profits. The Field, referring to the question, says that the state of affairs at the Brighton meetings is so abominable that it has discontinued sending a representative to report the racing, and adds that Goodwood is just as bad, quoting the case of an inoffensive visitor who was bludgeoned on the head at the very entrance to Tattersall's ring.

GRATTAN BOY, by Grattan, won a great seven-heat race at Readville, Massachusetts. Something like seventeen horses started, each horse a heat within himself, and three of the best ones were shut out in the first heat. Belle J. and Caracalla each won two heats, but the race went to Grattan Boy, who was never worse than second in any heat. This is indeed a great card for the Wilkes Boy family. The Wilkes-Mambrino Patchen cross is a winner, no matter where placed, for it wins not only in the show ring, but on the turf as well.

THE Humane Society, which is endeavoring to break up the barbarous practice of "docking" horses, should spread the tidings that the Princess of Wales frowns upon the inhuman fad. That ought to stop it.—Pittsburg Times.

The Plan Not Popular.

An old lawyer once said that he never knew whether he had made out a good case until his opponent had made his attack upon it. When Secretary Thorne promulgated his new plan by which the last horse was to be dropped from the race at the end of each heat, he thought, and many of his friends to whom he had unfolded his plan, thought it was just the thing to make contests in every heat. But when the new condition was printed and the horsemen got at it with their objections, it did not look as pretty as it promised to be. "Look here," said Jimmy Sullivan, "suppose I have gone out and won two heats, and then in the third heat make a mistake, or a break or two, but finish within fifty yards of the first horse and unfortunately am last. Now according to this plan of Thorne's I would be out of it and a horse that has not won a heat might get second money over my horse that had won two heats." "And then there's another objection to the plan," said C. E. Clark, Toggles, owner and trainer. If there are seven horses start in the first heat and the heats are split until five heats are trotted and three horses have winning heats to their credit, would it be fair to drop one of them out of it because he was so unfortunate to be third next time although he was only a head behind the leader?" Another driver suggested a case where but two horses were left in a race, one having two heats to his credit but had been second all other times, while the other has one heat and has been next to last in the others. The latter wins the following heat and first money though the beaten horse stands best in the summary of the race. And so it went on. There was objection after objection filed against the new plan and finally an old timer said: "Boys, let me make a suggestion: The National rules are good enough to have good racing under without all these extra conditions being added. I would like to see some enterprising association advertise their program with the simple qualification "National rules to govern." That is the way the big associations East do and that is the best plan that has yet been devised." The old timer was pretty near right.

Death of Lee Shaner.

Last Monday morning, September 19th, Lee Shaner, one of the best known horsemen on the Pacific Coast, died at Great Falls, Montana, much in the same manner as the veteran Ben Holly met his death at Butte some weeks ago. A dispatch from Great Falls states that Mr. Shaner had been ailing for some time, but was not alarmed until some days previous to his death, when his heart began troubling him. His physicians, whom he consulted, told him to avoid all excitement and advised him not to go to the race track on Saturday, but he had a horse entered, and concluded at the last minute that he would go. His horse, Granger, was successful in the last hurdle race, and landed the prize and the excitement was too much for Mr. Shaner, who collapsed at the track.

He was taken to town, physicians summoned and everything possible was done for him, but without avail. He leaves a wife at Bloomfield, Sonoma county, Cal. Lee Shaner was known on every Pacific Coast track, where for many years past he has handled both harness and running horses. He trained and drove Lot Slocum 2:17¼, Adonis 2:11½, Altao 2:09¾, Lady H. 2:15, Prince Almont, 2:13½, Chris Peterson, 2:13½, and other fast ones. Mr. Shaner was an upright and honorable gentlemen, of a quiet and unassuming nature. A few years ago he was quite prosperous, but during the past two seasons luck had been against him and he probably did not leave much of an estate, though we understand he left quite a neat sum in insurance on his life. His body will probably be shipped here for burial.

The Breed is Improving.

The relative rating of great speed sires is rapidly undergoing a rearrangement. Former great sires, in goodly number, are dropping from the tables of comparisons, and others, most generally younger ones, are taking their places and shining with additional brilliancy, says the Western Horseman. This all makes plain the fact that the trotting breed is not only continually and rapidly improving, but that perfection and ultimate accomplishments are not far in the future. It is often said that a stream never rises higher than its fountain head, but in trotting-horse breeding the fallacy of the axiom is apparent. Hambletonian 10 will doubtless ever be regarded as the fountain head of trotting speed (there have been other "fountain heads," but most of the streams are running dry), and yet the hooks are full of speed sires—young speed sires descending from Hambletonian—that greatly outrank him as speed sires, as speed sires are nowadays measured. In Hambletonian's time 2:30 was the unit of measure of trotting speed, and while it is yet the "official" unit, it is some twenty seconds too slow for the actual unit; yet distant descendants of Hambletonian stand comparison by the lower unit of 2:10. Distance sometimes lends enchantment to the view, and distance from the fountain head in trotting-horse breeding, as we are traversing the stream, certainly adds intensity to trotting instinct and trotting capacity.

Miss Russell Is Dead.

The great broodmare Miss Russell, by Pilot Jr., out of the thoroughbred mare Sallie Russell, by Boston, died last Monday at Woodburn Stock Farm, Versailles, Kentucky, where she was bred and owned. She was 33 years of age, and the dam of Maud S, 2:08¾, Nutwood, 2:18, the greatest living sire, Russia, 2:28, another great sire of speed, Cora Belmont, 2:25½, the great sires Mambrino Russell and Lord Russell, and her descendants in the 2:30 list outnumber those of any other great broodmare.

WOODSBED has finally dropped into the 2:10 list with a record of 2:09½.

The Same Old Story.

There is nothing so universal among horsemen as the idea that a fast record detracts from a horse's earning capacity, while the very reverse is true. Any horse with a fast record that can trot or pace up to it can earn more money and will sell for a higher price than a horse without a mark that is only thought to be able to trot or pace at a fast gait. The New York Sun relates the following:

Frank Shea wore the longest face of any man on the Hartford track last Monday, after winning the 2:15 race for pacers with Fanny Dillard.

"Look what you've done to me now," he said to Manager Fasig as he went to the office to collect his winnings. "If it hadn't been for you I wouldn't have brought the mare here at all."

"Why, what's the matter, Frank? Is your mare hurt?" asked Fasig in surprise.

"Hurt! I guess she is hurt. Look at that mark of 2:11¾ that's against her. And if I'd only stayed away she'd be in the 2:15 class yet."

"But you wouldn't have the money you have won here," rejoined Fasig. "You can't eat your cake and keep it too. Besides, your mare is just as good in the 2:12 class as in the 2:15 class or the 2:30 class for that matter. I'll bet a hat or $100 they go faster to-morrow in the 2:30 class than you had to go to-day. You are just as likely nowadays to run up against a 2:05 pacer in the 2:30 class as in the 2:10 class."

Fasig was right. Royal R. Sheldon, a green four-year-old, stepped out next day in the 2:30 class and defeated Lady of the Manor, the top-heavy favorite, in 2:08¾, 2:07¾ and 2:09. And the 2:12 race was won in 2:13, 2:14¼ and 2:16½.

THERE is no getting around the fact that at the present time the demand requires, in light harness horses, a little more size and finish than have characterized light harness horses in the past, and hence it is folly for breeders to overlook this fact. The clean profit in harness horse breeding seems clearly in producing light harness horses that will have size, finish and good action, for in that case if they lack in speed they will yet bring a handsome profit on the cost of production, and small horses, even if they possess extreme speed, are discriminated against. It is better, therefore, in every instance, to have size and finish.

DIRECTUM KELLY and Gayton are both at the home of their owner James Butler. The first named has had an attack of catarrhal fever, and Gayton had a leg cut. They may not appear again this season.

IF Marcus Daly keeps on breeding such good horses as John Nolan, Querist and others he should surely be contented, even if he does dispose of them while in the green.

IT sounds odd to read about Anaconda being distanced and Klamath outside of the money.

ALIX, 2·03¾, is now exhibited to the halter as the fastest mare in the world.

SYLVANWAY has a curb, but it does not seem to affect her going to the front.

Sulky Notes.

THE swift pecer Egozen, 2:06¼, sports a spike-tail and a set of hobbles.

SEARCHLIGHT'S winnings amount to nearly ten thousand dollars this year, so far.

F. W., 2:10, has gone a trial in 2:05 this yeer. He will smash the State record yet.

ANACONDA won three heats at Rigby Park, Maine, last week in 2:06¼, 2:06½ and 2:08.

THE fast pacer Doc. Sperry, 2:09, is said to be ringing under another name in the East.

LENNA N., 2:05¼, is Sidney's first performer below 2:10 and Monterey, 2:09¼, is his second.

INDIANA is doing his best to fulfill Sam Gamble prediction. He now has a record of 2:07¾.

THE price which E. H. Harriman paid for John R. Gentry 2:00½, is given out as $12,000.

THE 2:15 horse is considered fair now, but the fellow that cannot beit 2:30 is only fit for the butcher cart.

DIAWOOD 2:14½, the three-year-old son of Diablo is one of the few three olds that have beaten 2:15 this year.

THE Western Horsemen moves to make it unanimous and give the wooly West all the 1898 champion records.

NETTIE GEORGE, by Norfolk, grandam of Lenna N. 2:05¼, was a pretty fair race mare, and ran on California tracks twenty years ago.

HIAWATHA, Kas., has a novelty in the driver D. K. Babbitt. He is sixty-two years old and has but one arm, but he is driving races this season.

IF the rule against the hopples is not repealed there will be a lot of pacers for sale in the spring. Hoppled horses are not of as much value as roadsters.

BOREAL 2:15¾, by Bow Bells—Rosey Morn, by Alcantara, considered by many to be the best hred stallion living, worked a mile at Louisville recently in 2:12½.

BON BON, the dam of Bonsaline 2:1fi½, cost Santa Rosa Stock Farm $10,000. She is a full sister to Lockheart 2:08½, heing by Woodnut out of Rapidan, by Dictator.

WHO IS IT, the champion three-year-old trotting gelding, has been decidedly off since he got his record of 2:12 at Santa Rosa. He did not start at Sacramento during the meeting there,

THE National Trotting Association, Hartford, Conn., will be pleased to know the name and address of the present owner of the gray mara Ethel A. 2:10¼, (pacing) by Adrian Wilkes.

IT is the duty of every horse owner in the State to make an earnest effort to have the district fair appropriations restored next year. If every owner will make the effort the fairs will be held.

GUY WILKES has a new one in the 2:30 list in the black mare Dollade Wilkes, that won at Albany, N. Y., in Sept. 13th, trotting the third heat in 2:19¼. She is out of a mare by Director.

JOHN NOLAN, 2:09½, has won six of his ten races this year. In the other four he was three times second and once unplaced. Ha has won $11,475 to date and trotted seventeen heets in 2:15 or better.

JOHN A. MCKERRON, tha three-year-old son of Nutwood Wilkes, is getting back to form. He won a race at Etkhart, Indiana, week before last in straigbt heats, getting a record of 2:1fi¾ in the last heat.

AN item is going the rounds of the Eastern turf papers to the effect that Who Is It and Who Is She are full brother and sister. This is incorrect. They are both by Nutwood Wilkes, but by different dams.

THE 2:35 pace at the recent Bellevue, Ohio, meeting furnished quite a coincidence. There were eleven starters and those that took first, second, third, fourth and fifth positions at the close were all sired by Elyria.

THE dam of Carl Brown 2:11¼ laid down and died in New Jersey the other day, where she had been sent to be bred to Lynne Bel. Tha old mara was probably afraid her next foal would be called Herr Most or Coxey.

NEERNUT, 2:12½, the stallion that was taken from Southern California this year and has won some good races on the Eastern circuit, is the sire of Neeretta, the four-year-old filly that has a record of 2:1fi¾ at Santa Rosa.

LENNA N., 2:05¼, is very lame, but warms out of it in her races, though tha trouhla is getting worse and she probably will not he ahle to go on next year. A record of 2:03 is not beyond her limit were it not for her lame hip.

A. B. RODMAN, the well known horseman of Yolo county, this State, and owner of the stallion Gold Rose, left this week for Denmerk, Oregon, where he will remain for some time attending to some mining interests he has there.

DIRECTLY has finally taken a sure record of 2:07¼. As a three-year-old he won an exhibition heat in 2:07¼, which was rejected. Last week he won a race for the first time since his three-year-old form, and finished the first mile in 2:07¼.

BEAUTIFUL BELLS hes another son in the 2:30 list. Chas. Marvin drove Miller & Sibley's stallion Belsire a mile in 2,28½ at Lexington, Ky., last week in an effort to heat 2:30. This makes ten standard performers for the greatest of all broodmares.

JAMES GOLDEN, the Boston reinsman, owns Little Better, a two-year-old sister to Much Better 2:07¼. He purchased her at the Fasig sale of Oakwood Park two-year olds, at Cleveland last May. She promises to show as much speed as her older sister.

MANY Eastern breeders will hook their mares to Direct 2:05¼, next year. The California stallion Directum 2:05¼, on his individnality, breeding and performances ought to attract a better class and a larger number of mares than the little black rascal does.

EVERY trotting horse owner and trainer and every person inieresied in the hosiness, should insist that all meetings be conducted strictly according to the rules of one of the parent associations. Wild cat meetings never add anything to the value of horses, or aid in any manner in building up the business.

A LOT of aged horses beat the little three-year-old Sylvanway at Portland, Me., by taking turns about carrying her to the half. She won the first heat in 2:10¼, but as she went the first half better than 1:04, it used her up. Here was a case where her driver would have been justified in laying up a heat or two.

W. G. DURFEE made a good record at Sacramento with his string of trotters and pacers. He started nine times, won six first moneys, two seconds and one third, and was never outside the money. This is "Billy's" first year on the circuit as a professional driver, but he is a son of his father and a born horseman.

A DISPATCH, so far unconfirmed, states that arrangements have been comnleted whereby at the Illinois State feir, Wednesday, September 29th, John R. Gentry and Joe Patchen will pace for a purse of $3,000 The track at Springfield is a fast one and the tremendously fast race promised should attract a record breaking crowd.

DOLLY MARSHUTZ won the first money of a $1,000 purse at Hamline, Minnesota, September 7th. Three heats of the race were trotted in 2:19¼, which is the mara's record. Andy McDowell has won quite a sum with this half sister to Who Is It, and has maneged to keep her in tha 2:20 class. She should be a good winner in that class next year.

THE role against laying up heats has been almost completely ignored at the trotting meetings throughout the East this year, and still the season's racing has been very high class, largely patronized and given satisfaction. Perhaps the understanding among the spectators that there would be laying up of heats has prevented them from being deceived.

THE fastest half mile ever paced was covered by Star Pointer at Belmont track near Philadelphia last Sunday. He stepped the mile in 1:59¼, the first half being paced in 0:57½, the fastest ha f aver msde by a harness horse at either gait. The first quarter was made in 0:28½, the second in 0:28¾, the third which is up hill, in 0.31½, and the last quarter in 0:31½.

FOR a good many seasons hack the famous gelding, Lord Clinton, 2:03¾, by Deming Allen, hes held the pride of place as the fastest trotter, in direct mala line, in the Morgan family. Ha now yields to Askey, 2:08½, however, whose sire, McFarland, 2:29½, and the sire of whose dam, Strangemore, 2:29¾, are both direct descendants of Vermont Bleck Hawk.

JUST a baker's dozen four-year-old pecers have beaten 2:08; Online, 2:04; Searchlight, 2:04½; Ananias, 2:0fi¾; Be Sure, 2:0fi¾; W. Wood, 2:07; King of Diamonds, 2:07½; Palmyra Boy, 2:07½; Aileen, 2:07½; Joe Wheeler, 2:07½, Indiana, 2:07¾; Lady of the Manor, 2:07¾ and Royal R. Sheldon 2:07¾. Of these four are stallions, six are geldings and two are mares.

THE very best-behaved horses act badly at times, and accidents are bound to happen. Anaconda was not good at Hartford and after Keating had failed to get him closer than fifth in two heats against Bumps, Planet, Bogash and Chehalis, he got Andrews to drive him. The latter managed to bring him third in the next heat, but in the fourth he was distanced in 2:07.

THAT was a great race at Terre Haute on Wednesday of thie week, when the 2:05 pacers started. Bumpe won the first and second haats in 2:04¼ and 2:04¾. Little Directly then got a heat in 2:05¾, thus reducing his record nearly two eeconds. Anaconda then put the following three heats and the race to his credit in 2:05½, 2:07 and 2:08¾. There were five other etartere in the race.

IVOLO, 2:20½, by Antevolo, dam Salinas Belle, dam of Dictatress (3), 2:18¼, has been sold to Mr. C. Schleiffer, who will ehip her to his home in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Schleiffer is the sama geutleman who purchased a yearling colt by Dictatus, 2:19¼ out of Auntie Wilkes, 2:22½, a few months ago and sent him down to Uncle Sam's new possessione after naming him Molokai Boy.

KNIGHT, the sire of Anaconda, is not 15 hands high and is ten years old. He was bred hv G W. Sherwood of St. Paul, Minn., who sold him to C. X. Larrabee of Montana, who in turn sold him to J. B. Haggin, of Rancho del Paso for $5,000. Knight hae no foals except those sired since Mr. Haggin owned him. Mr. Larrabee has a full sister to Knight in Jennie Wilkes 2:12½, and has three foals from her.

THE dash system was a success at the California State Fair. The public seemed to like the dashes es well as the heat races, and there was no growling because the races were not longer drawn out. Tbere were six or seven thousand people present on the days devoted to harness events.

A RATHER unusual proceeding happened at Tilton, N. H. the other day. J, E. Kent, a driver, was ordered out of the sulky in the third heat, and Frank Sargent, one of tha judges, took the reins and won the heat end race. Kent was fined $100 and Sargent was awarded $50 out of the winnings.

ONE of the best trainers and drivers in the country while in conversation the other day said: There is no use talking nowadays about a horse winning that is short of work and has had only slow miles, fast quarters and halves before starting in a race. Horses must have fast miles and a good many of them now to win, he said. Why, just look at the summaries of races and it is very hard to find a slow mile in any of them. Horses go fast now, he said, right from the start in races and unless you can do the same thing you are behind the money.

ROYAL R. SHELDON, a stable companion of Chehalis, and by the way, he was also scuffing up dirt beck in the ruck in comparatively slow time at Readville, tipped everything bottom side up at the Connecticut town by defeating Lady of the Manor, 2:07¾, and Split Silk, 2:09½ in straight heats in 2:08¾, 2:07¾, 2:09, which puts him among the very fastest green pacers of the year. This fellow is a four-year-old black gelding by Constantine, 2:12½, out of Flaxy, by Bourbon Wilkes, 2nd dam by Clark Chief, and is owned by Geo. T. Sheldon of this city.

THE match race at Rigby Park, Portland, between Jo Patchen and Chehalis was something of a hippodrome. A running horse paced them in both heats. The first heat was won by Jo Patchen in a jog, 2:09 being the time. Before the second heat it was announced that Patchen would try to lower his record of 2:01¼. He was driven by his owner, C. W. Marks of Chicago, while Jere O'Neil of Lexington, Mass., was behind Chehalis. Before the first turn was rounded the Chicago stellion and the running mate were three lengths ahead of Chehalis. This gap was never closed, the Oregonian coming in fully that distance behind the winner. The first quarter was turned in 0:30¼, the half in 1:00, the three quarters in 1:30½, and the mile in 2:01¾.

EAGLE FLANAGAN is now the champion trotter of the year, having made a record of 2:07½ at Terra Haute in a race won by him in straight heats last Wednesday. He defeated Caid, Dione and Oaracella and four others. Although the press dispatches do not give the time of each heat, the statement is made that they were the fastest heats trotted this year. As Dione got third money she must have made a good showing in the race. Eagle Flannagan is given in the Year Book as by Eagle Bird, dem untraced. He has been campaigned for two years and at the close of last season had a record of 2:12¼. He has been a good winner this year and has reduced his record several times in races which he has won. Being an improving horse and one of the wear and tear sort, he may knock another second or two off his present mark before the season ends. Eagle Flannagan is a bay gelding.

JUST at the time when Directum Kelly was expected to still further lower his record and win some of the largest purses of the year, he has been kept out of them on account of sickness. Such things often heppen. Mr. Butler has the satisfaction of knowing that his great young horse was not laid up for a killing like many others that are out every year. The son of Direct was sent out for first money regardless of records in every race in which he started, and now has a four year-old record of 2:08¾ and a balance of $15,000 on the credit side of his books. His temporary illness has probably prevented his winning a few big stakes, but he has earned tha title of the greatest four-year-old of the year just the same. John Kelly who drove Directum to his record thinks that Directum Kelly is the fastest horse of the two, and he may yet prove to be, but a mile in 2:05½ is a very hard thing to negotiate, and it takes a champion to do it.

ONE of the amusing things of the season's trotting in California is the report that was sent all over tha country through the medinmship of the daily papers that Monterey, son of Sidney, had trotted to a record of 2:07½, at Glenbrook Park, Nevada county. The facts of the case are that on the date referred to Monterey, who had trotted to a record of 2:09¼ a few days previous, won a race in straight heats in 2:17½ and 2:15½. In transmitting the telegram to the daily papers hy the Associated Press, the figures were made to read 2:07½ for the first heat. The papers made no correction of the mistake, and it was not until the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN was issued the following Saturday that those who take an interest in records and were not at Glenbrook were made acquainted with the facts in the case. In the meantime telegrams came in from the East and queries from everywhere to know whether tha record was authentic, the track of regulation length, how fast the quarters were trotted and many other questione Monterey, 2:09½, may yet trot in 2:07½, barring accidents, but he has not accomplished the feat so far.

MR. M. MCMAHAN of this city, who for the past two years has owned the pacer Tom Ryder, 2:13½, and used him as a road horse, will leave this week for an extended trip to the Southern States and to Europe. Mr. McMahan a few days since sold Tom Ryder to Daniel Cutter of 102 Clay street, this city. Tha son of Alex Botton probably now, at the age of 13 years, has as much speed as he ever had in his life, and all who have seen him in his races know that quartere in lese than 30 seconds, and halves in a minute were made hy him more than once. As was stated in these columns some weeks ago, Mr. George Berry drove Tom Ryder a half mile over tha speed track in 1:02½, and this without the horse having had any training for two years except the driving given him on the road by Mr. McMahan. Ryder was never raced after Mr. McMahan purchased him, though many trainers solicited that privilege. He has never been beaten in a brush on the road, and holds his head as high and steps as proudly now as he did ten years ago. In his races he has paced 51 heats in 2:25 or better and won for his former owner and trainer, R. H. Newton, deceased, many thousand dollars in purses.

THE C. J. C. SACRAMENTO MEETING.

Good Racing Attracts But a Slim Attendance at the State Capital This Week.

Two weeks of good racing during the annual State Fair seem to have supplied the demand for the sport of kings among the people of Sacramento, as in spite of the attraction of splendid racing every day since the Californie Jockey Club began its meeting last Monday, there has been up to this writing (Thursday) but a small attendance. On the opening day there were not over two hundred paid admissions at the gate and Tuesday wes no better, though Wednesday saw a slight improvement and the management hopes that by the end of this week the meeting will be fairly well patronized.

The Board of Stewards at the meeting consists of Thos. H. Williams Jr., Col. D. M. Burns, Chas. F. Price and J. W. Brooks. In the judges' stand, Chas. F. Price, who is well known as Secretary of the Louisville Jockey Club, presides and is filling the position most acceptable and proving to be a thoroughly competent official. He is assisted by that well-known citizen of Sacramento, J. W. Wilson. The starting is done by J. B. Ferguson, the C. J. C.'s regularly employed starter. Seven hooks have been doing business so far, but the amount of money wagered has not been large, though the odds are much more liberal than they were during the Fair meeting. There are nearly two hundred thoroughbreds quartered at the track or in the immediate vicinity, and if the people could be induced to turn out in larger numbers the meeting would be a successful one in every particular.

Polo Club Races at Santa Monica.

The ninth annual meeting on September 9th, 10th and 12th was almost an unqualified success. The only mota on the sunbeam was tha discussion which arose after the wagon race. Even this, however, had a happy termination. This was a match race between Mr. M. Wolfskill, the well-known owner of Heliotrope, Edelweiss, Planty and other thoroughbred stock, and Mr. L. Machado, a member of an old family of that name, long settled in the neighborhood. The conditions were: Four horses to a farm wagon, "go as you please," one mile.

Tha failure to understand tha "go as you pleese" condition was what caused the discussion after the race.

It was a grand sight to see the heavy wagons, filled with passengers, dashing along with the noise of thunder, tha horses at full stratch. Mr. Wolfskill's wagon was rigged with a mast and a "fighting top." From this point of vantage ammunition in the shape of clods was hurled at the leaders.

Turning into the streight Mr. Wolfskill, who wes leeding on the outside, cut across, and many cleimed that a foul was committed at this point. Others, including Mr. Wolfskill and his passengers, declared thet ha was well clear, and others again contended thet "go as you plaasa" meent "do anything you like," which of course was a mistaken idea.

In a "go as you please" foot race it would scarcely be considered the thing to stop and kick the next man behind you in the stomach to prevent his winning.

As the leading wagon passed tha post, one of the wheelers fell and Mr. Machado, coming fast, only by greet dexterity, avoided a bad mix-up. There was no patrol judge out, and the judges were unable to thoroughly determina whether a foul had been committed or not. They therefore called the race and bets off, which was probably tha best decision, under the circumstances, that thay could have given.

The other races ware one-half mile, three-quarter mile, one mile, one-half mile and repeat and hurdle race (one mile over five) for horses; one-quartar mile match race between Etiwanda and Jim Cook (on which about $400 changed hands); one quarter mile and repeat, one-half mile and three-quarters mile maidens for ponies. There was also tilting at the ring and other minor events. These races, to which admission is free, are conducted by voluntary subscriptions. On this occasion $690 was given away to the fortunate winners.

It is always a society event as well, and the grand stand was lined with ladies. Tha attendance generally wes good, tha entries numerous and the race close and exciting. Altogether it proved to be the best meeting of tha series of nine.

The horses ran 14 lbs. above the scale, a very sensible arrangement as it did away with the useless and expensive light weight jockey. Why owners still persist at running at such light weights as at present is a mystery. A light weight ignorant boy—as most of them are—will break down a horse by his inability to hold his mount together much more readily than tha extra weight carried by a competent man who can ride well. This fad for light weights together with short distance racing—which ruins the horses tempers—is destroying our race horses by causing tha production of light, flashy weeds.

Petrarch, a fair kind of a horse, won three races; and Palomares, another horse of tha same calibre, was second on each occasion. Tha three-quarter mile was a very pretty race. Petrarch and Palomares raced out in front of tha bunch, head and head all the way, tha verdict being half a head in favor of tha former.

The best pony was Viola, by Violet. She won the quarter-mile and half-mile races. In the latter, Florence gave her a good argument; and the finish, conducted by gentlemen riders, Mr Palomares and Mr. Vans Agnew, was very close. The run—54 seconds—was good, as the track is four to five seconds slow to tha mile, and the weight carried was 160 pounds. The "turn-up" of the meeting was the ancient Wildidle gelding, Telephone. This horse is over seventeen years old, but was in the pink of condition. With Mr. Langworthy up he won the half-mile and repeat in straight heats, at long odds; and with Mr. Vans Agnew in the saddle in the hurdle race, he defeated the hast favorite of the meeting. Mr. E. Ryan, of Los Angeles, was Presiding Judge and was assisted by the Stewards Messrs. W. H. Young, W. S. Jardine and Wilbur Parker. Mr. Peter Weber, the well-known trainer, started to everybody's satisfaction. Several prominent citizens of Santa Monica did their best to help the meeting along. Amongst many others may be mentioned Messrs. T. H. Dudley, Geo Heim, J. Yoakum, The Arcadia Hotel, S. R. Chatfield. Mr. G. L. Wering acted as Secretary.

Kantaka as a Sire.

"Kentaka, the sire of the sensational filly Black Venus, has a peculiar history," said a well-posted turfman. "He is an imported horse, and I believe was originally brought over from England by the late Congressman William L. Scott, who won the Futurity with Chaos some years ago. The horse never got anything in the stud for eight or ten years; that is to say, he never sired a horse of any prominance. When Congressman Scott died his stud was disposed of and Kantaka eventually fell into the hands of Col. Pepper. The first of his get to attract attention was Meadowthorpe, who showed to be a good two-year-old, and also a creditable three-year-old. Brewer Schorr bought Meadowthorpe and Timemaker, another son of Kantaka, at the Eugene Leigh disposal sale in St. Louis, in the fall of 1896. These two horses were profitable investments for the Memphis turfman, having been the best breadwinners in his stable last year. Nearly every Kantaka trained this year has been returned a winner. Successful thoroughbred stallions don't last long at the top of the heap. It seems as though we have a new king every year. Of recent years St. Blaise, the sire of Potomac, was the first to sweep the boards. Then came Iroquois, the sire of Tammany and Helen Nichols. Domino's sire, Himyar, next reigned as king. Mighty Hanover, with Hamburg end Buck Massie, took a turn at the top of the heap last year, and now it looks as if Kantaka will have the colt for at least a year. Morello gave great promise of developing into a sire of crack race horses, but his untimely death cut short his career in the stud. Nearly all his get trained last year were returned winners."

Session of the Turf Congress.

The American Turf Congress met at Cincinnati in executive session on Wednesday, September 21st. The following officers were elected: President, S. R. Montgomery, Memphis; Vice-President, Robert Aull, St. Louis; Treasurer, O. L. Bradley, Lexington; Secretary, F. C. Hopper, Covington, Ky.; Auditing Committee—Schults, Reese and Fowler; Committee on Rules—Murphy, Tariton and Hopper. Radical action against foreign hooks was taken by incorporating prohibitory by-laws in the constitution. A new hook, with the constitution, by-laws, racing rules, regulations and betting rules will be issued. The congress adjourned to meet in Chicago next September.

QUINN'S OINTMENT

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Spliuts, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

Saddle Notes.

MARCUS DALY is reported as having said there would be no racing in Anaconda next year.

AT the coming Lexington meeting there will be no hooks, mutuel machines and auction pooling taking their place.

ACCORDING to measurements made at Sacramento the other day Shasta Water's stride when running is twenty-nine feet.

HOMESTAKE, 30 to 1 for place was the good thing on the opening day of the California Jockey Club meeting at Sacramento.

JOHN CONDEN, manager of the Harlem race track, who has long been suffering with impaired eye-sight, has gone entirely blind.

R. J. HAVEY's work at Sacramento, where he started the runners during the State Fair, was the best that has been seen on this Coast for a long time.

COL. JACK CHINN is doing the starting at the meeting which opened at Lexington, Ky, last Monday. The meeting will continue until the opening at New Orleans.

A FEW days ago in Kansas City, Judge Henry of the Circuit Court, in a habeus corpus case, decided that betting on races is not gambling, in the meaning of the law.

SEVERAL of Marcus Daly's horses will be seen on the California tracks this winter. Scottish Chieftain, Makallah and other good ones will be ready to start the first week of the opening.

J. S. CAMPBELL has leased H. L. Frank's string of runners for one year, and will take them to Chicago. He has added two colts from Ryan Bros. stable. Jockey Duffy will accompany him.

GAME old Gilead will not stand training. He was entered for some of the State Fair races, but it was soon found that his legs were so bad that it was impossible to get him in shape to race again.

J. K. Hughes, of Texas, is one of the few horsemen who made money at the Denver meeting. He went to Montana without a stable and went away with a good string, all paid for, and many winnings besides.

CANDELARIA is winning some good races at Chicago since he changed hands. He won at a mile and a sixteenth on the 14th inst. and at the good odds of eight to one, beating Plantain, David Tenny and five others.

MIKE KELLY will train a string of racers for Burns & Waterhouse. He has already entered upon his duties and is managing the horses belonging to the B. & W. stables now running at the Sacramento meeting.

THE runners are unable to attract the people at Sacramento after two weeks of State Fair racing. Three or four hundred are all that have paid admission to the gate daily since the running meeting opened.

JIMMY MICHAEL, the bicyclist, has forsaken the wheel and will go to New Orleans and try to earn fame as a jockey. He proposes to accept any mounts offered until he has demonstrated his ability to pilot race horses.

MR. RICARD CROKER's four-year-old bay filly Georgiana, by Minting, out of Democracy, won the Leamington Handicap in England, September 12th. The distance is one mile and the race worth about $750 to the winner.

AT Hawthorne J. Riell is henceforth restricted to two mounts on any given day, E. Wishard to be the judge as to what horses he shall ride. The crack feather in no event will be allowed to ride in any race wherein his brother has a mount.

AT the Brighton Beach track, September 7th, while at exercise, Pink Chamhray, H. Harris' three-year-old filly, by Whistle Jacket—Wamsutta, ran away, dislodged her exercise boy, named Jackson, dashed into the fence and broke her right shoulder. She was destroyed.

MR. SYDNEY PAGET, in behalf of W. C. Whitney, is reported to have offered $14,000 for Black Venus after her fine performance in winning the Great Eastern Handicap, an offer that was refused. The filly's defeat Thursday has probably reduced her value a few thousands.

THE friends of Charley McCafferty will be pained to learn of the death of his wife, which occurred at the British American Hotel, Windsor, Saturday morning, September 10th. Mr. McCafferty took the remains to Columbus, S. C. for interment, where the parents of the deceased reside.

MR. FITCH declares he never saw anything like the closing day's betting at Anaconda. More than $80,000 changed hands and it was only the fall of the flag on a race that put a limit to the betting. Betting continued on every race until flag fall and Mr. Fitch says a lot of money was shut out.

THE creek lightweight, Maher, has signed to ride for W. H. Clark in 1899 and 1900 for a reported salary of $10,000 per annum. The rise of this boy has been singularly rapid, but his prominence seems to be the deserved result of genuine and well sustained skill in the saddle. Of his employer, Mr. Clark, an exchange says: "This gentleman promises to be a great acquisition to the turf. In addition to owning a big string of horses, he has bought land somewhere in the neighborhood of Yonkers, on which a splendidly equipped racetrack will be built. And it is understood that several very influential men are interested with Mr. Clark.

BY way of opening its fall meeting at Hawthorne, October 3d, the Chicago Racing Association will offer a $30,000 purse for two-year-olds at six furlongs, to be known as the stallion stakes. It will be the richest Western stake of the year.

THIS office had a pleasant call last Saturday from Mr. Chas. F. Price, Secretary of the Louisville Jockey Club, who will spend the winter in California. He is at present acting as presiding judge at Sacramento, and will be Chairman of the Board of Stewards of the C. J. C. during the meeting at Oakland.

THE late Jockey Barrett was the only support of his mother, and his death has left her in destitute circumstances. A fund for her benefit has been started, and the Coney Island Jockey Club has subscribed $250 F. O. Hanlon, Assistant Secretary of the Jockey Club, 173 Fifth avenue, New York, is treasurer of the fund and will receive contributions.

BARNEY SCHREIBER beat all competitors to the name Dewey, just plain Dewey, for a youngster that he hopes will sweep the boards clean in the stakes of 1900. The equine namesake of the hero of Manila is a slashing bay colt by the Australian sire, Foul Shot, and his dam the broodmare, America, a pedigree that makes the name neatly appropriate.

THE Junior Champion Stakes, three-quarters of a mile, for two-year-olds, and worth $15,000, was won by Armament, son of Tremont, at Gravesend, September 13th. Rhinelander, ridden by Clawson, was second. Jean Beraud was anchored with the weight of 125 pounds and a delay of an hour and a half at the post. W. Overton was left at the post.

PRESIDENT THOS. H. WILLIAMS believes there will be more eastern horses out here this winter than ever before The Eastern owners who have already signified their intention of coming over the divide to get some of the coast money is very large, and there are more applications for stall room at Oakland and Ingleside than there were last year at this time.

While Al. Stoffle was exercising a filly owned by William Murry at Agricultural Park, Sacramento, Monday morning, the mare bolted through a gate that stood open. She collided heavily with one of the posts, and Stoffle was shot off her back and she fell upon him. It was thought the boy's injuries were not serious, but the filly suffered severely, cutting a big gash in her shoulder.

JAMES MCCORMICK will sever his connection with Burns & Waterhouse, November 1st. He has purchased from May & Son the two-year-old filly Jinks, by Albert—Hoodoo, paying for her $5,000. Jinks, who has a number of races to her credit, is among the best two-year-olds in the West. McCormick will take a string to New Orleans, and Jinks will be entered in the stakes down there.

HIS duties in connection with the big St. Louis Fair prevented Secretary Joe Murphy from accepting a pressing invitation to fill the important post of presiding judge at the Sacramento, Cal., meeting. He will probably be able to come to the Coast, however, in time to preside at the Los Angeles meeting and from there will come here to act as judge at the winter meetings at the Oakland track.

THE result of the bidding for the handsome set of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide, contributed by Messrs. Goodwin Bros. to the Sass Memorial Fund, was in favor of J. E. Madden, who secured it for $201, the highest bid. J. H. McCormick sent a check for $50, with instructions that if it did not secure the Guide it was to be turned over to the Sass Fund anyway, so that $250 was actually realized from sale of the Guide.

JOCKEY THORPE had his first mount since returning from the East at Sacramento on Tuesday. He was up on Gold Fin in the first race and won. Thorpe has signed with Burns & Waterhouse for another year, but says it will be his last season in the saddle, as he intends going into business of some kind with the funds he has accumulated. Thorpe is one of the best jockeys riding in this country, and his retirement will be a loss to the turf.

THE best horses that raced in Montana are sized up as follows by the Anaconda Standard: Three-eighths sprinter, Dutch; four furlongs, Miss Rowena and Valencienne; best two-year-old colt, Larva; best two year-old filly, Maud Ferguson; best three-year olds, Torsido and Scotish Chieftain; best five and one-half furlongs, R. Q. Ban; best six or seven furlongs, Pat Morrisey; Charlotte M. and Lucky Star were both good at a mile. Other consistent performers were Etta H. and Peixotto.

DELL J. JORDAN, one of the best known horsemen in the west, died at Butte Montana last Saturday from the effects of a wound received September 5th. Jordan was in Butte after the Anaconda races and intended leaving in a few days for St. Louis where he had been offered a lucrative position as trainer. He went to a road house near Butte, where he became involved in a dispute with a woman barkeeper who shot him. One shot entered his groin, and blood poisoning set in and death resulted.

THOSE who have yearlings with any pretentions to class should not overlook the fact that the Kentucky Derby, Clark Stakes and Kentucky Oaks, for foals of 1897 (now yearlings) close on October 15th next. The nomination fee is only $5, and there is no further payment until next May, by which time the entry will have shown whether he belongs in stake class or not. These stakes are guaranteed, respectively $6,000, $4,000 and $3 000, and if a yearling is worth training it is worth taking a $5 chance at such big odds.

A BRILLIANT genius in New York conceived the idea of putting the starting gate behind the horses and compelling them to all back up to it and stand there until the word is given. The idea probably never occurred to this inventor that if the horses could be compelled to stand with the gate behind them, they could certainly do so well without any gate at all. There is nothing the matter with the original starting gate and but little with the horses. It is the instructions given the boys and their efforts to get the best of the start that causes the trouble.

THE Stallion Stake at Hawthorne, Ill., has been revived, and will be run during the meeting which begins on October 3d. Entries for the stake closed last January, one year ago, and it is estimated that the event will be worth at least $30,000 to the winner, and by placing the date late in the fall the crack two-year-olds East and West will have a chance to compete.

IF you haven't been "Among the Barrels" at 863 Market street, drop in there some day. This is certainly the most unique and handsomely fitted up place in the city, and its novelty is something that will surprise you. None but the very best liquors are kept on tap, and as you measure your own wants, you can't help but satisfy yourself. But step in and try it. *

THREE broodmares were shipped recently from Lexington to New York, whence they go to England. One of these mares, Ida Walton, was purchased from Mr. S. C Lyna and the other two from Colonel Milton Young. They are as follows: Ida Walton (dam of Hypatis), bay mare, foaled in 1886, by Longfellow—Bonnie Kate, by Knight of St. George. Confidence, brown mare, foaled in 1890, by Longfellow—Latonia, by Billet. Ella Pinkerton (dam of Overella, Charley King, etc.), brown mare, foaled 1886, by Longfellow—Semitone, by Buckden. These mares were purchased through Francis Ware, of New York, for English breeders. They were all bred to Hanover.—The Thoroughbred Record.

TOD SLOAN sailed for England last week, and before going said to a reporter: "I am going to England to ride simply because I can do better there than I can here. I wished to ride there all this season, but contracts I had made kept me here. I have just succeeded in obtaining my release from the last stable I was under contract with, and, being free, am going to do what I wanted to do early in the spring. Business interests, as well as a feeling of personal obligation to Lord William Beresford, have induced me to keep an agreement I made more than a year ago to return to England, and I have not the slightest fear that I will be less successful this fall than I was last season. I expect to remain abroad for the winter. My plans for next season will shape themselves as things happen, but whether I ride in England or America will depend upon which offers the most advantages.

THE mystery of Ikey Jake, the horse that has been running up at Eureka and winning over all the local sprinters, has been cleared up. He is Madrone, son of imported Friar Tuck and a mare by Osceola. It is due to Mr. B. Elliott, the owner, to say that he has fulfilled his promise to divulge the real name of the horse as soon as it was revealed to him. The horse was purchased from J. J. Hughes Jr., of Middleton, Lake county. It was sold to Mr. Elliott for a buggy horse, to match one he already owned. Mr. Hughes, in a letter to Mr. Elliott, acknowledges that he hid the fact that Ikey Jake was a galloper and had started in several races. He says he did so because he feared it would spoil the sale of the animal, which was a bad actor at the post. He tells in this letter that the real name of the animal is Madrone, and that he won a five-eighths dash at Sacramento on May 30, 1897, which was the only race he won that year, though he started ten times.

A NEW YORK turf writer penned the following on September 12th: "In the East starting gates have proved a failure, and if a vote were taken among owners and trainers, not to mention the plunging element of the turf, they would never be seen here again. The old method with the flag is, after all, the only satisfactory one, and there seems every probability that this will be generally adopted in the future." The next day at Gravesend, in an effort to get along without the gate, Starter Fitzgerald kept the starters in the second race one full hour at the post, and then in the very next race the Junior Champion States, the field of two-year-olds was kept one hour and a half at the post before getting the word. The next day he went to the Stewards and asked that his resignation be accepted, but they refused and told him he could use the gate if he wished. The gate has come to stay in this country and when it is handled properly is the only way of starting horses that is absolutely fair to all.

THE famous Neponset Stud of Readville, Mass., the property of the estate of the late William H. Forbes, Esq., of Boston, is to be dispersed at public auction at Morris Park on Monday, Oct. 17, under the management of the Easton Company. As this sale will include the great racehorse and sire Meddler, probably the best and highest bred horse ever imported from England, and all the select imported and native mares now at Neponset, it will prove one of the most important events of its kind during the past ten years. Meddler swept everything before him as a two-year-old in England, as did his renowned sire, St. Gatien, who was also unbeatable as a three-year-old, and performed the remarkable feat of winning the Jockey Club Cup three years in succession. Like his son, Meddler, he was sold to go abroad for stud purposes for $70,000. Meddler himself cost Mr. Forbes $75 000 at auction as a three-year-old, and being by St. Gatien (Derby, etc.), out of Busybody (Oaks, etc.), he had every credential to become the great sire which he last year proved himself to be, his great success being the more remarkable when it is considered that his opportunities were exceedingly limited in his Massachusetts home.

M. F. DWYER's son, Charles, went to England with Tod Sloan. Commenting on this, the New York Sun says: "Young Dwyer will act in a sort of advisory capacity to Sloan as Ed Gaines did during Sloan's previous foreign expedition. The fortunes of the Dwyer family are not what they formerly were, and young Dwyer hopes to win back the money that his father lost on the British courses. The family is not in any danger in a financial sense, however. When Mike Dwyer had plenty of money he put aside $400 000. To Chas. Dwyer was allotted $100,000, and another $100,000 went to Dwyer's daughter and the rest was given to Mrs. Dwyer. But the sum was placed in trust, and, therefore, the principal cannot be touched as yet. Charles Dwyer will not get his patrimony until his twenty-fourth birthday has been reached, so that he has still some time to wait. Young Dwyer is not only an expert handicapper, but a shrewd judge of horseflesh as well. He is as nervy a bettor as his father. Sloan will take Dwyer's advice about accepting mounts. The outcome of the Sloan-Dwyer combination will be interesting, as it is certain that they will encounter many obstacles at first, notwithstanding Sloan's reputation.

THE OPINION of nine out of ten stock breeders in California is, that the most important question confronting them at the present time is that of the life or death of the district fairs. There has been an astonishing unanimity of expression on the subject, and no question was ever before any class of people on which less diversity of opinion was held in regard to it. "The district fairs are an absolute necessity to the continued welfare of the stock-breeding interests of the State" is the opinion of every breeder and owner in California. Following this assertion the query naturally arises: How are the breeders and owners to accomplish the restoration of those fairs? It is clearly evident to those who have looked over the political situation that there is but one course to pursue to bring about such a result, and that is to support the candidate for Governor who has clearly and unmistakably pledged himself to favor such restoration. Every person interested in the district fairs knows that Governor Budd twice vetoed all appropriations for the support of these fairs. He not only struck out the amounts which the Legislature had almost unanimously appropriated for their maintenance, but he did it in the face of the fact that he had promised to allow the appropriation to stand. Setting up the plea that there would not be sufficient funds in the Treasury to pay the necessary expenses of running the State government unless a large number of the appropriations were cut out, Governor Budd killed the district fairs, but signed bills in large number creating useless and expensive commissions, which, however, were made up of high-salaried offices to be filled by his appointment. After all this plea of poverty, that could only be met by exercise of the most rigid economy, such as destroying the time-honored annual agricultural exhibits in the various districts, he is now telling the people that he has succeeded in piling up a million dollars surplus in the State Treasury and that the question of what to do with it is bothering the State's officials. The party to which Mr. Budd belongs in convention assembled has endorsed his administration, and its candidate for Governor has done the same thing, as much as to say if he is elected he will follow Mr. Budd's example and veto every appropriation for the support of the district agricultural exhibits, no matter how much money is piled up in the Treasury. Mr. Gage, on the other hand, stands squarely on a plank which says that these fairs must be fostered and sustained, consequently we know that he will sign the bills appropriating money for their aid. These being the facts, every breeder of live stock and agriculturist in California will see at once that his duty lies in supporting the man for the office of Governor who is pledged to uphold these interests. There is no politics in it—just plain every-day business acumen.

HOT BLOOD is causing trouble again. The Trotter and Pacer of New York, and the veteran compiler of the Trotting Register, John H. Wallace, attempt in the last issue of that paper to throw discredit on the information furnished by Chas. Northup, of Petaluma, as to the breeding of Lenna N., 2:05¼. Mr. Northup formerly owned and raced the mare and named her for his little daughter, Lenna, and knowing this the Breeder and Sportsman wrote to him to ascertain if he knew anything about the mare's breeding. We received a very courteous reply, the gist of which was that he purchased the mare from parties who bought her at a sale of stock belonging to Josiah H. White, of Lakeville, Sonoma county, and that her pedigree would be found in the catalogue of that sale. Mr. Northup is a highly respected citizen and business man of Petaluma, and Mr. White, now deceased, but living at the time of this sale, was one of the best-known and leading citizens of this State. We hunted up the catalogue of the sale, and found the dam of Lenna N. designated as Miss Helen, by Gen. Benton, from Nattia George, by Norfolk, etc. Miss Helen and four of her produce were named in the catalogue, the sale was widely advertised, and took place here in San Francisco under the management of Killip & Co., the oldest firm on the Coast, and whose reputation is of the very highest. The Breeder and Sportsman called the attention of Messrs. McDowell & Wise, the present owners of the mare, to these facts and suggested that as the proof was probably easily obtainable they should have her registered. Now come The Trotter and Pacer and Mr. Wallace and attempt to discredit Mr. Northup, Mr. White and the breeding of Miss Helen. It is more than likely that the cause of their doubts is the thoroughbred blood in the pedigree. If the old mare, Nettie George, well known as a race mare in this State, had been given in Mr. White's catalogue as by a Clydesdale stallion instead of by the old champion, Norfolk, Mr. Wallace and our esteemed cold-blooded contemporary would probably have had no "suspicions," and would not have jumped on Lenna N.'s pedigree and charged that it was manufactured. Neither the paper nor Mr. Wallace have any right to charge the late Josiah White with manufacturing a pedigree in this or any other instance. He, like many other farmers and stock breeders, did not register his horses, and up to this data no one has probably tried to register Lenna N. Should her owners do so, however, and supply the proofs necessary to establish the fact that her second dam was by the thoroughbred horse Norfolk, the fact should be kept from the editor of the New York paper and his correspondent for fear they may die of broken hearts or accidentally drown in their own tears.

WILLIAM CORBITT, proprietor of the San Mateo Stock Farm, died at his home Wednesday, September 21st, at the age of 73 years. His death was not unexpected. For several months he had been in poor health. Mr. Corbitt was one of the most prominent breeders of trotting horses in America, and from the San Mateo Stock Farm have gone the champion money winners on the Eastern circuits during more than one year. At his beautiful farm, consisting of 400 acres of the choicest land in San Mateo county, he placed the stallions Arthurton and Irvington, brothers, and sons of Hambletonian 10, and the Kentucky-bred horse Le Grande, son of Almont. He afterwards purchased the great Guy Wilkes, and the results obtained are known to every horseman in the United States. Failing health and business reverses outside the horse breeding industry induced Mr. Corbitt to retire, and this spring he disposed of the last of his horses at auction. Guy Wilkes, Sable Wilkes and other stallions had been sold previously. Mr. Corbitt was a native of Scotland and was a man of great force of character. In his lifetime he handled immense sums of money and was engaged in many large enterprises. The last year of his life has been anything but a happy one for him, as he saw the dispersal of his great stud of trotting stock, which was his especial pride. He has left his impress on the State of California, and in the history of those who have done much to build up the interests of this State, his name will always be prominent. Mr. Corbitt leaves three daughters, viz., Mrs. Dr. Macmonagle, Mrs. F. S. Moody and Mrs. Mary Best, all of this State.

Upon the best of authority it is stated that Riley Grannan has lost everything and "is worse than broke." The same party is willing to swear that once the plunger had a quarter million of dollars.

Rilma, record reduced from 2:10 to 2:07½, is the only one of last year's 2:10 trotters that has taken a new mark this season.

KILLIP & CO., the old reliable live stock auctioneers announce in the Breeder and Sportsman to-day two great sales of thoroughbred yearlings. The first will be from the Napa Stock Farm of A. B. Spreckels. This will be held about November 10th. Following this sale at a later date will be a consignment of thoroughbreds from the Palo Alto Stock Farm, and there will be others still to follow from the leading breeding farms of the State. We have not space this week to make special mention of any of the choice animals that will be offered at these sales, but our readers know that they are of the very choicest breeding and those who have seen the youngsters say grander individuals have never been seen on any of the breeding farms of the State. Messrs. Killip & Co. are so well known to the people of California as a firm whose dealings are strictly business and thorough in every particular that they need no encomiums at our hands. Their sales have been uniformly successful and the fact that their patrons are all the leading breeders of California is proof of their standing in the community.

Rural Life in California.

A vast improvement is seen in the way the harvesting of crops is maneged in this State in late years. A short time ago, such crops as grapes, hops, etc., were harvested almost entirely by Chinese, Japanese and Indians. In the hop fields of Sonoma, Alameda and other counties these crops are gradually being gathered by white help, and many men, women and children of education and refinement now think it the proper thing to spend a few weeks' time in the orchards and vineyards during the harvest season, and by their labor earn wages for their work in picking and packing the products of the tree and vine. This is as it should be. All labor is honorable, and there is no hardship or no disgrace in the members of any family going into the fields and earning money by labor. In Sonoma county in the vicinity of Santa Rosa, where grapes, prunes and hops are the principal products, they are now gathered almost entirely by white labor. The growers find that white help is superior in every way to that of the Japanese or the Chinese, and that the fruit is not only picked more carefully, and packed more neatly, but it is done more expeditiously and more satisfaction results all around. The time will come when all the fruit products of the State will be cultivated and gathered by white help. The Mongolians have been hired heretofore because it has been impossible to induce young people, and men and women, to go to the orchards and vineyards for a few weeks in the summer and fall. Now that these people have found the work profitable and pleasant, they are willing and eager to obtain it, and the supply of this sort of labor will soon be equal to the demand. This willingness among the town residents to go to the rural districts during the summer and combine profitable employment with pleasant recreation, is solving the labor question with the fruit men, and aiding in advancing California to the position she should soon occupy—the fruit-supplying state of the nation.

Nevada State Fair.

Reno (Nev.), September 19.—The Nevada State Fair opened this morning with a good attendance. The stables are full of district and Pacific Coast horses, and there is a fine display of blooded cattle and sheep. The meeting promises to be a successful one. The speed program only called for two races to-day. The summaries:

First race, five furlongs, maidens—Mafada 109 (Lopez), won; Gossip 103 (Hohart), second; Archie A. 109 (Mrs. Emma Archer), third. Time, 1:04½. Baleric (109), Kitty Blake (103) and Silvermaid (109) also ran.

Second race, six furlongs—Fannie E. 119 (Texas), won; Sport McAllistar 122 (Merritt), second; Silver State 119 (Coates), third. Time, 1:16½. Lost Girl (119) and Durango (119) also ran.

Mrs. Archer, the lady jockey in the first race, has ridden in four races and lost but one.

September 20.—To-day was Wadsworth Day at the State Fair. The racing program was a slight improvement on yesterday, but only embraced three races. The attendance was good. The summaries:

First race, half mile and repeat, running—Hayfada won in straight heats, Regal second, Lucky Dan third. Time, 0:50 and 0:50½.

Second race, one mile, selling—Silver State won, Lost Girl second, Harry Thoburn third. Time, 1:43½.

Third race, six furlongs—Nonchalance won, Sport McAllister second, Christine third. Time, 1:16½.

September 21.—To-day was Comstock Day at the State Fair. Weather fine; track fast; attendance good.

First race, trotting, free-for-all, mile and repeat—Pao won, Lottie G. second, Memie F. third. Time, 2:26, both heats.

Second race, hurdle, free-for-all, one and one-quarter miles—Diehoteo won, Centenella second, Baleric third. Time, 2:24.

Six-furlong purse—Fannie E. won, Mafada second, Gossip third. Time, 1:17¾.

At Oaklawn Farm, Wayne, Ill., there is a French Coach brood mare that when a yearling had her leg broken. Mr. Dunham was very anxious to preserve the strain of blood to which the mare belonged, so had her leg set, and now as a four-year-old she manages to hold her own. The only outward evidence of the accident is that the mare walks with a slight halt and not being able to defend herself so actively against the assaults of the flies carries rather less flesh in midsummer than the other matrons in the band.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Pinmas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Alpine—Deer. Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Fresno—Market hunting and shipping game out of the county prohibited
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Kern—Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Diego—Shipping quail out of the county prohibited.
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).

Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

The Greenbrae Outing.

The annoal live-bird shoot and picnic of the Lincoln Gun Club last Sunday at Greenbree was celebrated with a large gathering of sportsmen in attendance. Many of the club members and their friends were accompanied by their wives, sweethearts and sisters, which social coloring added decidedly to the many pleasent feetures of the dey. The menegement of the affair was satisfactory to all concerned, among other things, the club provided a tasteful lunch for the members and guests which met with universel approval and patronage.

The first event of the day, a race at twelve birds, with twenty-nine men up, was en exhibition of some high-class shooting that was nearly continuous throughout the day. Seven men in this match killed straight, dividing first money; they were Otto Feudner, W. J. Golcher, W. E. Murdock, J. Sweeney, N. H. Neustadter, C. A Height end A. G. Flickinger. Edg. Forster also killed streight, but was not in the pool. The initial eppearance of Flickinger at the live-bird traps in this race was a very creditable performence. Second money was won by Neuman, who had the hard luck to lose his first bird dead out of hounds. Five men were in the ten hole, two of them, "Slada" and Shultz dividing third money. The scores in detail ara as follows:

* Dead out of bounds.

The second metch of the day et six birds shows a clever exhibition of one barrel shooting by the three high men, W. J. Golcher, Sol Sharp and Edg. Forster, they making tha only clean scores. The deteiled scores are es follows:

Golcher, W. J	111111—6	Murdock	121011—5
Forster, Edg	111111—6	Donnelly	102101—4
Sharp	111111—6	Sweeney	111010—4
Javette	110112—5	Fisher	111000—3
Nauman	211011—5	Lewis	002002—2
Franzen	201111—5	Micha-lseo	101000—2
Ostrander	111011—5	Leahy	000010—1
Kerrison	101121—5	Thomas	0*0001—1
Flickinger	21*111—5

In the third rece, at six birds, Naoman end Javette mede the only straight scores. The scores in detail were es follows:

Javette	211122—6	Leahey	111001—4
Nauman	211121—6	Banks	*12201—4
Sweeney	212220—5	Calvin	010121—4
Flickinger	121110—5	Ostrander	10*121—4
Hodapp	011211—5	Mudd	211001—4
Feudner	102212—5	Lewis	2020120—3
Franzen	100212—4	Thomas	102000—2
Sharp	11*011—4

*Dead out of bounds.

A freeze-out race followed next, Otto Feudner staying with the game ontil nine birds were scored to his credit, Sweeney being the last man to drop oot, which he did on his ninth bird. The high man in the event won the "Schmiess Bonss" medel. This decoration is a very artistic production of the combined genius of Forstar and Price. Feodner and Sweeney being high men, on eight pigeons each, divided the pool money and then continued shooting for the trophy. Tha scores were:

Sweeney	111111120	Forster, Edg	11120
Franzen	21112120	Nenstadter	110
Sharp	12111110	Lewis	10

The last metch of the day, at six birds, shows four men with cleen scores, Hodapp of Mertinez, coming to the front with Nauman, Feudner and Sweeney. The scores were as follows:

Nauman	111112— 6	Fraozen	11112*— 5
Feudner	111222— 6	Swine	021111— 5
Sweeney	111111— 6	Hodapp	110111— 5
Hodapp	111111— 6	Nauman	110111— 5
Price	111012— 5

* Dead out of bounds.

Geo. Frenzen was the winnsr of the "hoohy" prize, $5.00, this amount was donated to the club to he awarded to the club member shooting in all the pools end winning least morsy. Ths hard luck Franzen had in the first race, losing three birds out of hounds, had e more satisfactory result than was at first anticipated.

A summary of shooting during the day shows thet Feudner killed 32 birds out of 33 shot et; Sweeney, 35 out of 39; Neuman, 34 out of 37; Franzen, 28 ont of 38; Flickinger, 22 oot of 24; Edg. Forster, 22 out of 23; Sharp, 26 out of 31; Hodapp, 22 oot of 30.

Tamalpais Sportemen'e Club.

The annnal report of the Temalpais Sportsmen's Club submitted hy Mr. Otto Muser, the president, shows this populer organizstion to hs in e flonrishing condition. The nnmber of ective contribnting msmbers at present is thirty. It is very probable that action will shortly bs teken hy the Board of Directors limiting the roll of msmbership to thirty-five.

In speaking of the fishing Mr. Muser says "The fishing on our preserve has been fair dnring the pest winter end spring, hat owing to the very low stage of water has now entirely stopped; the creek, however, is full of small fish, which promise good sport next season. The ponds end dams, pertly constructed end contemplated hy the committee, will also edd to the sport. No eccount has been kept of fish taken this season."

Quail shooting hes been up to the evsrage of past seesons. A record of each member's hag hes been kept on the game-hook, as follows:

W. Berg	32 quail	No snipe
F. Commins	14 "	14	"
F. Lacoste	215 "	8	"

Total	1,761 Quail and 44 Snipe.

This totel compares favorably with previons years, for the season of 1892-93. ths total bag was 2.357 ouail; 1893--94, 1,960 quail; 1894-95, 1,643 quail; 1895-96, 1,424 qneil; 1896-97, 1,825 quail; 1897-1898, 1,761 quail. Making a grand total since October 1, 1892 of 10,970 quail. The outlook for tha approaching season is very flattering; the birds hred well and large hevies are seen everywhere on the clnb's preserve which embreces 20.000 acres of hunting ground.

The grand total of 10,070 quail, to the ordinary observer, would at first glance imply an inordinate slaughter of quail; hut a little analysis of the figures will prove a remarkably strong argument in favor of preserves and game protection; for instance, take the total of last season, 1,761 birds; this would give an everage for each month of say 352 per month for tha five months, less than a dczen birds per day, which figures of course ere increased, say, hy 10 per cent for lost or wounded birds. Compare these results with the work of tha merket hunter and game hog and the difference is apparent to an overwhelming degres. The Field Rules of the club limit a day'a hag to twenty-five birds or 300 during the season per member.

W. C. Brown, 2; F. Lacoste, 4; C. M. Osborne, 3; F. R. Drinkhouse, 1; H. F. Wagner, 1; F. Vernon, 1; F. Commins, 1; W. Berg, 1; John Bergez, 2, and W. L Prather (gnest), 1. The number killed in former years were: In 1893, 23 deer; 1894, 23; 1895, 10; 1896, 25; 1897, 15, and 1898, 17. Making a total of 113 deer. The limit for each member during the season is four bucks.

This hunting has been done on ths Merin hills within a distance of six or seven miles of and in plain sight of San Francisco, which stetement may seem almost incredible to Eastern sportsmen. The quarry has not hesn stall fed either, ths bucks have led the hunters many e hard and unavailing chase over country that is rough enough to setisfy the most ardent huntsman. Some of the old fork horns on the preserve heve earned a sterling reputation for fighting which numberless battles with the hounds will testify to.

Tha keepers have destroyed dnring the year 40 racoons; 46 wild cets; 5 coyotes; 38 skunks; 97 hewks (principally the Cooper hewk) and 249 hlue jays.

The Board of Directors is composed of the following gentlemen: O. Muser, J. Bergez, W. Berg, A. Pissis, A. Roos, J. F. Siehe, J. H. Dickinson, P. Delmas end F. Lacoste.

South End—Golden Gate Reunion.

Lest Monday evening, et a down town restaurent, members of the Golden Gate and South End Gun Clubs and invited guests were present to the number of over forty, the occesion heing a reunion of the sportsmen eftar the season's trap shooting and also a henner presentetion by Mr. J.T.Lewis to the South Ends, commemorativa of the latter club's win over the Golden Gates at several hlue-rock matches this season. After the inner man had been regaled with the refreshments served, the guests were entertained hy a clever program erranged by the host, Mr. Lewis, which included violin solos hy Messrs. Jecobs end Sena, vocel selections hy Messrs. Levenburg, Goetzs and Kenneally, mandolin and guiter selections by Messrs. Riegal and Skelly. Various topics were discussed in an apt and happy style hy Messrs. Michelssen, Berges, Lewis, Kellar, McDonnell, Keneelly aod others. During the eveniog, in general discussion and by remarks of the verious speakers, the almost unenimous sentiment was expressed that it would be of undouhted henefit to each o genization should a consolidation of hoth clubs he effected. Among the guests present were: Edw. S. Michelsen, T. J. Lewis, R. Itgen, E. A. Taylor, E. P. Patersen, Jos. Bickersteff, W. A. Walker, Herhsrt Dunshee, M. McDonnell, Paul Keller, M. F. Berges, J. X. Unscrupulous hunters have been shooting rail on the Sen Leandro mershes for the pest three or four weeks. These shooters return on the treins from San Leandro and Alviso on Sundeys and heve been seen coming off the hoet on this side with hunches of rail. The season for reil does not open until Octoher 1st. Geme Werden Donovan, of Alemeda, might look into the metter.

The demand on the resources of sporting goods dealers has been so steedy recently that the well known house of Clahrough, Golcher & Co., hes been open svery evening until 9 o'clock; on Sstnrdays they close up at 10 P. M. A foll stock of Clehrough, L. C. Smith, Parker end othsr standard guns are on hand. The Acme folding decoy is something that duck shooters hava accepted as the ne plus ultra of decoye, they should he seen to hs appreciated, the differsnce hetween the Acma and other models of decoys is appersnt at a glance end its utility is heyond question.

Sportsmen have speculeted considerahly on the outlook for qnail shooting this fall; reports from various sections to tha effect that the quail had not mated this year, had left dried up districts, etc., creating the impresion that quail would he scarce and herd to find. This impression as to many hunting spots, we are credibly informed is an erroneous one. Shrewd observers claim that the hirds mated and that the young heve matured earlier than usual, thus eccounting for tha absence of young looking hirds. In the vicinity of Pescadero there is no lack of quail; in the thick hrush of that district it would he en exceedingly hard matter to thin them out. On tha protected grounds of the Country and Tamalpais Clubs birds ara plentiful and in fine condition. At Point Reyes the season promises to be es good as evsr. After the first rein or two many good bags of quail will he reported without doubt.

The current nnmher of Forest and Streem mentions two well known end popular Californian's es follows:

"Phil Bekeart of San Frencisco, Cel., has arrived in New York, end intends to put in a few days edmiring some of Broadway's sky-screpers. Mr. Bekeart, however, is usoally seen in compeny with Harvey McMurchy, who is also in town; and it may therefore be well imagined that his stay in this city will not only he pleasant hut will result in his returning to San Francisco with new ideas as to life in the Esst."

"From Haverhill, Mass, Mr. Jack Fanning goes to Batavia, N. Y., thence he may go westward. His win et Haverhill was the letest of a season of consistent high-class shooting. At the Rochester Lahor Day shoot he broke 133 out of 140 shot at, an average of 95 per cent. All told, he hes shot et 4,000 targets this season, on many different grounds and at all styles of shooting he has avereged 938 per cent, e most excellent showing."

The Drawhridge Shooting Clnh, which has leased the grounds known as Green Island, are meking greet preparetions for their grend opening shoot, to take place on Sundey the 2d of Octoher. Sondey end Monday all the clnh members, excepting Messrs. Beveridge end Harrier, were et work huilding a new eddition to their headquarters at the drawhridge, where the Sente Rosa track crosses the Nepa creek. It is now twice its former size, end its eccomodetions are eccordingly doubled. The members claim to have the most complete end commodions honting "shack" in the State, and they anticipate e hetter season of sport for '98-'99 than for many years past. The officers and members of the Clnh are: O. S. Cooper, President; C. Roe, Secretary and Treasurer; F. J. Haggarty, Private Secretary; D. F. Bsveridge, Decoy Gueid; V. V. Harrier, Sergeant-at-Arm; J. A FISH SCULPTOR.

A Singular Art—The Man Who Proves Fish Stories.

A story with the above heading, and which we give in full, as follows, appeared in a recent issue of the New York Commercial Advertiser. Its chief virtue, is, apperently in showing the versatility of the press agent for the transportation company whose headquarters are located in Los Angeles and who are of course interested in the hotel enterprises of Catalina Island. The gentleman already referred to has been exceedingly industrious in supplying matter, under various nommes de plume, to the journals of Southern California detailing sensational hat les with leviathans of the deep by tourists sojourning on the enchanted Pacific isle; how Prince Ivan Howdie Dewsky foreclosed on a gigantic jewfish (which by the way is not considered by sportsmen to be a game fish) or the exploit of young Sturdybaker who booked a small whale on his especially imported wagon-spoke rod using a cotton thread wound on a $150 Plum Doff reel, etc , etc., —— of the Mutual Admiration Club who changes its president every day, the motif being a few pounds of "fortuna" or other fish careless enough to be caught by the pen of the P. A. As the mention of these brilliant episodes seems to be the proper caper with the coast journals and is greedily being taken up by Eastern publications we feel in duty bound to fall in line and contribute the amount of valuable space taken in quoting the story noted above:

"Yes, I'm the man that proves fish stories. Walk in."

The speaker, a smiling, rotund individual, stood in the doorway of a large room, upon the door of which was posted a sign proclaiming to the world that within was not merely a museum, but a free one.

"You see," said the cheerful exhibitor, "this is an institution to preserve the integrity of anglers. There is an organization on this island," he continued, "known as the Ananias Club. All the boatmen belong to it; you will notice their bronze and silver badges, and the way a fish will grow under their manipulation is a caution. The Ananias Club is known all over the United States. It has branches wherever a fish is caught, so something had to be done to offset it. People don't want the exact truth about fishing stories, but something near it. Photographs are all right if it wasn't for the Ananias Club. They catch a ten-pound barracuda and suspend it fifteen or twenty feet in front of the fishermen and photograph it, and there you are with a fish six feet long weighing 200 pounds, caught with a rod and reel. It's as easy as rolling off a log. But my plan," said the fish exhibitor, gruwing serious, "gives the fisherman justice, and all these specimens you see here are fishes that have been caught this year by fishermen from all over the country. It's the real skin of the fish, but is what you might call fish sculpturing.

"You see," said the exhibitor, pointing to the largest specimen, "fishermen here are all crazy over this 'leaping tuna.' This one weighed 183 pounds, and old tarpon fishermen say that it could have towed two tarpons of like size. The minute a tuna comes in I weigh and measure it, then it is photographed with the man that caught it, and you can believe these men are proud of their catches. When you think of it, to take a fish six feet long on a thread like thasa twenty-one-strand lines, is a difficult proposition.

"Then I carefully skin one side of the fish, and for this make a complete model in clay. When the skin is thoroughly seasoned I stretch it over the model and nail it on, put in the glass eyes and the thing is done.

"Colors?" Yes, I touch it up. The tuna is a beautiful fish when it comes out of the water; it is silver sheen below, blue on top and over all there is a delicate roseate glow like the blaze of the humming-bird; then the row of small fins are a bright yellow. All these I touch up a little, so that the fish, as you see, are natural as life.

"What do they do with them? Why, they are all going East," replied the artist.

"One caught by the nephew of the ex-Premier of Ontario goes to Canada. Two go to New York clubs, and others to the men who caught them. Anglers are good fellows, there is no doubt of that," he added, "but it's a fact, they're the vainest race on earth, where fish are concerned.

"That yellow tail there," continued the fish sculptor, crossing the room, and touching a beautiful fish four feet in length, "is being mounted for a man who thought he had made the record catch—a 48-pounder, and so wanted to take him home as a trophy; but another angler caught a 50-pounder soon after—that's the fish in the corner—and so it goes; I am kept busy setting up record-breakers."

"This is a peculiar fishing place," added the talkative showman. "You see we deal in big game here. It's the biggest fish with the lightest tackle, and that is what the men round the fishing stands are talking about and figuring on all the time. They have caught a black sea bass, weighing 200 pounds, with a light rod and what is known as a cuttyhunk line, and are constantly trying to catch larger fish on lighter tackle. They take 50 pound sea-bass on little more than threads, and have succeeded in hooking and holding a whale for a few seconds. That seems impossible," added the artist, "but it is so nevertheless There is a small whale about here called the orca or whale killer. They run from 9 to 25 feet in length and are remarkable for their black skin, the prominent white spots on them and the tall top fin that can be seen a long distance away. The orcas go in threes, generally—two old ones and a calf, which is about ten feet long. It was one of these inexperienced young ones that took the line."

Surf and sea fishing is a sport that is indulged in by comparatively few anglers in this State residing near the coast—excepting in the southern waters of the State, and even then the principal fishing is indulged in by tourists and visitors from the East. Montarey bay is the resort of quite a number of anglers when the salmon and yellow-tail are reported running. Few fisherman know the genuine sport afforded with a surf rod, to say nothing of the benefits acquired by a day's outing in the bracing atmosphere along the surf beaten cliffs or winding reaches of sand beach contignous to San Francisco. September and October are favorable months for this sport, some enthusiasts, however, find good fishing along the Merin connty shores nearly all the year round.

The U. S. exhibit at the International Fishery Congress held recently in Norway attracted a great deal of attention, particularly that portion of the exhibit pertaining to California and the Coast. The Board of Fish Commissioners are in receipt of many communications asking for varied and detailed information and also for a file of the annual reports of the commission.

The killing flies for Eel river are Benn's Kamloops, Royal Coachman, Blue Rail and Brown Hackle. Wilson's spoons are productive of fine results in trolling. The Kamloops fly is a grand fly on any water. The Blue Rail is very effective and particularly so on Eel river when the wind blows.

John P. Babcock, Chief Deputy Fish Commissioner, Bert Noyes and F. D. Sanborn are now at Pelican Bay for a ten-days' outing trip. Reports from that region state that the fishing is first class at present.

Steelhead fishing is reported good on the beach at Bey Farm Island, Alamed. Frank Marcus states that an eight-pounder, among others, was caught there last Sunday.

E. T. Allen Co. have a special line of flies for Eel river fishing that are in general demand.

Reports from Eel river state that the large fish have not yet commenced to run, although great sport is had with small fish.

A number of anglers left on the steamer this week, bound for Eel river.

Field Trial Notes.

The payment of the second forfeit for the Derby entries in the coming coast field trials will be due on November 1, 1898.

A meeting of the Pacific Coast Field Trial Club will be held during the latter part of this month—providing the attendance of Southern California members can be secured—for the purpose of arranging details, etc., for the "members' stake," which proposed event has been received with great enthusiasm among the gentlemen composing the club. Prominent sportsmen have already signified a willingness to donate handsome cups for competition in the members' stake.

J. M. Kilgarif, the Secretary of the Club, is in receipt of a communication from an enthusiastic sportsman at Elko, Nev., to the effect that he is the owner of an ambitious candidate for Derby honors, and whilst expressing his regret in being too late to enter the dog, he writes that he is willing to run his dog against the winner of the Derby for a wager of $100, cash or an equivalant. A condition of the match, however, is that retrieving shall receive due credit. It might be well for the owners of the various dogs entered to write to the Secretary giving their consent to the entrance of the new comer, as at this date there cannot be any more or further advantage to the late entrant than there was on July 1st. By all means, gentlemen, the true spirit of the sportsman shown by our Nevada friend should be encouraged.

Mr. Arthur Bennett was warmly welcomed by the sportsmen gathered at the recent field trials in Manitoba Although Lock and Dash Antonio were not placed in the Northwesters Field Trials the spirit that prompted such a long journey for field trial honors was strongly admired and a regret sincerely expressed for the temporary back set.

Champion Rip Rap.

This noted and famous pointer, whosa deatb occurred last month, has dona much to bring pointers into prominence. A writer in the American Field says of bim, that he was always ready to start in fiell work and always had tha ability for extra wnrk when seemingly it was needed, doing his best at tha right moment. Rip Rap was peerless and ha has never had an equal in pointers, considering his wonderfol combina tion, fearless hut gentle, with a constitntion nneqnalled, baving wonderful powers of endurance, trausmitting them to his progeny, which, fortunately, is not limited in number. He was one of the few dogs who have the credit of winning a Derby and an All-Age Staka the same year. One of bis progeny, Delbi, is another of tha number. He was sira of tha following winners that we remember: Delbi, Tippoo, India, Young Rip Rap, Nabob, Ripsaw, Silah, Ripsey, and at tha trials just concluded at Manitoba, Warlock and Ranee. Among his wonderful qualities as a field dog were those of endurance, pace, range, and the hunting out of the ground, seeming instinctively to go to ths right places, always ready to start wherever entered. With this he had hench honors also, winning wherever sbown. Tbe Charlottsville Kannels did not care so mnch for bench honors as those of field trials, and while hench show committees sought to hava them on exhibition, the dogs were seldom sbown.

Mr. Edward Dexter, owner of Rip Rap, will no doubt hava the sympathy of all true sportsmen throughout the conntry, which feeling of regret will likewise be extended to Captain C. E. McMurdo and Mr. C. E. Buckle, who bave so carefnlly kept and handled him dnring the past ten years.

We note among the honors scored by this famous pointer in field trials as follows: Secoud in the Derby (the English setter Rowdy Rod winning first over him), and first in All-Age Pointer Staka, sixteen starters, Eastarn Field Trials Club trials High Point, N. C., 1889. First in the Pointer Derby (sixteen starters) and absoluta winner of the Derby (beating Rowdy Rod) in the Central Field Trisl Club's trials, Lexington, N. C., December, 1889. Wiuner of tha Champion Stake, Eastern Field Trial Club's trials, High Point, N. C., 1892. Third in the four-hour race, Central Field Trial Club's trials, Lexington, N. C., 1892. Third in tha subscription four-hour race, Central Field Trial Clnb's trials, Newton, N. C., 1893. Winner of Subscription Stake, Eastern Field Trial Clnb's trials, Newton, N. C., 1894.

His wins on the beuch were: First in class nnder fifty-fiva pounds and special at Washington, D. C., 1891. First in class under fifty-five pounds, Washington, D. C., 1893. Tha only times he was ever seen on the hencb.

Rip Rap was whelped May 20, 1888; white and black ticked; by tha celebrated King of Kent out of imported Hops.

Kennel Suggestions.

The most serions accident whicb can occur to a sporting dog, except getting into the line of fira of a careless shooter, is one resulting in broken hones. True, snch serious accidents are, in case of field dogs, of rare occurrence, and also difficult of explanation as far as the cause goes, for except it he a case of a fall from precipitons gronnd,or from being rnn over, it is hut very seldom that the actual misfortnne is witnessed by the dogs owner or keeper, and one can hut snrmise as to how it was actually canscd. In most instauces it is the leg which suffers, hut the ribs; the tail, or the head, also occasionally come to grief.

To nnderstand what broken bones mean in a dog, it mnst be remembered that fractures may he simple, compondd, or comminuted. Of these the two latter rarely, if ever, offer any chance of heing cnred, as the soft fleshy parts and muscles lying around the bone are involved, hnt simple fractures, in nearly all instances, lend themselves to snccessfnl treatment, provided the dog injured enjoys otharwise good health.

Simpla fractures usnally occur in the legs, sboulders, or thighs of the dog, and are constituted in tbe simple snapping of a hone. When they occur in the leg they are easily distinguished and located. The dog will at some times exhibit considerabla evidence of pain, at others hut little sign of snffering, or even of nneasiness in the injnred limbs is forthcoming. In broken leg-bones, however, tbe pendant position of the limh will he pretty clear evidence of the injury suffered, while local swellings, twitchings, and the grating sonnd of the injnred parts, knowu as crepitus, will be further proof of the damage snstained.

It is therefore very easy to determiue a fracture of the leghone, whilst when the injury is in the shoulder, in the hack or neck, the refusal of the dog to move and an almost complete lack of sensitiveness marks such injnry;loss of conscionsness, damage to the bones of the head. The constitutional symptoms are quickness of breathing and increase of temperature.

Unskilled persons dealing with fractured hones in the dog must perforce possess some knowledge of canine anatomy, hut this need not be very extensive, and can be gathered from illnstrations of the structure of the dog. When the fractnre is very simple and no displacement of the hones has taken place, a mere crack in tbe bone in fact, it is not very difficult to bring the two ends of the broken hone into proper position. Some force may be required to be exerted, hut it mnst he employed with care and moderation, and with knowledge of the anatomy of the part to be operated npon. It is necessary, having set the broken limb, to assure oneself that the adjustment of the fractured bones is correct, and to provide means for their retention in their proper place.

The most easily applied and effective bandage for this purpose is the starch bandage, which is simplicity itself. The rolls of bandage should he thoroughly soaked in starch prepared exactly as for laundry use, and then applied to the injured leg. Commence binding from the toe upward, working carefully until well above the fracture, and seeing that the broken bone is in its prouar and natural positiou. The baudages must be applied even and firmly and when the operation is complete,light splints applied until the starcb bandage is thoroughly dry. It will then have formed a close stiff sheath to the wounded member, and the splints may be removed. Be very careful that tbe bandages are thoroughly soaked with the starch, and to biud them on from the toe to wall above tha fracture.

By the end of five nr six weeks the broken bone will he thoronghly healed, and the bandages removed by carefnlly unrolling them or cutting them off, dampening tha strips meantime with tepid water to dissolve the starch. Then wasb the baudaged parts thoronghly and apply a little vaseline. Treated in this manner, a sporting dog should snffer no permanent injury from a simple fracture of tha leg-bone. —Rod and Gun.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The great mastiff, one of the best ever bred in America, Dr. C. A. Lougest's Black Prince Brampton (Ch. Black Prince—Brampton Beauty) has heen purchased by Mr. S. H. Miller of Baltimore, Md. The price paid was $1,000.

Aristocrat, Jr., tha grand St. Bernard owned by W. C. Freymouth, of River Forest, Ill., enjoys the distinction of being the first American dog to serve the imported hitch, Marvelcroft, a recent addition to F. Jay Gould's kennels.

Lady Gay (Welleshourne Charlie—Chesterford Hattie) the noted sahle and white collia hitch, prominent as an Eastern hench show winner, died in St. Louis on the 14th inst. She wae whelped in March, 1894, and hred by Chesterford Park Kennels, Maywood, Ills. She was owned by Samuel B. Stannard at the time of her death and held at a high valuation ($5,000?).

What is said to he the largest amount ever paid for greybounds hy a Californian is $2,500 for five hounds from England that are credited with the ahility to beat For Freedom, the dog that bas created soch a seusation in conrsing events ont here. A commission has been in England some tima, and the purchase was recently made. The parchaser's nama is not made public, hnt the newcomers will soon he seen in the slips at Union Park.

Imported bard-coated terriers, especially Irish, Scotch and wire-haired fox terriers do not improve in coat after landing here. The coats of the twn former lose their color by hleaching and the under coat never has the origiual cousistency again. With the wire-hairs the coat becomes softer and falls out at periods and seasons, where, if the dog were in England, he would either he in or out of coat at certain dates. This does not apply to bitches wbeu duty has changed her system to rearing litters.

To tha Alameda correspondent who is seeking information regarding the "snn dog" recently said to have heen presented to a certain railroad official who is located on the Oakland mole, we will soggest that our qnerist proceed to tha end of the mole (don't jump overhoard) but have a conference with one of the old salts who go down to the sea in ships and no doubt some interesting items will he obtained regarding this particular breed of canines. As to the "son dog's" wonderful intelligence, we are not advised, hnt we bave heard of hunters nsiug them on the Alameda marshes for the purpose of retrieving phillaloo birds.

As a slight atonement for writing a book which is of questionable utility either to "point a moral or adoru a tale," an English author bas inscribed bimself on the tablet of fame with the following unique dedication:

To
The Silent Companions of Many Wasted Hours,
My Bnlldogs, Boss and Spider,
This Book Is Dedicated, Without Permission,
As an Acknowledgement of Their Grave Contempt
For Soch Follies.

Alta Kennels' St. Bernards led the St. Bernard winners at the recent show in Toronto, the R. C Prince Sylvia taking first in open dogs and Alta Hugo and Alta Ruth firsts in open smooth coats. Pasha V., a new candidate for honors, taking first in the novice.

The cockers made a grand showing; in blacks, Champion Pickpania was first in the challenge class; Black Duke Jr. first in open dogs. Red Mack, first in open dogs, red, scoring easily over Red Coat. In judging the cockers Mr. Mortimer pnt the stamp of disproval on the habit of end holding in handling cockers in the ring. They are sporting dogs and shonld be shown with chain and collar and not in a style suggesting that each dog is an altar to he knelt down to, or as if the breed were so degenerated that it cannot cover its teeth or hold np its own tail without propping.

Fox terriers were the feature of the show. Tbe Norfolk Kennels' team was invincible and practically swept the boards of regular prizes and specials. Veracity, Victorions and Speculator winning in one, two, three order in tha open dogs. Wawaset Actor took first in challenge. In wires first open dogs went to Endcliffe Billy.

Raising Pigs on a Dairy Farm.

Our success with bogs has always heen a matter of comment in whatever locality we may have been from Colorado to Tennessee. We have always taken an interest in our hogs and worked to tbe interest of ourselves and the comfort and delopment of the swine. Success is attained in not letting a pig stand still for a day in its growth. To accomplish this requires careful attention. We treat a suckling sow just as we do our finest Jersey cow, providing a comfortable place for her and ber family and giving her a balanced ration that will force a flow of milk. We encourage her to eat heartily and provide a place as soon as the pigs will eat, where they can eat by themselves.

The warm skim milk is given them right from the separator. They are fed shorts, ground oats, bran or cornmeal mixed with the sweet milk. Salt and ashes are kept in a box before them at all times, and in season a grass pasture is provided, but there is nothing that beats our old friend alfalfa. In winter ensilage is fed. Let me say here that a liberal feed of ensilage during the period of no grass is one of the best things for either breeding or fattening hogs. It promotes health and growth. Last April we bought a sow and nine pigs when the latter were a week old. They were put in a pasture and fed mostly on separator milk. Some ground feed was fed but not much.

At sixty days of age, the pigs weighed fifty-four pounds each. At eighty days, seventy eight pounds each. At four and one-half months they weighed 140 pounds each. The nine are as even a litter as one would wish to see. One of the great advantages of a dairy herd is the profit derived from the skim milk which can be fed sweet right from the separator. Do not let the milk stand in a filthy barrel to sour and turn to whey, but feed it at once. Do not as I so often see dairy farmers do, try to make hogs do well on half the amount of milk they require. Make the hogs fit the amount of milk, not the milk fit the number of hogs.—W. N. Code.

Preserving Eggs—Sulphur Process.

Take a common starch box with a sliding lid. Put the eggs in the box, and upon an oyster-shell or other suitable substance place a teaspoonful of sulphur. Set fire to the sulphur, and when the fumes begin to rise briskly shut up the lid, make the box tight and do not disturb it for half an hour. Now take out the eggs, pack in oats, and the job is done. If the oats or packing material be subjected to the same process it will be all the better. If a barrelful is to be preserved, place the eggs in a tight barrel two-thirds full, with no packing whatever. Fire a pound of sulphur upon a suitable substance on top of the eggs in the vacant space over them, shut up tightly, let stand an hour and then take out the eggs; As the gas is much heaver than air it will sink to the bottom, or rather fill up the barrel with the fumes. In another barrel or box place some oats, and treat in the same way. Now pack the eggs in the oats, head up the barrel, and turn the barrel every day to prevent falling of the yolks, using each end alternately, and they will keep a year, or according to the efficiency of the operation, a shorter or longer time.

It will be seen by the above that the process is a dry and neat one, and very inexpensive, sulphur being a very cheap article. The process was sold several years ago by parties as "Ozone," but is an old one, and the parties were exposed, not that the process was a fraud, but because they sold a pound of sulphur as ozone for $2.—Poultry-keeper.

Our Pork in Germany.

The American hog has been vindicated at last. The report of Consul Barnes located at Cologne, on the preparation of American fruits for German markets has been followed by a report upon trichinae. In the report he says: "I learn that for the last fifteen years, beginning with the decree of 1883 prohibiting the importation of American meat and ending with the close of last year, there were officially confirmed in the kingdom of Prussia 3,003 reported cases of illness from trichinae, 207 of which resulted in death. Of these there could be traced to the eating of European meat examined in Germany and found to be free from trichinae 1,242 cases of illness and 102 deaths. Thus 41.35 per cent of all the cases of illness and 49.7 per cent of all the deaths were caused by the consumption of European pork which was examined in Germany and found to be free from trichinae. In not one of the above 3,003 cases could it be proved that the illness was caused by the use of American salted, pickled or tinned meat, nor by smoked sausage. This statement holds good for all Germany. In conformation of this fact the society hereinbefore mentioned has issued postera wherein a reward of 1,000 marks ($238) is offered to the person who can prove that trichinae has been transferred to human beings by the consumption of American salted or pickled pork or smoked sausage imported under the imperial decree of September 31, 1891, cancelling the edict forbidding the importation."

The man who keeps cattle, sheep and hogs, and breeds his work mares regularly, has his business so arranged that money is coming in at all seasons. His cattle and wool go to market in the spring and early summer, and his hogs and mutton sheep go in the fall and winter. If prices are not the best for all, they are sure to be good for one thing or another. His corn and hay are all fed, and he still has his meat to sell for cash. His income comes to him at such times that he has no use for the money lender, and he has no notes to meet or interest to pay.

One of the most valuable additions that comes to us from the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands is a peculiar tree. The juice from this tree will render meat of poultry very tender. An old chicken, for instance, is killed and the meat is soaked in the juice of this tree for a couple of hours when it becomes as tender as the finest young chicken. The natives use the juice of this tree on both poultry and meat.—Exchange.

We suggest that a convention of restaurant and hotel boarders in San Francisco be called, and a memorial be prepared to the Legislature asking that a sum be appropriated for the purpose of encouraging the cultivation of this wonderful tree here in California. A cargo of the juice judiciously distributed among the boarding houses of this city would not only aid digestion, make the boarders happier and bring about more amicable relations between boarder and boardee, but would open up a much wider market for those old heroes and heroines of the barnyard, that the farmer's honest wife now considers too old to place upon the market.

The operations of Maurice Lathrop in Centralia deserve more than passing mention. Strolling by his place the other day, it was found that he had snugly ensconced in a frame building a twelve-horse-power gasoline engine that runs a rotary pump connected with his ten-inch artesian well. With this plant he had irrigated acres and acres of land, all filled to the fullest extent with stalks of sorghum and Indian corn, and very prolific, which he intends for fodder for his large herd of cows, the milk from which he takes to the condensed milk factory at Buena Park, and from which he derives a good daily income, which would have been otherwise in this dry year had not Mr. Lathrop bent his energies in this direction. Water is the sine qua non of Southern California, and even in this unprecedentedly dry year, this is quoted as an example to our numerous farmers of what well-directed energy will do. Had Mr. Lathrop been listless his stock would have starved, he deprived of a daily income and the county thus much deficient in the way of returns of productiveness. "Nihil sine labore" is an old maxim, and it stands good in this case.—Anaheim Gazette.

At the Wisconsin station, Professor Craig fed grain to the high-grade Shropshire lambs before weaning for three seasons, 66 lambs in all, using corns, oats, bran and peas. He found it required 63 pounds of corn meal in addition to the milk of the ewes to make 100 pounds of gain, 86 pounds of whole oats, 77 pounds of wheat bran and 73 pounds of peas. Inasmuch as it takes about 500 pounds of corn to produce 100 pounds of gain on mature sheep, it will be seen that this is the cheapest of all methods of making the kind of live weight which sells for the highest market price in the market. It will be seen that 63 pounds of corn meal, worth less than 25 cents on the present market, is equivalent to 86 pounds of oats, worth at least 55 cents in the market. In another experiment Professor Craig found that in eight weeks before weaning, lambs made a gain of 100 pounds on 26 pounds of corn meal alone, while it required 31 pounds of corn meal and oats and 42 pounds of corn meal and peas to make the same gain.

When a horse does not appear to thrive, as he should, on his food, and the most careful observation fails to account for his condition, it is wise to have his teeth carefully examined, especially the back-jaw teeth or molars. An irregularity of these is often the unsuspected source of the evil. The molars occasionally wear irregularly; sometimes the upper border overlapping the external surface of the lower, while the internal surface of the lower rises to a corresponding height within the mouth. In such cases sharp points are found where the wear has been slighest, and these roughnesses lacerate the inside of the cheeks and cut the sides of the tongue, so that mastication is performed not only with difficulty, but with pain. The consequence is that the food is not properly prepared for the stomach, and passes through it without assimilating to a full extent its nutritive principles.

Lake county, though known to the outside world as essentially a sanitarium and a pleasure resort, yet makes some pretensions in the way of substantial agriculture and horticulture. All of these industries together have enjoyed the most prosperous year ever known. A conservative estimate of the wheat and barley yield is put at 300,000 bushels, 220,000 of which were produced in Big Valley and northward. The surplus hay is estimated at 2,000 tons. This is the first year hay was ever shipped out of Lake county in any considerable quantity. The hop yield is put at 600 bales; 12,000 boxes of Bartlett pears were shipped from Big Valley and Scott's Valley and nearly as many dried. The prune yield of the county is large.

The most active operation in Tulare county will be found in the old lake bed for the next few months. A district has been formed within which it is expected that thirty thousand acres will be converted into tillable farming land. A levee is to be built thirteen miles long, costing $7,000. Wells will be bored to furnish water for irrigation. It is said that all the space left by the lake's disappearance has been appropriated so there will be no room for a stampede. The work of reclaiming will cost some money, but for this purpose a share of the purchase price is available, it is claimed, the State's price of $2.50 per acre being cut to 50 cents which goes into the State school fund.—Tulare Register.

A great many breeders upon having a hog or pig overheated or very warm, attempt to reduce the temperature by dashing a bucket of cold water over it. Very often the result is a dead pig in a very short time. The proper way to cool off a pig just received in a crate or one that is overheated, is to let it lie still and commence pouring water gradually on its nose and continuing for the space of two minutes on the nose up to the top of the head. Then when the head is thoroughly cooled proceed backward gradually, not pouring too rapidly at first till you have reached the tail. In this way a hog can be cooled off without danger of any bad effects from the overheating.

We will never see the big herds again. They have gone for good. After this the cattle in the west will be divided into small bunches that can be cared for properly. All the farmers will have there bunches of stock which they can keep up and feed in winter and pasture in the summer. The days when herds of 10,000 and 20,000 head can roam at will over the hills and valleys is gone forever. There will be more money and not so much waste by the new method. In the future winter losses from exposure will be comparatively unknown and the cattle will be of better grade and will go to market in better condition.

The best disinfectant known for the pig pen is the rays of the sun. Where they cannot exert their force it is well to bring into use various washes and compounds to destroy disease germs. Prevention is far ahead of cure to make money. The trouble is we do not use disinfectants in too many cases till the animals are sick, when only secondary results can be expected. Contagious diseases cannot be absolutely prevented by the most healthy system of feeding and caring for hogs, but if they have plenty of healthy food, good grazing and pure water they are far better able to resist the assaults of contagious diseases and escape the dangers of many others.

F. M. Eagle, of Yuba county, gives the following remedy for hog cholera: Raise plenty of mustard and feed about two or three times a week when fattening, and occasionally put a little buttermilk and soda in the trough. I have cured them with the latter when they would not eat by pouring it down their throats, and in two or three days they would go to eating. Last fall one of my neighbors lost about half of his hogs with cholera, and mine ran close to his and I lost none. I fed about twice a week on green mustard and corn, and gave my hogs plenty of good pure water.

Many of the big milk dealers who are supplying New York, Philadelphia and the seaside resorts are said to be using chemicals to keep the milk sweet, and these preservatives are pronounced by State chemists as very injurious, particularly to children and invalids. It is said the same chemicals are in use in this city and that there have been several cases of sickness arising therefrom. The chemicals prevent fermentation, a very necessary thing in the process of digestion.

The majority of dairymen feed hay and grain separately. This economizes some time, but there is no doubt that cut hay moistened with water and sprinkled with the grain ration is the true scientific method of feeding. This is in accordance with nature, where we find the grain invariably mixed and diluted with much coarse fibre. The mixed hay and grain favor digestion, as the hay acts as a diluent, separating the particles of grain and causing it to be much more rapidly and uniformly acted upon by the digestive fluids.

In the history of Butte county there has never been such a large quantity of hay haled in one year, as during the past season. Chico bay has had the long end of it in San Francisco and San Jose markets on account of its superior quality, and it has sold for from $2 to $4 per ton more than Oregon hay.

THE ANNUAL FALL

THOROUGHBRED .·. SALES

For 1898

— BY —

KILLIP & CO., Live Stock Auctioneers

WILL TAKE PLACE IN NOVEMBER

The first sale will be a consignment from A. B. SPRECKELS, to be held about NOVEMBER 10th, and to be followed by consignments from PALO ALTO and other leading Stock Farms.
Consignments are respectfully solicited, and arrangements should be made in time for proper advertising and cataloging.

KILLIP & CO., 11 Montgomery St., S. F.

A Strong and Cheap Fence.

A correspondent of tha Denver Field and Farm writes as follows of a fence which will not cause injury to stock, but is strong enough to turn cattle, mules and hogs:

"I hava mada a lina of fence which is chesp and fills all mv reqnirements. Tha posts ara set twenty-four feet apart and are four and a halt feet out of the ground. To thesa ara mada fast saven atrands of No. 9 galvanized wira. Tha lowest wire is six inches from the ground with a lina of linked barbed wire threa inches below it. I then made an implament by which these wires conld he made to go back and forth lika the threads of warp in weaving cloth. Into thesa wires wera packed upright pickets ona foot apart woven in so that the wires passed tha alternata aidea of tha pickets. Tha pickets wera ona inch thick and ona and a half inches wide.

"When tha pickets wera in, staples ona inch long, such as are made for fastening wira netting to tha posts for chicken yards, ware driven into aach picket over each wire and driven in tight, When this fance was finished it was very strong—so strong that a person could climb over it any placa. I then strung a lina of the linked barbed wire along tha top of tha posts, stapling it firmly to the top of each, which made it six inches ahova the pickets. This fenca is four and a half feet high and no pig can get through or under it. No bull can get through it and no horsa will attempt to reach ovar it tha second time. Tha pickets giva enough to allow of tha contraction of the wires in cold weatuer and spring back to take up tha expansion in summer."

Ahont the largest sala of land ever mada in San Joaqnin county was consummated last week, whan Pierca Brothers, two well known Oregon farmers, purchased 8,000 acres of tha Old River Land and Reclamation Company for $320,000, or $40 an acra. Most of tha land in question has been reclaimed hnt recently, and four dredgers ara still at work on the levees. The land will he placed under cultivation at onca, and the purchasers will placa six traction engines with plows and seeders at work immediataly.

G. W. Thraharn, of Stockton, tried an experiment with cotton thia year on his ranch near the ahova city, and raised soma of which tha qnality was the best.

Captain Guy E. Grosse, the Santa Rosa real estate man, is in communication with parties in London who have instructed him to look up a larga tract of land suitahle for a colony of industrious farmers, who hava some capital and whose aim is to locata in California for the purpose of raising stock, dairying, fruit farming, hop raising and olive culture, says the Press Democrat. They desira 6,000 to 8,000 acres of land, hoth hill and valley, well watered and within easy access to city and general market.

W. W. Guthrie of Atchison, Kansas, has developed a naw breed of cattle which he has put on tha market. Ha is now breeding in tha fifth generation. Hareford blood predominates, and is crossed with tha hest quality of Shorthorn. They are polled, whita face, dark red hody, sqnara build, hroad back, early maturing, easy keepers and fair milkers. Examples of this naw variety will he shown at the Omaha exposition in October.

J. W. Fowlar of Lodi, who farmed ninety acres in the northwestern part of tha county, has complated his harvesting and finds that he has secured 2600 sacka. Other farmers who put in land adjoining did not get sufficient grain to seed thair property next season. Mr. Fowler flooded his wheat field two or threa times and will make money by tha operation.

In certain Eoglish fairs and markets tha pig's tail is said to unerringly indicate tha condition of tha animal. If it hangs loose and flahby it shows that tha animal is out of condition and that its food should ha changed. If, on tha other hand, it is coiled tightly, tha pig is healthy and in good condition.

At Odessa, Missonri, the other day sixty-six head of Poland Chinas sold on tha block brought $2.300. One litter of eight pigs sold for $1,000. Fifteen hnndred people wera in attendanoe.

VICKSBURG, Miss.

Continued Evidence.

Mr. B. N. Congdon, prominant horseman at Prospect, N. Y., writes: "Please send me a bottla of Qoinn's Ointment. I have used several and find it good." This is tha general expression of horsemen everywhere who use Qoinn's Ointment. It works lika magic. For curhs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all hunches it has no equal. Price $1.50. If you cannot find it at your druggist's, address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y. For sale in San Francisco hy Messrs. J. A. McKerron and J. O'Kane.

CALIFORNIA HORSES AT TERRA HAUTE

Editor Breeder and Sportsman—Here in Terra Haute to-day I witnessed the fastest and hardest races that have been seen on the grand circuit this season. The first race of the day was the 2:05 pace, and nine of the fastest pacers ever seen together in one afternoon took part, and finished in a bunch under a drive in every heat. There were Rubenstein by Baron Wilkes, Ananias by Patron, Bumps by Baron Wilkes and Frank Bogash by Atlantic King, but when McHenry sent Anaconda, by Knight, out he stepped away from them as though they were tied, and there was an uproar in the grand stand. "See that Californian fly," was the remark that went up on all sides.

Mr. Murphy, owner of Star Pointer, Mr. Steinar of the Trotting Register Association, W. P. Jjims, President of the American Association and also of the Terra Haute Association, Mr. Emery of Cleveland and myself occupied the same box in the grand stand. Mr. Murphy was suddenly seen to jump up, stand in his chair and shout: "Sea Anaconda! he is not doing a thing to them. Where is the man who thinks Anaconda will not down that party for my $500?" This was in the fourth heat, and Anaconda stepped the first eighth in 14 seconds, the first quarter in 30¼ and was then five lengths in the lead. He was never headed and won with ease in 2:05½. The remaining two heats were won in the same easy manner. The summary of the race is as follows:

Bumps, b g, by Baron Wilkes	1	1	2	8	8	3
Directly, blk s, by Direct	8	8	1	2	7	2

Ananias, 2-8-7 6-3; Rubenstein, 5-2-3-7 2; Frank Bogash, 8-7-8-4-5; Giles Noyes, 7-9-9-3-8; Parker G., 9-3-4-5-4; William Mc, 3-4-5-dis.

Time—2:04½, 2:04¾, 2:05¾, 2:05½, 2.07, 2:08¾.

The 2:10 trot was the fastest trotting race of the season won by that fast, good-looking and good-gaited bay gelding, Eagle Flannagan, by Eagle Bird. The sweet little Dione earned third money. She is another "Californian," as they never fail to call our horses here, and is admired by everybody. Sandy Smith, her faithful attendant, is classed as another champion and it is a show to see him and the mare in and out of the stall. They should never be separated. Sandy is a wonder, certainly, in his line, and has been a great helper to Thos. Keating. And the same may be said about that well-known California trainer, Johnny Blue, who has Searchlight and Anaconda under his care. It is asserted here that these California men take better care of their animals than any people on the circuit, and caretaking is one of the most important points in keeping these animals up under such a strain.

Searchlight looks strong and is, to-day, better than he has ever been and can simply fly. He worked out yesterday two heats, though the track was harrowed up quite deep, in 2:04¾ and 2:04¾, which is pronounced by all the talent as great work. He looks much handsomer to me than I have ever seen him or than I thought he would look. He is, to my notion, the handsomest pacing stallion in America to-day, and ranks in looks with Zombro as a trotting stallion and Much Better as a mare. The summary of the race won by Eagle Flannagan was as follows:

Caid, br h, by Highwood	3	2	4
Dione, b m, by Eros	2	3	7

Caracella 7-5-2, Pilot Boy 5-6-3, Frat B. 4-1-5, Sir Charles 6-6-6, Rose Croix 8-7-8.

Time—2:09¼ 2:07½, 2:08¾.

The cry went up after this race "another Wilkes for Pa Hamlin to think about." Caid, by Highwood and Dione by Eros showed some wonderful speed. Caid stepped the second quarter in the second heat in 31 seconds, and Dione the third quarter in 0:30¾ in the third heat. When you see 7-8 or 6 in the summary, don't think the horse taking that position was far back, as they were all well bunched. Dione went a great race for such a little pet. The California horses have the call among the lovers of the noble animal here. Mr. Keating is looking pretty well, but is far from being a strong man. His horses all look remarkably well for the campaign they have had. Yours,

Samuel Gamble.

It is reported that Hon. J. W. Bailey of Gainesville, Tex., will buy a farm near Lexington, if he can find one that suits him, and start a breeding establishment there. Mr. Bailey owns the good stallion Electric Bell, son of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells, and eighteen or twenty high-class broodmares, now being cared for at the farm of Major P. P. Johnston.

Idolita (2) 2:21—A Promising Youngster.

At Boston September 20th, Idolita, a two-year-old bay colt by Meodocioo 22,607 (3) 2:19½, dam Edith, by Geo. Wilkes, won his first start, getting a record.

This colt was sold at Wm. B. Fasig's blue ribbon sale held at Cleveland last May. He was purchased by Dan Mahoney for Senator Jones of New Hampshire and brought $4,700.

In the month of April before leaving Palo Alto for Cleveland he worked a mile in 2:24 and did it so handily that he was considered one of the best two-year-olds ever developed at the famous farm. He did very well in his new home until the day before he was to be shipped to trot in the Horse Review stake, when he and Betonica were taken sick.

It was reported that Idolita was a very sick colt, and his friends in California thought his chances for starting in 1898 were destroyed, but he is a rugged colt and recovered in time to trot in September in 2:21. It was a very creditable performance considering his disadvantages and sustains the good opinion expressed by those who gave him his early education.

He is a remarkably fine individual and in blood lines he is par-excellence. Her sire Mendocino, is one of the purest gaited trotters on earth, his superior in form for the production of speed does not exist. Electioneer himself did not equal him in muscular power.

Mendocino, known as Monaco, is by the great Electioneer 125, out of Mano, by the game race horse Piedmont 904. She is also the dam of Electant (3) 2:27, reduced this year to 2:18¾. Of Morocco, by Electricity, trial as a two-year-old 2:22, three-year-old, 2:18½. Mendocino, Electant and Morocco, were the first three foals of Mano, her other living foal now a yearling.

The dam of Mano was Mamie, by Hambletonian Jr., 1882. She was the dam of the fast but ill fated Howard, destroyed by fire, Mithra (p) 2:17, Hyperion 2:21¾ and Memento 2:25¼. Her dam was the trotting thoroughbred mare Gilda, by imp Mango.

The dam of Idolita is Edith by Georga Wilkes 519. She produced Hummer, sire of Bonncer, 2:10; Stately (p), 2:11½; Spalpeen (p), 2:12¾, and others.

The grandam of Idolita, Edith Carr, by Clark Chief 89, produced Campbell's Electioneer, 2:17¾, sire of Symboleer (p), 2:11, reduced this year to 2:09; and of Rockefeller, 2:29½; third dam Easther Carr, by Edwin Forrest (Carr's); fourth dam, by imp. Margrave; fifth dam Kitty Muse, by Shakespeare.

Mendocino is regarded at Palo Alto as one of the great young sires, his yearlings out of Beautiful Bells, Esther and Sallie Benton, strong arguments in favor of the high opinion placed on him as a great producer. Rio Alto.

Register Your Stock.

There is plenty of time between now and November 1st for any breeder or owner to register his stock and if any one is too late with his entries he will not be able to say with truth that ample notice of the incoming of the standard was not sufficiently advertised, says the Horseman. Besides this, the changing of the rules presently in force has been under discussion off and on for the past three years, and during all that time the handwriting on the wall has been plain enough to see, easy enough to understand. The wise man is he who will take advantage of the latitude still available and record every animal, male and female, in his possession eligible to record under the rules that will remain in force until November 1st next, for the time is surely coming when associations will demand protection from the Register authorities and registration in some pedigree record or other will be required before any horse will be allowed to start in any race, no matter what his age, just as is at present done on the running turf. So long as the authorities of the Register Association believe in advancing, the next and only step that can possibly be in reason taken is to throw aside all conditions but one and admit to registry only the progeny of registered parents. Without reopening any of the old discussions, it is safe to say that from the best bred parents the fastest trotters and pacers will eventually come—that is to say, before many years the descendants of the horses now registered or shortly to be registered will constitute the cream of the breed. They will be able to go faster at the harness gaits than the horses of any other breed, which must come with development and concentration, just as thoroughbreds as a body run individually and collectively faster than any other horses. With the best of the performers included among those registered or eligible to registry under the rule suggested as the only one that can ever take a place in advance of those that will go into effect November 1st, it would be useless to form any other registry for the purpose of protecting associations and breeders and owners against fraud; therefore, the American Trotting Register will eventually be given the place in connection with trotting and pacing racing that is given the Stud Book in England and Bruce's American Stud Book in the United States in running racing. This seems bound to follow and in a few years at most, for which reason it seems that the wisest course will be to make all the registrations possible under the present rules, for there are thousands of mares and horses now eligible that will fall very far short of being so under the new requirements. It may be averred that no such step will ever be taken; let it be pointed out that a few years ago most folks thought no such stringent registration rules would ever be put in force as those that are advertised to go into effect next month but one. It would be no greater advance from the prospective requirements to narrow the conditions down to merely "registered sire and registered dam" than it was to jump from the then existing rules to the new—perhaps not so great,

Champion of the Year.

At Louisville, Kentucky, on Monday last, Bingen, the five-year-old grandson of Electioneer, proved himself the champion trotter of 1898. He started in a race for horses of the 2:11 class and had to meet such good ones as Caid, Tommy Britton, George Anna, Joe Glass, Captain Jack, Fred B., Caryle Carne and Hans McGregor. This was a field worthy the extreme effort of any free-for-all trotter to beat, and Bingen proved himself equal to the task, although it was a hot fight from start to finish of the six heats trotted before the race was won. Bingen won the first heat in 2:06¾, the fastest mile trotted this year, and never beaten but by Alix, Nancy Hanks, Azote, Directum and Fantasy. The second and third heats went to Caid in 2:07¼ and 2:10½. Bingen then took another whirl at first place and landed a winner of the fourth heat in 2:09¼, while Georga Anna managed to get his nose in front in the fifth heat in 2:12. The sixth and deciding heat was won by Bingen in 2:11¾. Bingen is a result of the Electioneer-Wilkes cross, being by May King son of Electioneer, and May Queen, by Norman 25, out of Young Miss, a daughter of Young Jim, by Geo. Wilkes, second dam Miss Mambrino, a daughter of Red Wilkes. There is a great deal of the blood of old George Wilkes in Bingen's dam. Bingen was bred in Kentucky and was sold as a yearling to Geo. W. Leavitt and E. H. Greeley of Ellsworth, Maine. In his two-year-old form he took a record of 2:19¼, and went an exhibition mile in 2:12½ over Rigby. During that campaign he was sold to J. Malcolm Forbes. As a three-year-old he reduced his record to 2:12¾, but was never right. In 1897 he was in the stud. This year he has started five times, and in four of these races he has won a heat faster than 2:10 He has always been driven by Henry Titer, who entered Mr. Forbes' employ when Messrs. Leavitt and Greeley sold the colt to the Ponapoag breeder. Bingen's speed has always been known to those who have seen him in his races, but he has been considered one of the erratic, unsteady sort that cannot be depended upon. He is improving however, and as the result of his last Monday's race shows, he has proven himself a race horse by defeating one of the best and fastest fields that has lined up for the word this year.

The Broodmare Emma Robson Dead.

At the branch of Palo Alto Stock Farm, Vina, Tehama county, Cal., on the 23d of this month, the thoroughbred mara Emma Robson died of old age, having lived 26 years. She was a bay mare, 16 hands, foaled 1872, bred by Put Robson, Cal. By Woodburn, son of Lexington, dam Lady Bell, by Belmont (Williamson's). She was one of the thoroughbred mares selected by Senator Stanford to breed to trotting stallions. While she did not attain the prominence of Dama Winnis and Esther, thoroughbreds that produced speed at the trot, she appears in the Year Book as the dam of four standard performers.

Her daughter, Rowena (2), 2:17, by the half-thoroughbred sire Azmoor, 2:20½, was the first two-year-old to beat 2:20 in a race. At Sacramento, September 10, 1892, Rowana won the two-year-old stake, trotting the second heat in 2:19½, and later on against time trotted in 2:17¼ and on another occasion to beat 2:17¼, repeated in 2:19¾, 2:17.

Emma Robson is also the dam of Emaline 2:27½, Attractiva 2:27½ and Emma R. 2:28¾. Besides those written records she was the dam of the fast filly Emir, by Advertiser and Clary, by Clay, one of the best road horses ever raised at Palo Alto.

Three of Emma Robson's daughter have been retained at Palo Alto for broodmares Emaline, dam of Sportly 2:29½, by Piedmont 2:17¼, Emma R. and Rowena.

The dead daughter of Woodburn was a good broodmare, she produced speed, was the dam of four, in the list, five of her produce sold from Palo Alto averaged over $1,000 each, so she went to horse Heaven, the ledger showing a balance to her credit. Rio Alto.

California's 2.10 List.

This State has done well in the production of 2:10 trotters and pacers as the following list will show. The horses named were all bred and foaled in this State. The trotters are eighteen in number, headed by the championship trotting gelding Azota 2:04¾, and Directum 2:05½, the champion stallion.

TROTTERS.

THE OPEN AIR HORSE SHOW.

A Very Successful Exhibition Given By the San Mateo County Horse Show Association.

On Friday and Saturday of last week, at the picturesque grounds of the Country Club at Burlingame, San Mateo county, one of the most successful horse shows ever held in California was given by the San Mateo County Open Air Horse Show Association. There were the charms of perfect weather and a gaily attired crowd of several hundred spectators to add to the social pleasures of the occesion, while the classes of horses shown were a revelation and a surprise to many, especially when the California bred horses entered the ring to be judged. The officers of the Associetion were nearly all present and under the ehle manegement of the President, Major J. L. Rathbone, there was little to be desired in the manner in which the affair was conducted during the two days. The Associations officers are as follows: President, Major J. L. Retbbone; Honorery Secretary, Frenk J. Carolen; Directors, John Parrott, William D. Howerd, Prince A. Poniatowski, John C. Kirkpatrick, John Lawson, E. D. Beylerd, R. M. Tobin, J. D. Grent, W. S. Hobert, A. B. Ford, George A. Newball, Henry J. Crocker, Baron von Schroeder and George A. Pope; Ring Committee, H. J. Crocker, Baron von Schroeder, J. B. Crockett, J. A. Donahoa, W. P. A. Brewar and R. M. Tobin; Judges, Prince Poniatowski, John C. Kirkpatrick and E. D. Beylard, Veterinary Surgeons, Drs. Egan and Masoero; Ringmester, Richard Grabam.

There were thirty different judging classes, eighteen of them heing judged on Friday, and tha others on Saturday. In the class for trotting stallions there were but two entries, Mr. Creswell's Button Jr. and Mr. Kenner's Lightfoot, the first named heing awarded the blue ribbon. That magnificent horse Magnet, by St. Blaise, owned by Prince Poniatowski, was the only entry in the class for thoroughbred stallions. Three hackney stallions entered tha ring in competion for tha blue ribbon, and that splendid animal, Green's Rufus, owned by The Baywood Stud, carried off the honors. Ha was afterwards shown with five of his get and they were a very fine-looking lot.

Probably the most interesting featnre of the show during tha two days was the exhibit and judging of tha California-bred pairs, fifteen hands or over. No less than nine pairs went into tha ring, and tha most ardent admirer of tha park carriage horse, would ba compelled to admit after an inspection of these handsoma pairs that California can produce first-class animals of this type, as well as high-class trotters and runners. The honors of this class went eesily to the Baywood Stud's Pepita and Paquita, two handsome mares, with the most perfect and elegant manners wa have ever seen in a carriaga pair. It was the opinion of meny thet this pair ontclassed all other entries for ladies' driving pairs, but they were beaten on appointments, though the program did not state that thesa would ba considered. The Baywood Stud secured four blue ribbons and several seconds and thirds during tha show.

Mr. W. Hohart has somehow acquired a hebit of carrying away the majority of tha first prizes wherever ha exhibits any of his horses. He is most energetic as wall as enthusiastic, and handles his own horses in tha ring. Fourteen blue ribbons went to his entries. Messrs. J. D. Grant, R. M. Tobin, John Lawson, George A. Newhall, F. J. Carolen and others were well represented in the show. There is much to be learned at these horse shows, and California breeders who desira to breed horses that will sell at good figures should aim to attend them. Tha lists of awards made during the two days is as follows:

California-bred Pairs of Horses (15 hands or over)—First, the Baywood Stud's Pepita and Paquita; second, D da Guigne's Punch and Poker; third, H J Crocker's Visalia and Fresno. Los Angeles Horse Show.

The managers of the Southern California Horse Show Association are meeting with success far beyond their expectations. They are busily working on a pamphlet setting forth the classsification and prize list for the coming show. More than $5,000 in prizes will he offered, beside various special prizes in the shape of cups, harness, etc., which have been voluntarily offered by friends of the association, in California and elsewhere. Everything points to a great success in the initial horse show which will take place in January next. Special distinctive features are being prepared, which, while not interfering with the ordinary features of the horse show, will serve to place this on somewhat different lines from any horse show heretofore held in the United States.

The list of officers and vice-presidents as far as made out is given below. Men as far East as New York and Boston have been asked to serve as honorary vice-presidents, thus making the interest as widespread as possible.

M. S. Severance, president and treasure.; Horace A. Dobbins, vice-president; M. E. Wooster, secretary; honorary vice-presidents (complete list will be issued later), Charles Forman, Alfred Solano, William Lemoyne Wills, J. G. Mossini Fred K. Rule, L. J. Rose, Count Jaro von Schmidt, Kaspare Cohn, E F. C. Klokke, John F. Francis, W. G. Nevin, H. J. Crocker of San Francisco, Francis J. Carolan of San Francisco, Josepb D. Grant of San Francisco, George A. Newhall of San Francisco, John F. Boyd of San Francisco, F. W. Covey of Palo Alto, M. Theo Kearney of Fresno, John S. Cravens of Pasadena, Baron von Schroeder of San Francisco, Graham E. Babcock of San Diego, Henry T. Lee, Frank S Hicks, Alfred H. Wilcox, W. L. Hall, J. J. Fay Jr., E. T. Stimson, Walter S. Newball, Godfrey Holterboff Jr., M. M. Potter, William Banning, Dwight Whiting, H. Newmark, S. P. Stewart of Santa Barbara, Thomas B. Bard of Hueneme, Robert Lea Bettner of Riverside, G. L. Waring of Riverside, William S. Tevis of Bakersfield, F. P. Morrison of Redlands, Roy Jones of Santa Monica.

The last great horse show of France was held at Alencon, in the Department of the Orne, last July. The prize money amounted to sixty-three thousand francs ($12,600), of which 32,000 were donated by the general government of the republic, and thirty thousand by the department named. In addition the Minister of Agriculture offered thirty gold and thirty silver and some bronze medals as special marks of honor to the animals winning them. Thirty-three French coach stallions, two years old, were shown: 98 three-year-olds, 42 two-yeer-old fillies, 49 three year-old fillies, bred in 1898 to a government stallion or one authorized or approved, 40 mares not followed by foals at foot but bred in 1898 to government, authorized or approved stallions, these mares to have produced foals in 1896 or 1897, 111 brood mares, four years or over, with foals at foot or about to foel, the foals to be got by government, authorized or approved stallions and the mares bred again in 1898 to stallions similarly qualified (or to be bred again), and four trotters, entries to this last class being open only to horses and mares that have taken part in at least three trotting races in 1897 or 1898 and won at least one first money, geldings not eligible. As the French government buys, authorizes and approves only perfectly sound stallions and accepts to its stallions only mares free from hereditery defect, owners are, by these conditions, summarily debarred from showing unsound brood stock. The phenomenal soundness of the French coachers, as a breed, is thus easily explained.

POINTS OF SHOW HORSES.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman—Sir: The successful Horse Show held last week on the grounds of the Burlingame Club must draw the attention of all classes of horsemen to the advantages of country shows as a place to exhibit their horses. The readers of your paper are certainly most competent to judge or understand the whys and wherefores of the judging of roadsters, the trotter with good road qualities, which need not necessarily win a race, that must have speed good manners and good looks. To judge such classes there are as many men who understand the roadsters in California as well as anywhere in the world. The heavy harness horse is a newer thing to us out here, but one in which we are all interested, as it affords a good home market for horses bred in the State (if bred properly) and increases very much the number of pleasure horses kept by people of means. Without criticising in any way the San Mateo County Horse Show Association, I think that one could venture to say that their program was made without any idea that it would fill so well, or the classes would have been made more distinct, and the judging easier for those to whom it was intrusted and plainer to those who were looking on.

We can divide the heavy harness horse in three classes—the road, the town and the park, and we can consider that in these classes we are running down a scale, beginning with strength and utility and ending with high action and manners In a road class the horse's capacity to get over the ground, the easiness with which he moves, his bone and strength of conformation, are the paramount qualities. The horse is expected to work and the more work he looks as if he could accomplish at a reasonable rate of speed (not more than 10 or 12 miles an hour) the better horse he is.

In the town class the same qualities are needed, only the judge must pay more attention to the action and good looks of the animal.

In a road class the color is of little or no importance; the calico or skewhald horse is often considered valuable and a pair of ill-mated colors would not be turned down before a less useful, but better-matched pair.

In the park class the horse's action, good looks and manners are first, and his good looks need not necessarily be of the useful kind. The horse must be elegant before all things. The action must be high and graceful. The amount of ground he covers or his speed need not be great.

These are the general distinctions between the three classes In a big show the horses are divided by size so that they are all within two or three inches of one another, which tends to make the judging easier.

Another consideration which is the same for all classes, is the kind of trap, vehicle which the horse or horses are said to be capable of drawing. The brougham or coupe horse must be stouter than the Victoria or gig horse. The same for a pair of landau horses or one for my lady's phaeton. Sometimes the class, road, town or park, is not indicated and only the kind of carriage. In the New York show there is a class of hansom cabs and at Newport this summer, there was one for Irish cars In such cases the cab or car and harness and general way in which it is turned out counts fifty per cent and the horse fifty per cent. The horse should be judged in this case for its peculiar adaptabilities to the use to which such traps are put.

I remember some years ago, seeing a big bay horse take first prize in the hansom cab class which was more fitted for a C spring barouche or a park brougham than for a knock-about utility carriage such as a hansom cab horse ought to be.

The details of appointments, or shall we call them the mysteries, are more difficult to understand. Some details are the result of careful and practical experience. The buckle of the hamestrap in a pair harness should be on the outside, because if the horse should fall and he unable to get up without being unharnessed, it is much easier to loosen the hames by pulling away from the pole. The same with pole chains when used. They should be made fast to the pole head and not to the kidney link.

Other details are matters of form, fashion and taste, as When and where housing-loin straps should be used; Pole chains are considered bad form on any trap not designed to be driven by a gentleman or lady.

We all admit that there is a certain conventional dress which we expect our fellowmen to wear if we ask them out to dinner. This dress is the same in San Francisco or New York, in Paris or London, in Berlin or St. Petersburg. In the same way there is a certain manner and style of harnessing horses and turning out carriages which is recognized as good form all over the world. All dress coats are alike, and yet there cannot be more difference in the shape of a garment or in the way it is worn. The individual who wears too many colors and embroideries is considered loud; so is the carriage that is too conspicuous by its shape or the amount of gilding or silver plate with which it is covered Naturally a great deal of this is custom and fashion and in these matters we are ruled by New York.

From the above remarks it can readily be seen that the same horses can meet in different classes and not occupy the same relative positions. The horse winning in the park class may be turned down in the road class. The horse winning in the town class standing the best chance of getting, if not first, at least some recognition in either of the other two classes.

In judging fours we have but two classes, the road and the park, and the recognized vehicle which the horse must be fitted to pull is the English road coach, commonly known in our country as a Tallyho, heavy and strong for public road work, and built lighter, but on the same lines for a gentleman's private park drag.

The team must be level, a four and not two pairs put together. The wheelers a little stouter and standing low to the ground, their short legs fitting them for their pole work. The leaders can have more daylight underneath them, lighter barrels and yet there should not be so much difference in size and general make-up that a wheeler and a leader in the same team cannot be driven together.

In no two classes is the fashion for the color of the horses so different as in the road and park teams. For a road team a variety of color is often considered preferable, and among coaching people a fine, well-made, showy skewhald (calico or pinto) will command a higher price than any other horse.

The park team on the contrary must be of one color, though many like three browns, chestnuts or bays with a grey or a cross—a brown and chestnut wheeler and the same in the lead, or bays and greys; but in the park class, everything else being even, the team of a solid color will take the prize from a mixed team.

The other distinctions between park and road teams are the same as for pairs or single horses, only the weight of the vehicle to be drawn being greater the difference between the animals is also greater. Too high action is more detrimental to a horse in a road four than in any other class.

Yours truly, E. D. B.

Meeting at San Jose.

At Sacramento during the State Fair meeting a number of the owners and trainers of harness horses got together and formed an association for the purpose of giving a five-days' meeting at San Jose this week. Quite a number of horses were taken to the Garden City and a very good program was arranged, and has been pulled off during the week. Racing began on Tuesday and will close to-day. The weather has been all that could be desired, while the track, a little slow early in the week, owing to the rains of Saturday and Sunday, has been in splendid condition during the greater part of the week. The summaries of the races for the first two days are as follows:

Thompson, ch s, by Boodle	Bunch	1	4	3
May B., blk m, by Alloona	Hellman	4	3	4

Time—2:18, 2:18¼, 2:21½, 2:21.

Harry Marvin, br h, by Don Marvio		2	2

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 28.

Pacing, 2:17 Class. Purse $300.

Billy Baker, b g, by Silkwood	Farrar	4	2
Belle W., b m, by Director	Wempe	3	4

Time—2:21¼, 2:18¼.

Pacing, free for all. Purse $400.

F. W., b g, by Dorsey's Nephew	Gordon	1	2
Rex Alto, b g, by Alto Rex	Farrar	3	3

Time—2:08½, 2:13¾, 2:08½.

Trotting, 2:11 Class. Purse $300.

Zombro, b s, by McKinney		1	2
Our Jack, b g, by Steinway	Sullivan	3	1

Time—2:15¼, 2:15¼, 2:16½.

Los Angeles Entries.

The free-for-all trot, 2:20 and 2:30 trot, 2:19 pace and 2:30 pace did not fill to the satisfaction of the board, and specials will be substituted. The Board has taken the free-for-all pace under advisement.

Running, Los Angeles Futurity—Ocorona, Ellen Wood, Carmencita, Peter Weber, Reina de Cuba, Rey el Rio, Correct, San Augustine, Sir Urian, Magdalenas, Miss Peel, Head Water, Obsidian.

Running, the Junior Handicap—Ocorona, Carmencita, Reina de Cuba, Rey el Rio, Correct, Ojai, San Augustine, Sir Urian, Magdalense, Headwater, Obsidian, Midlove, Bonibel.

Running, The Maiden Plate—Ellen Wood, Carmenita, Pauline Mosher, Rey el Rio, El Estro, Correct, Faversham, Frank Conklin, Caminetta, Ivola, Wood Robin, Peach Blossom, Leiter, Gilt Edge, Napian, Midlove, Miss Peel.

Running, The Santa Monica Scramble—San Mateo, Miss Daily, Castelar, Gracias, Celoso, La Galeta, La Maronia, Waif, Elsie Smith, Etta H., Chihuahua, Rubicon, Roadwarmer, Sport McAllister, Losette, Amass, Midlove.

Running, The Agricultural Park Stake—Texarkana, Carlist, Artesia B, Papinta, Eliwanda, Rey de los Angeles, Rey el Rio, Wildare colt, Frank Conklin, Wood Robin, Peach Blossom, Losette, Napian.

The late Col. R. G. Stoner left no will, and his estate will therefore be divided according to law—Mrs. Stoner receiving one-third and his two children an equal portion of the remainder. The estate consists of 1400 acres of the best land in Bourbon county, near the city of Paris; 2800 acres near St. Joseph Mo; a large stud of highly bred trotting horses and a considerable amount of cash and other personal property, estimated to aggregate from a quarter to a half-million of dollars. His children are Mrs. Sidney Clay of Paris and Warren Stoner of Mt. Sterling.

LOUISVILLE'S GREAT MEETING.

The meeting in progress at Louisville, Kentucky, this week is resulting in some of the greatest harness racing ever seen in America. On the opening day, Monday last, Bingen won the 2:11 trot after six heats were trotted, and in the first heat took a record of 2:06¾, the fastest heat trotted this year.

Searchlight won the 2:09 pace easily, it is said, in straight order, and though the time was 2:05¾, 2:05 and 2:08, he was not pushed to his limit and could have gone faster.

John A. McKerron, the California three-year-old that has been on the sick list a good part of the summer and is just getting back to form, went out in front of a good field in the first heat of the Preparation Stake, and came under the wire in 2:12½, only a half second slower than the champion three-year-old record for the year made by that other son of Nutwood Wilkes out here in California, Who Is It, 2:12. McKerron was not in condition to win, however, after this fast mile and the race went to Caprum, a son of Prodigal. Charley Herr, son of Alfred G., won the second heat in 2:13½, and Caprum's miles were in 2:12¾ and 2:12½. This is the fastest four heats ever trotted in a race by three-year-olds.

On the second day of the meeting, Klatawah, the great son of Steinway and Katie G., by Electioneer, won the Dewey Stake for three year-old pacers in straight heats, the best time being 2:11½. The Douglas Stake for 2:14 trotters went to John Nolan, by Prodigal. Pilatus, driven by Andy McDowell, took the first heat in 2:10. Askey got the next one in 2:08, and John Nolan then came on and took the next three in 2:08¼, 2:09 and 2:08. Mr. Foote, Nolan's driver, was fined $100 for laying up heats.

The Selbach Stake was for pacers. Such fast ones as Klatawah, Miss Logan, Lady of the Manor, Egozen, and six or seven others were starters. It was asking a good deal of Klatawah a three-year-old, to meet such a field of older horses, especially as he had gone a three heat race the day before. He was started, however, and won the first heat in the phenomenally fast time of 2:05½, three-quarters of a second below his former record, but he could not beat Miss Logan after that and she won the next three in 2:08¼, 2:08, 2:08, Lady of the Manor pushing her closely in every heat. Miss Logan appears to be invincible. This is Klatawah's first defeat, and there is no disgrace attached to it. Few three-year-olds could pace a winning race one day, and then break the record the day following. During the first three days of the Louisville meeting Dione, Stamboulette, Caryle Carne and Ellert started but all finished outside the money.

Thursday that wonderful little son of Direct 2:05½, Directly, which took a record of 2:07¾ as a two-year-old, and had never until last week been able to lower it when he paced in 2:05½, met the great Anaconda 2:04½, Chehalis 2:04½, Frank Bogash 2.04½, Bumps 2:04½, Ananias 2:06¾ and Planet 2:04¾. What a field of pacers? A faster seven never scored up for the word. Bumps was favorite, with Anaconda second choice, but Directly won in three straight heats, pacing them in 2:04½, 2:06 and the next in the wonderful time for a third heat, 2:03½, the fastest heat paced in an actual race this year. An accident occurred in this heat. As the horses were coming into the stretch, Bumps' sulky ran against that of Frank Bogash and was overturned. Planet and Ananias ran into it. They were also overturned. Fred Keys, the driver of Ananias, had his right foot wrenched, while Dick Watson who handled Bumps, besides a dislocated shoulder, suffered severe internal injuries. Anaconda took second money in the race and Chehalis third.

The Kentucky Matron Stake for two-year-olds was won on the same day by Mary Celeste in 2:17½ and 2:18½, the fastest of the year for that age.

It would seem, judging from a letter received from one closely connected with Betonica, that he has recovered from his recent illness and is fast getting into form, has plenty of speed, but in his first start was unsteady. His race was described as follows: "Well, there would be no race to it if he would stay on his feet. In the first heat he broke going around the first turn and was more than twice shut out, but came on fast, going around the lower turn in 0:29½ seconds, and was well inside. In the second heat he broke again and had to go the middle half in 1:01½ and was well inside. In the third heat he broke again and was two hundred yards behind; he went down the back side in 30 seconds and around the lower turn he was right up in the bunch on the outside, outpacing them at every stride, and would have gone the mile in 2:05½ or 2:09, when another horse swerved into him, running his sulky wheel against his leg, causing him to break."

If the judgment of the man who wrote this letter is correct, and I believe it is, Betonica will yet verify the high opinion the Palo Alto people had of him; namely, that he was a good prospect for a champion.

The writer further said in a P. S. to his letter: "I expect Idolita to win to-morrow." His letter was dated Sept. 18th. His judgment was correct in this. Idolita did win the New England Futurity for two year-olds, losing the first to Chrystaline in 2:24½. He won the next two in 2:21¾, 2:21½, his first start. Rio Alto.

A National Horse Show Association is soon to be organized, the object of which is the raising of the standard of American horse shows to a higher degree of efficiency than that which at present exists. It has been suggested that the circuit open with a spring show in New York, to be followed by exhibitions in Boston, Newport, Westchester, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburg, Chicago, and close with the National Horse Show in New York. Harry G. Fields, the American representative of the Grand National Horse Show of London, England, is one of the promoters of the scheme, and is receiving the support of many wealthy and influential horse owners and dealers.

Egozen, 2:06¼, was known when a trotter as Zenith, 2:28¾.

Over a thousand naw performers have entered the 2:30 list this year.

Charlie B., 2:07¾, is credited with being the fastest paeer ever bred in Ontario.

Del Norte's mile in 2:04½ is faster than any of the guideless brigade have gone.

Anaconda has won about $7,000 this year, Dione $5,000 Klatawah $4,500 and Searchlight about $7,000.

Mr. Murray recently sold and shipped to Willard Stimson at Los Angeles to fine colts by Diablo.

The great McKinney, 2:11¼, is back at Oakland at Randlett's Stables, and will make a fall season at $40.

The records of campaigners are changing so often at this time of the year that it is hard to keep track of them.

Chicago expects to have a horse show the coming winter that will eclipse all former ones held in the windy city.

Nutwood Wilkes leads all sires of three year old trotters this year with John A. McKerron 2:12½, and Who Is It 2:12.

Alcantara will probably be sent from Peoria, Ill., to Monmouth, Ill., there being a demand for his services at the latter point.

The 2:15 pace, Glen Falls, had twenty-nine entries and three starters, while the 2:30 trot had fifth-eight entries and five starters.

One of the old time records that still stands is Dotchman's three miles under saddle in 7:32½. This was made August 1, 1839.

W. R. Janeier has shipped to Paris the three-year-old daughter of Electrite, Mona D., who has a two-year-old record of 2:29¼.

At the New England fair, Portland, Me., George Bishop New York, exhibited a horse that stood 20 hands high and weighed 2,000 pounds.

The Golden Gate Park Driving Association will probably give another meeting soon. The last one was a success, financial and otherwise.

The Rhode Island State Fair is now said to be the larges agricultural fair in the world. The distinction was formerly held by the great St. Louis Fair.

Jummye, the black filly by Directum 2:05¼, from Frank K., has reduced her record to 2:19½, and is expected to go much faster before the season ends.

Klatawah won the Dewey Stakes at Louisville, last Tuesday, in straight heats. He did not have to pace better than 2:11¼, which was very easy for him.

Driver McHenry, who is as good a judge of a horse as any man living, says Klatawah can go a quarter in thirty seconds easier than any horse he ever saw.

Charley Herr, 2:13½, by Alfred G., is certainly the race-horse three-year-old of the year. This youngster stands a drive that few old campaigners would take.

John Hussy is working Bellewood A. 2:07½, and Sally Toler, 2:08¾, to pole. He says they can beat the present team record of 2:08 handily a little later on.

Bingen, 2:06¾, the champion trotter of the year, is by a son of Electioneer, out of a grand daughter of Geo. Wilkes. The Electioneer–Wilkes cross is a great one for speed.

In his yearling form Arion was priced to R. I. Lee of Topeka, Kan., at $5,000, and at one time the former owner of Robert McGregor seriously contemplated taking the colt.

This office would like to hear from owners who have standard-bred trotting stallions for sale at reasonable figures. There are a few inquiries for stallions fit to do duty in the stud.

The "guideless wonder" has struck London and is more popular than when first introduced to an American crowd of racegoers. The Canadian trotter, Gold Ring, 2:12½, is doing the act.

Tommy Britton's one mile and 90 yards in the handicap at Hartford in 2:15½, was a most remarkable performance. This from a standing start and he was timed the mile from wire to wire in 2:09.

Del Norte, brother to Chehalis, 2:04½, on Wednesday of this week at Salem, Or., reduced the world's record for guideless pacers to 2:04½. The time by quarters was as follows: 0:30, 1:00, 1:31, 2:04½.

Australia is not much of a trotting horse country, yet the list of trotters that have won money in races there this year numbers about two hundred. The heaviest winner is credited with a little over $2,000.

In her race at San Jose last Wednesday, Much Better went to the quarter in the second heat in 0:31 and to the half in 1:03, five lengths ahead of the second horse. The mare was then pulled up and jogged home in 2:13¾.

Frank Frazier has returned to Oregon from the East with $7,500 in his jeans that he received from the sale of Chehalis, and it is said a few thousand more that he made while racing the great hoppled son of Altamont.

Electant, by Electioneer, dam Mano, by Piedmont, the only son of his great sire who has lowered his record during the season, is owned at Bowling Green, Mo, by the McCormick Live Stock Co. His present record is 2:19½.

Horsemen are proverbially liberal. One-half the receipts of the meeting at San Jose, Friday, are to be turned over to the widow of a fireman who lost his life in that city a few days previous while fighting a fire in the Hotel Vandome.

Scott Dickerson, a well-known Indiana horseman, died recently. He was the youngest brother of the Dickerson boys, noted as horsemen, and was an uncle of John Dickerson. He was quite a good reinsman himself and a genial man.

Mr. Eugene Ceeciat, of this city, has sold the game old five-mile champion, Bishop Hero, to Mr. J. Nightingale, also of this city, who will use him as a road horse. There are few horses that can beat this roan trotter on a brush down the pike.

One of the few sons of Hambletonian 10 brought to this State was the Stallion Ulstar Chief, owned by Josiah Sessions of Oakland. The horse died in 1890, and though many of his get were fine individuals, but one, Niles Beauty, 2:19, ever trotted below 2:30.

The brown prize-winner hackney stallion, Mars, son of Cadet, has been sold by Mr. A. J. Cassatt, Chesterbrook Farm, Berwyn, Pa, to Mr. F. A. Hornbeck, Kansas city, Mo., to head a new stud of hackneys which the purchaser will establish next spring. The price was a good one.

Betonica 2:10½, started at Rigby, and although unsteady and breaking so badly as to be last in the race, showed all the speed that has been credited to him. Quarters in 30 seconds have been reeled off by him several times recently. He was a very sick horse during the summer.

Up to the time when James Butler's great four year-old, Directum Kelly, became ill, he had won $11,500 in stakes and purses. He was entered for several valuable stakes, including the Massachusetts, at Readville, and Charter Oak, at Hartford, for which he was unable to compete.

John R. Gentry and Jo Patchen will meet at St. Louis October 5th for a purse of $5,000. This would seem to preclude the idea of Gentry and Searchlight coming together at the Los Angeles Fair which begins next Wednesday, unless Gentry is put on the train Thursday and started for California.

When Klamath finished unplaced at Hartford in the 2:08 trot, it was for the second time in his turf career, which has comprehended to date, 83 races. It is also fair to say that "Cookie" was far from himself in the race, owing to his injury at Fort Erie, from which he is not yet entirely recovered.

The dates selected for the fourteenth National Horse Show of America are November 14th to 19th, inclusive. Thirty three thousand dollars will be given in prizes, and entry blanks, etc., can be had by addressing "Secretary," 16 East Twenty third street, New York city. The books will be open until October 22d.

The pacing mare advertised for in this paper by a gentleman some weeks ago has been secured. More than a dozen replies to the advertisement have been received since the purchase was made. Three hundred and fifty dollars was paid for the animal, and the purchaser is well pleased with his bargain.

An item in these columns last week stated that the brood mare Bon Bon, owned at the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, is a sister to Lockheart, 2:08½. It should have read Bye Bye, instead of Bon Bon. The last named is by Simmons and the dam of Bonsaline (3), 2:16¼. Bye Bye, by Nutwood, has not yet produced a standard performance.

The death of Col. William Edwards of Cleveland, Ohio, which occurred last week, is a great loss to the trotting world. He was one of the pillars of the trotting horse industry and one of the leading citizens of the city in which he lived. He was President of the Cleveland Driving Association and an officer of the National Trotting Association.

The following item shows that New York has the youngest trotters that have yet appeared on a race track in an attempt to beat a record: "At Middletown-N. Y., last Thursday, L. H. Saga, Unionville, hitched up two trotting colts, on three and the other four months old, to a road wagon and drove them a quarter, on the Campbell track, in an attempt to beat one minute. The youngsters covered the distance in 52½ seconds."

Mr. J. M. Nelson is arranging to give a speed sale some time next month at the Alameda track. Trotters and pacers fit for the road or track are solicited for this sale. All having horses for sale that can be shown at speed are invited to communicate with Mr. Nelson at Alameda in regard to his terms The Alameda track is one of the finest places in the world to show horses. At Nelson's last sale there the horses sold brought an average of nearly $200 per head.

Horses have been named for the Transylvania, and there are fifteen of them—fifteen of the greatest horses that were ever named in any race. With this grand field the Transylvania of 1898 should far and away eclipse any race that ever took place for the classic event. The nominations are as follows: Askey 2:08¼, Bingen 2:06¾, Grattan Boy 2:08¾, Dione 2:09¼, Eagle Flanagan 2:07½, John Nolan 2:08, Caracalla 2:10. Cut Glass 2:10¼, Gayton 2:10¼, Belle J. 2:11. Pilatus 2:10, Sir Charles 2:12¼, Equity 2:12¼, Tom Boy 2:13¼ J. B. D. 2:13¼.

On Saturday, October 8th at the Alameda track, a match race will come off between the following horses owned by members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association of this city: M. Onlandi's Haviland, Mr. Stewart's Localeer, Mr. Johnson's Way Boy, Mr. Aigeltinger's Our Joe and Mr. Gommel's Pardee. The amount of the stake will be $125, each owner putting up $25. The race will be two best heats in three, the winner to take all. It is certain to be the most interesting and closely contested race that has been engaged in by members of this association and will draw a good attendance to witness it, no admission fee being charged. The horses are all quite evenly matched and will put all the heats in very close to 2:25.

Just think of it. The blood of Electioneer figures in the make-up of Klatawah (3) 2:05½, Sylvanway (3) 2:10¼, and Inferno (3) 2:15, all pacers, and the colt, filly and gelding race records for their ages and sex for 1898. The blood of Electioneer is also found in Matin Bells (2) 2:16¼, the filly race record for that age this year, and in the four-year old filly Moch Better, 2:07¼, the race record for four-year-old fillies of the year. The great brood mare Katie G., by Electioneer, figures in the breeding of Klatawah, Inferno and Moch Better. Lunado, by Electioneer, is the dam of Sylvanway, and Bow Bells, son of Electioneer, is the sire of Matin Bells.

Col Isaac L Goff of Providence has sold to a syndicate of well-known Providence business men five-sixths interest in all his horses numbering 23, including Bright Regent, 2:06½; Lady Geraldine (2) 2:16½; Wilark, br s, by Wilton; Lt. Hobson, bl c, by Guy Wilkes (a full brother to Lesa Wilkes, 2:09); Gen. Brayton, bs, by Sprague Golddust; L. L. G., bl c, by Oro Wilkes; Adondre, ch g, by Advertiser; Lenora, b f, by Mendocino; Rio Dancello, b f, by Rio Alto, 2:16½; Consolador, b c, by Altivo, and a number of promising colts and fillies. The Kansas City trainer, Erastus E. Ecker, has been engaged, and under his management at Narragansett track they are all stepping well. The stable will be known as the Fern Cliff farm.

The old California pacing mare Yolo Maid 2:12, by Alexander Button, dam by Deitz's St. Clair, has been sold by the Du Bois brothers to a young man named Arnold living at Littleton, Arapahoe county, Colorado. She is a bay mare over fifteen hands high and was bred by Charles Hoppin of Yolo, California. She was foaled in 1885 and was once owned by the late By Holly. Her record of 2:12 was obtained in her six-year-old form at Detroit, Michigan, on July 23d, 1891, defeating the famous Johnson 2:06¼, Dallas 2:11½ and Budd Doble 2:13 in straight heats in the then remarkable time of 2:16, 2:13 and 2:12. Mr. Arnold will use the Maid as a roadster and Major DoBois says she is good to go out any day and do her mile in 2:06.

Nevada State Fair.

Reno, September 22.—Carson Day at the State Fair brought out an immense crowd. There were bicycle races in the forenoon and horse races in the afternoon.

The first horse race was trotting, 2:25 class, mile and repeat—Peggy won, Ouihold second, Peo third. Best time, 2:26.

Second race, seven furlongs, purse—Lost Girl won, Hazard second, Archie A. third. Time, 1:31½.

Third race, running, four and a half furlongs—Tod Hunter won, Lucky Dan second, Gossip third. Time, 0:58½.

Fourth race, running, six furlongs—Sport McAllister won, Silver State second, P. A. Finnegan third. Time, 1:16½.

September 23.—Reno Day at the State Fair, with the special trains from Carson and the adjournment of the University and public schools, brought out the largest attendance the Fair has ever had, nearly 2,000 people being present.

Trotting, free-for-all, mile and repeat—Lottie G. won, Mamie F. second, Doc Button third. Best time, 2:25.

Running, five furlongs and repeat—Durango won, Iron Jacket second, Lucky Dan third. Best time, 1:03½.

Running, handicap, one mile—Lost Girl won, Hazard second, Adam third. Time, 1:46½.

Running, for district horses, one mile—Silver State won, Fannie E. second, Diabolito third. Time, 1:41½.

September 24.—To-day wound up the Nevada State Fair races. The results:

Trotting, free for-all, two-mile dash—Mamie M. won, Doc Button second, Ouihold third. Time, 4:59¼.

Running, handicap, one mile—P. A. Finnegan won, Silver State second, Fannie E. third. Time, 1:42¼, which is the State record.

Running, five furlongs—Gossip won, Silver Maid second, Katie Blake third. Time, 1:04½.

Turf Congress Proceedings.

If the delegates to the annual meeting of the Western Turf Congress in Cincinnati had done no other thing than to bury the foreign hook abomination beyond hope of resurrection, it could still be said that the meeting was of great value. But they enacted other measures and the following from the Commercial-Tribune will be found interesting to those concerned in the welfare of the turf:

"The following members of the Turf Congress were present: L. P. Tarlton, of the Latonia Jockey Club; W. F. Scholte, of the New Louisville Jockey Club; Robert Aull, of the St. Louis Fair Grounds Association; President C. C. Maffit; J. W. Russwurm, of the Tennessee Breeders Association; M. N. McFarlan, of the New Memphis Jockey Club; S. M. Apperson, of the Arkansas Jockey Club; A. S. Labold, of the Cincinnati Jockey Club; J. M. Unger, of the New Louisiana Jockey Club; Ed Corrigan, of the Pacific Coast and Hawthorne Jockey Clubs; Joseph A. Murphy, of the Detroit Jockey Club; F. F. Fowler, of the Queen City Jockey Club; James Howard, of the Washington Park Jockey Club; W. O Parmer, of the Highland Park Jockey Club, and Hugh E. Keough, of the Harlem Jockey Club.

"That passage of Rule 205 which specifies that there shall be no foreign hook on any Turf Congress track was lifted bodily from the rules and put in the by-laws and constitution. This makes it more effective than before, as it can now only be changed at an annual meeting, and then it requires a two thirds vote of the congress. Heretofore it could have been changed at any time by a telegraphic vote, if the members were so disposed.

"The question of restoring the foreign book to Turf Congress tracks was not even referred to in the session, as a quiet canvass before the meeting convinced its promoters that nearly all the members were unalterably opposed to it. A motion was made early in the meeting to lift the foreign book clause from the rules and make it a by-law and it went through without a dissenting vote.

"The reduction of purses was another subject that was not brought up, although Harlem was in favor of allowing racing associations to grade their purses as they saw fit, as long as they complied with the rule in the aggregate amount of money given away each day. No reference being made to the purse question, especially as Corrigan was opposed to it, the representative from Harlem did not have occasion to raise his voice.

"A number of rules were changed, the most important of which were as follows:

"Rule 54 was changed so as to define an owner. An owner includes part owner; but a trainer's contingent interest in the winnings shall not constitute ownership.

"Rule 26 was amended so that with the consent or permission of the official rendering the decision an appeal could be granted after the customary five days allowed.

"Rules 62, 78 and 79 were merged into Rule 62, which now reads: 'All entries must be made in the name or names of persons owning the horse. Failure to comply with this is liable to a fine, suspension and forfeit of all winnings.'

"A rule was passed which will bring joy to the jockeys. In the future it is compulsory with all Turf Congress racing associations to collect the jockeys' losing fees before a race.

"The second paragraph of Rule 186 was so amended that in case a man is ruled off for one of his horses running a fraudulent race, all the horses he owns and trains may also be ruled off.

"Public training stables were given a hard knock by the amending of Betting Rule 9 so as to read that any horses trained by the same man and run in the same race must be coupled in the betting.

"Artie Duffy applied for reinstatement to the privileges of the turf, claiming that he has never had a hearing in the Latonia electric saddle case. He was ruled off on the evidence of Jockey Aker and others of Latonia last fall for alleged use of an electric saddle. Duffy's case was referred back to the Latonia judges who rendered the decision.—L. P. Tarlton, Charles Price and Charles McLean.

"A huge batch of petitions praying for relief, among them being the Vengeance case again, were referred to a special committee composed of L. P. Tarlton, A. S. Labold, E. C. Hopper and James H. Rees. The committee will render final decisions on all petitions that have been presented.

"Stoney B. Montgomery, of the New Memphis Jockey Club, was elected President of the Congress; Robert Aull, of St. Louis, Vice President; O. L. Bradley, Treasurer and E. C. Hopper, Secretary. The next meeting of the Congress will be held in Chicago.

"Joseph A. Murphy, of St. Louis; L. P. Tarlton and E. C. Hopper were appointed a Committee on Rules. This trio will draw lots as to who will serve three years, two years and one year. The shortest term man retires at the end of the year and a new man is elected in his place. This was done to keep the committee as intact as possible for three years.

Saddle Notes.

THE Los Angeles meeting opens next Tuesday.

LEONVILLE broke down at Sacramento this week and will probably never race again.

TOD SLOAN is riding winners every day since he crossed the ocean to accept mounts on British horses.

JUDGE PRICE is putting the jockeys on the ground at Sacramento whenever they do any suspicious riding.

TO WHAT base uses good names are often put. Admiral Dewey has been ruled off the track at Fort Erie.

DIGGS won at Harlem last Monday, running the six furlongs in 1:16 and beating a good field of horses.

SINCK Fitzgerald was allowed to resume the use of the gate he is sending the fields away in good order again.

JAMES F. CALDWELL will do the starting at the Los Angeles meeting and Ben Benjamin will be handicapper.

JOCKEY ENOS put up a listless ride on San Augustine at Sacramento last Monday and was indefinitely suspended.

AN effort is being made to have the two Jockey Clubs here alternate their meetings every month instead of every two weeks.

HARRY KUHL, who will arrange the program of races for the Pacific Coast Jockey Club, will arrive in this city next week.

FRANK DAROUX has been found guilty of conducting a pool room at Sacramento, but will carry the case to the higher courts.

WILLIE MARTIN is riding again, and on his first appearance in the saddle since his accident, rode Irish Reel to victory at Gravesend.

PAT RAGAN is starting the horses at the Great Falls, Montana, meeting and is so successful at it that the papers there pay him the highest compliments.

LOOK over the liberal lot of stakes advertised to-day by the Pacific Coast Jockey Club. Entries for those to be run during November and December close October 22d.

JEAN BERAUD will not face the starter again this year. His owner thinks it advisable to let up on the great two-year-old now and give him a chance to grow and fill out.

ED CORRIGAN said last week that the $30,000 Stallion Stake will be run at Hawthorne October 8th, and that all the crack Eastern and Western two-year-old colts will meet in it.

FOUR bookmakers are able to handle all the money in the ring at the Jockey Club's meeting at Sacramento, and it is said a $5 bet will cause the hoards to be turned to the wall.

TURFMEN and breeders will be glad to hear that Volume VII. of the American Stud Book will be on sale within a week, the first copy having already been sent to Mr. August Belmont.

I. P. DIGGS, of Woodland, has sold to R. Hughes, of Oakland, Aileen B., a yearling filly by Red Iron, out of a full sister to Lilly Wright, dam of Diggs, Sutton, Arbaces and Olinthus.

ETTA H, the four-year-old mare by Flambeau—Miss Mitford has been running in excellent form this season. She was a good winner in Montana and beat Peixotto and Libertine at Sacramento last Friday in a driving finish.

JAMES WOOD, father of the well known light-weight jockey of that name returned last week from a visit to his old home in Scotland. He attended a few of the race meetings while in England but says he saw very little good racing.

MARCUS DALY'S Scottish Chieftain and Lady Reel have been shipped to England. Scottish Chieftain will be raced abroad next year, and Lady Reel will be bred to some prominent English stallion. She is the dam of Hamburg.

WHEN has there ever been a gamer or more consistent horse than Sir Walter, son of imp. Midlothian? After a year's retirement he came out at Gravesend last Wednesday and won at a mile and a furlong in 1:04, the track record.

SUTTON, son of Red Iron and Lilly Wright, ran a clever race at Harlem last week, winning at a mile and an eighth, beating Treachery and seven or eight other fair horses. The same day his full brother Diggs ran second to Mr. Johnson at six furlongs.

JOCKEY CONLEY has gone to Newport. His work at Hawthorne was not brilliant, and mainly because in nearly half his races he was left at the post. At that, he is a pretty strong finisher, but then there are few jockeys who can win on a horse left standing at the post.

M. F. DWYER'S Cleophus, Sly Fox and Rotterdam were all recently fired and blistered, on the advice of Dr. Sheppard, who thinks they will all stand training next season. Mr. Dwyer has reduced his string to less than half a score, having disposed of quite a number of two-year-olds by giving them away to whoever cared to take them.

GUSHING, cool and bright. Pure as the moonbeams. That's the character of the liquors. Hot with a spicy breath of the tropics is the "chile con carne" and the frijoles are reminiscent of Mexico. The Spanish lunch is a new and decidedly red hot feature "Among the Barrels." Help yourselves and be at home, 863 Market street. *

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "With warrants, writs of mandamus, suits and reformers Corrigan has probably found by this time that conducting a race track in the vicinity of Chicago is not an easy task. The habitual stoop of the President of Hawthorne has become more pronounced of late, and he has the appearance of a man who is careworn and troubled.

BRIAR SWEET, W. B. Jennings' full sister to that great sprinter, Dr. Hasbrouck, has an unbroken string of victories to her credit since she went East. If there ever was a consistent horse raced in the East, that one is Briar Sweet, for no matter at what distance she is entered or in what company, she has proven trustworthy, and in all cases won with something to spare.

"THE crowd that pulled off that coup with Tusculum at Hawthorne realized a fortune," said a prominent member of the Turf Congress last week. "Why, they alone took $18,000 out of the ring at Hawthorne, while every poolroom in the country was hit for $1,000 or more. Fully $50,000 was realized out of that job, and the Eastern poolrooms are still dazed from the shock they received."

THE Sohrante gelding Moringa demonstrated at Sacramento, Wednesday, that he is a horse of the improving sort. Virtually shouldering equal weight with Marplot, he tiptoed the latter from start to finish, winning by a couple of lengths in 1:28—a remarkably good run, when the slow condition of the track is considered. From a time standpoint it ranks as the best performance of the meeting.

THERE was a mild revival of the selling race war at Gravesend last week. Satin Slipper, winner of the fifth event, entered for $500, was run up to $1,300 by George Murphy, the owner of Miss Jimmy. Satin Slipper was retained by her stable for $1,350. In the bundle race Messrs. Hitchcock secured Tantris for $1,200, an advance of $400 over his entrance price. Tantris was taken from the Hitchcocks at the recent Sheepshead Bay meeting and now returns to his old stable.

LITTLE JOHNNY REIFF is the sensational jockey at Harlem. Considering his youth—he is little more than a child—he is simply a wonder in the saddle. Judge Rees has restricted Johnny's mounts to two a day, and because a greater number would be too much tax on the boy's strength. He got an ugly tumble while riding Stamina in a race, but escaped unhurt. Jockey Young, who fell with his mount in the same race, was not so fortunate as his collar bone was broken.

PERSONS who go to the races every day of the season used to be called the "talent." The phrase has fallen into disuse, and instead of the "talent" the "lambs" are now referred to as bettors—not betters. A stranger to this year's racing recently asked a veteran: "Why the change?" The veteran didn't know, but he thought that the change was brought about by the Percy-Geary law, which did away with the howling dervishes and the blackboards and the chalk and the sponge in the ring.

THE lives of some American thoroughbreds nowadays are full of change and interest, as for instance: Reports from Poona, India, state that the Viceroy's Cup candidate, the American horse Keenan, is doing really fine work, but his trainer labors under the disadvantage of having no horse in his stable which can lead him. Keenan, it will be remembered, went to England in Mr. August Belmont's string, and was afterwards sold to Lord Wm. Beresford, who resold him to be sent to India for the Viceroy's Cup.

MESSRS A. H. & D. H. MORRIS have decided to retire The Friar from the turf, and he will go into the stud at R. W. Walden's Bowling Brook Farm in Maryland. He has been troubled with lameness in his hip, which continues to get worse. The Friar is by Friar's Balsam, dam Lizzie Baker, by Longfellow out of Bertha B., by imp. Buckden, etc., and when in condition is one of the fastest horses that has ever shown on the American turf. He is also royally bred, and his career in the stud should be a successful one.

CHAS. H. NICOL of New York, manager of the Historical Company and publisher of the American Turf, is suing ninety men of the turf, the list embracing trainers, jockeys and horse owners, for sums ranging from $25 to $100. The American turf is a "write up" and the price of each copy of the book is $25. For this sum each subscriber has a photo engraving of himself in the work, together with a very handsome puff. Thus far the firm has recovered about twenty-seven judgments on default, but whenever the case is fought in the courts the defendant generally wins.

AN appreciable increase in the revenues of the Coney Island Jockey Club for the season of 1898 over those of 1897 speaks more eloquently than words of the growing popularity of the sport; and if the efforts of such sportsmen as August Belmont, Col. Lawrence Kip, W. K. Vanderbilt, J. H. Bradford and Cornelius Fellows prevail, this popularity will be kept from retrograding. On the strength of its successful season, the Coney Island Jockey Club has planned many improvements in the grounds, which will be made equal in appointments to any in America.

THE following is the decision of Judges Rees and Kuhl in the case where R. F. Myers was accused of dishonest racing: "Having thoroughly investigated the races in question and being satisfied beyond any question of doubt as to the guilt of R. F. Myers, owner and trainer, and Allen Nixon, jockey in accordance with the American racing rules governing same, Allen Nixon, jockey, and R. F. Myers, together with the following named horses, owned and trained by him are ruled off the turf: Tusculum, Fillibuster, Obstinate Simon, Boerdmarker, Frank Stanton, Getabout, Dayton Star, Sun Bonnet and Immense.

THE Kentucky Derby, one mile and a quarter, value $6,000; the Clark Stakes, one mile and a furlong, value $4,000, and the Kentucky Oaks, one mile and a sixteenth, for fillies, value $3,000, will close on Oct. 15th. These stakes are for foals of 1897, and will be run at the Spring meeting of the New Louisville Jockey Club in 1900. They are important events, and should not be overlooked.

JUDGE PRICE did a good thing at Sacramento last Friday when he fined Jockey Snider $25 for beating the horse Koko over the head at the finish, where the horse could run no better than fourth. There is too much maltreating of horses by the jockeys. The majority of bad acting horses are made so by bad treatment. A heavy fine inflicted every time a jockey is discovered maltreating his mount would work quite a reformation.

ABUSE has abnormal enlargement of the fetlock joints. To look at him you would not give 30 cents for his chances against a good race horse. His ankles swell up to the size of an ordinary canteloupe. But how he can run! He likes to race in the lead, but can rate along in the bunch and run in the stretch with any of them. He is as game as they breed them. Abuse has started twenty-eight times this season, won twelve races and been outside the money but once.

IT looked, not so very long ago, as if there a number of extremely good two-year-olds out this year, with Jean Beraud, Martimas, Black Venus, Glenheim, Kingdon, Autumn and Frohsinn as top-notchers, but recent races have cast the shadow of uncertainty over this idea, and now there is a great element of uncertainty as to which, if any, of those named is entitled to a place in the class in which they were first named. Without any apparent reason for his change of form, Jean Beraud, who was looked upon as the premier, has gone back, until horses that were of admittedly inferior class have soundly beaten him. Martimas, the Futurity winner, dimmed the lustre of Jean Beraud's star in the Flatbush Stakes, and then in the Junior Championship Stakes Black Venus, a new star in the turf firmament, took the polish from both. She showed up in such great form that she was conceded to be almost invincible, but she delivered the followers of form a blow in the Willow Stakes at Gravesend from which they will not soon recover.

A LOT of yearlings were sold during the recent Doncaster meeting in England, and good prices were obtained in a number of cases. For the purpose of comparison with American prices we give some of the best figures realized: A filly by St. Simon—Pannonia, brought $3,000; filly by Bend Or—Springtime $3,600; colt by Saraband—Mosque, $3,500; filly by Queen's Birthday—Queen of the Florin, $3,000; filly by St. Angelo—Berengeria, $3 000; colt by Wellington—Lovelorn, $7,250; Modal Queen, filly by Lord Lorne—The Empress, $2,500; colt by St. Simon—Marchioness, $4,000; colt by St. Simon—Mimi, $3,700; colt by Morion—La Flecbe, $13 500; filly by Orme—Wedlock, $5,750; filly by Morion—Solesky, $4,550; colt by Isinglass—Sweet Lavender, $3,300; Simonella filly by St. Simon—Pamela, $6 750; filly by St. Serf—Orsova, $3,550; colt by Trenton—Golden Agnes, $5,750 The foregoing are the best prices, though $1,000 was obtained for a number, both colts and fillies. The prices of the fillies would seem to indicate that the prejudice against them in this country does not exist in England to any great extent.

THERE seems to be a spirit of unrest among many of the Eastern turfites as indicated by the repeated rumors of new tracks being started. A daily paper says: "Agents of the outlaw horsemen are, according to certain sources, ready to break ground for a mile course on Staten Island, near the site of the old Wild West grounds. An old merry-go-round path about Yonkers is to be enlarged by local speculators and a racing association organized; a co-operative body of horsemen are on the verge of taking one of the Parkvilla driving parks for a meeting that will revolutionize the sport; Mr. Richard Croker is about to bond or purchase outright a plot of ground on the main line of the Long Island Railroad and reproduce all that is desirable of the English courses, and Mr. W. H. Clark, former Corporation Counsel, has secured the territory for a big recreation park and track in Westchester county. Mr. Clark has acquired 86 acres of land above Morris Park. He expects to use the same as winter and training quarters for his racing stable. A track will be built for training purposes and the horses of Mr. Clark's string fitted thereon for their racing engagements."

THE PERFORMANCES of California horses in the East this summer have attracted renewed attention to this State as a winter training ground. The Eastern horses have done better during the past few weeks than they did earlier in the season, and more than one prominent trainer gives it as his opinion that the reason therefor is, that early training is not possible in that section of the country. There are several tracks in California, now in a state of innocuous desuetude, which could be made very lively training grounds were they in the hands of the proper parties. At the historic town of Pleasanton, for example, were the track there fitted with accommodations for three or four hundred horses, and the track widened so that both runners and trotters could be worked over it, the stalls would be filled from November 1st to June 1st, the town would reap a big benefit from the money which would be spent with its merchants for the sustenance of the men and horses, horsemen from the East would be tempted to come to California with their horses to train, and a renewed interest in horse breeding and training would naturally be aroused among the people of this State. Pleasanton is not the only town in the State which has these advantages. There are several other tracks where light soil, which quickly dries out after a rain, and good roads in the vicinity thereof, make an ideal winter training ground, and it is only a lack of enterprise and proper management that keeps them from being well patronized every year.

THIS YEAR has been an eye-opener to the farmers and stock-breeders of California, inasmuch as it has taught them the value of the district fairs. That the water is never missed until the well is dry, is a true saying and an old one. While the people who paid the taxes which supported California's annual agricultural shows always considered they were getting full value for their money, they never realized what great benefits resulted from them until the Governor of the State, entertaining a false idea of economy, knocked them temporarily out of existence. There is not a county in California but has been injured in a financial way to the extent of twice the amount that the appropriation for an annual fair would have cost its taxpayers. The claim now made by the State administration that there is a million dollars surplus in the treasury is proof conclusive that its other claim was a false one which attempted to justify the cutting of fair appropriations on the ground of necessary economy. Those who have been injured during past two years by the failure of the districts to hold fairs, will use their votes and influence in November to the end that a Legislature and a Governor are elected who are pledged to the restoration of these annual exhibitions of the State's products.

TWENTY-SIX STAKES to be run on the Ingleside course, "the finest winter race track in America," are announced in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN by the Pacific Coast Jockey Club. Eight of these stakes are to be run in November and December. They are:

The University Stakes—One mile for three-year-olds, $1,000.

The San Francisco Stakes—Six furlongs, for two-year-old fillies, $1,500.

The Golden West Stakes—Mile and a half, for three-year-olds and upward, $1,000.

The Palace Hotel Stakes—Handicap Steeplechase, over the short course for three-year-olds and upward.

The Hobart Stakes—Mile and a quarter, handicap, for three-year-olds, $1,500.

The Christmas Handicap—Two miles, for three-year-olds and upward, $1,500.

Besides the above there are eighteen stakes ranging in value from $1,000 to $5,000 which are to be run after January 1, 1899, among them the California Derby at a mile and a quarter $5,000, and the Ingleside Stakes a handicap for three-year-olds and upwards, four miles, $3,500.

Horse owners should allow none of the opportunities to earn large purses escape them. The meeting will begin November 14th, and all owners and trainers should give it their hearty support. The very best way to do this is to enter liberally in these stakes. All of them are valuable, and the conditions of each race have been carefully formulated. The Ingleside track is an ideal one for training and racing during the winter season, is easy of access, splendidly appointed in every way, and the management is alive and energetic in its endeavors to do everything to make things pleasant and comfortable for their patrons.

Entries to the stakes to be run during November and December will close October 22d, and no owner of trainer that proposes to race his horses in California this year can afford to allow the date to slip his memory, or fail to make entries in some of the stakes.

AT THE REQUEST of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, one of the gentlemen who performed the duties of a judge at the Open Air Horse Show held at Burlingame last week, has written an article for this paper in which some of the points required from ribbon winners at horse shows are set forth. The gentleman is an acknowledged expert in the judging of horses in the classes referred to in his communication, and it will be found both entertaining and instructive. California breeders and owners of road, town and park horses can read the article with great profit, and we hope to have further contributions from the gentleman's pen in the future.

Australian Notes

[New Zealand Referee.]

The celebrated Tocal stud sire Goldsbrough is dead.

The famous South Australian mare Josephine, by The Pelmer, from Miss Osborne, is dead.

The Australian Jockey Club has £5140 to the credit of the Distressed Jockeys' Fund.

It has been found that the Caulfield Cup winner, Cremorne, will not stand another preparation, and he has been sent home to Tabletop.

Abercorn has been withdrawn from sale and goes to England in October.

Aldershot, one of the few grandsons of Musket, is advertised for sale, and Mr. Ranger of Cameru is prepared to take a reasonable sum for the sturdy son of Foul Shot and Anterina, who he does not intend racing again.

Word has reached Australia of the complete breakdown in England of the dual Caulfield Cup winner Paris. Mr. H. C. White was determined to let the old fellow end his days in the luxurious Havilah paddocks, and he may be on his return to Australia now.

A bill introduced in the New South Wales Legislative Council, to legalize the totalizator, provides that clubs be allowed to deduct 10 per cent. of the amount invested, a quarter of which shall be handed to the Government for distribution among charitable institutions.

At a meeting of the Australian Jockey Club, the committee's recommendations, with reference to pony racing within the Metropolitan district, and a number of new rules, giving more complete control over owners, trainers, jockeys, and bookmakers, were adopted. The Chairmen strongly condemned proprietary racecourses, and advocated the introduction of the totalizator as a check on gambling. The Jockey Club's report condemns the pernicious influence of sweeps. An amendment was adopted giving the club power to disqualify horses racing at unregistered meetings.

Every indication points to an improved horse market in the near future. The great number of scrubs which have found their way to the markets, and for which there is no demand from any quarter, has to a certain extent handicapped the market, and the price of good horses been affected by the number and cheapness of these inferior animals, says Dr. M. W. Haviland in Maine Farmer. What to do with horses for which there is no market is a serious question, and the breeding of these animals should certainly cease and a new departure from methods now in use be taken. The farmer who sells a horse at four or five years of age for sixty or eighty dollars is not getting anything above what the animal has actually cost to place him upon the market. It seems strange that a breeder should duplicate an experiment which yields such poor returns.

It appears to the writer that the present situation is promising to the breeder of high class horses. A really good 15.3 or sixteen hand horse of true carriage, or gentleman's roadster type, has always brought a good price and will continue to be in demand in all the future. The supply of such animals is practically exhausted, and this fact taken in connection with a revival of business that is sure to follow our present war with Spain, can only result in good prices for superior animals. We have not been breeding since the depression in prices, and consequently have but few horses. We need have no fear that the horseless carriage so much talked about will ever take the place of the horse. They are too expensive and complicated to come into general use, and there are now as many horses used in the cities as there ever have been, while the demand must steadily increase as the business of the world increases, both for work and pleasure.

The export trade in horses from this country is one well worthy of consideration by those engaged in breeding. England, and in fact nearly every foreign nation is making increased demands at good prices for our best ones. They have found that it is cheaper for them to import their horses from America than to raise them, and if we are wise we shall try to produce the type of horse they want. Foreign agents who come here to buy, know just what they desire, and they will ship only such as are in demand in their respective countries. It is necessary, therefore, that the breeders of the United States shall fully understand the wants of the purchasing public, and then bend every energy to secure just such types of animals as are most sought after. The horsemen who have accomplished the most have been those who have had some definite purpose which they have kept constantly in mind. To be successful requires practical knowledge of the business, coupled with great energy and push. There never has been, and probably never will be, a time when any stallion or particular breed, however meritorious, will attain any very prominent place unless vigorously pushed forward by some one, but where a horse actually has merit a market for him and his stock can be worked up if the owner goes about it in the right way and keeps at it persistently. It will require the expenditure of some money and much thought to establish a high reputation either for some particular stallion, breed or stock farm; but in the end, if judiciously managed, the owner will be fully repaid for both. Much has already been accomplished in many different lines, and yet there are plenty of comparatively unworked fields.

There is a good field for one whose preference is in that direction for building up a reputation for the production of uniformly superior carriage and gentlemen's roadsters. Plenty of stock farms are famous for the production of speed, but the trotters fall short of meeting the requirements as they lack in nearly every essential point just what the markets require. They have no particular type, as they are produced in nearly every size, shape and breed known. They are wonders in their class; but they do not suit the fancy of ninety per cent of the purchasing public. Whether it be in the breeding of trotters, carriage and gentlemen's drivers, or in any other line, every one should, however firm his opinions may have been at the start, be ready to modify, or entirely change, if with further research and experience he has reason to do so. Uniform conformation and color, together with trappy gait, intelligence, courage and good disposition are the essential requisites that must be kept in mind if we would succeed.

Pasture Training.

Andy McDowell has adopted a new plan of training trotters. This is the way he does it according to "Yarrum." "In her race at Joliet, August 17th, Dolly Marshutz was a trifle lame behind, and before it was over she walked on the point of her toe and acted as if she was knocked out for the season. Andy had her shoes pulled off and turned her out to grass until the next week at Dubuque, where he caught her up and started her in the 2:40 class. In that race she was not good and had to be drawn. Another week's run at grass followed, and she was not harnessed until the 2:40 trot was called at Independence. In this race she could not trot a bit and caught the flag in the first heat and earned still another week's rest, so that when she was next harnessed—at Hamline, September 7th—she had practically not had a work out for three weeks and had been running out most of the time. In this race, however, she soon showed that she had been getting just the treatment that she needed, and she was never better in her life and won a good four-heat race, and instead of coming out of it in bad shape, as most any other horse would have done, she felt so good that Andy started her the next day in the $5,000 2:23 class and landed third money with her, and she actually showed more speed and raced better than she ever did before. If this mare had been strong enough Andy would undoubtedly have given her regular racing and training, but if a four-weeks' rest enabled her to go her best race, is it not a question as to whether or not she would have gone any better with regular training? Andy thinks she would have been one of the fastest green ones out this year if she had not been unfortunate, and he expects her to trot right close to the world's record if she stays sound another year.

Bay fishing and surf fishing have been most excellent for the past two weeks.

Carp have become a serious menace to the existence of other fish in the Humboldt river.

A very fine specimen of the tuna or tunny can be seen at Clabrough, Golcher & Co.'s. This is the fish which has given anglers so much sport in the waters of Southern California.

Striped bass are being caught on the Alameda sand beach at Bay Farm island. The bass go in there after the small clams. Clam necks are the best bait over in that section.

Rev. John Butler last week sent down a box from Eel river containing 300 small steelhead consigned to Secretary Markland, who distributed them among the Black Jacks and others.

J. V. Coleman and Dan O'Connell, the King of Ireland, returned from Eel river early during the week. They had good fishing and propose to return in October for the run of large fish.

F. W. S. Van Slyke, Chas. Dietz and Al Newman paid tribute to Neptune on last Sunday. They went to the Cordell banks on the steamer Arena. Newman says he "enjoyed himself."

At Port Costa striped bass have been caught recently with rod and line. Jack Cracknell reports that a string of twenty-eight fine striped bass were caught last week from the San Joaquin bridge, just above Stockton. Cooked shrimp was the bait used.

The San Francisco Fly-Casting Club will hold a regular business meeting on Tuesday evening. Chief Deputy Commissioner John P. Babcock, who returned from his outing at Pelican Bay this week, will deliver an address to the members after the adjournment of the business meeting.

Reports from the islands are that salmon are running in the San Joaquin river at a lively rate, going up to the higher tributaries to spawn. Just at the present it is against the law to take salmon, either by hook or spear. Nevertheless some of the island farmers assert that fish are being taken every day.—Stockton Independent.

The Garcia river bids for the presence of the angler just now; recent trials with fly and spoon have given much sport. H. Battu, George Dupuy and J. A. Fatjo returned from there last week; they report having had royal sport. Go to Point Arena by steamer, the trip takes less than two days, the river is within two miles of the town.

Messrs. Hunt and Fassett are in Eureka for the purpose of preparing the government fish hatchery at Price Creek for the reception of about 400,000 salmon eggs for incubation. They will be received within two weeks from the Battle Creek hatchery.

About 800,000 more will be forwarded before the close of the year to the hatchery in this county.

This will depend, however, on the harvest of eggs at Battle Creek hatchery in Shasta county. Last year over 40,000,000 eggs were secured.—Humboldt Times.

According to M. Jules Garnier, there is a gigantic species of eel in New Caledonia. It inhabits ponds at La Poya near the middle of the island; it grows to a length of six feet; its head is as large as a man's and the eyes are enormous in size and of vicious aspect; the color of the skin is green and the fish's gullet is abnormally large. The natives are said to be much afraid of this singular eel. A tropical climate must have an awful effect on the all-aged Crow one drinks in that country.

Among those who returned from Eel river this week were Judge O. P. Evans, Fred Venker, F. McCauley and Jack Sammi. They report the fishing to be good; the fish, however, are all of small size. Sammi is credited with a catch of nine steelheads, the biggest weighing nine pounds and the smallest two and a half pounds. The run of large steelheads is late this year. John Butler, Col. Kelleher and John Gallagher, Oakland's champion angler, are still on the river. Sammi, as the result of his success in angling, brought down two kegs of pickled fish; he reports that Rev. John Butler is the victim of an unlucky accident; one warm day last week, while assisting Ellis Robinson to put down a catch of fish in kegs, preparatory to shipping them to the city, the reverend gentleman who was breaking in a new set of false teeth, being somewhat loquacious, found it expedient to lay aside his store ivories; he placed them temporarily and safely as he thought, in the bottom of an empty keg; he absented himself from the packing quarters for a while and when he returned he hunted high and low for the teeth, but they could not be found; meanwhile Robinson had disappeared with the several barrels of packed fish, unbeknown to Butler, as empty kegs had been substituted for those filled and taken away. When Robinson returned he informed Butler incidentally that the fish had been shipped to various parties in the city. Butler's amazement and wrath was great, but it was too late to remedy the matter. As it stands now, somebody will draw a prize when he empties his keg of fish.

Many sportsmen who have recently had occasion to use Dr. Glover's Dog Remedies in getting their dogs in condition for the shooting season, are unanimous in praising the efficacy and value of these staple medicines in the highest degree.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Pinmas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

Mark!

Ducks, principally widgeon, sprig and teal, are reported to be in large numbers in the eastern bay shore marshes and out on the bay itself—in the vicinity of Ellis slough, San Pablo Bay they are particularly thick. On the Suisun, Petaluma and Sonoma marshes the hunters will probably get good bags to-day and to-morrow. The birds in sight at present are principally native birds who have been driven to find water and feed along the upper and lower bay districts by reason of the drying up of many of their favorite haunts along the Sacramento and San Joaquin river basin and in the Southern California irrigation districts The numbers of our present visitors have been augmented by a few of the advance flight from the breeding places in the Carson and Humholt sinks in Nevada and the Klamath lake region in the northern part of this State. The northern flight is not expected sooner than next month, when they will be here in myriads unless there is an early breeze up in the north.

The ducks who are in evidence at present will receive a good drubbing by the hunters and early in the season will become wary and cunning When the flight of northern birds commences to come in and mingle with the ducks now here they will catch on to the game in short order. For a short time they will take refuge on the bay during the day time and come in to shore for feeding at night. After a while in taking long flights for safety and feeding into the interior as they have been accustomed to do, unless we have early and plenty rain the interior districts, particularly the Tulare lake country, will be too dry for them and then Mr Duck will probably wing his course to the Colorado delta and the shores of the Gulf of California, which latter place, especially the month of the Colorado, is said by old hunters to be an ideal camping ground for ducks and thousands of other game fowl.

The prospects for quail shooting in the vicinity of San Francisco are reported to be good, but a rain is needed to help effective work in the field. In the favorite localities of Marin, Sonoma, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties quail are reported in plentiful numbers. Humboldt and Mendocino counties are teeming with birds so is the district bordering the upper Sacramento.

Guns and Loads.

The Hunter Arms Company, manufacturer of the L. C. Smith guns, have just issued a new and tastefully gotten up catalogue. Among other interesting information therein contained, we note that this enterprising firm are now putting Damascus barrels on the No. 0 and No. 1 grades of their guns, giving, in fact, a $60 list hammerless ejector or a $47 list hammerless gun with Damascus barrels; they are also making the No. 2 grade gun with Crown Steel barrels and the No 3 grade with the new Nitro Steel barrels. All guns are bored to shoot extremely close unless otherwise ordered and are also bored true to gauge to use wads same size as gauge of the gun. The firm guarantees all of their guns to shoot any nitro powder made and not become loose.

Nitro powders are now such an important factor in the market, and as it is quite possible to load these powders to get inferior results, the Hunter Arms Company, in view of the fact that they have been constantly receiving inquiries as to the best method of loading, including such questions as amount of ammunition, wadding, pressure, etc., they publish, among others, the following loads as good and safe nitro powder loads. These directions are based on tests made in the factory:

E. C. Powder—Twelve-Gauge—For 2¾-inch shell: 3¼ drams; two ½-inch black-edge wads, either twelve or eleven-gauge, over powder, with a pressure of from twenty-five to forty pounds; 1 1-8 ounces shot chilled, with twelve gauge top shot wad. Well crimped. If 2 7 8 or 3-inch shells—three ½-inch black-edge wads.

Sixteen-Gauge—2½ drams; one sixteen-gauge cardboard and two sixteen-gauge pink or black-edge wads; 1-ounce shot, with thin top shot wads. Well crimped.

Schultze Powder—Twelve-Gauge—3 drams; wadded the same as for E. C., except do not put any pressure on the powder, simply seat the wads firmly.

Ten-Gauge.—4 drams; wadded the same as for twelve-gauge, with ten gauge wads; 1¼ ounces shot chilled.

Dupont Smokeless Powder—Twelve-Gauge—3 drams; wadded the same as for E. C., with pressure of from twenty to forty pounds over powder.

Ten-gauge—4 drams; wadded the same as twelve gauge, with ten-gauge wads; 1¼ ounces shot.

Gold-Dust Powder—Twelve-Gauge—42 grains—about 1¾ drams measure; one trap, one ¾-inch white felt and one black-edge twelve-gauge wads over powder in order named, about forty pounds pressure; 1 1-8 ounces shot chilled with twelve gauge top shot wad. Well crimped.

Ten-Gauge—54 grains—about 2¼ drams measure; 1¼ ounces shot; wadded same as twelve gauge with ten-gauge wads.

Black Powder Loads are the Following—Twelve-Gauge—3 to 3½ drams; one twelve-gauge card and two black or pink-edge wads over powder; 1 1-8 ounces shot with twelve-gauge card wad. Well crimped.

Ten-Gauge—4 to 4¼ drams; 1¼ ounces shot; wadded same as twelve-gauge.

Sixteen-Gauge—2½ to 2¾ drams; one sixteen-gauge card and two black or pink-edge wads over powder; ¾ ounce shot with sixteen-gauge shot wad. Well crimped.

The new catalogue, and other information desired, will be mailed on application, by addressing the Hunter Arms Co., Fulton, N. Y. Clabrough, Golcher & Co., 538 Market street, and The E. T. Allen Co, 416 Market street, this city, have the L. C. Smith guns on sale.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

H. C. Golcher has some nice bevies of quail staked out near Point Reyes.

W. S. Kittle will try for quail to-day and to-morrow on the Country Club grounds.

Phil Bekeart, who has been on a business trip East for a month, is due in town this evening.

J. L. C.—The season for rail shooting in Alameda county commences on October 15th and closes on February 15th.

Edg. Forster, C. Griffith, G. A. Hinkel, W. Price and J. Shackelton will shoot at Reclamation district this winter.

Dr. Robt. Millar, Dr. C. H. Bell, H. Lorher and Otto Feudner will shoot ducks at Spooneyville (Mt. Eden) to-morrow.

W. Hinkel will try for quail near St. Helena to-morrow and A. Jounieaux has a few bevies of quail near Belmont that he wants.

Quite a delegation of the Country and Tamalpais Gun Club members went over to Marin to day. To-morrow will show a number of fine bags of quail.

C. A. Haight and Chas Cate, with possibly Jim Maynard and Dr. Ayers, will hunt quail near Haywards to-morrow. Dave Thom is suspected of a strong inclination to go after English snipe to-morrow.

Fred Gilbert and A. R. Elliott meet to-day at Watson's Park, near Chicago to shoot for the Du Pont cup, for which Elliott has challenged; the race promises to be an interesting contest should the weather prove favorable and birds be strong.

The theatre train to-night bound for Alviso will have a contingent of shooters destined for the many and various spots between San Leandro and the Bridges picked out by each hunter bound away for a collection of quackers to-morrow.

Right-and-Left-Hand Slough, which empties into Big Lake near Clarksburg is almost dry. The left-hand slough is about a mile long and twenty feet wide; on this limited amount of water this week the ducks have been in countless numbers. The light rains this week having drawn the ducks from the bay shores to this, as well as other favorite haunts.

The Black Jacks will assemble for an informal shoot at the Club's elegant new quarters on Sherman Island to-morrow. The majority of the members will not assemble in full force until the pipe line connecting the arks with the Antioch brewery is in proper working order. This latter convenience is the gift of the Black Jack himself, an improvement suggested by Secretary Markland.

Some of the local shot-gun brigade will distribute themselves to-morrow as follows: G. W. Franzen and F. Ostrander at Alvarado; A. Herzog and F. Rumpf, at Sears Point; Jules Bruns and John Kanuey will also try their old lucky spot at Sears. W. J. Hynes and J. J. Sweeney have prepared to shoot on the Tule Gun Club grounds. C. Davis will of course be seen at the Cordelia Club blinds.

In describing the grounds of the Haverhill Gun Club, the scene of the last tournament of the Interstate Association, the location of the traps, etc., is thus spoken of—The traps face a little east of south, which is not the best way for shooting purposes, especially when the back ground is very poor, making the shooting extremely hard and the targets difficult to locate quickly and accurately—It will readily be understood that the winning average, 92 9 per cent, made by Jack Fanning was a remarkably clever performance.

Horace Cowels and J. A. McCune, of Pajaro, recently returned from a two month's hunting trip to Jackson's Hole Wyoming. They bagged some fine elk on the jaunt.

The Willow Lodge Gun Club members are booked to get the initial good shoot in the vicinity of Alvarado as it has been the practice of ducks in past seasons to congregate in large numbers at the points where the best blinds are located on the club grounds.

Shaw, Klevesahl, Schultz ("Edwards") and Wilson have located their new ark on grounds leased by them for the season near Alvarado. The boys will go over to-morrow to put the final touches on the outfit. This quartette of shooters can be counted on for many good bags this season.

Mr. N. D. Nichols, of San Diego, well known to the trade and to sportsmen in Southern California, was in the city during the week. The outlook for shooting in his section, considering the dry year, he reports as encouraging. Martines Chick, the well known shot gun expert, is associated at present with the firm of N. D. Nichols and Co., of San Diego.

Stockton sportsmen have been on the qui vive for the opening of the season to-day. Many of them made ready to take to the marshes late last evening to get in the first shot this morning. There will be quite a slaughter to-day and to-morrow and a large number of parties have already been made up to take part in the hunt.

The carefol sportsman these days when he goes into the hills for quail should remember his dog and provide water for it to drink. Many sections of quail country near the city will be found to be pretty dry and the dog is liable to suffer very much through the oversight of the master in not procuring water to drink. Don't forget your dog.

Ed. Feudner of Dixon is the winner of the championship medal for this season's shoots of the Rising Sun Gun Club of Dixon; he scored 133 breaks out of a possible 150. Henry Peters of Vacaville won second medal, scoring 124 out of 150; third medal was won by C. Rohwer of Dixon, who broke 117 out of 150. The final shoot of the club took place at Dixon on September 25, 1898.

The Seagull Gun Club will open the season tomorrow on the ocean beech at 10:45 A. M. The club blinds are open to all comers, who are requested to bring at least fourteen shells apiece. Membership in the Club is limited to those who are employed late on Saturday nights, especially those in the gun trade. The charter members are a coterie of well known sportsmen who propose, in a unique manner tomorrow to down their chagrin in not being out with the rest of the shotgun brigade on the first of the season.

A party of hunters hailing from Coyote, Santa Clara county, consisting of Harvey Swickard, Zack Shelton, John Martin, Ed Peppin and H. Gifford, returned from San Benito county last Saturday evening after an absence of ten days. During their stay in the mountains they captured seven deer, four of which were brought down by the sure aim of "Hocky" John Martin. One each was killed by H. Gifford, Ed Peppin and Z Shelton. John again had the advantage over the rest, as he was the only member of the party who had a camera.

It is doubtful if any arrangement in the nature of hunters' accommodation trains will be furnished by the S. F. and N. P. Ry. Co. this season. Acts of imposition against the Company and of downright vandalism on the part of unscrupulous individuals who could not appreciate a good thing when they had it last year, has caused the railroad management to have the marble heart. But, however, regular trains are many and running at convenient hours, and the members of clubs located along the line will not lose any sleep over the matter; they will get there just the same.

The Petaluma Sportsmen's Club have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: R. S. Brown, President; F. M. Collins, Vice-President; Lyman Green, Secretary; F. P. Steiger, Treasurer; E. D. Hedges, S. J. Hopkins and Geo. Ortman, Directors. The ponds and club house on the Club's preserve have been put in first-class condition for shooting and E. L. Lockwood has been appointed gamekeeper. The question of trespassing and punishment of offenders has been considered and the Club will join with the Mira Monte and Lakeville clubs and prosecute all people caught trespassing on the reserves. They will make a lively fight against the poachers this year.

The longest shoot-off of a tie in a live-bird match was recorded on June 9 h of this year in the contest for the Board of Trade Diamond Badge, on the third day of the Illinois State Sportsmen's Association's tournament at Peoria, Ill. The original contest was at ten live birds per man, all ties on ten straight shooting off, miss and out. After a stiff race all dropped out save two men, W. R. Crosby, of O'Fallon, Ill., and George Roll, of Blue Island, Ill. The tie was not broken until each man had shot at eighty-eight tie birds, when Roll lost his bird, Crosby thus having had to kill ninety eight straight (including the first ten in the main race) before winning the badge and with it the championship of Illinois.

It is claimed by Eastern authorities on sporting matters that within a comparatively few years the island of Cuba will figure as a resort for sportsmen. Game is said to be abundant on the island and deer in particular are reported to be numerous. Ducks and quail are plentiful; ducks, though, being in evidence only during the Cuban winter. A large-sized bird of beautiful plumage is the wild pigeon, which is found in sufficient numbers to afford good shooting; the fact that they are also excellent eating adds a zest to the sport of the hunter. The hunting fields of Cuba, so to speak, are almost a virgin country, only those sections of the island contiguous to the populated districts having been hunted over to any degree. The cool season of the winter months in Cuba bids fair to rival the attractions of Texas or Florida in bringing sportsmen to the Gem of the Antilles.

A Retrospect

Interest and devotion among the sportsmen to-day is dr[illegible]ted with an unchecked enthusiasm to the sport afforded on [illegible]oland and marsh with gun and dog or whilst ensconced in a blind at early dawn. We give below a few excerpts from the files of the Breeder and Sportsman for October, 1888, which may be of passing interest to our readers and also offer the opportunity for pleasant reflection to several well-known devotees of sports afield, who are just as sanguine to-day in the pursuit of the pleasures derived from the hunting grounds as they were a decade ago. Some of the gentlemen mentioned have been called away from affairs terrestrial, but they live in the memories of those who knew them well as congenial companions and genuine sportsmen:

"Mr. Wm. Schreiber shot near Novato on Monday and Tuesday last over his pointers, Mountain Boy and Sal. The days were warm, but he had fair sport, getting about four dozen heavy quail, most of them over points.

"That inveterate pursuer of quail, Mr. W. S. Kittle, and his exquisitely handsome English setter Loke were seen going over the hill from the Poor House near San Rafael one day last week in search of some bevies left from last year. They make a strong team and always do well.

"Messrs. Dave Thom, C. A. Haight and H. R. Brown took out their pointers, Sport, Dick H. and Donna Sensation near Haywards last week. Although all of the gentlemen are fine shots, luck so prevailed against Thom and Brown that they got but a half-dozen quail each, while Haight had twenty. The dogs were in first-rate form and their work was satisfactory.

"Dr. Knowles ("Slade") and Mr. F. B. Norton were up Tomales way last week for quail and had good sport.

"Of the duck shots, Mr. Harry Babcock is in the premier as yet, having twice bagged more than one hundred birds on the Ibis grounds. At the same club Mr. Will Kittle has made several good strings.

"At the Byron Club the best bags, all things considered, have been made by Messrs Willard, Maynard, Fraser, King and Burling. Feed is abundant and sprig, mallard, gray ducks and widgeon plenty. A sack and a half to the man is not extraordinary there."

Olympic Gun Club Shoot.

The Olympic Gun Club closed the blue-rock season for this year, at the Ingleside grounds, last Sunday. The attendance, owing to the threatening weather and the close proximity of the game shooting season, was not up to the average, but thirteen shooters faced the traps. Clarence Nauman won the championship medal for the season, scoring 164 out of 175 targets. Otto Feodner came second with 160 breaks to his credit and A. J. Webb is third high man with 159. Taking into consideration the handicaps, the scores would he Nauman 171, Feudner and Webb each 169. F. J. Schultze, being high man in the handicap man with 172, took first money, $25 00; Nauman and W. J. Hynes with 171 breaks each divided $35 00, the second and third moneys. Feudner and Webb with 169 each divided fourth and fifth moneys, amounting to $15 00. Fred Feudner, scoring 29 and W J. Golcher and F. J. Shultze ("Edwards") with 28 each were high men for the day's shooting. "Slade" made the largest total of breaks for the day. The summarized scores and handicaps were as follows:

St. Bernard Club Meeting.

At the next meeting of the St. Bernard Club, to be held Monday evening, October 10th, the topic of principal interest will be the proposed holding of a dog show in connection with the Exposition in Oakland during November. The meeting will be held at Dr. Cluness, Jr.'s office, 406 Sutter street. A full attendance of the members is promised, considerable interest being manifested in favor of a show this fall.

A Stockton Coursing Club.

An organization composed of about forty prominent sportsmen of Stockton, has been perfected for the purpose of placing coursing on a permanent basis in the vicinity of Stockton. The initial meet will probably be held in the fields near French Camp on Sunday, October 9th.

The officers elected were: President, Dr. Fred P. Clark Vice President, Joe Adams; Secretary, B. S. Milco; Treasurer, H. Lonjers; Board of Stewards, John Quinn, Frank Murray, J. Gray, "Tony" Zignago, D. Winders and Dr. J. H. Eddy; Judge, W. Deegin; Slipper, Al Tesch. The Board of stewards will draft a constitution and by-laws and report at the next meeting of the Club. Thursday evening, September 29th, when complete arrangements for the first meet will be made.

Blemton Reefer Dead.

The list of good ones that have died recently has now the name of this celebrated fox terrier on the roll. We will say to Mr. W. H. McFee, owner of the Dauntless Kennels, Los Angeles, that we chronicle his loss with sincere regret; we do not doubt but that the sentiment finds a ready response on the part of the fancy.

Blemton Reefer has a record in the stud that is high-class in the extreme. He has sired more sensational winners than all other sires combined on the Pacific Coast. We call to mind that grand dog, Golden Jewell, the only champion fox terrier ever bred on the coast; Golden Flash II., who easily won first and specials for best in the show, all breeds, San Francisco, 1896; beating such dogs as the Eastern crack, Dodley Stroller, who had the laurels of first in open class in New York, Chicago and other large cities of the East during the 1896 circuit; Pytchley Vixen, first in open bitches; also Bonnie Bess. The second and third winners at the bench show of 1896 were his get. Reefer's bench record is a good one, winning fourth in New York, 1892; first, Los Angeles, 1893; second, San Francisco, 1894; third, Oakland, 1894; second, San Francisco, 1895. Blemton Reefer was bred by the well-known Blemton Kennels, Hempstead, Long Island; he was whelped July, 1890, white, black and tan; by Ch. Venio, out of Ch. Rachel.

The Spaniel at His Best.

To see the spaniel at his best he should be taken to the haunts of the water fowl. In the salt marshes, the lakes and streams of the East, and in the prairie sloughs of the West, he is indeed a great little dog. His stumpy legs may be poor performers on dry ground, but they are very efficient when it comes to swimming. The dog, too, is a hardy fellow, ready to face any weather and cold water whenever asked. As a retriever from water he is most desirable, while his intelligence and compact form make him the best of dogs for the ducking skiff. Of course, the Irish water spaniel is excluded from all references to short legs and clumsiness; a good specimen of this dog appears to be quite long-legged. The Irishman is also very active and full of dash.

The chief value of the Irish spaniel to the sportsman is as a retriever. He is a worthy rival of the famous dog of the Chesapeake, and no weather is too difficult for him. He is game to the core, a very powerful, magnificent swimmer, and to all intents a natural retriever. His oily coat can bid defiance to cold water, while a vigorous shake appears to at once dry it. He is as hardy as a badger. He is a most intelligent and willing worker, and will show to the greatest advantage under conditions which would baffle almost any other retriever from water.—Outing.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The bench shows held in Great Britain during the month of August total the immense number of eighty-five.

The Ladies' Kennel Club of Massachusetts has been organized; its object is the giving of bench shows and other entertainments, the profits (?) from which shall be devoted to the Massachusetts Humane Society.

The National Foxhunters' Association has decided to publish the Stud Book containing pedigrees and registrations of foxhounds. Volume I. will be issued about November 1st; besides the pedigrees and registrations it will contain other valuable reference matter and reports that will make the publication a most desirable one for owners and breeders of foxhounds.

There has been recently a steady local demand for ferrets. These little animals are used in cleaning out buildings infested with rats. They are sure death to rodents and other vermin. A. C. Robinson, of 337 Kearny street, has several fine pair for sale. An inspection of this popular stock shows some fine fox terrier and St. Bernard puppies awaiting an ownership by those who fancy these breeds.

The Collie Club Chronicle is to be discontinued by Mr. James Watson, now that the columns of the Kennel Gazette are available for the Club's announcements The Westminster and Mascontah Stakes of the Collie Club closed on September 10th. The Club offers two medals for the New England Kennel Club show for members—one for the best collie and the other for the best in limit or novice classes.

James Maynard has recently purchased from Nick White, of the Record-Union, a most promising lemon and white pointer puppy by Glenwood—Blanche. Glenwood by Glenbeigh—Locinda. Blanche is a litter sister to Glessford's Tommy Tickler, the dog who made such a clever run against Countess Noble in the trials at Salines. Lucinde, by Rip Rap—Schreiber's Sal. Jim will probably give the dog plenty of work this season on quail at Ellis Johnson's place on Bouldin Island.

Champion Antonio (Roderigo—Bo Peep) died on August 22d of old age. This noted setter was whelped December 1886, black, white and tan. His winnings in field trials were third, All-Aged Setter Stake, Central Field Trials, 1890; first, All-Aged Stake, Southern Sportsmen's Association 1891; first, All age Stake, Southern Field Trial Club 1891; first, Champion Stake; Eastern Field Trials, 1891; first, Free-for-All Stake, Central Field Trials, 1891. The last win giving him his title of champion, by defeating King's Mark, Rip Rap, Maid of Kent, Paul Bo, Count Eric and Chance. His record as a sire is of a high standard.

At Ingleside Park last Sunday the sport for the day was lively and satisfactory throughout to the attendence of leashmen and coursing enthusiasts, the only occurence to cast a slur on the day's sport was during the last course. When Slipper Jim Grece took charge of The Gossoon he noticed that the dog was full of food. On investigation the boy handling The Gossoon denied that the dog had been fed. When Field Steward McHugh was called on to examine the hound the boy tearfully admitted that while he was attending to Blackstone, The Gossoon had broken loose and eaten up the food prepared for his meal after the course. Suspicion was strongly aroused because the dog is supposed to belong to one Dr. Leek, who has the credit of signalizing his advent on the sward by recently rejuvenating that notorious old lurcher Right Bower, by dosing him with speed pills in such a successful manner that he romped through and won a stake. Subsequent to this performance of Bower's he won his first course in another stake, his second round was against a good dog and the two of them had a turn over the field that resulted in an "undecided." The dogs were not taken off the field and the Doctor could not prevail on Steward Helpin to let him through the gate, Helpin remarking at the time "Doctor, you've given him enough." When the dogs started again Right Bower ran like a dishrag and was out of the stake. We quote from a morning daily. "All of Dr. Leek's dogs may be ruled off, though it appears the boy's story is true, as such an accident has occurred more than once before. The matter will be investigated, and if the Leek dogs are not ruled off they will be closely watched." Verily, this leek is becoming an unsavory vegetable.

Considerable interest has been manifested among the Pacific Coast sportsmen as to the showing made by Mira Monte Kennels' entries, under the guidance of Mr. Arthur Bennett. We quote from the American Field for the benefit of our readers the report of the work of Lock and Dash Antonio at the Northwestern Club's Champion Stake at Winnipeg, Man., on September 12, 1898. The judging was done by Mr. C. E. Buckle and Mr. Frank Richards.

"First series. Lock—Alberta Joe.—Mira Monte Kennels' blue belton English setter dog Lock, by Lockaley—Lidderdale, handled by A. Bennett, and Thomas Johnson's liver and white pointer dog Alberta Joe, by Ightfield Upton—Ightfield Blythe, handled by owner, were cast off at 7:37 A. M., about four miles from the city. Both dogs were slow to get under way. After about thirty minutes' running Joe found a covey and was steady to point and flush of birds, which raised before and behind him, he being in the midst of them. Lock, coming up to Joe's point, backed him, but he chased the birds when flushed. Joe steady. No other birds were found. Both dogs throughout their trial had the bad fault of running in to their handlers. Neither covered or hunted out its ground well. Joe in his wildest casts would return on about the same line used when going out. At the end of their run it looked as if neither would be called up again for this fault. The brace was ordered up at 8:19."

"Schwab—Dash Antonio—A. C. Reid's black and tan setter bitch Schwab, by Manitoba Toss—Patti Sing, handled by owner, and Mira Monte Kennels' black, white and tan English setter Dash Antonio, by Antonio—Lady Lucifer, handled by A. Bennett, were cast off at 9:42 It was now getting a little warm, the course had been changed and ground was not so good, as the grass and weeds were much heavier. The only bird seen during this trial was one that flushed down wind from Dash during one of his casts. He did not see it, and when the dogs cast that way again, both made points near the place of flush. At 10:27 they were ordered up, with the intention of being put down again on other grounds—but a decision to go to lunch kept them up until the afternoon. The reputation of Chadwick's as a place for lunch was well known, and it was the sentiment of everyone that none left unsatisfied. After lunch the second series was announced, which kept in six dogs, with the added declaration that none need consider their dogs entirely out of the race. This gave doubting hearts some hope, but the sequel shows no others were taken it"

"Second series. Schwab—Dash Antonio—At 3:53 they started, ending their trial at 4:25. Dash was the widest ranger and Schwab trailed him a good deal of the time, getting farther out this way than in any other. The fates seemed against this brace in finding birds, although a lot of ground was covered. Dash at last made a good find of a single bird, pointing staunchly; Schwab backed promptly. Both steady to flush. The brace had the hottest part of the forenoon and the worst ground. They were entitled to the best time in the afternoon, but they had well nigh the hottest of it."

"Third series. Alberta Joe—Dash Antonio.—This was the next brace announced, with the statement that thirty minutes would be allowed Joe for rest; Mr. Johnson didn't know if Joe wanted it, but that he (Mr. Johnson) did In twenty minutes Mr. Johnson said he was ready, when the brace was started at 5:32, running until 5:55. In the meantime no birds were found, although both had dropped to point about the same time, Joe first, and near each other. Nothing could be raised. The pace and range seemed well out of both dogs, as only now and then would they make a cast of any pretensions, when they would return to their handlers, a practice kept up during their several trials during the day. At the end of the trial Alberta Joe was declared the winner.

"It is always an unpleasant part of a reporter to differ with the decisions of judges, as, in addition to more or less feeling stirred up, it entails a lot of extra work to explain why. Yet to do his duty as he sees it, it cannot be avoided.

"From the manner of running the race it was impossible to determine which dog could be called the runner-up, or second best dog. The record shows it must have been Dash Antonio—but interrogating one of the judges he stated that Ortolen was in their judgment, second."

Steam Plowing.

On the tract of land recently purchased by the Spreckels Sugar Company near Hollister, the sod is being broken with steam plows: In plowing, two immense traction engines are stationed a quarter of a mile apart. A powerful drum alternately hauls in and pays out a cable to which is attached two large plows, carrying five shears. The plows are fastened together or rather are built on one frame. As the plow reaches the limit of the cable, it is hoisted into the air, and the other one descends, taking the reverse motion. The plow is now running in the worst edobe, and tears up chunks of soil weighing a ton, with ease. The soil is being turned over to a depth of eighteen inches. The engines hauling the cable are of one hundred horse power, with an auxiliary force of 30-horse power. At the present time it requires 100 pounds of steam to do the work. About two tons of coal per day are used by each machine. An engineer and fireman go with each locomotive. Two men ride the plow, to steer. No matter how rough or tough the ground, a simple twist of the wrist holds the ponderous wheel in the furrow. The traction engines are marvels of mechanical skill. They can be handled with perfect ease, backing turning, or running ahead at the will of the engineer. The sod in the field now being worked has never been broken, and it would be impossible to work it with horses. After the plow will come the cultivators and harrows, all worked by steam power. Two much larger traction engines and plows are now on the way from England, for use on this ranch. In addition to the plowing, wells are being bored, and the lumber is on the ground for twenty houses and barns. The Superintendent of the tract expects to have 6,000 acres of the ranch in beets next season.

Profit in Sheep.

We fully indorse the Live Stock Journal of Texas, when it says:

"It is probable that the farmer who is conveniently situated as to railroad transportation to some of the markets will find more profit in breeding sheep for mutton than for wool, and as the strongest demand now is for lambs and they are the most profitable, early maturity is a characteristic of prime importance. It is claimed that the Downs breeds or short wool sheep, while not attaining as great weight as the Cotswold or Lincolnshire, mature earlier and stand crowding better. Among these most breeders who estimate quality highly give preference to the South Downs. Those who prefer the mutton breeds claim the following advantages: That they are more prolific very often dropping twins; that their tendency to early maturity enables them to make the greatest possible growth of carcases in the least possible time; that the short time during which they remain in the hands of the breeder not only enables him to take in more frequent profit but also relieves him of many of the risks contingent upon longer periods of ownership, and reduces the percentage of expense; that they give a larger percentage of dressed beef when slaughtered; and that their meat is the best. They have, however, thin fleeces and require better pasturage and better feed, for rapid growth implies the necessity for good feed in abundant supply. They should have heavy, large hams, be broad across the rump and long, with square-built, blocky bodies. Of course they should be thrifty, vigorous and strong in vitality, and kept growing without interruption from the time they are dropped."

Always Hornless.

Galloways are all hornless. The testimony among old breeders of Galloways is that a pure bred Galloway never had any trace of horns or scurs, says the New York Farmer. That there have been horned cattle bred in Galloway is well known for many years, for some farmers in that section bred horned cattle, both beef and dairy breed, and to outsiders this gave rise to the story that part of the Galloway cattle were horned and part polled, but oral testimony, handed down for many years, and that of men who lived among cattle, confirm the statement that any trace of scurs was always taken as an indication of impure blood. None of the old native breed of the pure Galloway ever had horns. Prof. Low, of Edinburgh, who carefully examined this matter, says: "Absence of horns has been for a long period a distinctive characteristic of the race." So fixed is this character that the produce of a pure bred Galloway bull with any breed of horned cows should give polled calves. No other breed of cattle will equal the Galloway in this respect.

October 14th and 15th the State Dairy Convention will be held in San Francisco at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. It is expected that this will be one of the most important meetings ever held by the dairymen of California, and a large attendance is expected from all parts of the State.

Wool buyers in Pendleton a few days ago, says the East Oregonian, were figuring on the amount of wool in Oregon and Washington yet unsold, and figured out that at least 17,000,000 pounds were still in warehouses in the two States from this year's clip.

An estimate of the Beer river (Yuba county) hop crop gives the following output of the various yards: The Duret yards 2000 bales, Horst Bros. yard 1200, S. D. Woods' yard 1000 and Jasper & Son's yard 700. A total of 4270 bales or 712 carloads.

Prosperity on the Range.

A recent report from Modoc and Lassen counties says that stockmen have sold more cattle and sheep this year than for seven years past, and from present indications there are enough buyers in the field to handle every marketable hoof in both counties. Not only are the regular foreign buyers taking all they can contract for in the way of beef and mutton, but local men are buying for speculation.

While the cattle sales are the heaviest known in years and perhaps involve a much larger sum in ready money, yet the transactions in sheep are far in excess, head for head, of cattle sales. Wool is on the move also. A sale was made in Lake county, Or., on the 12th inst. of 100,000 pounds at 13 5-8 cents.

During the past week 50,000 lambs have been shipped from Helleck, Nev., to Eastern points. The average price paid was $2.50 on the range. From Reno, including drives from Oregon and from Modoc and Lassen counties, 75,000 lambs have been shipped to the Swift and Armour packing houses in Chicago. The price, in this instance, ranged from $2.50 to $2 65, delivered on the cars.

Montana sheepmen spent two weeks on a buying expedition through Grant, Cook and Gilliam counties, Or gon, and failed to secure a single head of sheep, notwithstanding they offered the attractive price of $4.80 per pair for ewes and lambs.

Red Bluff is becoming the head center for sheep in Northern California. Sales for the current season have reached the enormous total of 40,000, at prices ranging for mutton from $2.50 to $3.25. Lambs brought in the neighborhood of $2 each. These are big prices when it is remembered that up to within a couple of years ago sheep could hardly be got rid of at half the price.

At Amedee, a railroad terminus in Lassen county, the sheep market is booming. Eastern buyers are taking everything in sight at $2.50 per head. From the 10th to the 13th instant, P. L. Flannigan, a local buyer and an extensive flockmaster, transferred to packing house agents 40,000 lambs.

Galen Wilson, in Farm and Fireside, requested an old crippled soldier, engaged in poultry raising, to give his views and received the following: "Eggs are always cash. They are ready for market the minute laid, and the sooner they get there the better. They require no cultivating, pruning or spraying, but are at once in saleable condition. With plenty of eggs on the farm there are lots of good things in the kitchen and money in the family purse. Gathering up the eggs is like picking up dimes and dollars. Great is the hen that produces them. When everything is dull in winter, the egg basket helps out many a poor farmer. The crops may be poor, the provisions low, the family cow dry, with a long wait for the next growing season, but the hen comes up smiling and is ready to get a pound of tea or a sack of flour. If treated well she will respond as soon when the snow is on the ground as when the fields are green. She is a friend to the rich and poor alike."

In summer the pasture is severely taxed, not only to provide for a large herd, but also make growth when the land has not been supplied with plant food in the form of manure or fertilizer. Some farmers relieve the pasture from close and constant cropping by growing some kind of green crop, such as sweet corn, oats or cow peas, the cattle being turned on the crops when the plants are young in order to take them off the pasture long enough to give the grass a start. But little labor is required, the land being stirred with a disc cultivator and the seed broadcasted and the land then rolled. If there is danger from trampling of the green food it may be cut and fed to cows. A mixture of oats and peas, broadcasted together, has long been used by some farmers, but any kind of green crop will answer, as the object is to take the cows off the pasture and at the same time provide a substitute for grass in a manner not to diminish the yield of milk by the cows.

Somebody asked Professor Thomas Shaw of Minnesota as to the best time to apply manure. He answered: "At the earliest possible moment after it is made." His reply represents the most modern and approved practice. The plan of immediate application is labor saving, it prevents waste of fertility, it sets the manure to work at once, and fresh manures are more effective than they ever will be again.

The largest horse in America has been discovered in Illinois. He stands twenty hands high, weighs 2,500 pounds and has never been either broken or shod. He is nearly a pure blood Clydesdale. Of course he is a freak and not likely to be worth anything except for exhibition purposes.

The Texas fever is caused by a tick that burrows into the flesh of the animal, causing a high fever, running up to 107 at times, and just before the animal dies the tick drops off on the ground, lays its eggs that hatch a myriad of new ticks that in turn attack other cattle.

Three Sheets of Foolscap.

Chicago, Sept. 16, 1808.

The Gotham Co, New York—Gentlemen: There are a great many so-called hoof ointments on the market. Some are good and some are bad. I have had a trial of them all, and I will say that there is nothing to equal the Continental Ointment, I have used it for ten years or over in the barn of Bradner Smith & Co. as their foreman.

It is wonderful the way it will soften and make a hard hoof grow. There is nothing to equal it for all diseases of the hoof. It is a great remedy for cracks, cuts, bruises or callousness.

I cannot say half enough for it—would need three sheets of "Foolscap" to tell half of its merits.

Yours very truly,
Bradner Smith & Co.,

Winning Sires in Australia.

The Australian turf statistics for the past season are given in the Australasian of August 6th. Lochiel, as has been known would be the case, is at the head of the winning sires, his stock having won him 97 races and prize money to the tune of £15,222 10s, which is the largest sum placed to the credit of a horse since the days of Musket and Chester. The latter in 1889-90 won £17,872, while in 1890-91 Musket's stock credited that horse with £17,597, and Grandmaster (second) had £17,357 opposite his name. Carbine, thanks to Amberite, is second with 37½ wins and £11,138. Trenton, who, like Carbine, is in England, is third on the list, has 40½ first and 36 seconds, representing prizes to the extent of $10,840. One always expects the Tucks Tucka stallion Gozo to be high up in the list; he has been there so often before, and this year he is a good fourth with 48 firsts and £10,059. There is a great drop from this to No. 5, Neckersgat, whose winnings total £5205 10s. Then come St. Swithin £4468, Splendor £3732, Thunderbolt £3339. Mr. W. R. Wilson, for the fourth time, tops the winning owners, £10,292 being the amount set opposite his name. The Randwick trainer, Duggan, follows Mr. Wilson this time with £7076, and then in order come Messrs. S. Miller £4180 10s, W. Forrester £5435, W. Kelso £3773, C. N. Kidman £3452 10s, R. A. Blacklock £2900, S. Hordern £2750, J. Crozier £2450, J. G. Clark 2436, and H. Oxenham £2387. Save Mr. Wilson, it will be seen that Mr. Steed won more last season than any Australian owner.

THE GET OF DIRECTUM, 2:05

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week several dispatches were received hy Thos. H. Green, of Duhlin, Alameda county, asking him to set a price on his stallion Directum 2:05¼, the champion trotting stallion of the world. While horsemen all over the world have heen unanimons in the helief that Directum would prove one of the greatest of sires, it remained for the sale of stock at Lexington, Kentucky, this week, from the celehrated Ashland Farm of Major A. C. McDowell to hring ahout a veritahle hoom in the get of the stallion king. At that sale two yearlings hy Directum were put up, and their grand looks, racy appearance and splendid action, excited the most lively hidding from the horsemen present. One, a colt, out of Impetu us 2:14, hy Dictator, went to the hid of N. W. Huhinger for $2,750, the other, a hay colt, ont of a Dictator mare hronght $1,650, being purchased hy P. V. Estell, of Lexington.

The fact that two untried yearlings hrought such prices, led to the telegraphic inquiries as to what price Mr. Green would take for his great young stallion. Those who know the horse, and have seen the colts and fillies hy him will not he surprised to hear of his product hringing these prices. Direct 2:05½, has proven himself a great sire, and yet in hreeding, individuality and the power to impress those qualities npon his offspring, Directum 2:05¼, shonld be as great, if not greater, than the "little hlack rascal."

Mr. Green has a numher of colts and fillies hy Directum out of choicely hred mares, that will he eagerly sought after by huyers, and there is no douht hut the services of the horse will he greatly in demand next spring

The sales of standard hred horses in the East this fall are demonstrating the fact that good individuals of tried and proven racing families, are hringing something like the old time prices. The high-class harness horse, for road or racing purposes is in demand, and the supply, (necessarily short owing to the fact that hut little hreeding has been done in late years), cannot he made to equal that demand for some time. Of course the time will never come again when one trotting cross in a horse will cause him to sell for a long price, and it is a matter of congratulation that such a condition exists, as the hlind rush for trotting hlood in the hoom days led to the production of a numher of real scruhhy horses hardly fit for any service. It is only the hest that will hring a long price now, and during the past two years but very few of the scruhs have heen hred. The day of good horses is at hand. California breeders are in a position to supply a portion at least of this demand, and should make an effort to that end. There are a numher of the hest stallions in America now in California. Owners of good mares will make no mistake if they hook them next spring to these horses, as good prices for the produce is certain to he obtained.

THE hay gelding William T. that started in slow classes at Waterhury Ct, Holyoke, Mass., and Westerfield, Mass., during the past three weeks, has been identified hy the National Trotting Association as Alhert C., 2:16½, hy Clay.

SEARCHLIGHT SOLD.

Wore comes from Kentucky that Thos. E. Keating, acting for C. L. Crellin, of Pleasanton, last week sold to the well-known horseman John Dickerson, acting for Senator W. McCarthy, of New York, the great young stallion Searchlight 2:04½, and that the sum paid for him was $12,000. According to the terms of the sale Searchlight is to he turned over to his new owner at the close of the Lexington meeting which is now on and will close next week. It is thought that Senator McCarthy will race Searchlight next year, and there is no donht hut the horse can reduce his present record, and some think he is fast enough to shade the world's record a little. It is known that the Senator will place the horse eventually in the stud in his hreeding farm at Goshen, New York, when he will mate with him some grandly bred mares.

BOODLE'S SON THOMPSON.

Reducee Hie Record and Wine a Seven Heat Race at Loe Angeles

Seven heats between five horses, with fonr heat winners and every heat a contest, are not often seen on any track. At Los Angeles last Thursday that sort of a race interested the spectators and put the wise bettors into such a flurry that they never knew "where they were at" until the last heat was trotted. The starters in the race were Thompson, Osito, Sahle Frances, Lou and Silver Ring, all horses that have made the rounds of California's short circuit this year. The race hegan with Osito the favorite at $15 to $20 for all the others combined. Thompson and the hay mare Lou, hy Ira, went out for the first heat and made a hot race of it all the way, Boodle's son winning after a hard drive in 2:14¾, thus reducing his record, Lou was a little lame after this heat, hut trotted like a demon in the second and won in 2:14½, a new mark for her, Thompson heing second. The third heat was slower, and after a drive through the stretch with Silver Ring and Lou, Bunch landed his hig stallion in front again in 2:17½, and thereupon the horse was made a hig favorite in the pools, though all the others were well played. The heat fighte s were getting a little tired by this time and Osito, who had a new head gear arranged for him after the third heat, heat Sahle Frances a length in the fonrth in 2:17¾, with Thompson third. The fifth heat went to Sahle Frances after Silver Ring had gone in the lead three-fourths of the way and looked to he a winner. Osito got another chance to poke his nose first under the wire in the sixth heat, and the time, 2:18¾, was remarkahly good, considering the hard miles that had heen gone by all the horses. For three heats Thompson had not been driven very hard, however, and when the seventh was called he looked the freshest horse of tbe lot, hut Osito was the favorite. The son of McKinney got a great deal the worst of the start, and although the pole horse, the entire field was sent away in advance of him and he was cut off at the first turn. He trotted around the most of them, however, and was only beaten hy Thompson a half length in one of the hottest races ever seen in California. The summary of the race is as follows:

Osito, b. b by McKinney ..... Durfee	3	4	5	1	2	1	2
Sable Frances, b. m. by Sable Wilkes ..... Sullivan	4	5	4	2	1	2	3
Lou, b. m. by Ira ..... Donathan	2	1	3	4	3	3	4
Silver Ring, b. m by Silver Bow ..... Williams	5	3	2	5	4	ro

Time—2:14¾, 2:14½, 2:17½, 2:17¾, 2:17¼, 2:18¾. 2:18.

EX-GOV. HUBBARN of Texas thus sets forth the magnitude of the ranching interests in the West: "Our vast cattle ranges of the West graze to day 3,500,000 head of cattle and their annual increase of calves is put down in the official reports at 1,221,612 annually. This property is valued now and assessed at $30 000,000. Our sheep industry hrings us next to Ohio with, in round numhers, 3,000,000 in 1898, with an annual increase of 700,000 lambs. In our almost unlimited pasture lands of the prairie, too arid for agriculture, we can raise 40,000,000 of sheep and as many millions of cattle and goats and horses from the plains and the Panhandle to the Rio Grande. The meat-stuffs and the wool-stuffs would he enough when that time comes to feed and clothe the world."

FIRE AT AGNEW STOCK FARM.

Several Valuable Trottere and Much Other Property Deetroyed.

Harry J. Agnew has suffered another severe loss. The barn at his place at Hillsdale caught fire last Monday, and not only was the splendid building destroyed, but seven head of trotters, sixty tons of choice wheat hay and $2,000 worth of harness, blankets, hoots, etc , were burned up. By almost superhumrn effort Mr. Agnew was able to save the stallion Boswell Jr. 16,055, by Boswell, out of Maude, by Bertrand. Mr. Agnew himself became suffocated by the smoke, fell down on the barn floor and crawled on his hands and knees from the burning building. The fire was discovered by his little daughter as she went out to mount her pony to ride to school. The following letter from Mr. Agnew was received at this office Wednesday:

Hillsdale, October 4, 1898.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Yesterday morning my barn caught fire from the road at back end of barn. It was but a short time before that fine, large barn was in ashes. The wind was blowing strong from the south, and in a few minutes the cottage and twelve box stalls on the other side of the court were also in flames. Had the wind been from the north, nothing could have saved the other large barn, which was nearly full of hay. Over $2 000 in harness, boots, blankets and such things as will naturally accumulate in ten or twelve years, all of which were valuable except the hopples, sixty tons of choicest wheat hay three years old, worth $20 per ton to replace where it was. I lost seven head of horses—Lucelle, 3; Aloha, 5; stud, 2—all by Dawn, out of Angie Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, out of Maude, 2:20; Gen. Barnes, 5, by Dawn, out of Nettie Nutwood, dam of Hillsdale, 2:14¼; chestnut gelding, 4, and sister, 5, by Dawn, dam Maode Woodnut, by Woodnut, from Maude, 2:20. Also a weanling by Boswell Jr., 2:19, dam sister to the dam of Hezel Wilkes.

Aloha was a beautiful looking animal; broke her two years ago and she has been running out ever since till a week ago, when I started to work her. The three-year-old sister, Lucille and the brother, 2, have only been broken since April 5th, and last Friday I offered to bet $500 that either of them could show a 2:20 clip on my track inside of thirty days; and $2,000 would have been refused for the two-year-old if offered, for he could out-trot his sister. I managed to save Boswell Jr. with an axe by knocking out the back wall as it was too hot to get to his front door, which opens in the court. One minute more and he would have been dead. After cutting the opening he refused to come out, and taking a board I went into smoke and flames and used the board on his rump. When he came out his blanket was afire, also my hat. In trying to rescue Lucelle I was choked with smoke and I could not see her; it was like groping in the dark. I staggered against the wall and fell to the floor and then crawled out on my hands and knees. I reached Gen. Barnes' stall; he had no halter on and was down. I managed to pull him almost to the door when Chris came to my assistance. We pulled him around by the tail, but the flames were reaching us. My hands and arms were burning and we had to leave him to his fate. Albert Erwin ran to the rescue of the two-year-old and had him half-way out of the door, but the crackling noise and heat from the big barn scared him and he refused to leave his stall; he burned in the doorway. Saved all the rigs but buggy and cart. The cart was in the middle of that large court, and it was so hot that there was nothing left but the irons on the ground. In haste, Yours, Harry J. Agnew.

The sympathy of every man in California who knows Harry Agnew will go out to him at this time. It seems but a few months since he lost his great stallion Dawn by death, and now another affliction follows. It is to be hoped that this last is the climax that will mark the turn of Fortune's tide in his favor. There was some insurance on the property, but not enough to pay for one-fourth the financial loss. We know that the trotters burned were great prospects and that on them Mr. Agnew had founded hopes that are now vanished in fire.

Horse admirers of the Quaker City fairly went wild over the recent performonce of Star Pointer at Belmont Park track, and the relic hunters were all on hand. Some wanted a shoe, others nails from the shoes, while many "remembered the mane" and tail, and were satisfied with a hair or two. McClary did his utmost to please everyone, but when the crowd began to increase he had to stop presenting souvenirs, for, as he said, "If I let this crowd have its way Star Pointer will be hairless by night."

A record of 2:20 performers under their sires shows that 149 sires have descended in the male line from George Wilkes, 52 from Belmont, 40 from Electioneer, 19 from Woodford Mambrino, 14 from Strathmore, 12 from Almont, 9 from Dictator and 8 from Mambrino Patchen.

Cloee of the San Jose Meeting.

The meeting held at San Jose last week by a temporary organization of horsemen, came to e close Saturday, the attendance being very small the last day. Such meetings as this one, given without advertising or membership in either of the parent associations, end therefore without responsibility, do the harness horse industry more harm than good.

The summaries of the races held on the last three days of the meeting are as follows, those of the first two days having been published in our last issue:

Some Pacing Hietory.

Mr. Frank H. Dunton, writes the following interesting facts about the Hals and the Blue Bulls: "Tom Hal blood was mostly in Tennessee, while Blue Bull was in Indiana, where I saw and loved him for what he did. I do not contend that Blue Bull was the equal of Gibson's Tom Hal, for the dam of Tom Hal produced other great horses besides Hal. But that Blue Bull's dam was by the thoroughbred horse Black Nose, I cannot doubt. And certainly, under the conditions, Blue Bull surpassed any sire that I am acquainted with. Permit me to recite my introduction to Blue Bull. I had seen Jim Wilson and his sons for several seasons on the spring Michigan circuit, and noticed that they nearly always had a Blue Bull winner or two; and in 1878, I think it was, they had Elsie Goed and Ethel in the same class. Wilson got pretty full and made the remark: 'I own one of those mares and my son owns the other, and the man who beats them can own land in the West.' At this time Wilson extracted a promise from me to visit him when the Michigan circuit closed, which I did, arriving in Rushville at night. I knew a man by the name of Jones, who kept a hotel and livery stable, and tried to persuade him that he send me over to Wilson's place that night, but he insisted that I stay with him till early next morning, when he would take me over in time to see the colts worked out. We arrived at Wilson's while they were at breakfast, having just crawled out of bed and from their looks had not yet washed, or combed their hair. Wilson was a terribly profane man, and as soon as he saw me, began to curse because I did not notify him, so that he could have his colts prepared. When we finished breakfast we repaired to the stable, where we found the colts pawing for something to eat; the harness on the floor, where it had lain all night; boots and toe-weights beside the harness, and the colts with their hair sticking towards their heads. Well, the colts being watered and fed and brushed off in the course of events, they were harnessed and jogged out and each one of the trotters, two and three-year-olds, given a quarter before he was brought in, and the slowest quarter that morning of the twelve colts was 0:33½, and no apologies made for any of them. And you know that the dams of Blue Bull's get were nothing but common stock. I made up my mind from that showing that, with half a chance, Blue Bull would have been one of the greatest sires in the country. I came home and began writing a chapter on Blue Bull weekly, which the files of Dunton's Spirit of the Turf will show.—Horse Review.

The Derby d'Argentan, one of the French classic trotting races, was won last August, by the crack filly, Redowa. The distance is about two and one-half miles and the filly trotted the distance in 7:37 3-5. She is by the famous sire Fuschia, out of Escapade, herself a winner of the great French Trotting Derby. The latter event was alone won this season by Redowa, who is considered the best trotting filly that has appeared in France for some seasons. A better description of her will be given letter. The Derby d'Argentan was instituted in 1894 and the produce of Fuschia have won it on every occasion but one, five out of six times.

Dan Q. 2:07½, by Simmocolon paced three heats on a half mile track at Malone, New York, Friday, Sept. 30th, in the remarkable time of 2:10, 2:08½ and 2:08¼.

Oro Wilkee, 2:11.

Some time ago I predicted that Oro Wilkee would make a great sire, the expression used, "I can look ahead and see Oro Wilkes a great sire." His first performer, the two-year-old filly, Mary Celeste, 2:17½, winner of the Matron Stekes for that age at Louisville, Ky., is a point won in the case, giving the plaintiff good standing in court, and prestige with the jury.

He should make a great sire and one getting early speed. He was a fast colt and the family he came from was a family that produced eerly speed.

He had the form, speed and disposition for a great sire and the determination he showed at Lexington in 1893 when he won the $10,000 Stallion Representative Stake, attracted my attention, and he has been a favorite of mine ever since.

The evening before the race I heard several good horsemen say he would not go the route, but he did and trotted what in those days was a fast and game race for a three-year-old, five heats in which he was 2-2-1-1-1, time 2:14¾, 2:14½, 2:15, 2:16¼, 2:17½. The evening after the race I met my friend, the lamented driver, Johnny Goldsmith, at the Phoenix and after I had congratulated him on winning the great stake he remarked that some horsemen said Oro was not game; "Pretty game colt Frank, umph; don't you think so, umph?" I told him I did, for his race showed it.

I knew what Goldsmith's idea of gameness was, for he was brought up with a family of horses that were game, and I have always had respect for his good opinion of Oro Wilkes.

His record of 2:15, as a three-year-old, placed him as a four-year-old in that class, against aged horses, and in his first start, eighteen in the field, he was 3-2-3 in 2:09¾, 2:12, 2:12¾, being beaten by Azote and Prince Herschel.

At Cleveland he was 11-2-2 beaten by Azote in 2:11½, 2:11, 2:10. At Buffalo he was 2-3-3 in 2:10½, 2:11½, 2:10½, beaten by Azote and Trevillian. At Chicago he was 2-2-2 in 211½, 2:11½, 2:13, beaten by Trevillian.

At Hartford he won in 2:13½, 2:15¾, 2:12¾. At Terra Haute he was 5-1-2-2 in 2:09¾, 2:11, 2:10½, 2:09¾, beaten by Trevillian, they beating, Azote and Prince Herschel.

At New York he was 3-2-2-2-2, in 2:13¾, 2:12¾, 2:13, 2:14¾, 2:14½, being beaten by Fannie Wilcox and Miss Lida.

At Philadelphia he won in 2:16½, 2:16, 2:16½ He started eight times, and with few exceptions in large fields, he was first twice, three times second, and three times third, always inside the money.

Azote 2:08½, 1894, beat him three times. He beat Azote once. Trevillian 2:08½, 1894 beat him three times. He beat Trevillian a second heat in 2:11 and forced him to trot the third and fourth in 2:10½, 2:09¾. Prince Herschel 2:13, 1894, beat him once, he beat Prince Herschel four times.

Miss Lyda, 2:10½, 1894, beat him once; he beat her twice.

All of the horses that defeated Oro Wilkes were five years old and over, he a four-year-old; he beat all the balance of his class, and with the exception of Trevillian and Fanny Wilcox, won against the older horses that defeated him.

I still believe what Johnny Goldsmith said, "that he was a pretty game colt" in 1893, and I believe, judging from his performances in 1894, that he was a pretty game colt for a four-year old up against Azote and Trevilian.

Conjure well the blood that in him flows: Wilkes, Director and The Moor, a combination that when united with the blood of Electioneer, whose blood now figures in high places with all three crosses. I can see ahead that Oro Wilkes will become one of the great sires. Rio Alto.

Pointer a Great Horee.

It is quite evident from the number of fast miles Star Pointer has gone this year, and from the manner in which he has come out of each one, that the time is not far away when a greeter mile than ever will be paced by him. His speed is remarkable, showing in meny instances parts of miles better than a 1:55 gait. He certainly is mede of good material, and constructed on the wear and tear order. He hes elready this season paced four exhibition miles better than two minutes, end there is every reason to believe that he will do nearly as many more before retiring this fall from the turf. The Brown Hel-Sweepstakes nick has done wonders, end will be greater in the near future.

When horses reach that point of speed that our festest horses have reached, there is certeinly a great similarity in their preparation. They must be brought to a keen edge, with many miles not es fast as best records, but quite fast, too, halves of which must be about where they can go. Lungs need development as well as other parts of the body, or they should not he made to carry flights of speed nearly so far, nor go the killing miles they do.

There is a striking similarity in the preparetion which Nancy Hanks and Star Pointer received just before they went to Terre Haute, both horses being pointed for a supreme effort by moving half miles at unprecedented speed, yet finishing the miles in slower time than their best previous records. For two or three weeks before Budd Dohle drove Nancy Hanks in 2:04 at Terre Haute, in 1892 he pursued the same tactics that McClary has been following apparently with Star Pointer. Every time the mare started she trotted either the first half fast enough to make mincemeat of the then world's record, but her time for the full mile was never faster than 2:06. At Hartford, two weeks ago, McClary rated Pointer slowly to the half-mile pole, and then let him step home at a record-breaking clip. Last week at Belmont the programme was reversed. This week he is likely to go both ends of the mile. Horsemen say his half in 0:57¼ at Belmont indicates that he can pace the first half in 0;59, and then have enough left to finish the mile at the same rate of speed, if not a shade faster, which would set the record at 1:58 or better. Star Pointer will make his race against time wearing 6½-ounce shoes forward, and 3½ ounce shoes behind. He is protected in front by quarter boots, tendon boots and knee boots, the latter being held in place hp elastic straps passing over his shoulders. Cuffing hoots alone are worn behind.—Spirit of the West.

PALO ALTO, October 3, 1898.

The Breeding Register of Palo Alto Stock Farm shows that Nettia George was bred to General Benton July 6, 1877. The breedar, Mr. F. S. Malone, in a letter to ma dated October 2, 1898, writes as follows: "Yours of tha 22d at hand. In reply would state that in 1853 Buck Whitesides came from Illinois, brought a mare by Illinois Medoc; ha bred her to a grsy horsa called Sir Bulwer, the only thoroughbred horse in the country at that time. The produce he hred to Volscian, Norfolk, etc. At Whiteside's death, D. E. Calahan of Golden Eagla fame, bought soma of the stock, among them the one known as Nettie George. Mr. Calahan sold her to Wesley George who sold har to me. In 1877 I hred her and her daughter by imp. Hercules to General Benton. The produce of her daughter, Lady Hercules, was Arab, 2:15. Tha produce of Nettie George was a bay filly I sold to W. E. Deane of San Francisco. Through my advice ha bred the filly to Sidney. Mr. Deane sold the mare and her produce to Josiah Whita of Petaluma. At his death they were sold at auction."

I have written the Trotter and Pacer these facts.

Yours truly, F. W. COVEY.

What Constituted Eligibility.

A California owner recently attempted to hsva a horse registered in the American Stud Book, whosa second dam could not be authentically traced. The claim was made that as the breeding of the sire was known that the following section of Rule 38 entitled the animal to registration:

'Only horses are eligible for registration under this rule which have either five uncontaminated thoroughbred crosses or which authenticslly trace through or to animals recorded in the first five volumes of the American Stud Book, or in a recognized Stud Book of another country."

The owner's contention was that as his borse on his sire's side traced "through or to animals recorded in the Stud Book," he was entitled to registry. This interpretation did not seem reasonabla from the fact that according to it a foal tracing on but ona side to a recorded thoroughbred would he eligible to registry, which of course would he an absurd claim to make. However, to satisfy the owner, the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN communicated with James E. Wheeler, Registrar of the Jockey Club, on tha subject and received the following reply:

"An animal to he eligible for registration in the Stud Book must bava five authenticated strictly thoroughbred crosses on the part of both its sira and dam."

This is a correct interpretation of tha rule, and removes all doubts that tha text of the original rule may have caused to arisa in the minds of owners.

Preparing Horsss to Sell.

As the season aproaches for offering borses at private and publlc sale, we feel that wa can best serve tha interests of sellers by reminding them that a horse well prepsred for the sala ring is more than half sold. This has always been more or less true, but it is mora trua now than ever before, says tha Western Horseman. Some yaars ago, in many instances, trotting-bred horses would sell quita well regardless of the condition they wera in when offered, yet at tha sama tima well fed and well groomed animals always would bring a premium ovar those in the rough. Now, however, no horse will bring a good price when led into the sale ring unless he shows good care and good manners. This is as it should be. If a business man wants a hill or a clerk or a book-keeper he will naver pick out a raw recruit from tha country or city either, who does not know a hill of lading from an election notica or a ledger from a hymn book. Ha will look for men fitted for the work which he wishes performed. Man who buy borses hava learned to be governed by the same common sense business rule. If thay ara in the market for road horses they want them broke to the road. They also want them to look respectable—he in good flesh and good condition every way. If they want race horses they expect them to show extreme speed, and if they want high-acting coach horses they want to see them fold their knees before they buy them. In other words, those who buy horses for their own use—whatever use it is—want the finished product, and not prospects, and illy-conditioned ones at that. They run neither infirmaries nor kindergartens, and do not wish to feed up a horse and break him before they can use him. Tha farmer or breeder can condition and educate his horses much more cheaply than can the city buyer, and the city buyer is more than ready at all times to pay for condition and education. It is, therefore, a plain proposition that those who are contemplating sending horses to tha sale ring this fall and winter should busy themselves in fitting their offerings for the market. Good breeding is all right, but ordinary breeding and good condition will outsell the highest breeding and poor condition.

Horse Notes.

The selection of a horsa should begin by rejections for bad points.

To make the best and largest horses possible out of tha colts keep them growing from tha first.

In breeding horses blemishes as well as disesses are readily transmitted to off spring.

The horse with long legs and flat sidas is not usually an easy keeper. Well muscled ribs, deep flanks and short legs indicate good assimulating power.

A horse does better with just enough food to replace the waste of his system and of a kind to keep him feeling well.

The man who makes horse-raising pay is the man that raises horses that suits customers of the best class of horsee.

A hard plank floor is not fit for horses to stand upon as injuries to the feet are often received in this way that may last a life time.

There is no more profitable animal on the farm than a good broodmara that will produce a good colt every year.

A matured horse may be made to work very hard and work a long time if he is only managed properly afterwards.

Keep off surplus fat from the horses by feeding them muscle producing foods and giving them plenty of exercisa.

Tha breeding of a horse is very important, but tha proper development and care are fully as much so. Give good treatment during growth.

THE National Trotting Association is advised that the expelled horse Little Joker, alias Tar Tartar, has disappeared from Moravia, N. Y. He is a light bay gelding about 15¼ hands with one front and both hind feet white ahova pasterns and a few white hairs in forehead. Tar Tartar has a swa neck, a light tail and paces in hopples. He is owned by Pliny Grover, a man weighing about three hundred and forty pounds. This horse is supposed to be either in New Hampshire or Vermont.

THOSE BABY TROTTERS.

Something of the Four-Months' Old Fillies That Trotted a Quarter in 0:39.

The following, which was taken from a New York Sun of recent date, concerning the baby trotters that trotted so fast at the Middletown, N. Y., Fair, September 17th, will prove very interesting reading for anyone who loves the horse:

The Fifty-eighth Annual Fair of Orange county, which ended yesterday, will pass into history as memorable for demonstrating that trotting youngsters can be broken to harness and exhibited as record makers in speed before they have reached the age of four months. Such an exhibition was made at the Fair this week by Lewis H. Stage, of Unionville, N. Y., who drove two fillies to a road wagon, and covered a quarter of a mile in 0:39. The astonishment of the spectators who witnessed the performance was intense. To break a young horse to pull a road wagon over country roads before it had attained the age of at least a year and a half has been considered hitherto an unusual thing to do, not because of the difficulty in teaching the animal, but because of fear of injury to the colt from physical strain. Stage has asserted for some time that he could upset these theories, and his exhibition at the Fair proved that he was correct.

Stage started to break the fillies eleven days before the Fair opened. They were attached to a road wagon seating one person, and attempts were made to drive them the first three days in a level meadow. The fillies took kindly to the harness, but refused at first to pull. At the end of the first day's trial the fact that they would draw the wagon was demonstrated by running them along and then putting a slight obstruction in front of the fore wheels. The animals, left to themselves, pulled the wagon with Stage in it over the obstruction, breaking the whiffletree. The next day the fillies pulled all right, but in running were very flighty. In order to get them accustomed to seeing objects their owner resorted to an ingenious device. He tied long red rags all over the harness and the young things soon became used to them. They ran away only once, but were caught without injuring themselves.

The older of the two fillies that made this performance completed her fourth month September 27th. The other was three months old on September 22d. The younger is a bay filly, and in the eyes of horsemen gives promise of more speed than the other. The dam of the older is the English thoroughbred mare Gyp. The dam of the other is Gyp's daughter Kit. Gyp formerly belonged to the Lorillard stable. The sire of the fillies is Kentucky Arthur, he by Kentucky Prince, the son of Clark Chief and Kentucky Queen.

Stage bought the dam of the fillies from former jockey Edward Feakes, and at one time trainer for Pierre Lorillard. Feakes got the mare when she was a yearling. Gyp has had five foals. Before the first colt was a year old Stage drove him 120 miles in nine hours; and performances similar to this were made by some of the others.

The fillies that gave such a remarkable exhibition at the Orange County fair this week lack half an inch of being four feet high. The bay, the younger, is rather light framed, with one white foot. She is a little more leggy than the brown. The older youngster is decidedly more racy looking than her sister, with a thicker and heavier body. She has a little spot of white on her fore head. Both fillies, it is thought, will weigh 500 pounds.

Stage drove the team to Deckertown, N. J., about eight miles away, just before the fair, and captured the town by storm. Twelve thousand persons were at the fair the first day, and in the parade with which it opened the fillies were objects of admiration. Their speed performance was the last event of each day, and took place on a half mile track. Stage with the wagon and harness weighed about 256 pounds. The team was paced by a running horse, which led the fillies by about six lengths. This was made necessary as the crowd insisted upon crowding about the the track, and might have interferred with the teams trotting. Despite the crowd and cheers, the animals were not at all disconcerted.

The first day the trial was made from the quarter-mile post to the grandstand, and the time as announced was 45 seconds. The crowd went wild at the result. The red streamers had been left on the harness, and the appearance of the rig was so marked that it was greeted everywhere with laughter. The second day the distance was covered in 42½ seconds, and the third day the fillies trotted in 39 seconds. They were not at all distressed. The oldest horsemen in the crowd were amazed at the last exhibition.

Neither of the fillies has shown any bad effects of the test. Both are apparently as well and as strong as when they knew only how to chase their mother about the pastures. Horsemen who witnessed the performances and critically examined the fillies prophesy that within five years the youngsters should trot a mile in 2.10 or better. Most of them believe that in a few years the younger one, from her build will develop more speed than her sister. The older one at present is a little faster of the two. Stage thinks that he can soon drive the young team at least seven seconds faster than they went on Thursday.

The wagon that the fillies were hitched to on the Orange County fair track belonged originally to William H. Vanderbilt, who drove some of his first horses to it. It seats only one person, and was made over forty years ago, when wagons were not constructed nearly so light as they are now. Stage says he has received a number of offers for the young harness racers since their wonderful exhibition, but he has refused them on the ground that he wants to take time and prove conclusively that his experiment has been successful in leaving the horses as sound as when born.

"Horse raising is like everything else," said Stage the other day. "New things have to be tried in it all the time. The reason that this was never tried before I believe to be due to the fact that no one ever stopped to think of such a thing. Then again, many think there's a lot of risk about it, and consider a young horse too valuable to be used for experimental purposes. What I wanted to prove was the fact that a colt or a filly can be broken more easily, and thus, at an early age, be made of some value, by breaking him in at an age of four or five months. We did not have a bit of trouble in doing this with the two fillies. Of course, only animals that come of good, sturdy stock should be broken in as early as these of mine, but I think I have proved that in the case of such animals it can be done with successful results.

Los Angeles Horse Show.

"The horse show rooms in the Byrne building are full of life, preparing for the exhibition to be held in January next. Many details of interest are being worked out and the cooperation of many strong men in different parts of California has been secured. Among late additions to the list of honorary Vice-Presidents are Baron von Schroeder, of San Francisco; Judge Erskine M. Ross, of this city; C. P. Morehouse, of Pasadena; Graham E. Babcock, of Coronado; R. B. Fithian, of Santa Barbara; Walter S. Hobart, of San Francisco; J. J. Byrne, of this city; C. H. Hastings, of Lamanda Park; J. Downey Harvey, of San Francisco, and C. B. Scoville, of Pasadena.

One of the most active workers in the interest of the horse show is Henry J. Crocker, of San Francisco, who was the President of the several horse shows recently held in that city. He keeps in touch with the gentlemen managing the horse show in Los Angeles and give them the benefit of his experience in the kindred association with which he has been connected in San Francisco. A recent letter from him shows that he is actively at work arousing the enthusiasm of the San Francisco gentlemen and securing entries of their best rigs for the Los Angeles horse show, and he has every expectation of bringing several cars of fine horses and equipages from San Francisco.

Mr. J. Downey Harvey, formerly of this city, who has large property interests here, is also very much interested in the success of the horse show, and in accepting the position of honorary Vice-President he advises the horse show people that he will 'hang up' a cup to be competed for, the event to be decided later."

Valuable Horses Burned.

California trotting bred animals seem to have been marked as victims by the fire fiend this week. At the Walnut Grove Farm, owned by Alexander Brown, near Sacramento, on Tuesday night, the upsetting of a lantern set fire to a large barn and the building was consumed, together with five head of valuable young trotters, including a two-year-old by McKinley out of Bonnie Red, by Red Wilkes, and two others by Chas. Derby. The fast young horse Prince Ansel, 2:20½ as a two-year-old, was barely saved. Several vehicles and all the harness, boots, etc. were burned. The loss is about $5000 on which there is no insurance. It is a strange coincidence that two fires should occur on California stock farms during the same week and that a number of fine young horses should be burned to death in both instances The youngsters on Mr. Brown's farm that were destroyed were a very valuable lot, being not only bred in the purple but were all speedy colts. Their loss is a severe one to Mr. Brown.

Directum's Get Bring Good Money.

Lexington, Ky., October 5.—At Woodard and Shanklin's sale of trotting stock from the Ashland stod the bidding was spirited and the prices were good, forty-two head bringing $15,160, an average of $333 75. The top price was $2750, paid by N. W. Hubinger, of New Haven, Conn., for the yearling Hardwicks, by Directum—Impetnous, 2:14. Impetuous, 2:14; blk m, 5, by Dictator—Ethel Wynne, by Harold, was bought by E. A. Tipton, Anaconda, Mont., for $2,200; Mon Dragon, b c, yearling, by Directum—by Dictator, went to P. V. Estell, Lexington, for $1,650; Globsome, b c, by Dictator—Samovar, by King Rene, was bought by E. A. Tipton for $1,500.

Directina Goes East.

Directina 2:16¾, as a three-year-old, sired by Direct 2:05½ dam Stemwinder, the dam of Directum 2:05¼, has been sold. Reports were made some weeks ago that this four-year-old mare had been sold by her owner, Mr. Green, of Dublin, Alameda county, to eastern parties, but the reports were incorrect. The Breeder and Sportsman can now state with authority however, that Directina was sold this week to a Mr. Fisher of New York, and will be shipped East to-day. The terms of the sale are private, but she brought a good sum. This mare is certain to trot very fast next year, barring accidents.

Gave Good Satisfaction.

Lorena, Tex., Sept. 10, 1897.

Enclosed please find money order for $1 50. Send me one bottle of Caustic Balsam. The bottle I bought some time ago gave good satisfaction. Please be prompt, as I need it at once. J. W. WHITSITT.

KENTUCKY TROTTING HORSE BREEDERS.

Their Great Meeting Delayed by Rains But Opened Thursday.

The greatest harness race meeting in America is that given annually by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association at Lexington. Heavy rains prevented its opening on Monday last, the date fixed, but on Thursday the gates were thrown open and five races and a portion of a sixth were pulled off. Some idea of the grand scale on which this meeting is given can be learned from the fact that on Thursday alone $24,000 in purses were trotted and paced for in the six events.

The program began with the Tennessee Stake of $4,000 for 2:09 class pacers. Searchlight won it in three straight heats, with Sherman Clay, Nicol B., Lena N., Ace, Indiana and Javelin behind him in that order, the time being 2:09¼, 2:11¼ and 2:11¾—the track being very slow and heavy.

The Kentucky Futurity, value $10,000 for three-year old trotters went to Peter the Great, the Pilot Medium colt which was second to Janie T. when she won the $5,000 two-year-old division of the same stake last year. Peter the Great won in straight heats, increasing his speed every time in 2:15¾, 2:14¼ and 2:12¼. Charlie Herr, the Alfred G. colt was second, and Limerick, a son of Prodigal third. Janie T. was in the race but finished just outside the money.

The Futurity, $5,000 for two-year-olds, was won by The Merchant, son of The Cooqueror in straight heats, best time 2:20. Handspring was second and Boralma third. Mary Celeste, Ora Wilkes' daughter, was last.

The $2,000 purse for horses of the 2:08 class was unfinished. William Penn won the first heat in 2:11¼, and Relma, winner of last year's Transylvania, took the second in the same time, when the race was postponed until the following day.

The great Transylvania, which is the St. Leger of the trotting turf, will probably be trotted to-day, and promises to be the greatest race of the year. It is expected that among the starters will be Bingen 2:06¾, Eagle Flannagan 2:07½, Askey 2:08¼, Grattan Boy 2:08½, John Nolan 2:08½, Mattie Patterson 2:09½, Dione 2:09½, Pilatus 2:09½, and a half dozen others all with records below 2:13.

The betting over this race will be tremendous, as never before have so many high-class trotters been brought together, and if last year, when $100,000 went through the pool box on the Transylvania, be any criterion, the winner will have a most substantial amount to carry home, aside from the $2,500 first money in the stake.

This stake was first trotted for in 1889, and was won by the grand old campaigner Jack, driven by the dean of reinsmen, Budd Doble. That year it was for trotters of the 2:20 class. Jack won in three straight heats, 2:15 being the fastest heat.

The race of 1890 was another victory for Doble, after a bruising contest between his horse, McDoel, and the great Iowa stallion, Allerton. That year the stake was for horses of the 2:19 class. The best time was 2:15½, which was made in the third beat by Allerton, also in the fourth by McDoel, Allerton winning but the one heat. In this race three heats were trotted one day and the remaining beat went over until the following day.

In 1891, John Dickerson drove the blind stallion, Cheyenne, to victory, 2:15¾ being the fastest of the three straight beats. The stake was for horses of the 2:20 class that year.

Kremlin's year was 1892, and he beat a great field, of which Hamlin's mare, Nightingale, was the favorite. The race was for 2:18 trotters that year. Kremlin won in straight beats and put the record of the race at 2:11½. Later in the year he took a record of 2:07½ at Nashville, Tenn.

It was 1893, when for the first time in the history of the great stake, Harietta, driven by Crit Davis, stepped a heat below the 2:10 mark, setting the figures at 2:09¾. She did this in the last of three hotly-contested heats.

Azote, the California gelding in Monroe Salisbory's stable, was the winner in 1894 and set the mark at 2:08¾, defeating the favorite, Ralph Wilkes.

It took five heats to decide the race the following year, but Booncer, son of the Electioneer horse Hummer, proved himself a winner, 2:10½ being the time made by him in the fourth beat. Lynne Belle was the favorite that yaar, and the fight was one of the hottest in the history of the stake.

The race of 1896 was a most senational one, and after a postponement over night Clarence Alexander brought out the much improved and little backed gray stallion Senator A., and beat the favorites, Governor Strong, Pilot Boy and Page. Gov. Strong won the first and second heats and Senator A. took the next three. The best time was 2:10, made in the third beat by the winner of the stake.

Last year it was freely given out before the race that the Hamlins had a "lead-pipe" cinch on first money, and had already spent part of it, as their gelding, The Monk, looked to quite outclass his field, but there was nothing to it after Willis Foote turned Rilma loose, and the mare that had previously won the M. and M. and the Massachusetts got all the money. The Monk won the first two heats in 2:09¼ and 2:08¾. Bush, the Alcyone mare then got a heat in 2:09½, while Tommy Britton captured the fourth in 2:11¼. Rilma got the rest, her best time being in the sixth heat when 2:11¼ were the figures caught by the timers.

There is money in chickens, and the Improved Pacific Incubator is the best thing to hatch them with. It is also the lowest-priced good incubator in the market. Read the advertisement.

Sulky Notes.

Norval with eight leads the sires of 2:30 performers.

Caryle Carne was 3-3 in 2:06¾ and 2:07¼, and up pretty close at that.

Jasper Ayers, 2:09, will not be raced any more, but will be used as a road horse.

Good times are coming. Over $4000 was paid for a couple of trotting bred yearlings this week.

Pilatus, 2:09¼, makes Onward's sixth 2:10 performer. He is now tied with Altamont, Baron Wilkes and Chimes.

With eight new additions this season Baron Wilkes 2:18, has a total of sixty-five sons ane daughters with records from 2:04¼ to 2:30.

Indianapolis holds one of this season's records—that of having to declare a well-filled meeting off. The cause was a week of rain.

"Show me a section noted for its fine horses," writes Deacon Partridge, "and I will show you a community noted for its prosperity."

Monterey won a good race at Los Angeles Wednesday. He will still further reduce his record this year if he gets the opportunity to race.

You Bet's mile in 2:12½ makes him the eighth member of McKinney's 2:15 list. There should be others before the Los Angeles meeting ends.

Two new pacers were added to Direct's (2:05½) list last week—Georga Starr, 2:17, at Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Creighton, 2:23, at Berea, O.

To Biogen 2:06¾ belongs the honor of winning the fastest six-heat race ever trotted. He also holds the five-year-old trotting race record of the world.

Col. Thornton 2:09½, by Onward, died last week. He was the cleanest going horse in the 2:10 list, as in races he carried nothing but harness and shoes.

His two races for money, against Chehalis at Portland and John R Gentry of Readville, have put C. W. Marks, owner of Joe Patchen, in the professional class.

Owing to the death of Col. William Edwards, the proposed intercity meeting between driving clubs of Cleveland, Toledo and Pittsburg, which was to have been held last Saturday, was postponed.

Alcidalia was timed a mile at Rigby in 2:08. It is a wonder the Europeans have not secured the little mare, for she has given every American trotter in Europe a good beating, excepting Col Kuser

Humboldt county was all right this year. The two fairs held at Eureka and Ferndale were both very successful and left the management a profit. Large crowds were in attendance in spite of bad weather during several days.

William B. Collier, a Lake county capitalist and candidate for the Assembly, is making the tour of his district in a novel outfit consisting of a neat little rig drawn by four Shetland ponies, which are driven by his daughter.

There is a rush in the East to breed to Directly. That he will be one of the greatest sires of speed there is no doubt but there is another son of Director here in California that will be as great with the same opportunities—Directum, 2:05¼.

Alfred G., 2:19¾, by Anteeo, has stepped into the ranks of sires of five new ones for the season. One of these is the star three-year-old, Charley Herr 2:13¼, while his daughter, Annie Les, has reduced her pacing record from 2:19¼ to 2:07¼.

That handsome little three-year-old filly Dictatress, owned by J. B. Iverson of Salinas, made a wonderful showing at Los Angeles when she was second to You Bet in 2:12½. She has met aged horses in nearly every one of her races this year.

The yearling brother to Biogen, owned at Lookout Stock Farm, attracted a good deal of attention as he was shown on the quarter stretch at Readville last week with the other exhibition of horses. He is a very handsome smoothly-turned youngster.

Consul General Gowdy, Paris, says his horses still have their full tails and are a credit to Red Wilkes and the dead Electioneer, as they attract attention on all the boulavards and are seldom passed, as many Americans while over there can verify.

Zombro, 2:11, is not the horse he was. A few months rest and the attention of a good conditioner might make a big differance with him, however, He was one of the greatest three-year-olds ever trained, but he has certainly been poorly handled since.

A list of the money winners on the Grand Circuit in the East this year shows that eighteen horses won over $2,000 each this year. Of this eighteen, three trace to George Wilkes in the male line, while seven carry the blood of Electioneer in the male side.

Mr. C. L. Crellin, owner of Searchlight, states that his horse and John R. Gentry will not meet at the Los Angeles meeting, and wonders how such a report got out. It was sent out by the Associated Press by authority of an officer of the Los Angeles association.

We hope some of our readers will take advantage of the opportunity and consign some of their horses to the Splann, Newgass sale to be held at Chicago December 13th to 17th. There is no better chance to get good prices for finished horses, fit for the road or track.

The nicest lunch in town is served every day "Among the Barrels" at 863 Market street. The "chils con carne" and "frijoles" are not to be excelled. The liquors on tap are the best and purest made. Drop in at any time and you will find a generous and cosy welcome.

Edna Simmons 2:12½, by Simmons, is one of the fastest new mares of the season and one of the grandest looking big mares seen on the turf for some time. She is out of Edna Sprague, by Governor Sprague 2:20½, and dam of the old trotting mare Lucile 2.12, by Exchequer.

The four-year-old pacing gelding Edward G., 2:12¼, by Baron Wilkes 2:18, dropped dead at the finish of a heat in the 2:12 class at Allentown, Pa., September 22d. Edward G. was a full brother to Bumps, 2:04¼, and had been very successful over the half mile tracks this season.

Anaconda is a wonder. He began his campaign at Denver in early June and is still better than the best of his class. He has won eight of his twelve races, and of his twenty-five winning heats, all but one have been below 2:10, while the average time for twenty-five is 2:07 2 5.

As a race horse Hal Dillard 2:04¾ was one of the fastest in the world, and as a sire he now ranks as the greatest son of Brown Hal. In the four-year-old Fanny Dillard 2:11¾ and Hal B. 2:11¾, he has two of the most consistent race horses of the year and two which can beat 2:10 beyond question.

At Louisville, Marguerite A., by Axtell, trotted to a record of 2:12½, and her two-year-old sister showed a trial of 2:19¼. Peter Duryea has just bought the three-year-old brother to these mares for $3,500. The colt is called Axtellion, and is said to be the fastest three-year-old in the world.

They say that James Hume, Amesbury, Mass., who owns Roan Wilkes, 2:04¾, never takes a dollar of the winnings of the horse, but turns them over to his driver, W. A. Baggs. Mr. Hume is a constant attendant at the races, but never bets. He takes his satisfaction in seeing his very good horse win.

Joe Middleby protested the New England Futurity at Readville last week on the grounds that Idolita was distanced in the first heat, while he, with P. L's Brother was well inside the flag in the second. The judges acknowledged the first, but an unavoidable accident allowed the winner to be placed.

There are 23 weanlings by Prodigal at the Bitter Root ranch, Hamilton, Mont. Exclusive of these, that great young sire has begotten but 75 foals all told, and of these only 60 are now living, 15 of them being mares retired by Mr. Daly to the stud without being given a chance to take records.

The Eureka Fair last month was a success. After figuring up all the receipts and liabilities, the directors found that not only were they able to meet all the expenses incidental to the fair, but also that they would have sufficient funds to liquidate the $200 indebtedness remaining from last year, and have a small surplus besides.

The French Trotting St. Leger, 4000 metres (about two and one half miles), purse $1,200, was won by the bay colt Risler, by Phaeton or Cherbourg, out of Leda, the time being 6:44 1-5. Portraits of the sires named have appeared in this journal. The parentage of the colt is generally attributed to Phaeton, but under the rules both sires must be named.

Another fast one has been sold to go to Europe. Mr. Mr. Schlessinger, the gentleman who was here in California a few months ago, and picked up a carload of horses a Fresno, purchased the trotter Caid at Nashville, Tennessee, just after he made his record of 2:07¼. He paid $7,500 for him. Caid is five years old and is by Highwood, son of Nutwood.

It is said that while being shipped west from Portland, Percy, 2:13, was taken sick, and will probably be retired for the season. This recalls the letter which Mr. Samuel Gamble wrote from California about him to Sanders, regretting that he had acquired the unlucky mark of 2:13, because he said that his observation was that a horse who once got into that particular hole seldom got out of it.

It seems to be the opinion of most horsemen that the rule which provides for the abolition of hopples will be rescinded at the next meeting of the National Trotting Association. The large tracks would like to see them done away with as would most of the prominent drivers and owners but the small tracks will be for the hopples and their votes will likely carry the day for the straps. Some of the larger associations will very likely bar hopples when making up conditions for their races.

At the Corbitt sale in New York two winters ago, Frank Rockefeller purchased for $1600 the black mare Directress by Director, dam by Almont, second dam the dam of Capoul, 2:28½, by American Clay. At thirteen years of age Directress is the dam of three in the list, and is one of Mr. Rockefeller's most valuable broodmares. Her latest in the list is Dollade Wilkes, 2:23, by Guy Wilkes, a mare that in her first start was second, in 2:16¼ and which has since won several races, including two at Mineola, L. I., last week.

Recently Robert Grady, of Point Breeze, purchased a four-year-old chestnut pacing filly named Bessie Stewart, by William L., dam by Bonnie McGregor, for $500. At a trial to wagon at Point Breeze last Tuesday she paced in 2:11½, pulling a 115-pound wagon. A horseman heard of the trial and offered to purchase the filly for $2,500, if she could beat 2:13 to wagon over Belmont track. The trial was set for yesterday, and Robert had the filly on hand and drove her in 2:10½. The time by quarters was 0:33, 1:05, 1:28, 2:10½.

A subscriber of this paper, writing from the island of Maui, of the Hawaiian group, says: "The Maui Racing Association is soon to have a mile track in place of their half mile, and according to the plans and specifications it will be second to none on the islands. Mr. G. Hins, Secretary of the Association, deserves great credit for his energetic work in placing the Association on such a solid footing as it now enjoys. We are going to have races here on Christmas Day for the last time on the half-mile track, and from present appearances we will have a good day's sport."

When it comes to pacers George West has every driver out beat to a stand still. Tom Keatings three champions comprise the best string in point of quality, but in point of numbers and quality West's string is the strongest ever campaigned by one man; as he has no less than seven pacers that have beaten 2:10 this season to date. The list includes Directly, 2:03½; Redinda, 2:07½; Jo He, 2:07½; Sherman Clay, 2:07½; Strathmeath, 2:10½; Lord Roseberry, 2:10¾, and Pinta, 2:13¼—all 1898 records. Pinto has been second in 2:07¾. Lord Roseberry has been second in 2:08 and Strathmeath is as fast as anything in the stable, but is handicapped by a couple of bad legs.

The Chicago Horseman of September 27th, says: "When we figure that Maud S. trotted the Cleveland course in 2:08¾ in 1885, and that with bicycle sulkies, parlor tracks and all the thousand and one improvements developed in the past thirteen years, 2:08¼, has only been beaten once this year and then only by three-fourths of a second, we are forced to admit the strength of the contention that Maud S. is the greatest trotter that ever lived. Certainly no other trotter has been able to equal or beat her record over the Cleveland or other regular track to the high wheels, despite the fact that for years five thousand dollars could be won from Robert Bonner by any one who could drive his trotter a mile in 2:08½ on a regulation track. The attempt was made to earn the money, but failure attended every effort and but two trotters ever drew the high wheels as fast on any kind of a course, Sunol and Palo Alto, in 2:08¼ and 2:08¾, respectively, on the Stockton kite shaped track.

The American Sportsman, published at Cleveland, Ohio, makes the following reference to some of the California bred horses owned in that city, and purchased by their owners at the last Fasig sale. The California youngsters are showing a great deal of speed in the neighborhood. Will White's two-year old colt Benny Moore, brother to Cibolo 2:13½, by Charles Derby, has been a mile in 2:21. Tom Galliger has a three-year-old that looks very much like Klatawah. He is an inbred Steinway, and on Tuesday in the third mile ever given him, paced in 2:28¼. He is called Free Lance and is by Charles Derby, out of Steinola, by Steinway. On Tuesday also, Charley Garfield drove the three-year-old filly Juana a mile at the trot in 2:27½ and repeated in 2:27, the last quarter in 35 seconds. She is by Dexter Prince and out of a daughter of Electioneer. The filly Lady Love by Dexter Prince—by Electioneer, which E. E. Brackin, of Kinsman, Ohio, paid $330 for, is beating 2:30 on half mile tracks.

A dispatch from Pendleton, Oregon, quotes Frank Frazier, former owner of Chehalis, as saying, after he had heard of the defeat of the son of Altamont, by Directly at Louisville. "I will bet $5,000 I can go back East, and if I find Chehalis in as good condition as when I turned him over to Mills will drive him to beat Directly any time. The present driver of Chehalis can never send him to win in any races in which time as good as 2:04, 2:05 or 2:06—Chehalis properly driven can jog in that time." Chehalis is a wonderful horse if he can jog in 2:04, and Mr. Frazier is a wonderful man if he can explain to the satisfaction of trainers and drivers why if the horse is as fast as he claims, he allowed him to be beaten time and again in much slower time. When Directly defeated Anaconda and Chehalis at Louisville he paced the last heat in 2:03½, which is a second faster than either of them has ever gone in a race. There are many horses in this country who are champions in the minds of their owners and the newspapers, but it is the horse that makes his records in an actual race that is entitled to the laurel wreath.

A special sale of high class harness horses was held two weeks ago in St. Louis, lasting three days. As in many other sales of recent months, the horses that brought highest prices were trotting-bred animals. Eight trotting-bred horses, only three of them under 16 hands high, brought prices from $440 to $800. One team, Dewey and Coodo, sired by an English coach horse, brought $650. Champion and Chieftain, a pair of colts with 2:40 gait, by On March, dams by Flying Cloud, sold for $800. Sampson and Dewey, chestnut geldings, 16 1 hands, 5 years, by Sondan, dams by Mambrino Davis and Tacoma, were sold for $4200. The report says that this was "one of the grandest pair of trotting bred coach horses ever sold at public auction; for action, style and beauty they are par excellence." With the exception of the teams Dewey and Cando, and Dewey and Sampson, all the horses bringing the prices above were bought by Mr. George Watson for export to England. One Hackney team was sold for $820, a brown mare of Hackney type for $155 and a bay gelding by a German coach horse for $140. These are the only horses which the report shows to be of foreign sires. It's only the same old story that the sales rings and the show rings have been telling all the time.

LOS ANGELES MEETING.

Good Racing and Fast Time Features of the Opening Week.

The Sixth District Agricultural Society began its annual race meeting at Los Angeles on Tuesday last, October 4th. There was a pretty fair attendance for an opening day, and the racing was good, but the layers of odds complained that the crowd was not a betting one, and up to this writing the same state of things has existed each day of the meeting. The pockets of the people are not filled with loose change and the horses are running and trotting for the purses more than for the amount that can be taken from the public, consequently the racing has been good.

In the judges' stand J. W. Brooks of the California Jockey Club has presided, assisted by Lewis Thorne, Secretary of the Sixth District Association, and W. A. Covarrubias, one of the Directors. James F. Caldwell has wielded the flag for the runners.

As the program has consisted of four running and one harness event each day the track has been kept in a condition which would do for both. It has been a very fast track for the runners, but rather slow for the harness horses.

The first day's sport opened with the 2:16 pace, in which three good things, which had been especially prepared for this opportunity to win a good-sized purse finished one, two, three. They were the McKinney gelding You Bet, the Dictatus three-year-old filly Dictatress, and the Falrose horse Don, that nobody but a man with lots of courage will drive. The McKinney gelding rattled off the race in three straight heats, reducing his mark to 2:12½, and little Dictatress was a very close second each time and Don a good third. Henry Edelman, a resident of Los Angeles is the owner of You Bet, and is said to have won a neat sum from the bookmakers on the result: Bernard was the favorite but did not show much speed. Don came very near winning the third heat, but a break threw him out of it just before the wire was reached.

Marplot furnished the sensation of the day by beating Grady at a mile and an eighth in the sensational time of 1:53½. This is within three quarters of a second of the Coast record and is the best time ever made by a three-year-old in the West. Though the track was lightning fast, still the performance was a most meritorious one, as Marplot hed up 110 pounds. Grady was a favorite at 1 to 3, but he was never able to get up to the son of imp. Rossington, who won handily by over a length.

Petrarch, whom John Humphreys gave away last yeer while racing a string at Los Angeles, created a decided sensation by winning a five-furlong dash over the favoritee, Saucy Eyes, Queen Nubia and Castelar, in handy fashion at the juicy odds of 20 to 1. In the two-yeer-old race at six furlongs San Augustine lasted long enough to win by a head from Gold Fin, who finished strong. The five furlong dash was a gift for Amasa, who won all the way. Celoso harely heat Lotette for second moner. Summaries:

Pacing, 2:18 class, beats three in five. Purse $800.

Running, one mile and an eighth—Marplot, 110, Piggott, 5 to 2, won; Grady, 119, Hennessy, 1 to 3, second; Petrarch 116, Shields, 25 to 1, third. Time, 1:53¼.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12.

The fact that Monterey, Toggles, Prince Gift, Galette and Zombro were to meet in the 2:10 trot led the management to expect a big crowd on Wednesday, but the attendance was disappointing. The horses were called up for the trot at 1:30.

In the auction betting Monterey sold an even money choice over his field, but in the hooks Toggles was favorite for the first heat. Galette drew the pole, but the black mare was very unsteady and was in the air when the horses got the word. At the turn Prince Gift took the pole, maintaining the front position to the far turn, where he broke and was passed hp Toggles. The Fresno horse held the lead to the end, passing the wire over two lengths in front of the favorite. Zombro was fourth, behind Prince Gift.

Monterey made such an impressive showing that he was now an overwhelming choice, both in the auction pooling and in the hooks. He took the next two heats without effort, but in the fourth, soon after the word was given, broke, and it was thought to be all over with him. But Williams picked him up quickly, and making up a deal of lost ground, stepped the last half in 1:03, catching him and beating Toggles out a head amid great excitement in 2:10½. But for this untimely break it is safe to say the winner would have lowered his record at least two seconds.

The Baldwin filly, Celoso, after her good showing on the opening day, was picked to win the four and a half scramble, when the runners had their inning. She ran a good race, but at the end was beaten out easily by Toribio, with post odds at 3 to 1 about him. Roadwarmer, ridden by Ames and a warm second choice, probably would have been returned the winner had he not carried the webbing away with him.

The Maiden Plate for two-year-olds at five furlongs, was considered a certainty for Midlove, with Piggott up, and the filly closed at 3 to 5 in the hooks. Wheeling around as the barrier was released and nearly knocking Powell off Inola, she was left at the post. Correct, at 4 to 1 chance, got all the best of the mix-up, and, leading all the way, won easily from Ellenwood, a 15 to 1 outsider. Miss Reel was a good third.

The six-furlong sprint went to Shasta Water, the favorite. Lady Ashley until within eighty yards of the wire, where the first choics got up and won driving by a head in 1:14¾. William O'B. was third.

There were but three starters in the mile selling race. Moringa was held a 1 to 3 favorite, and, after quite a tussle with La Goleta, shook the Baldwin filly off in the run home, winning easily in 1:40 flat. Napian was beaten an eighth of a mile. Summaries:

Trotting, 2:10 class, beats three in five. Purse $1,000.

Less Two-Year-Old Racing Required.

The question which is now agitating the turf-world is the too frequent racing of two-yeer-olds. There is no doubt that something must be done at once on the subject, or there will be no race horses. The good three-year-olds end other horses in training now can be counted on the fingers, and there is only one way to account for it.

Two-year-old stakes are so valuable and frequent that they eclipse those given for older horses, and the consequence is every owner end trainer, in order to keep up with with the procession, runs his two-yeer-olds about twice or three times as much as he should do, and the result is most of them break down, or race when three-year-olds as patched-up cripples.

Mr. James Galwey has decided to champion the cause, says the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, and has signified his intention of introducing a resolution, at one of the earliest meetings of the Jockey Club, restricting two-year-old racing.

The only people that may possibly suffer for a while will be the breeders, but in the end it will accrue to their benefit. At first, since two-year-olds will not have the same earning capacity, they may not bring quite so much at the sales. But after an experience an owner or trainer will find out that in reality they are worth more, as by not being killed as two-year-olds, they can rece and win stakes as three, four, five and six-year-olds.

The money that a two-year-old earns now, in other words, will be cut up and dealt out to him during a career of five years of usefulness, instead of one short year's racing.

The public will then have a chance to enjoy more long-distance races. Sprinters are not popular, compared with races at a mile and a quarter or over. There are always, attracted to the course on days when some cup race is to be decided, a crowd of people who only now and then patronize racing, and go simply because a race is to be run at two or three miles, and it will give them an opportunity of seeing some old-time racing. These people ought to be catered to as well as the regulars, but if a vote were taken, the regulars, too, would favor less sprints and the abandonment of Futurity and Eclipse courses, where no race can be intelligently seen from start to finish.

HELIOBAS, the $10,000 two-year-old colt that was bought by Bromley & Co. from George Whitney, is turned out on a farm near Lexington in charge of Sam Reardon. H. E. Leigh still controls the colt, and he is reported as improving from the illness he contracted at Oakley this summar. Heliobas has not had a saddle on his back since the Louisville meeting and nothing will he done with him until next year,

C. J. O. Sacramento Meeting.

The California Jockey Club's two weeks' meeting at Sacramento came to a close last Saturday. Financially the meeting was what might be tarmed a "frost," as the attendance was never great on any day. The management of the meeting was first class, however, and every promise made to horsemen end the public was carried out. The C. J. C. probably lost four or five thousand dollars on the meeting, but its officers have the satisfaction of knowing that they have kept faith with the horse owners and the public. The following are the summaries for the last three days of the meeting:

Saddle Notes.

W. B. SINKS' colt, Formero, has been quite sick lately.

THE California Jockey Club's proposed Los Angeles meeting has been declared off.

A TRAINER at Sacramento calls one of his stable boys Roosevelt because he is a rough rider.

REMEMBER that the entries for the stakes to be run during November and December at Ingleside close two weeks from to-day.

MR. J. G. FOLLANSBEE has changed his trainer, having taken his horses from Albert Cooper and given them to Green B. Morris.

JOCKEY PETE CLAY, who was so severely injured at Montreal, has recovered sufficiently to join his stable, and will be seen in the saddle shortly.

THE Hawthorne Stallion Stakes will be run at Hawthorne Ills., to-day. The value of the race is estimated at $22,250 on the basis of fifteen starters.

ON the first day of the Los Angeles meeting, the starting gate having failed to arrive, Starter Caldwell used the flag and got his fields away in good order.

IN the coming sale at New York imp. Meddler will be sold to the highest bidder. A prominent Kentucky breeder stated that he would give $20,000 for him.

BONIBEL, Burns & Waterhouse's fast filly, got to jumping about in her stall on the train while going to Los Angeles, and received a lot of bruises which laid her up for awhile.

IT should be remembered by all breeders that the time for the registration of the thoroughbred foals of 1898 expires November 1st. Registration blanks can be obtained at this office.

TEMPO, ch c, 3, by imp. Whistle Jacket—On the Lea, won a mile and a quarter at Great Falls, Montana, on September 20th, in 2:06¾. Tempo was sold recently for $80. The time is very fast for the track.

AFTER winning the Waterloo Selling Nursery Handicap at Kempton Park, England, on September 10th, P. Lorillard's ch g Illogic, 2, by imp. The Sailor Prince—Illogo, was purchased by H. Barnato for $3,550.

LOUIS EZELL has bought Paul Kauzar for the reputed price of $1 500. Paul Kauvar at his best is a decidedly useful horse and as Ezell is one of the most capable of trainers is likely to prove a profitable investment.

JOCKEY ALBERT SHAW, who went from Montana to Chicago to ride H. L. Frank's horses, was quite seriously injured at Harlem last Saturday, by his mount, Calchas, falling with him. Shaw was unconscious for some time.

THIRTY FIVE bookmakers entered the pleas of guilty in the criminal court, Chicago, last Thursday and each paid a fine of $100. They were charged with keeping gaming rooms at the Washington park and Harlem race tracks.

THE racehorses Scarborough and Harry Thoburn were attached at Sacramento last Monday by James Toohey for $2,300 claimed to be due him and John Mackey for moneys advanced and a share of the earnings of the horses in various races.

THE forty-two fillies sent to England from Rancho del Paso to be sold at auction, went under the hammer at Newmarket, September 29th. The total received for the lot was 7,250 guineas or about $37,000, an average of $880 per head.

H. D. (CURLEY) BROWN, one of the most successful starters in the country, announced that at the close of the Newport meeting he will abandon the handling of the flag for good. He will secure a small stable of his own and take it to New Orleans or San Francisco this winter.

A PECULIAR feature about the death of the stallion Simon Magnus, whose death by a stroke of lightning occurred near Lexington, Ky., recently, was that the skin was not broken or burned by the deadly bolt. The only mark was a small place near the eye, where the hair seemed to be ruffled and turned the wrong way.

WHEN Martimas won the Futurity W. B. Jennings, the owner of Bigonet, claimed the $2,000 as breeder of the winner. C. J. Enright also put in a claim for it, on the ground of being a partner of W. B. Jennings at the time. The Stewards of the Jockey Club settled the question by dividing the money equally between the two claimants.

FORBUSH is the smallest thoroughbred ever seen on the western circuit. For a horse of his size he is easily the best ever seen in this country. The little gelding stands about 14.3, and hardly weighs much over 700 pounds. The day he ran Ed Farrell to a dead heat at a mile and a sixteenth, he stepped the first mile in 1:41 flat. Forbush is as sound as a dollar. His underpinning is perfect, and the track can't be too hard for him.—St. Louis Republic.

ROBERT GOELET, JR., New York, became dissatisfied with the manner in which his horses had been ridden in the running races at the Taunton, Mass; fair meeting, and the millionaire mounted one and piloted him to victory last Thursday. That is more like business.

H. EUGENE LEIGH has sold to W. Woodard Simon W. ch h, fi, by Harry O'Fallon—Lady Royster. Terms private. Simon W. is a very speedy horse, but did not make much show in his race on Saturday, September 17th, and immediately after the race Mr. Leigh sold him.

THE Fonso yearling purchased by Charles Patterson from Applegate & McMeekin for $4000 several months ago is said to be a real crackerjack. Mr. Patterson has given the colt several tryouts with his good three-year old Great Bend and they have been eminently satisfactory. Patterson said the yearling in several trials carried 120 pounds to Great Bend's 100, and beat the latter in a quarter of a mile dash every time. The colt is at present of rare promise.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

TOD SLOAN'S phenomenal success in England has led some of the jockeys over there to try a little crooked work on the American rider, and one day last week, Loates and Robinson, two of the crack jockeys tried to "hustle" Sloan out of the running. The upshot of the matter was that Loates and Robinson were summoned before the Stewards of the Jockey Club, who suspended Loates from riding until the Houghton meeting, and cautioned Robinson. The sympathies of the British sporting men are all on the side of Sloan and the English newspaper warmly applaud the prompt action of the Jockey Club.

OCTOBER 15th, is an important date for horsemen East and West to keep in mind, for it is then that the three classics of the New Louisville Jockey Club will close. The stakes are the Kentucky Derby, value $6,000; one mile and a quarter; the Clark stakes, value $4,000, one mile and a furlong, and the Kentucky Oaks, for fillies, value $3,000, one mile and a sixteenth. They are all for three-year-olds, foals of 1897, and will be run at the Spring meeting of the New Louisville Jockey Club in 1900, and are three of the most valuable events of the American turf. They should fill well, and entries should be sent at once to Secretary Chas. F. Price, Louisville, Ky.

THE destruction by lightning, September 26th, of Applegate & McMeekin's stallion, Simon Magnus, was distinctly a severe loss to the American turf. His owners, it is said, had only recently refused an offer of a large sum for him, made in behalf of Lord Beresford, who wished to take the horse back to England. Few more richly-bred horses have ever been imported. His sire, St. Simon, is one of the illustrious list of "triple crown" winners, and for a number of years has been the premier sire of England, while his dam (Wheel of Fortune) was one of the greatest of the band of grand mares owned and raced by Lord Falmouth when he was winning nearly all the good things of the English turf year after year. Such blood lines could hardly have failed to produce good results in this country.

A DOZEN years ago John Hoffman owned a race horse by the name of Buckler, by Buckmaster—Little Lung, and he won a small fortune for his owner, that put Hoffman in the business and gave him a start in life, and the little trainer who handled Yo Tambien, Maid Marion, Van Buren, and other famous horses always had a weak spot for old Buckler and his sire. Miss Hoffman, his daughter, knew this, and two years ago, when, at a sale, she saw an undersized yearling filly by Buckmaster, who did not seem to be in much demand, she purchased it purely as a matter of sentiment. This is the way Fonso became the property of John Huffman. This filly added another race to her long list of victories of the year by winning the handicap at one and one sixteenth miles at Harlem last week.

MR. W. K. VANDERBILT, who is now gradually collecting a valuable stable in France, recently purchased the following mares, all in foal to Hanover: Ella Pinkerton, by Longfellow—Semitone by imp. Buckden; Ida Walton, by Longfellow—Bonnie Kate, by imp. Knight of St. George, and Confidence, by Longfellow—Latonia, by Billet. They sailed on the Cevic last week. Mr Vanderbilt's idea in having mares sent to France in foal is to avoid penalties which are placed on foreign-bred horses. Mr. Vanderbilt is especially fond of the stout old pedigrees and this accounts for the fact that all these mares are by Longfellow. As most of the important races in France are over a distance of ground, he hopes to secure some high-class performers from the blood lines which he has chosen.

ONE of the new features of the California Jockey Club's winter meeting will be the placing of Charles F. Price, Chairman of the Board of Stewards in a stand about eighty yards from the wire, where it will be his duty to keep a sharp eye on the jockeys as they finish their races. The judges in the stand have all they can do to place the horses, and if there is any crooked, foul or lethargic riding on the part of jockeys Mr. Price's report on the same will be a basis for punishment therefor. Judge Price has made a study of this part of the racing game, and as was clearly evidenced at the Sacramento meeting, he is an expert as to what a jockey should do and what he is able to do at the finish of a race. There will be straight riding at the Oakland meeting or there will be a big lot of the boys on the grounds in short order.

THE victory of St. Callatina in the Bay Shore Stakes at Gravesend Thursday of last week furnished some excitement. The Fleischmanns and Sam Hildreth have lately each coveted the horses in each other's stables, consequently when either wins a selling race the chances are the winner will be bid up. St. Callatina was boosted $1,505 over her entered selling price by one of the Fleischmanns, whereupon Mr. Hildreth asked him why he could not let him alone, as he was a poor man and did not start the trouble himself. President P. J. Dwyer happened to be passing at the time and told Mr. Fleischmann if Mr. Hildreth had attempted to interfere with his bidding on any horse to enter a complaint. The matter then dropped. As Mr. Hildreth only owns the running qualities of St Callatine, he was bound to protect her.

JOCKEY MAHER is having a hard time of it at the hands of the howling dervishes of the New York dailies. In a streak of bad luck it has been the misfortune to ride a loser in each of his last twenty-three races. This has led to a chorus of denunciation so fierce that it seems nothing short of hanging and quartering will still the torrent of execration hurled at Tod Sloan's late rival.

THE late Mr Davis, the biggest bookmaker of his time in England, probably laid the largest bet ever recorded when he wagered $500,000 to $5,000 against three horses owned by a Mr. Clark and entered in the Derby of 1896. There is also a bet recorded of $450,000 to $150,000, the big amount being laid by Lord Glasgow and the smaller by Lord Georges Bentinck, who lost. In 1885, a young lordling bet $15,000 to $150 that St. Simon, a very celebrated race horse, would win a race in which but one other animal was to start. St. Simon was so hot a favorite that 100 to 1 was laid on his chance, such odds, of course, being very unusual and meaning that there is hardly any betting being done. That lord, however, actually bet his $15,000 against a bookmaker's $150 as coolly as if he had been accepting and not laying tremendous odds. St. Simon won in a canter.

FORTUNE is scowling at the Fleischmanns. They have been liberal and enterprising owners, and they have had a great deal of unmerited ill luck. Formerly they owned Nosey. He was taken from them in a selling race. Last week they got him back in a selling race. In the same race S. C. Hildreth claimed George Keene from them. Nosey, in the Fleischmann colors, and ridden by Maher, was the favorite in the second race. Maher rode him stupidly and he was third behind Ben Ronald and Estaca. In the fifth race George Kenne, in Hildreth's colors, and not ridden by Maher, who rode him stupidly last week, but ridden by Clawson, defeated Macy, Whistling Con and White Frost. So many mishaps have occurred to the Fleischmanns through no fault of their own that it will not be surprising if they sell out their stable and retire from the turf at the end of this season.—New York Tribune.

WHAT-ER-LOU, the stake horse of John Huffman's now running at Chicago, was one of the cheapest yearlings ever sold at a public sale, bringing but $10. He was bred at Lamar, Mo, and is by White out of Alma Lamar. "Professor" Owsley, a negro school teacher living at Lexington, Ky, purchased the colt and the following spring secured a stall, purchased a peck of oats and a wisp of hay, and tried to win a race with his purchase. He was successful, and when John Huffman bought the colt in the fall for $800 he was in such shape that he had to be turned out. Last year he won a number of selling races and this year he began the season by winning two of the largest stakes given at St. Louis. He was second in two stakes at Washington Park and would have won one of them but for a bad ride. After a rest for over a month he is now better than ever, and, with the exception of Imp, is probably the best horse in that locality.

A PECULIAR case that came up for consideration by the Turf Congress Relief Committee on September 22 was the claim of E. S. Gardner & Son against the Washington Park Jockey Club. The Gardners entered their mare White Frost in a race at the recent big Chicago meeting, for which an entrance fee is charged. Only four horses entered, and, as some of them were scratched the race was declared off and a new race was made up and substituted. The other three went into the new race, but White Frost did not. The Gardners demanded back the money they had paid as entrance fee, but Secretary Howard refused to pay it on the ground that the club had not declared the race off, but the owners, by scratching, and that White Frost could have gone into the new race. The committee held that the Washington Park Club could not force an owner to enter a race, and ordered that association to refund to Gardner & Son the entrance fee in question.

LIEBER KARL, the crack three-year-old who was touted by the Western turfmen in the spring as a world beater and the peer of Hamburg or any other three-year-old, made his appearance Sept. 27th at Gravesend, for the first time on an Eastern track. He won his race, which was an all-aged affair at a mile and a sixteenth, and won so easily that it stamped him at once in the minds of skeptical Eastern men as a really good horse. But there was not an opportunity to judge of the colt's full capabilities, for not one of the other three starters could make him extend himself, so until he meets some Eastern horse that will cause him to more than canter, Eastern men will not really know how good he is. He is the possessor of a splendid burst of speed, which he is able to maintain for a distance, for in this race he went at once to the front, and without apparent effort carried the field of three others off their feet. He had Haudhall and Colonel Tenny tip-toed to a standstill before seven furlongs had been covered.—N. Y. Times.

"WHEN I came East in 1892 my horses were run up over $10,000 in selling races, and I never said a word," said Owner-Trainer-Jockey McCafferty the other day. "At least, if I did, I said it to myself, as no one heard me. Now, that I bid on one of Mr. Dwyer's horses people howl. I don't see where it comes in. I didn't howl when mine were run up and I didn't retaliate. I don't run this man's horse or that man's horse up for revenge. I bid on Handspring because I thought he was a cheap horse at $2,500. He was entered for $700. I went to $1,800. Mr. Dwyer bid the extra $5 and kept his colt. The truth of the matter is, the selling race is not understood in America. It is only fair that we should run our horses where they belong. When a man runs a $10,000 horse in a $1,500 race, whom does he hurt? Why, everyone. The horse gallops away from the poorer ones, and the contest, as a contest, is ruined. The public is robbed. It has paid to see six races and only sees five. The bookmaker is robbed, as he has paid to book six races and only books five, and, last of all, the owners of other horses in that particular race are unfairly treated. The time has gone by when the rich owner can say to others: 'Bid on my horses and I'll run you out of the business.' That won't do. When a fellow runs a horse too cheap, it is the duty of some one to bid on him. I am not here to preach or to protect anyone, but when I want a horse I'll bid and try to buy him, no matter to whom he may belong, and, I may add, when I run in a selling race any one is welcome to bid on my entry."

CATTLE ARE DYING in several localities in California to an alarming extent. On the low tule lands of Solano county the disease was said to be Texas fever, while on the Sacramento river, on the Perkins' ranch in Yolo county, a fine herd of Holsteins has been reduced from sixty to forty head in ten days from a disease that is pronounced anthrax by the veterinarians. In the localities where these diseases have appeared, the most effective steps have been taken to prevent the spread of the disease, and rigid quarantine rules established. The Woodland Democrat says on the subject: "Some months ago the Federal authorities established a quarantine against Southern California cattle. The quarantine extended north as far as Carquinez Straits and from the latter point in an easterly direction to the State line. As the season advanced and, owing to the drought, feed became very scarce in the southern counties, owners lost much of their stock, and they made exertions to have the quarantine raised. Stockmen who had thousands of head of cattle in southern counties, and who also owned large tracts of land in Northern California and Nevada, used all the influence at their command to this end, and the restrictions were finally removed. Soon afterwards large shipments of cattle were made to Solano, Yolo and other northern counties. Feed was plentiful in this section and quite a number of stockmen went south and purchased stock, not anticipating the serious results that were to follow. About two months ago deaths among the cattle on the marsh lands in Solano county were noted and, at first, the fatalities were attributed to the brackish water caused by the lowness of the streams. The mortality, however, increased to such an extent that an investigation was deemed necessary. In some cases the disease was pronounced splenetic fever, in others anthrax, but in the majority of cases Texas fever. Since that time the disease has not abated, and it has evidently spread to the uplands and into Yolo county." The only effective means yet discovered to prevent the spread of the disease is to kill each animal as soon as it becomes afflicted and burn the carcass. Dipping the cattle as sheep are dipped to cure scab is also recommended. The nearest approach to handling the disease has been made by Pasteur and others of his school. They have developed a bacilli bacterial culture, greatly weakened, for innoculation, in some such way as vaccination among human beings. This gives the cattle the disease in a mild form, so that they soon become immunes, that is, they are not likely to have the disease. If they do have it after the Pasteur treatment they have it in a very mild form. Like most of the contagious diseases in the human family, however, the most effective fight against it can be made by rigid quarantine, cleanliness, clean feed and pure water. The fact that anthrax is not only fatal to cattle, but can be communicated to man and is equally fatal to the human family, makes it imperative that the authorities in all parts of the State should take the most energetic means to stay its progress and this we are glad to know they are doing.

THE UNANIMITY with which the horse and other live stock breeders of California are expressing their intention of giving support to the candidates (legislative and executive) who favor restoration of the appropriations for district fairs, has aroused the opposition, and a strenuous effort is now being made to counteract the same. It will not be of much use, however, as the breeders see in the unqualified endorsement by the Democratic convention of the Budd administration and a point blank refusal on its part of their request for an endorsement of the district fairs, a turning of the cold shoulder to their entreaties. As Blinker Murphy would say, "the breeders have received the glassy eye, and will reteliate by giving the clemmy foot." It is a duty which every live stock breeder in the State owes himself to help place those officials in power who recognize the importance of the breeding interests and are pledged to do all in their power to uphold the same. This, Mr. Gage and the Republican legislative candidates are under promiss to do. That any of the great issues which enter into national politics are of more importance in this State campaign than the question of appropriations will be very hard to make the breeders believe. They see in this fight a contest between the parties as to which shall control and attend to home affairs, and in such a contest each voter casts his ballot as he believes will best conserve his own interests—believing that if every individual does the same, the will of the mejority will be manifested. The most important question before the horse owner is "Shall prosperity in California horse breeding be restored by a renewal of the district feirs, or shall it be killed entirely by wiping them out of existence?" One of the political parties has said that it favors the fairs AND WILL RESTORE THEM; the other party endorses the administration which destroyed the fairs and refuses to say whether it will favor them in the future or not. With such a condition of affairs confronting him the stock-breeder sees but one duty for him to perform, and that is to stand by the party that is outspoken in its friendliness to his interests.

HIGH-BRED ROADSTERS, some forty head, are to be sold by Killip & Co. by auction, in this city, Thursday, October 28th. These horses are the property of Thos. Brown, Esq., and are by such sires as Dexter Prince, Cupid, Azmoor, Truman, Dexterwood and other well-known stallions. This is a choice lot of grandly-bred mares and geldings, all in the very best of shape and condition and should be snapped up by buyers who are on the lookout for bargains. The Dexter Prince, Cupid and Azmoor mares will in another year be worth three times the money they will bring at this sale. Well-bred trotters with good looks and speed are not to be found every day and they are growing scarce. This is a splendid opportunity to get something good at a low price and should not be overlooked. There are some well-matched teams, very handsome and speedy, in the consignment. The horses will be at the saleyard, corner Van Ness avenue and Market street, in this city, on Monday, October 17th, where they can be looked over every day until the sale.

THE PEDIGREE of Lenna N., 2:05¼, can be established, in spite of the doubt placed upon it by the Trotter and Pacer and Mr. Wallace. As will be seen by reference to a communication in another column from Mr. F. W. Covey, Superintendent of Palo Alto Stock Farm, Nettie George, daughter of Norfolk, was bred to Gen. Benton and the produce was Miss Helen, dam of Lenna N. Mr. F. S. Malone, the owner of Nettie George, also corroborates this fact. The pedigree is as the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has stated it.

CLEIVEDEN, the Australian stallion, was shipped back to Australia this week. This is a loss to California. The horse should never have been allowed to leave the State at the price asked for him.

WM. G. LAYNG, the well-known proprietor of the Occidental Horse Exchange, claims the following dates for sales of thoroughbreds to take place at his establishment, November 15, 19, 23, 28, 1898. Owners of thoroughbreds, who wish to dispose of them at auction at this exchange, should communicate at once with him. See advertisement.

Answers to Correspondents.

W. H. B., Salt Lake City.—(1) Could I get my filly registered under the new rules? She is by Bitter Root, son of Lord Byron, out of Lena, by Alecto 2548, dam Belle, by Peavine. (2) In what volume is Lena registered? Answer—(1) Yes; she is eligible to registration under the new rule 1, being by a standard and registered horse out of a standard and registered mare. (2) In volume 9.

Horsemen differ greatly in describing the conformation and general appearance of the noted trotting sire Abdallah. One reason for this, and possibly the chief one, may be that he was seen by them under very different conditions. Any horse whose conformation is angular can be made to look quite well when young by keeping his frame work well covered with fat. Few horses of that conformation would be pronounced beauties when thin in flesh.

The writer spent part of an evening in this city a few years since with a horseman from Montreal, whose name if we remember correctly, was Spaulding. This man helped take care of old Abdallah one year when the horse stood in New York City and was somewhat advanced in years. The horse received little, if any, patronage that year, and was probably quite thin in flesh. Mr. S. described him as an "angular, straight-necked, low-headed, cat-hammed horse, but a fine-coated, clean-limbed animal, that showed beautiful trotting action when ridden upon the back, but was not driven to harness."

During that season, which was in the neighborhood of 1850, if we remember correctly, all the patronage that Abdallah received was a few work mares, which were taken from the teams that were hauling manure from the stable, and no account was kept of them, and no service fees collected. It may have been from one of these work mares that he got Conklin's Abdallah, sire of Rerus, 2:13¼.—Am. Horse Breeder.

The Hawthorne Stallion Stakes.

The Hawthorne management officially announces that the big stallion stake will be run at the Hawthorne track, Chicago, to-day, October 8. If there are fifteen starters the purse will be worth $22,225 gross, $18,055 net to the winner.

The entries closed with 364 nominations, and of these 179 declared out, leaving 187 still eligible.

Stallion declarations	$ 2,900
Declarations (179)	2,555
Forfeits	9,500
Starting fees	3,000
Added money	5,000
Total	$22,955

A sweepstakes for two-year-olds (foals of 1896), the produce of stallions entered by January 1, 1896, under the following subscriptions: $50 each for stallions whose service fee is $100 or greater, and only $25 each for all other stallions. Foals to be entered by January 1, 1897, when the stake shall close, at $200 each, $50 forfeit, or only $15 if declared out on or before March 1st, or $25 by May 1, 1898; declarations void unless accompanied with the money; with $5,000 added. The second horse to receive $700 of the added money and thirty per cent of the starting money. The third horse to receive $300 of the added money and twenty per cent of the starting money. The nominator of the sire of the first, second and third horse to receive twenty-five per cent, fifteen per cent and ten per cent of the starting money, respectively. Winners of three races of $1,000 or one of $2,500, to carry 3 lbs.; of two of $2,500 or one of $5 000, 5 lbs; of two of $5,000, 7 lbs. penalty. The produce of stallions which have not produced a winner prior to January 1, 1897, allowed 3 lbs., whether claimed or not at the time of the entry, and not to be forfeited because of any subsequent winnings. Maidens allowed 7 lbs.; allowances cumulative. The public or the private sale of the foal with its engagement in the Stallion Stakes, will relieve the nominator from any liability as to the foals eogsgement, providing such nominator was the owner of the foal's dam at the time the entry was made; in all cases of sale with engagement an accepted transfer must be filed with and approved by the Association. Stallions may be entered by anybody, the owner having prior right. Six furlongs.

All by Developed Sires.

Eight trotting stallions have entered the 2:10 list this year, as follows: Directum Kelly, 2:08¼, by Direct, 2:05½, dam by Anteeo, 2:16½; Askey, 2:08¾, by McFarland, 2:29½, dam by Strangemore; Bingen, 2:06¼, by May King, 2:20, dam by Young Jim; Caid, 2:07½, by Highwood, 2:21, dam by Don Cossack, 2:28; Tommy Britton, 2:09¼, by Liberty Bell, 2:24, dam by Pancoast, 2:21½; Pilatus, 2:09¼, by Onward, 2:25¼, dam by Egbert; Monterey, 2:09¼, by Sidney, 2:19¾, dam by Commodore Belmont; Crescens, 2:09¾, by Robert McGregor, 2:17½, dam by Mambrino Howard. Every one of the eight was sired by a developed sire.

HORSE shows, county fairs, the meeting of driving clubs, and all such gatherings of horses and horse owners, are beneficial in more ways than one. They arouse a spirit of emulation among those interested that always brings results. The recent open air horse show at Burlingame is an instance. Since it was held, there have been quite a number of gentlemen who visited it and admired the many handsome turnouts there exhibited, who have given orders to their commissioners to purchase single horses and teams suitable for show purposes. Whilst on a visit to the harness emporium of John A. McKerron the other day, we found him to be an enthusiast on the subject of horse shows generally. "They are great institutions," he said, and he thought they should be more frequently held. "For," said he, "as an educator they are unsurpassed." In proof of which, Mr. McKerron pointed with pride to the numerous and constantly increasing fine equipages to be seen on our streets and in the park in contradistinction to those seen before the holding of the first horse show in this city. He also added that he was pleased to chronicle the fact that our first families were generally evincing a decided inclination to give the preference for goods for such purposes to home manufactured articles.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Diego—Shipping quail out of the county prohibited.
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of this county prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Ventura—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).

New Quarters For the Olympic Gun Club.

The members of this popular and leading organization of sportsmen were afforded tha opportunity of an informal inspection of the clnb's new quarters on Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock P. M. Tha club's new home is now located on the corner of Kearny and Morton streets, a convenient and central location that promises well for an increased list of membership, up to the limit of 200, within a very short period. The clnb rooms occupy the whole of the top story of the building and have been arranged and renovated in a manner suggestive of a master mind in designing and furnishing—tha assembly room, a grand apartment, is large, airy and well lighted. The furniture, which is upholstered in leather, being particularly luxurious. Many fine paintings and engravings on the walls, as well as a collection of beautiful trophies of the hunting field, will, no doubt, be fruitful of congenial topics during the coming winter evenings when the club story-tellers are surrounded by a coterie of interested listeners, all seated within comfortable distance of the cosy fireplace which adorns tha south end of the room. In this room next Friday evening will be held the club's opening entertainment and high jinks; the directors propose making this affair the star feature of a series of pleasant club runnions. The billiard room contains two elegant tables for pool and billiards, and will be fitted with a perfectly appointed buffet, making, in fact, a happy combination of recreation and creature comfort at the service of the members. A card and reading room and several storage and other apartments go to make up an ensemble which places the Olympic Gun Club par excellence ahead of any similar organization west of the Mississippi. As a clnb devoted to sporting interests, the Olympic Club has been a decided success; it is on the royal highway to further distinction in social features, for as now situated, advantages will be offered the members to enjoy all of the facilities offered by a purely social clnb. Entertainments are promised frequently and effort will be unsparing in making the clnb rooms a favorite place of resort. The list of membership is increasing, the initiation fee of $10 being temporarily suspended; members desiring to propose friends will probably now do so as soon as possible; applications as soon as received, entitle the gentleman proposed to tha immediate privileges of the clnb house. A bright and prosperous future is within the possibilities for this excellent organization, which has heretofore had a pleasant and unbroken current of prosperous existence. We wish them every success.

Vallejo Hunting Notes.

The season for the Drawbridge Gun Clnb opened at the club's shack last Sunday morning with great eclat. The members present were Frank Gorham, O. S. Cooper, Chas. Winchell, Will Mitchell, Frank Haggerty and Al Kelshaw. The bag for Saturday and Sunday counted up fifty teal and sprig. Tha rain on Sunday spoiled sculling the creeks for birds. Sunday morning a flag-raising was celebrated with proper ceremonies. A number of Napa guests who came down the creek in a launch helped to make merry at the feast that followed.

Tha swamps at the outskirts of tha city are not as yet overcrowded with ducks. Several bags of three and four are reported but the majority of Nimrods came home as they went out.

Tha inles north of Mare Island do not as yet offer strong inducements to a hunter, judging by the luck of a large number who ventured out Saturday and Sunday.

A flock of several hundred geese was seen Sunday at tha preserves of the Drawbridge Clnb.

The Rifle at Los Angeles.

The Los Angeles Sharpshooters announce their first fall tournament to take place at Los Angeles, October 21st, 22d and 23d. The competition is open to all and will take place on the new range at Glassell Station, on the Terminal railway, five miles from the center of the city.

The program which is designed to encourage rifle practice in various phases embraces the following events: A sharpshooters team match with military rifles, $125 divided into five moneys also a gold medal; ring target re-entry race at 200 yards, off hand, any style of rifle, no telescope or palm rest $130, five moneys and specials; expert pool shooting, 200 yards off hand; merchandise shoot, 200 yards off hand, midrange bullseye pool, 500 yards off hand, military target, any rifle or trigger; members pool, long range match, 1,000 yards, military target, any natural position; high prize, a Winchester single shot 30-40 rifle. On Saturday, October 22d, a list of valuable prizes will be given in a match at 500 yards shooting at the new skirmish target designed by Allen Kelly. F. S. Hicks, the Secretary, will forward full and complete information. His address is 127 West Second street, Los Angeles.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

B. Sherock bagged a dozen teal and sprig at Newark last Sunday.

C. Griffiths proposes to decimate the duck family who frequent a favorite spot near Sears.

Al Shoeman and J. McManus shot in the vicinity of Belmont. Twenty-two quail was the bag.

W. J. Golcher and Ned Bosqui were credited with a bag of eighty-four quail shot near Nicasio.

At Sears Point, W. Williams and brother, last Sunday, shot fourteen teal and a dozen yellow-legs.

Frank Vernon on Saturday and Sunday near Point Reyes, shot over his setter and bagged eighty fine quail.

W. Schendel and J. Potter tried their old spots at Mowry's on Sunday. The combined bag was two dozen teal.

Ten market hunters in the vicinity of Potato Slough did not bag three dozen ducks between them on Saturday and Sunday last.

Billy Murdock and Doc Smith had their initial duck shoot for this season on the Olympic preserve—teal, seven in number, was tha bag.

On tha Empire Gun Club grounds at Sunday last, J. B. Haner bagged two mallard and five teal and J. Lambert bowled over six teal.

Chas. Cate, R Wenzel and John Potter made good bags at Mowry's on Sunday last. The combined bag counted up seventy-two, nearly all teal.

The Empire Gun Clnb members at a well attended meeting held last Tuesday evening perfected arrangements for the shooting this season on their preserve at Black Point.

The Eastern bay shore grounds did not produce many big bags on Saturday and Sunday. The ducks flew high and kept out on the bay on Sunday. Rail were scarce also.

Duck hunters will find Androns Island, a favorita shooting ground in past seasons, posted from one end to the other, warning all trespassers, particularly hunters, to keep away.

A section of quail ground near Petalnma enabled J. Douglas and Sam Winkel to bag two dozen quail on Sunday. A number of birds were lost, tha hunters not having dogs with them.

Johnny Coleman, Tom Costigan, Ed Hetzel and J. H. Quinn are still at Webber Lake. The duck shooting has just commenced. They will probably stay until the running races open.

A puncture proof folding decoy offered to sportsmen by Clabrough, Golcher & Co., the agents, is attracting a great deal of attention. Those who have used them speak well of this device.

At Tnbbs Island, the duck shooting on the opening days of season was very poor. The hunters found their sport in shooting yellow-legged plover, which birds are unusually numerous this season.

Geo. Walker was at Point Reyes on Sunday after quail. The bag was only a fair one, but Walker was more than compensated for the lack of birds by the splendid field work shown by his setter, Mouk, who is by Kittle's Luka and a Monk of Furness bitch.

J. Karney and J. Bruns started for a duck hunt at Sears Point; one essential feature of success and sport was lacking—there were no ducks. They, nothing loth, tried tha hills and ravines near by for quail, but were not lucky enough to bag any birds.

At Reclamation, on Sunday last, Eug. Forster bagged one careless sprig, Edg. Forster admired the varieties of tide-land and marsh scenery, Jack Shackleton was suspected of nearly drowning himself in a desperate effort to retrieve a wounded wire tail from the waters of Petalnma creek, and W. Price bagged two sandpeeps and swore at the mosquitoes.

The Limited Gun Clnb opened the season last week on their shooting grounds at Mt. Eden—Dr. Robt. Millar, Otto Feudner, Dr. C. H. Bell, Dr. Colestock and H. Lorber were in tha party. The combined bag numbered sixty five sprigtails. The limit of membership in this club is seven. The shooting on the preserve promises to be very good as soon as fresh water is more plentiful.

The Black Jacks enjoyed their initial shoot at ducks on Saturday and Sunday last. Among those present were: John Lemmer, Fred Johnson, Lloyd Eaton, C. L Dietz, Bert Wyman, Billy McRae, Dick Brooks and others. The best shooting was done on Saturday morning. Bert Wyman surprised the boys; out of a total bag of eighty ducks shot, Wyman's score was forty-five (not counting a dozen and a half flambeaus).

C. A. Haight, Jim Maynard and Dr. Ayers were at Brannan Island on Sunday. Fair bags of quail was the result. Dave Thom found tha weather unfavorable for snipe shooting at Suisun.

At Mt. Eden, on Sunday last, Jim and Mike McDonald made a fair bag of sprig. Arthur Priest shot eight sprig, F. Shultz bagged six sprig and Dick Itgen bowled over a couple of fine mallard, which latter variety is a rare duck in that particular hunting district.

Members of the Tamalpais Club enjoyed their initial quail shoot of the season on Sunday last. Of those who were out Fred Drinkhouse bagged the limit; W. C. Brown got fourteen; H. F. Wagner was doing nicely until his 16 guage broke down. Dr. Winterburn also brought down a fair bag.

Quail, grouse and sage-hens afforded fairly good sport to Al Cumming, Fred Bushnell and Johnny Coleman on a a recent shooting trip in Sierra Valley. The season has not been a very good one for quail in the vicinity of Jackson. The grouse shooting on a six days trip near Vinton and Pleasanton was fair.

Otto Feudner had a shooting companion in his blind at Mt. Eden, an Irish setter evidently lost and who was limping along on three legs. The dog was wandering aimlessly about on the marsh and upon meeting Feudner he immediately commenced friendly overtures which were met half way. The dog repaid Feudner's kindness by retrieving all his his birds for him and to make good measure he filched another hunter's ducks and brought them to Otto.

The Olympic Gun Club's preserve on Petaloma creek is in good order. Members visiting the preserve will find comfortable quarters and good accomodations. The grounds can best be reached by the steamer Gold, leaving Jackson street wharf at 3 P. M. daily. Members going by train must give at least one day's notice in order that arrangements may be made to have them met by launch at the Sonoma draw bridge near Black Point. Such notice may be sent to C. A. Haight, 226 Market street, or left with the steward at the new club house.

Phil Bekeart, he of the jovial disposition, the popular coast representative of the Hunter Arms Company and also representing a number of leading Eastern sporting goods manufacturers, is with us again after a brief business trip to the East. Phil reports that he had a pleasant trip and that he received a royal welcome all along the line; but he was on the jump all the time, stopping at Chicago, New York, Syracuse, Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, etc. He states that all the manufacturing firms he visited were behind and running overtime to keep up with orders. The business season in the East this year is evidently a prosperous one. Bekeart and Harvey McMurchy spent some pleasant hours together in New York.

A Day's Sport in Oakland Creek With Striped Bass.

The reports anent striped bass fishing circulated among the angling fraternity during the early part of this week were received with significant smiles and also with a degree of intolerance that was nettling to the narrator. On Tuesday morning Jack Cracknell, Al Wilson, Manual Cross and F. W. McFarland proceeded to the other side of the bay. Leaving the train at Grand street, Oakland, they made for the waters of the estuary at the head of Oakland creek; procuring boats they put out and got their best tackle in readiness for the striped bass. This game fish was reported to be plentiful in that section, numbers of them having been caught with rod and line for a week previously both day and night.

This expedition was only one of many similar trips taken by these gentlemen at various times for several years past. Rumor and report, time and again, as to tha presence, capture and sport the bass afforded at innumerable points around the bay only resulting in fruitless journeyings, or at most, two or three small fish not worth tha time taken in going after. Notwithstanding past bad luck and disappointments, these persistent anglers were willing to follow up the latest clews; the results, to them, in the light of past experiences, were simply amazing and they felt amply repaid for their long waiting.

Cracknell was high hook; he caught six, tha largest a five-pounder. Al Wilson captured four, one of them a sixteen-pounder; another pulled the scales down to fourteen pounds. McFarland caught two and Cross one bass. The bass were there for keeps; trolling and casting were both tried, each style giving successful results. Bait of various kinds was used, but clam necks and bellies were best. The sixteen-pounder was taken with a Wilson spoon.

The fisherman averaged about one fish out of ten strikes, the bass being more cunning and wary apparently than his reputation for tricks gave him credit for. One fact was noticeable, when the small fish were hooked they seemed to give up the fight readily, but the big fellows! they put up a grand gladiatorial combat that played havoc time and again with tackle that was calculated to stand any strain and which had often landed the largest steelheads that Eel river could furnish.

That striped bass frequent San Francisco and adjacent waters in countless numbers is a well known fact, but it has been rarely that they were taken with rod and line to any great extent. If tha experience of the gentlemen mentioned above is to be the courier en avant of striped bass fishing in our waters, then indeed will the angler have royal sport and great will be the reputation of San Francisco bay as a resort for a high degree of sport with rod and line. We are advised, too late for full particulars, of grand sport by these gentlemen in tha same waters on Wednesday, day and night and on Thursday. The catch was a fine one.

The Striped Bass.

Of all the fish indigenous to our coast the striped bass is from the angler's point of view, pre-eminently "the king." Of beautiful proportions and markings, he is an object of delight to the eye; while his superb game qualities make him an object of eager pursuit.

He is the first of the game fishes to visit us, and among the last to leave; and when conditions are favorable he is a ready biter and always put up a fight second to nothing of scale and fin.

About May 15th he usually appears in the surf, and it is of surf fishing, only, I would speak. June, however, is the best month of the year, and night the best time, fishing from half flood to high water and on down to half ebb. The novice would better watch, for a short time the methods of some practical angler before venturing to fish for this salt water ranger. From the old-timer he may learn more of lasting value in an hour than from a lifetime perusal of books.

The tackle should be the best—the very best—the purse will allow; for this class of fishing tests to the fullest the merits of rod, reel and line.

Of the many varieties of wood from which a rod suitable can be selected such as lancewood, greenheart, bethabara, snake-wood, etc., there is small doubt that a thoroughly straight grained lancewood will give the best results. While it does not possess as much resiliency as some of the others, still, in toughness of fibre it is unrivalled.

A two-piece rod is altogether the best. The style known as independent butt, with tip all of one piece, is generally preferred. The length is governed by height of the angler. A rod too long will invariably prove a snare, while one too short will not give the spring necessary to perfect casting.

The reel should be in all cases sufficiently large to hold 600 feet of 12 or 15 thread line so that the spool will at all times work free, and should be steel pivoted. The higher the grade the greater the satisfaction in its use.

The line should be twisted—never braided. I have never seen one of the latter that was of any practical use in this class of fishing.

While the hand-forged O'Shaugnessy hook has long been a prime favorite with these fishermen, it is extremely doubtful if it has any points of merit over a high-grade Kirby-Limerick hook.

While many bass are taken, each year, during the day, yet night is far and away the best time. An easterly wind, which always agitates the surf, gives the proper condition; as the small crustaceans upon which the bass feed are then washed from the bars and become an easy prey.

I have seen multitudes of bass disporting themselves in the boiling, pounding surf when the wind was blowing at hurricane speed, directly on shore. It is at such times that success, from our piers, is best assured.

When casting from the beach the points of bars, which mark the formation of the deep cuts along the beach, are the proper spots. While the blood-worm is a prime favorite with many anglers, as bait early in the season, yet I doubt if anything more killing than the shedder crab is to be had.

Patience, that sublime virtue, must be one of the qualifications of the bass fisherman. Without it, success is doubtful, and some of the most persistent and patient of anglers frequently pass an entire season without reward.

But when once a big bass is hooked the battle is glorious, and must be attended with generalship if success is to be achieved.

You must be keenly alert, as the quarry is alive to every opportunity of escape. The slacking or fouling of line on guides, or tip, means the loss of the game.

A battle between an experienced anglar and a large bass, in the surf, is a sight never to be forgotten. The steady, anxious movements on one side; the giving of line and its rapid recovery, as the silvered beauty darts with lightning-like movements—with dorsal fin set and eye like fire—through the tumbling waters, all go to make a picture which pen will never adequately describe nor canvas portray.—Recreation.

In response to an application made by A. L. Nichols to Fish Commissioner Vogelsang, 50,000 young trout have been sent to Chico to be distributed in the various streams of Butte county. The youngsters are in five large shipping cans—three of the cans hold the species known as the Loch Leven tribe, the other two being of the rainbow species. As had been arranged by Major Nichols, J. F Entler has taken the three cans of Loch Leveo to the Sutton House, where they will be liberated in the waters of Butte creek. J. W. Baker and J. H. Mansfield will take one can of rainbow to a point above the falls in Mud creek, where they will be released, and Harry Nichols and George Robinson will take the other can as far up Iron canyon as it is possible to go on the Bidwell road, and will turn the little fellows into Chico creek. As these fish multiply rapidly, it will not be long before the waters of Butte county are teeming with fine trout, and a vote of thanks is due Major Nichols for his personal efforts in this direction.

We have been accustomed to the idea of eating raw herring by seeing Germans enjoy it, but that fish is eaten not only uncooked, but actually alive, is news one hardly expects to hear from any scene of modern civilization. Yet this is what we are told by the Hon. A. Herbert in his lively sketch in the July Badminton of "Fire Fishing on the Italian Riviera:" "The octopus is not infrequently captured while on these excursions, and if he is not an octopus of too portly a person, is immediately eaten by his captor. The Italians are very fond of eating fish literally alive. It is frequent and far from an appetising sight to see a fish disappear slowly, struggling energetically like a worm that is taken by a bird."—The Asian.

[Possibly this is the manner in which the small striped bass disappear when the Fish Commissioners' deputies go after Palladini, la pescador grande, and others in the fish markets. Ed.]

The following astounding sporting announcement is vouched for by the Catalina Island Bureau of Information: "Mr. Duyckinck, who holds the record for the number of fish caught this season, off Avalon, on rod and reel, is now bending all his efforts to catch the thirty-three fish necessary to make his total 1,000 fish. Saturday he was out with Mexican Joe and caught fifteen yellow tail. The fish were found at the isthmus and in great numbers, but the limited time that he had to spend there did not allow him to get any more fish."

Al Cumming returned to the city this week after enjoying a month's outing et fishing and hunting. In company with Fred Bushnell and John B. Coleman, the piscatorial possibilities of Webber lake, White Rock lake, Fordyce lake and the Truckee were thoroughly developed. The best angling was had over at Verdi. The trout in the stream at that point are nearly all large fish; they get over the dam and necessarily have to stay there, thus giving the Nevadans a fine supply of magnificent fish. The fishing in the lakes was not so satisfactory, the weather being too warm. At Webber lake just now the fishing is first class.

The fishing on the upper McCloud is reported to be grand at present. Trout are taking the fly hungrily. Tom Fowler's place is recommended by gentlemen anglers who have just returned from the river. Take the new railroad from Sissons over to the mill. Fowler will meet the train with his stage. It is advisable, however, to write him several days in advance.

Eel river is still productive of pleasant sport. Most of the fish are small ones. The incoming of large steelhead is patiently awaited by anglers who are keen and eager to be on the river again.

Bay fishing continues to be excellent. Fine catches have also been made between Lima Point and Pilot Cove.

The recently established San Clemente Kennels of the well known trainer and handler, John E. Lucas, near San Rafael was the scene of a conflagration last Sunday that bid fair at one time of causing the loss of a number of valuable dogs. The fire started in a small building used principally for preparing the dog's food. In the structure at the time was the Colusa Kennels' valuable foxhound bitch June and her litter of four puppies, recently whelped to Mr. F. Tallant's Gabriel. In wicker-enclosed pens adjoining the house was Dr. Smith's fine pointer bitch puppy; a six-months-old bitch puppy by Jingo—Dot's Pearl, and an Alex C. dog pup, the property of Mr. Harding of Bakersfield; these unfortunate dogs all perished. Other and well known dogs were in separate and various kennels located at different places on the premises. This fact was their salvation as they were quickly taken out of harm's way. The origin of the fire is to a certain extent unknown. Lucas inspected the kennels at 7:30 A. M. previous to leaving, and et 10:30 A. M. a gentleman, at the request of Lucas, looked over the premises and at that hour found everything in proper shape. It is assumed the fire took place about noon. The property loss was nominal and will very easily be repaired. The foxhound June took first and special in this city in 1896, 1897 and second in open class for bitches, San Francisco, 1898. She was valued at $350.

While we regret to publish the terrible death and loss of the poor dogs who could not escape; still there is ground for a feeling of satisfaction that the loss was not as serious as a number of fanciers and sportsmen feared early during this week before the facts were known. Some of the valuable dogs at the kennels were Alec C. (Glenbeigh—Saddlebags), who won the Derby at Bakersfield field trials this year; he also took first in the open class for dogs and first in the winners' class at the bench show in this city last May. Alec C. is one of the promising contestants for high place in the coming field trials at Bakersfield next January. Wicklow (Bruce R—Florrie) runner up in the Pacific Coast trials of 1897; Lady C., (Glenbeigh—Saddlebags) owned by Mr. M. C. Allen was in charge of Lucas and being trained for the coming field trials. The Derby candidate Queen High, which pointer bitch Lucas has strong faith in as a coming winner and another Derby entry Pio Pico are also safe.

Pacific Kennel League.

A meeting of representatives of several coast kennel organizations was held in the Occidental Hotal on Wednesday evening, September 28th. The formation of an organization under the title of Pacific Kennel League was perfected, The officers are: Dr. F. W. D'Evelyn, President; N. J. Stewart, M. Coffey and Marshall P. Snell, Vice-Presidents; C. R. Herker, Secretary and Treasurer.

Ruled Off.

C. E. Burrell has been ruled off the Los Angeles coursing field at Agricultural Park on the charge of doping his fawn bitch, Stella. Burrell's disbarment was announced by the Park officials last Sunday and bets on the race which Stella had run with Beau Brummel were declared off. The match was the third in the run-down. It had been considered a pretty evenly matched contest and betting was heavy.

The officials of the Park declare that it was apparent as soon as the course began that Stella had been doctored to make her lose the match. Beau Brummel was allowed the decision, as he had won the course, but bets were declared off and Burrell's disbarment proclaimed.

Burrell was once before ruled off the Agricultural Park track, but afterward reinstated. He has been entering dogs on the Agricultural Park field for a long time. He started a rival coursing park near Sherman, on the Sante Monica electric line, but the undertaking was not successful. Formerly he ran his dogs on the San Francisco coursing fields. He is proprietor of the Dun C. Kennel and owns several good dogs.

While Burrell's dogs will not be allowed to run at Agricultural Park as long as they are in his possession, it has not been decreed that they shall remain outlew dogs if sold.

For Freedom Again Wins.

The match race between J. H. Rosseter's imported English crack, For Freedom, and Curtis & Son's Rosette (Emin Pasha—Rockatte) was witnessed by the coursing enthusiasts last Sunday, at Union Coursing Park, with a degree of absorbing interest and enthusiasm seldom seen on the coursing sward. For Freedom has earned a world-wide reputation in the almost phenomenal work of winning six consecutive stakes, an accomplishment unequalled in the annals of coursing, not only in America, but in any other country. The work of the speedy bitch, Rosetta, has certainly, in the past at Ingleside and Union Coursing Parks, entitled her to have a strong following among the leashman. These two cracks have met on two former occasions, the English dog winning out in each match. It has been contended in the previous contests that Rosetta was not in a condition that would enable her to show her best; such argument cannot be advanced again, as she evidently was in as fine fettle last Sunday as could be possible.

The prize contended for was a beautiful trophy donated by the Park Association and valued at $150.00. This trophy was offered to the two highest winners in the coursing field at Union Park since its opening. For Freedom had the substantial sum of $1,235 00 to his credit and Rosette's wins, amounting to $1006 50 brought her a close second.

As Rosette and For Freedom were led to the slips for their initial course at 1:40 P. M., their lithe and muscular bodies, glossy from the care of their trainers, the crowd surged to the fence and cheered the dumb but intelligent animals. Both were in the finest condition and fit to make a great race. The dogs were slipped perfectly by Jim Wren to a good hare. For Freedom's tremendous hound gave him a lead in the first twenty yards and when he reached the hare he was fully four lengths ahead of his rival. The English dog cleverly held his ground until the hare swerved toward Rosette, when he shot in front of her and nipped the point from Rosette, finishing the course in his usual brilliant style. For Freedom made every point taking five turns in all. The batting was 5 to 2, with For Freedom the favorite.

The second course at 3 P. M. was a repetition of the first try with the exception that Rosette improved in her running. For Freedom shot to the front in a few strides and secured a lead of five lengths. He slowed down as the hare commenced to swerve, but was three lengths ahead at the turn, and then gained three turns in rapid succession. Rosette made two turns before For Freedom could get in. He secured another point and drove the hare to Rosetta, who caught it. Both had the jack in their mouths, and the flag went up, giving the race to For Freedom. Suddenly the hare escaped from the dogs and started up the field. Both made a couple of turns and For Freedom killed.

For Freedom was a 5 to 1 favorite on the second course, although Rosette money was plentiful enough to back the odds down to 3 to 1.

Distemper.

This much-dreaded disease has been playing havoc with the pups and youngsters of many kennels this season, and some cases have been brought to light where the horse doctor has done more harm than good, leaving the patients in such a condition that, if they finally recovered, they would probably have chorea or some similar permanent trouble. This is not entirely the fault of the horse doctor or veterinarian, for in some instances there is no pretense of expert knowledge of dogs.

The disease is one which all kennel owners should study and be prepared to treat, and the following remarks are made to this end:

Distemper is not developed, but is contracted; it is what is usually known as a contagious disease, and it is probably not infectious—that is, conveyed through germs carried in the air. Many writers and experienced men consider it similar to typhoid or typhus fever, while others think it more like other human ailments and treat it accordingly. There are certainly typhoid symptoms present when the stomach is attacked, and then liquid diet is necessary, as in typhoid; but the preliminary effects are invariably of the nature of influenza. The tendency to lung trouble is common to both; there is also coughing, sneezing, languor, depression and rapid loss of flesh. The after weakness and chances of relapse are almost identical in both diseases.

The early symptoms are sometimes foul mouth, with a dry cough, followed by a desire to keep the eyes from the glare of the sun or eny light, and thay oftеn becoms inflemed and bloodshot. A listless gait and greet leuguor follows, combined with diarrœe in meny instences, end after a while there is a discharge from the eyes and nose.

The treetment should be from the inception to prevent localization in eny particular organ, end for this purpose a remedy used in tha fox-hound kenoels of England for nearly a century hes been found of value in American kennels. It breces the patient, and causes it to throw off the disease, befora there is any local trouble. It is important et all stages that the patient be kept from draughts, moderately werm, and perfectly cleen, disinfectents being in constant use, and all bedding burned.

For diet, broth mede from mutton, beef tee, cow's or goet's milk, scalded, and in ceses of persistent diarhœs, liquid from well boiled rice, or boiled milk mav be given. In ceses of vomiting, a mixture of equal parts of lime water and milk should be tried, and for severe prostration, arrowroot end port wine may be given et frequent intervals. On recovery, oatmeal, corn meal, soups, and finally meat well cooked mey he given, and a small piece of raw beef has been found to act with remarkable force at the period of convalescence.

Sometimes the brain becomes inflamed, following bloodshot, or very watery eyes, end in such a case fits and death often follow. The only remedies in such cases are local. Apply ice end cooling lotions to the head, a blister at the beck of the neck, or a seton through the neck.

If the lungs become affected and thera is a tinge of blood with the expectorations, blisters should be epplied to the chest.

The liver is very frequently the cause of tronble, derenging the whole system. This may he detected by yellow tinge to the eye, lips and gums. Apply a flannel made warm with hot weter end torpentine edded to the parts, and give port wina in small doses, with a little bromidi potass.

If diarrhœa is lastiog end severe, it must bs checked, but in the eerly steges a slight dierrhœa is not harmful.

On recovery the exercise must be gentle, end there should not be any dempness or excitement.—Amet eur Sportsmen

THE BULL-TERRIER.—The Bull-Terrier, the gleditor emong dogs, combines the courege and pertinecity of the Bulldog with a propensity for "worrying" his adversary insteed of pinniog it as does the Bulldog. After yeers of judicious crossing and breeding, the breed hes become firmly esteblished end seperately recognized es such, and will breed as true to type es any. The Bull-Terrier hes a high degree of symmetry, and is an embodiment of determination, strength end grace, built slightly on the racing lines.

Head should be long, flat and tapering gredually from the greatest width between the eers to the nose, which should be bleck, end the muzzle not too poiuted. There should he no stop and es little brow as possible, but the face has a slight crease or indentation down the median line, and is slightly broken up between the eyes. A flat skull and absence of brow gives an expression peculier to itself. Jaws are long and powerful, with not too much development of the cheek muscles, the hollowness ur "dishing" under the eyes. Eyes small, dark and sparkling, preferably of almond shape. Teeth strong and healthy in sound gums, meeting evenly, "Pig-jawed" or "undershot" is inadmissable. Lips meet as closely as possible and only sufficiently developed to cover the teeth and gums. Neck arched and strongly set into the shoulders, tapering nicely to the head, with no loose skin or throatiness.

Shoulders strong and slanting; dorsal muscles well developed. Chest wide, deep and muscular. Back rather short, muscular and slightly arched over the loin, well ribbed up; well set up behind, but rather higher across the withers than at the hips. Front legs perfectly straight and muscular; not out at shonlder; pastern joints strong. Hind legs strong in proportion, with hocks well let down and strong; no crouch ing attitude when standing. Feet resemble a cat's with toes well arched.

Color uniformly white. Coat short, stiff and close, with a fine gloss. Stern rather short, set on low and tapering to a fine point and carried straight. For the Bench, the flesh should be firm and hard to the touch and not too much "en evidencs," with a great display of activity, denoting an abundance of health.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

It is proposed to hold an open air bench show at the end of this month nnder the auspices of the Burlingeme Club.

A. Lewis of the Union Iron Works has recently purchased a heudsome black cocker spaniel bitch puppy from Ed Attridge.

Jim Mayuard, is now the possessor of a fine young black pointer dog which he hopes to havs in good trim for field work in a short time. Dava Thom's Nick is the sire of this promising youngster.

Those who hava seen Mr. Meyer's St. Bernard Pilgrim, a dog recently brought to this city, claim that he will make a record as a grand stud dog, he being a very fine specimen of the breed.

Chas. M. Fisher has a four-months old black pointer bitch puppy by Jim P. and a Glenheigh bitch that ha has sanguina hopes of developing into a crackerjack field dog. The puppy strongly shows some of the best points of both strains and retrieves in a surprising mauner for so young a log. Fisher has pinned his faith on the cross breeding and will no doubt be well rewarded for the pains he has taken to raise a great pointer.

Merced hes been selected as the place for holding the annual coursing meetings this year, despite the fact that Fresno leasbmen made a strong bid for the attendanca of tha coursing men. The Interstate Coursing Club proposa to hold their meeting commencing on Tuesday, November 1st and days following and tha Ingleside Coursing Clnb will convene at Merced on Tuesday, November 15th and following days. The indications ara promisiog that the meetings will be in the nature of red letter days in coursing events.

The Pacific Coest matters coming before the quarterly meeting of the American Kennel Club on September 22, 1898, were laid over for further consideretion pending the receipt of certain particulars end information mailed, which bed not arrived in Naw York in time to be laid before the meeting.

Hereafter there will ha a cleuse in tha dog show rules, that all speciels offsred in premium lists or catalogues of shows held by the American Kennel Club must he guerenteed by said Club and the Club held responsible for peyment of the same.

Kennel clubs showing under the A. K. C. rules will be held responsible for all special prizes which era published in their premium lists or catelogues.

James Watson hes resigned from the Stud Book Committee, A. K. C., and also as delegate of the Collie Clnb to the A K. C.

THE FARM.

The Wheat Cinch.

Every semblance of competition in the wheat market of California has vanished, says the Woodland Mail. Taking Woodland for a sample of the whole State; until within the last week or two the farmer who had wheat to sell could at least have the choice of three or four buyers on our streets, each representing different purchasing agencies in San Francisco. The apparent competition between them caused the seller some momentary satisfaction for his year of toil, whether in reality it helped the price or not. But now one man solitary and alone dictates the price of wheat for Woodland. The farmer's name now is Hobson, and he can take his choice to sell for the one cold price offered, or go home without selling at all. The only competitor this one man has is the sheriff. It is understood that this condition of a dead wheat market has been brought about by the several dealers in San Francisco meeting in secret combine and with a map of the State before them, marking it off into purchasing districts, and assigning them severally to each; with the agreement that no one would dare cross the line of another to buy a pound. For the present each member of the combine is cock of the walk in his own district—like Crusoe of all, monarch of all he surveys. The farmer is forced to either sell to him, or let the sheriff do his selling. How long this "dead mortal cinch" will last is a very serious matter to the farmer. The combination evinces a disposition ugly enough on its part to beget a combination on the part of the seller to keep the wheat for the sheriff's special use, whose mercy will be relished as a relief for the grip of the combine. Farmers, what are you going to do about it?

Some Dairy Hints.

If butter is too soft, feed the cow some potatoes.

Wash all milk vessels with cold water before scalding.

Cows and horses should not be allowed in the same pasture.

If the butter is mottled, work it a little more after salting.

Richer food does not mean richer milk; it means more milk.

Do not wet your hands when milking; if you do you flavor the milk.

When butter is poor don't blame the cow. Blame your own want of skill.

Adding hot water to cream while churning is the worst of all practices.

You waste 5 per cent. of your butter in summer by not using a separator.

If the butter takes too long to come, add one or two fresh cows to the dairy.

A little kerosene will keep away the horn flies from cows. Use it very sparingly.

Warm milk from the cow does not absorb odors. While cooling keep it in a pure atmosphere.

The story is told of an Iowa dairyman who skimmed his milk at home by hand, and satisfied himself that there was not enough butter fat left in it to give even a smell of butter. A separator man challenged him to bring a sample of his skimmed milk for analysis. The challenge was accepted, and the test showed that 2 per cent. of butter fat had been left in the milk; in other words, nearly one-half of the butter in that milk had been fed to calves and pigs. This is pretty expensive pig feeding, even at the present low prices for butter. It was, certainly, an eye-opener for that dairyman. The human hand is superior to many machines, but when it comes to skimming milk, no hand-skimmer can beat the separator for getting the butter fat out of a given weight of every-day milk.

Some farmers are practicing the theory of running a disc harrow over the alfalfa field in the fall after the growing season is concluded and the aftermath has been cut or fed down by stock. One strong point in favor of running the disc harrow over alfalfa land is that it clears the ground of native grasses and weeds.

When a dirty egg is soaked in water sufficiently to enable one to remove the dirt on it the gelatinous substance which ordinarily [illegible] pores in the lime of which the shell is mainly composed becomes dissolved, subjecting the inside of the egg to the destructive effect of the air. In warm weather wet eggs soon decay.

Making Beef From Sugar Beets.

Sugar beets are the best things for feeding stock that I have ever seen used, writes Dr. Cresswell in Denver Field and Farm. A few years ago I took fifty Colorado range steers and fed them for 100 days on sugar beets and alfalfa to prepare them for market. I first gave them three pounds of beets a day and all the alfalfa they could use, and gradually increased the amount to fifteen pounds of beets a day. The last two weeks I fed them on corn and straw with the beats which hardened the beeves so they could stand any kind of shipment. They gained on an average of three pounds a day. Again I took forty head of young Texas steers and fed them sugar beats with alfalfa and they added considerable more weight, thriving far better than those fed alfalfa alone.

After seventy days I turned these young steers with the remainder of the herd and they could easily be told from the rest. They were larger and heavier and shed off in the spring much better than the others. I believe there is good money in feeding beets with alfalfa not only for fattening purposes but also for growing stock. Alfalfa is rich in nitrogen, and after thirty days' exclusive feeding a great proportion of the nitrogenous value is not assimilated and is consequently lost. Combined with sugar beets the nitrogenous value is retained for an indefinite period Corn is excessively rich in carbonaceous elements and wanting in nitrogen, therefore the two go well together.

The sheepman who has a lot of lambs that are uniform in size and quality can always sell them to better advantage than if they lack such uniformity. In a flock that is mixed and uneven the estimate of a buyer will be much affected by the poorest, and it is next to impossible to sell them at an average of their real value.

To Test Drinking Water.

Here is a simple test for the presence of sewerage in water. All drinking water should be tested in town and country frequently, as there are other impurities besides sewerage which are quite as deadly, and every cistern of water is liable to be a source of blood poisoning. Mice, rats and other pests must have water, and many a case of typhoid is caused by such as these falling into the cistern and remaining there for months in a decomposed state. To detect the impure conditions is very simple and unfailing. Draw a tumbler of water from the tap at night, put a piece of white lump sugar into it and place it on the kitchen mantel shelf or anywhere that the temperature will not be under 60 degrees Fahrenheit. In the morning the water, if pure, will be perfectly clear; if contaminated by sewerage or other impurities the water will be milky. This is a simple and safe test well known in chemistry.

It is predicted by those who are watching the business that more horses will be bought from English, French and German breeders this year than in any previous year since 1893. Most of the importations from England will be hackneys and drafts, while France will supply coachers and drafts and from Germany will be brought the German coach horse in considerable numbers. These or such as are well selected and are good individual representatives of the several breeds will, doubtless, bring a profit to the importers and will do a good business for their purchasers. But it is safe to predict that the breeders who have the services of judiciously selected standard-bred stallions will find a much wider market for the product of their breeding and will make more sales at really high figures than will be made from the produce of any two of the imported breeds, taking the same number of each breed as a test of merit. Those who wish to use the French or German coach horse blood at all would get better results by mating mares of these breeds to standard-bred stallions selected with good judgment than can be obtained by mating the stallion of either of the imported breeds with American mares, even though they be standard bred.

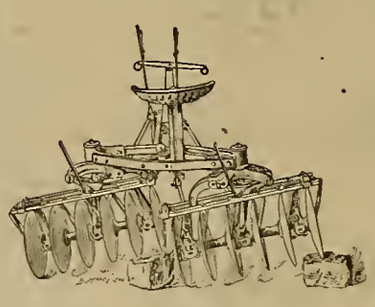
OSBORNE COLUMBIA FLEXIBLE AND REVERSIBLE DISC HARROW

The ONLY ONE of the kind.

The boxes and bearings are CHILLED IRON mechanically constructed giving hard wearing surface, and will not wear out if properly oiled.



The scrapers are reliable and effective. They are thrown into and out of position by levers within easy reach of the driver.

THE GANGS ARE COMPLETELY INDEPENDENT OF EACH OTHER.

If either gang strikes a stone or obstruction the flexibility allows the gang to rise and pass over it without injuring the edge of the discs, interfering with the work of the other gang, or throwing extra strain on any part of frame.

Such flexibility enables Harrow to do more and better work in rolling land or hills, than it is possible to do with a rigid frame Harrow.

Each gang has a separate lever to bevel it.

For orchard work the Reversible feature is a decided advantage, and to change the Harrow from an out throw, only requires a few seconds.

For those who have crops to put in and orchards to cultivate, this one Harrow will answer all purposes.

Catalogue and price list furnished upon application.

[DEXTER PARK HORSE EXCHANGE]

UNION STOCK YARDS, CHICAGO.

Great Midwinter Sale of Speed

DECEMBER 13, 14, 15, 16, 17.

We want finished horses—something a gentleman can use for either track or road purposes. For this class of horses there is as good a market as has ever been seen in the United States.

We have the only building in the world where a fast trotter or pacer can be driven to the limit of his speed.

High-Class California Horses will bring High Prices. Horses with Records will bring Good Prices in this market and are Especially Desired.

We have already pledged a number of choice consignments from some of the most noted breeders and owners in the country. Everything points to this sale as being as sensational and important as any ever held. Every horse shown in harness. The public knows just what it buys. Only desirable consignments solicited. SECOND ANNUAL SALES

—OF—

WILL TAKE PLACE AT THE

Occidental Horse Exchange,

721 HOWARD STREET

(Between Third and Foorth, San Francisco)

—DURING—

November and December, 1898

A few of the MANY ADVANTAGES offered Consignors:

Largest sales pavilion west of Chicago, lighted by electricity and complete in every detail; centrally located (only a few olocks from the leading hotels); largest number of new and comfortable box-stalls; choicest of hay and grain provided; careful attendants to lead and care for the horses, and the best auctioneer that can be found in America. All catalogues will be similar to those issued at our last year's successful sales where over $70,000 was paid for thoroughbreds. These catalogues were not only correct, but they were also the most complete and comprehensive ever issued in the United States. Terms of sales remarkably low. If you wish to claim dates for your sales, write at once to

WM. G. LAYNG, Live Stock Auctioneer,
721 Howard St., San Francisco, Cal.

☞ All the newspapers published in San Francisco gave the Occidental Horse Exchange and its management unstinted praise last year, while the consignors, without exception, spoke in highest terms of the treatment accorded them for the promptness with which their business was attended to, and the care bestowed upon all stock sent to this establishment.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN

No. 22½ GEARY STREET.

SAN FRANCISCO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1898.

DAUGHTERS OF ORMONDE.

Five Grandly-Bred Fillies by the Horse of the Century to Go Under the Hammer.

On Monday, November 21st, the well-known auction firm of Killip & Co. will sell for Mr. W. O'B. Macdonough a consignment of nine as grandly-bred fillies as were ever passed under the hammer. There will be five sired by the greatest of all horses, the unbeaten Ormonde, the highest-priced horse ever sold, three by St. Carlo, son of the next highest-priced thoroughbred stallion, and one by Morello, the greatest two-year-old that ever raced in America. And they are all out of splendidly-bred mares, the majority the dams of winners.

Chestnut filly by imp. Ormonde, foaled 1897, from Muta, a marc bred at Palo Alto, sired by Wildidle out of imp. Mutiny, daughter of Adventurer by Newminster and Muta by The Duke, son of Stockwell. This is said by every person who has seen her to be the grandest-looking filly ever foaled in California. She is not only large and well developed, but strong and compactly built, and with every appearance of a race animal.

Bay filly by imp. Ormonde, from Geneva by Fonso, a Kentucky Derby winner and sire of Frank K., Monte Fonso, Rudolph and many others; second dam Weisbaden by Baden Baden, another Kentucky Derby winner; third dam Diana by imp. Glenelg; fourth dam by Lexington, and on to the fourteenth dam by Rattle. This is a very fine-looking filly.

Chestnut filly by imp. Ormonde, from Bud by Glenmore; second dam Blossom by Ballinkeel, and on to the twentieth dam—a natural Barb mare. Bud, the dam of this filly, is the dam of Cadeau; Blossom, the second dam, produced Glen Rose and White Wings; Rosette, the third dam, was the dam of five or six winners, and her fourth dam, a mare by Stockwell, was the dam of several.

Bay filly by imp. Ormonde, from Santa Cruz, the dam of St. Cuthbert. Santa Cruz is by Double Cross, sire of Guido, her dam Eliza (dam of Monowai) by Norfolk; next dam Mary Wade (dam of Joe Shelby) by Woodburn; next dam Viola (dam of Ironwood) by imp. Knight of St. George, and so on, every dam to the seventh having foaled a winner

Bay filly by imp. Ormonde, from Libbertiflibbet (dam of Valencienne) by Bullion; second dam Flibbertigibbet by Kingfisher; third dam imp. Filagree by Stockwell; fourth dam Extasy by Touchstone; fifth dam Miss Wilfred by Lottery, etc. This filly is also from a line of producing dams.

The St. Carlos are three in number, a chestnut filly from Princess Idle, daughter of Prince of Norfolk and Lizzie Idle by Wildidle; a chestnut filly from Bessie W. (dam of St. Phillip) by imp. Darebin, second dam Glendora (dam of Dorian) by imp Glenelg; and a chestnut filly by Ormonde or St. Carlo (the latter given) out of Moonlight (dam of Ajax) by Princeton, second dam Simoon by War Dance, third dam Saratoga by imp. Knight of St. George. These fillies by St. Carlo are all extra fine lookers.

The filly by the great Morello is from Kosciulottie, and is a strong made handsome miss.

This consignment from Mr. Macdonough's Menlo Stock Farm, contains the first of the get of Ormonde that he has put on the market, and this announcement of the sale will attract the attention of the racing and breeding world. At the time the sale will be held November 21st, the winter race meeting here will have been in operation for a month, and many of the leading owners and breeders of the Eastern States will be present.

THE harness racing season has ended in this State. It has not been very satisfactory to horsemen or associations. The Santa Rosa meeting was the best one of the small circuit.

TOD SLOAN IN ENGLAND.

His Marvelous Riding Has Made Him a Hero With the Englishmen.

In no country in the world is there more enthusiasm shown, or personal pride felt at the success of a fellow-countryman than in America. We all remember the rejoicings at the achievements of Dewey at Manila, Roosevelt at San Juan, Sampson and Schley at Santiago. To-day Sloan is the hero, and his name is on the tip of every tongue. What matters it, if the hero is an admiral or a jockey! he has risen to the top in his profession, and as such is duly honored.

The remarkable success of Jockey J. Tod Sloan in the saddle in England has completely eclipsed anything yet seen on the English or American turfs.

Sloan's popularity reached its zenith when Sam Loates and Robinson attempted to sandwich him in, in a race at Manchester. The stewards acted promptly and suspended Loates four weeks for his participation in the affair. It is the best sign of success when jealousy is excited in jockeys of the type of Loates, who is considered one of the best riding in England to-day.

W. Allison, of the Sportsman, and one of the leading racing authorities in England, says: "As to Sloan, he has had a great day, indeed, and I don't think even the most obstinate among us can any longer deny that his style of riding gives his mount an immense advantage over others. W. Brown tells me that he has made experiments with his horses at Royston, and has found conclusively that it makes a stone (14 pounds) difference in form with any one of them to ride it as Sloan does. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, and Sloan's continued success cannot be explained away. I seriously believe that a man might as well try to win a bicycle race sitting upright, as a horse race against Sloan unless he adopted Sloan's style, presuming, of course, that there was anything approaching equality between the horses at the weights.

"It is a serious matter for the time being, this advent of Sloan, for if his methods really do give him a stone advantage he can paralyze our sport until such time as our jockeys have accustomed themselves to ride in the same way. It is not a style of riding that can be acquired in a day or in a month, so far as I am able to judge. Even supposing that our jockeys or any of them decide on a change, it must be long before they can come anywhere near equality with Sloan at his own game."

In the face of this eulogy Tod Sloan himself is the most reticent, modest man possible to be found in London. To-night he came home from Newmarket and after a quick bath and change of clothing at the Hotel Cecil, appeared in evening dress with a few friends at dinner, in the course of which he said:

"I am grateful for the congratulations of my friends both in America and London. As to the affair between myself and other riders at Newmarket, that matter has been placed in the hands of the proper authorities, so that it would be obviously improper for me to discuss it. As to my successes to-day, they are not a matter of great surprise to myself, but I prefer others should comment upon them rather than I. I am trying to do the same for my owners here that I would anywhere else."

NO MISTAKE will be made at the present time purchasing well bred trotting mares that are good individuals. The prices will advance next year.

THE LOS ANGELES MEETING.

Good Racing but the Attendance is Not Up to Last Year.

The meeting given by the Sixth Agricultural District Association at Los Angeles this year does not equal in point of attendance the splendid meetings heretofore given in the city of angels, but there has been some splendid racing nevertheless. In the running events the track records have been smashed more than once, while the harness racing has resulted in several horses reducing their records. An account of the trotting race held on Thursday, October fi h, appeared in last week's Breeder and Sportsman. The following are the results of the running events of that day:

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6.

Six and a half furlongs—Tom Smith 107, Bullman, fi to 1, won; Qoeen Nubia, 101, Roiz, 3 to 1, second; William O'B, 113, Frawley, 3 to 5, third. Time, 121. Kaiser Ludwig and Etiwanda also ran.

Six furlongs—Midlove, 85, Devin, 8 to 5, won, Toribio, 102, Ruiz, 9 to 10 second; Pat Murphy, 104, Houck, 12 to 1, third. Time, 1:13½. Polish and Palomares also ran.

Four and a half furlongs—Napian, 110, Piggott, 3 to 2, won; Ojai, 100, Ruiz, 4 to 5, second; Inola, 102, Powell, 15 to 1, third. Time, 0:55. Los Modino also ran.

One and one-half miles—The Citzns Belt Stake, $400 added—Grady, 108, Hennessy, 7 to 5, won; Marplot 93, Devin, 1 to 2, second; Petrarch 101, Ruiz, 50 to 1 third. Time 2:32½.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7.

The races at Agricultoral park were well attended Friday hot the day's sport was marred, as on the day hefore, by a wrangle between Judge Lewis Thorne and driver W. G. Durfee.

The quarrel tc-day resulted in Durfee's being fined $75 and ruled off the track. While not the appointed presiding judge, Mr. Thorne has acted as such during the present meeting, and some of his rulings have met with decided opposition by horsemen. Judge Brooks, the presiding judge, has apparently acquiesced in the rulings made by Mr. Thorne, by which, unquestionably, considerable feeling has been engendered.

The first race called was the special pace with six entries. Juliet D, driven by Durfee, was a hot favorite in the betting, with Don and Bernard equal as second choice. In the first heat the horses were sent away on even terms. Juliet took the lead and was never headed, the only horse near her being Nutway, who moved up in the stretch end pushed the winner.

The second heat was a repetition of the first, Juliet D. getting away on even terms and keeping the lead. At the half Bernard forged ahead and Don followed him. It was a see-saw between them to the stretch, end Bernard finished second.

It was expected that Juliet D. would take the third heat as easily as she had captured the other two. In the books Juliet D. sold at 1 to 2 and in the field hooks, with all the other entries against her. Bernard brought 3 to 1 and Don sold at the same figure, with the other entries at from 12 to 15 to 1.

What the public did not know Durfee, the driver of Juliet, did, namely: that the horse had a "game" leg and that the leg was swelling. Dorfee saved his horse as much as poss hle. In the start Billy Baker took the lead and held it to the quarter, with Don and Juliet D. close on his wheel. At the half Don took the lead, with Baker second and Juliet D. third, the other horses trailing. At the turn into the stretch Juliet D. took the lead by half a length, with Don second, Billy Baker and Bernard trailing. Juliet D. held her own until within two lengths of the wire, coming under the whip. At this point Don forged ahead and won by a nose, with Juliet D. second, Billy Baker third, two lengths away, and Bernard fourth.

When the drivers returned to the stand to dismount, Durfee, the driver of Juliet D, was called into the stand He was accused of "laying up" the heat; in other words, of not having driven his horse to win. Smarting under the rulings of Thursday, which lost him the heat and race, when he drove Osito, Durfee lost his temper and was fined $50 for the alleged pulling of Juliet D. and for calling Judge Thorne names. He was going down the steps from the Judge's stand, after being fined, when he used the objectionable language, and Judge Thorne immediately fined him $25 more for it. Durfee turned on the steps and said: "Make it a $100, you —— ——," and Thorne promptly ruled him off the track. The owner of Juliet D. protested, but without avail, and H. McGregor went up behind the mare.

Don was selling favorite at 1 to 2, Juliet D at 3 to 2, Baker 8 to 1, and the others at 12 to 1.

At Juliet, Don and Baker got away on even terms with Bastina and Nutway two lengths in the rear In the order named the horses went to the quarter, but just after the turn into the back stretch Juliet in passing Baker caught the wheel of the latter's sulky and smashed it. Farrar, who was driving Baker, saved a fall, but his horse was hopelessly out of the heat. At the half Don was leading by a length, with Bastina second, and Juliet, with her sore leg hurt worse than ever, a bad third. McGregor pushed Juliet around the turn and into the stretch and drove Don home under the whip. Don won by an open length, Juliet second by two lengths from Nutway, who had beaten Bastina out from the half.

Then came a howl from the crowd who had their money on Juliet. The heat had been paced in 2:21 and Don had won by a length, while the former heat, which Durfee was accused of "laying up," had been paced in 2:15 and Don won by a head.

Juliet's supporters demanded another driver, and shouted, "Put Thorne up," but the judges showed no inclination to yield to the popular demand. One of the supporters of the mare Juliet went up to the stand but was met by Judge Thorne, who said to him: "We don't want any suggestions from anybody. We will run our own business all right." That settled it and the heat was called.

It was almost a certainty that this heat would settle the race. Don sold at 1 to 2 and was heavily backed. Juliet went back to 3½ to 1, Baker selling at the same odds, Bastina and Nutway went beggiog at 12 to 1.

Don went away in the lead, Juliet second, Baker third, and they held their positions until the three-quarter was reached, when Baker moved up and took the second place. Into the stretch the horses held the same positions. McGregor was driving Juliet hard, bot the game little mare was unable to respond. Don won easily by two lengths, Baker second, two lengths ahead of Juliet, Bestina and Nutway five lengths in the rear.

The money went, Don first, Juliet D second, Nutway third and Baker fourth.

La Maroma, the daughter of the once great race mare Los Angeles, suffered defeat in the five-and-a-half furlong dash, being beaten by Gracias in the last couple of strides. The Trinity prize, worth $fi00, brought together five youngsters. Ocorona opened up favorite, but Hugh Jones' Headwater had the call in the closing betting, being backed down from 3 to 1 to fi to 5. The race was easily taken by Headwater, with the very much improved San Augustine second and Obsidian third. Ocorona got off badly, otherwise she would have been inside the money.

Roadwarmer easily beat a mediocre field in the four-and-e-half furlong dash, with Tommy Butler in the saddle, which was his first appearance since breaking his leg at the Butte meeting. Although Shasta Water and Moringa appeared to be very evenly matched, the money went in on Shasta Water, and she was a 1-to-2 favorite, while Moringa was 8 to 5. It proved to he e fast and desperate race, Moringa heating out the daughter of Maxim right near the finish, in the track record time of 1:20. Morioga, La Golette and Marplot are to be brought together Tuesday in an effort to establish a new Coast record for a mile. They are all to carry ninety pounds, and as the track is lightning fast a mile in 1:39 can be expected.

The free-for-all pace goes to-morrow and a mile in 2:06 should not cause any surprise. Summeries:

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8.

The last day of the week brought out the largest crowd of the meeting so far. It was estimated that four thousend people were on the grounds.

The special trot for nemed horses, three hest out of five, was a rather uninteresting race throughout. It seemed to be a cinch for Iran Alto, the money being pulled down by him in three straight heats. The entries were Mahel McKinney, Nellie Bly, Iran Alto, Our Lucky and Mamie Riley. Only four started, however, Mamie Riley heing withdrawn. The first heat was won easily by Iran Alto in 2:17¼, Our Lucky being second and Mabel McKinney third. In the second heat the time was 2:20, Our Lucky being distenced, thos leaving only three contestants in the final heat, the time of which wes 2:18½. The entire race was devoid of interest, the horses usually presenting a processional appearance over the entire course. They mansged to get close enough together in the finish in the third heat to arouse some enthusiasm, but the results justified the bookmakers' judgment, Iran Alto having demanded a 1 to 10 proposition and Nellie Bly and Mabel McKinney hoth selling at 8 to 1; 4 to 1 was offered on the field.

Little Thorne's accomplishment in the free for all pace was a thorough surprise, Joe Wheeler being considered a sure thing on all sides. There were five entries and all started, the list comprising Much Better, selling in the first heat at 2 to 5; Beachwood quoted at 10 to 1; Little Thorne, 20 to 1; Joe Wheeler, 2 to 1, and Rex Alto, 10 to 1. They made five successful attempts to get away, end when the "go" was finally given it was announced that the driver of Wheeler, at the pole, had nodded for the word, despite the fact that Beechwood was in the lead.

The quarter was made in 0:31½, the helf in 1:04, and it looked as though a repetition of the first race was to occur. But they came down the stretch in a bunch, Much Better leading Rex Alto only a length under the wire, and Joe Wheeler coming in a strong third. The time of the heat was 2:10¼.

The betting on the second heat started off with Much Better as an even money favorite, but Wheeler money was so plentiful that 2 to 1 was soon asked for him. Little Thorne was a 40 to 50 to 1 shot, and Beechwood and Rex Alto were not eagerly sought at fi and 8 to 1. Much Better got away in the lead, but Joe Wheeler soon took on a burst of speed that put him well ahead of the entire field, and he maintained it to the end. The slow jog with which he came under the wire made it look as though he could have distanced all competitors. The time was 2:14½. Beechwood came in second and Little Thorne third. The third heat was almost a repetition of the second, Beechwood, however, falling back to last place.

The judges must have had a suspicion that a shake up would come in the fourth heat, for after ineffectually trying to give them a careful start time and time again the patience of the assemblage was requested on the ground that a good race was coming. Joe Wheeler had sold as a 1 to 4 favorite, Much Better and Rex Alto at fi to 1, and Beechwood and Little Thorne found few customers at 40 and 50 to 1. After several trials they all got away in a bunch, Little Thorne slightly in the lead, Much Better second and Rex Alto third. At the quarter Wheeler got caught in a pocket and had to go around. From that on his efforts to catch Little Thorne were unavailing. On the stretch Wheeler was given the whip without mercy, but Little Thorne, without apparent effort, came under the wire a half length ahead in 2:09½. The quarter was made in 0:32½, the half in 1:02. Rex Alto was third and Beechwood was distanced.

From a 50 to 1 shot Little Thorne sprung to a 2 to 5 favorite's place. He won the fifth and sixth heats in 2:11 end 2:15, Rex Alto heing withdrawn from the last.

Marplot scared all the entries out of the Los Angeles Derby, a sweepstake for three-year-olds. He was therefore allowed a walkover and the Judges so announced after introducing him as the fastest horse on the Pacific Coast. He went over the course of one and a quarter miles in 2:20 with Piggott up, but did not arouse the enthusiasm which might have been expected. Expressions of admiration for his beauty were heard on all sides, however.

The next event was a four and a half furlong dash for two-year old maidens. There were seven entries, but Miss Reel was scratched, the list of starters being Miss Mattie, Rey el Rio, Los Modinos, Carmencita, Pauline Mosher and Miss Inola. The interest centered in Rey el Rio and Los Modinos, of Baldwin's stable, and the betting on this pair forced the odds from 2 to 1 to 1 to 2. Carmencita and Inola sold at 2½ to 1, Pauline Mosher 10 to 1, and Miss Mattie was a 15 to 1 shot.

Not a great deal of time was occupied in the get eway end the horses changed relative positions very little. Carmencita won by a helf length in 0:55½, with Los Modinos second and Inola third.

Another running event hearing the suggestive title, "The Santa Monica Scramble," wonnd up the day's sport. It was not a scramble for place, however, as there were only three starters—La Goleta, Rohicon and Amasa—Castelar being withdrawn. Rubicon was a 1 to 2 favorite, while 2 to 1 was offered on Goleta and 5 to 1 on Amasa. La Goleta got away in the lead and finished in the same position, with Rubicon second and Amasa third. The time was 1 minute flat.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 10.

Despite the limited fields in the running races the talent to-day met with disastrous results in their attempt to pick winners. Several favorites were howled over this afternoon at the track, including Napian and Ocorona. The attendance was nothing like that of former years, but this was partly accounted for by the card which was anything but tempting.

The sport began with the 2:10 trot, but it did not prove a contest, Prince Gift outclassing his field to such an extent that he experienced little difficulty in winning in straight heats of 2:13¾, 2:14¼ end 2:13. Galette secured second money.

The first running race was the holdover from Saturday. Napian opened up at 3 to 5, but a slightly better price was not obtainable for awhile. William O'B. had fair support. Patrierch carried Napian a fast clip for the first part, while William O'B. had to he ridden hard to keep within three lengths of the leaders, but he finished with rare gameness and beat out Napian a nose to the discomfiture of the talent in the fast time of 1:27½. The conclusion must not be drawn that William O'B has gained in speed in this glorious climate but that the track is lightning fast.

There were seven starters in the maiden race at five furlongs, and both Reina de Los Angeles and Castelar alternated as favorites. Castelar cut out a hot pace to the stretch, where he was passed by Reina de Los Angeles, who won in comparatively easy fashion at the end. The winner is by Emperor of Norfolk, dam Clara S, and therefore a half sister to several of the fastest end best horses ever raised in Santa Anita.

Five youngsters sported colors in the five furlong dash for two-year-olds. For some inexplicable reason Ocorona was made an odds on favorite, while San Augustine was fancied over Obsidian. At the raise of the barrier Obsidian shot out in the lead, and the colt by the Australian horse Stromholi made every post a winning one, while Los Modenas, a Chesterfield colt in the Santa Anita stable, finished second. Ocorona ran disappointingly and came in last. Obsidian wes 4 to 1 at the close of the betting.

The last race at four furlongs end a half was hotly contested, Roadwarmer just beating Lady Ashley a nosa in tha very fast time of 0:54½, which is another track record. Summaries:

Seven furlongs—William O'B., 112, Frawley, 7 to 5, won; Napian, 86, Devin, 4 to 5 second; Patriarch 118, Shields, 5 to 1, third. Time 1:27½. Viking also ran.

Five furlongs, maidens—Reina de Los Angeles, 106, Devin, 7 to 5 won; Castelar, 111, Ruiz 3 to 2, second; Gibhertifibbet, 111, Hennessy, 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:02½. Igo, Miss Daly, Red Leaf and Artesia also ran.

Six furlongs, two-year-olds—Obsidian, 112, Piggott, 4 to 1 won; Los Modenas, 110, Frewley, 15 to 1,second; San Augustine, 110, Ruiz, 3 to 1, third. Time, 1:15. Correct end Ocorone also ran.

Four end a half furlongs—Roadwarmer, 111, Butler, 7 to 10, won; Lady Ashley, 107, Bullman, 7 to 5, second; Wenona, 107, Powell, 10 to 1, third. Time, 0:54½. Grecias also ran.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11.

Ladies' dey et Agricultural Park drew out e large crowd. The grand stand was crowded with members of the feir sex end tha inner field contained meny stylish equipeges. Betting in the ring, however, was slack as ever. But six bookmekers were doing business, the felling off being eccounted for by the peucity of men imbued with gambling tendencies.

There was but little enthusiasm among spectators in the auction pooling on the rece. The learned ones supposed Little Thorn to be a moral, end were not inclined to loosen up. Thorn was a 2 to 5 chance for the opening heat. Bunch's gelding, You Bet, drew the pole position for the first heat, but early developed a tendency to break often, being very unsteady. When given the word the favorite seemed to have speed, but the fast clip set to the helf by You Bet told on him at the end. Striking the stretch ten lengths behiud tha leaders, Floracita ceme home like a tornado, winning easily in 2:12½. You Bet was second end the favorite third.

In the following two heats Garnsey handled Floracita with excellent judgment and she won the necessary two heats like a real good one, not having to go helow 2:11½.

The Agricultural Park stake for runners at seven furlongs attracted a very cheap field. Losette, with Piggott up, wes an odds on favorite and won cleverly from Artesia after heving mede all the running. The second choice, Rey del Rio sulked most of the way.

The mile special was deprived of considerable interest hy the scratching of La Goleta. By the conditions each was to carry 90 pounds and $100 was to be added hy the association if the coast record was beaten. In the betting Merplot, with Houck up, was a 2 to 5 favorite, with 6 to 5 offered against Moringa. Devin on the latter, ontrode Houck and got his mount over the line three lengths before the Burns & Weterhouse entry.

In the finel seven and a half furlong sprint the favorite, William O'B, backed from 3 to 2 down to 9 to 10, won as he pleased from Tom Smith. Summeries:

Pacing, 2:13 class, heats, three in five. Purse $1,000.

Little Thorn, b g, by Hawthorne	Thompson	3	3
Beechwood, br m, by Silkwood	Baker	4	2
You Bet, b g, by McKinney	Bunch	2	4

Time—2:12½, 2:14½, 2:11½.

Agricultural Park Steke, seven furlongs—Losette, 114, Piggott, 4 to 5, won, Artesia, 114, Bullmen, 10 to 1, second; Rey del Rio, 94, Devin, 9 to 5, third. Time, 1:29½. Ettiwenda also ran.

Special, one mile—Moringa, 90, Devin, even money, won; Merplot, 90, Houck, 3 to 5, second. Time, 1:39½.

Six furlongs—Lady Ashley, 105, Bullmen, 11 to 10, won; Queen Nubia, 107, Ruiz, 10 to 1, second; Obsidian, 93, Devin, 6 to 5, third. Time, 1:45. Keiser Ludwig end Howerd also started.

Seven end a half furlongs—Williem O'B, 114, Frewley, 9 to 10, won; Tom Smith, 111, Bullman, 2 to 1, second; Mesoero, 104, Powell, 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:35. Rey de Loe Angeles also ran.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12.

The record held hy Toggles, son of Strathway, is now 2:09½, which is the same notch es thet of the Sidney stallion Monterey, which he defeated to-day in a two-in-three race. The first heat geve Toggles the new record, and he came beck the next heat in 2:09½ and not only won the race, hut trotted the fastest two heets ever trotted in California in a race. It wes expected thet the Fresno gelding would take the first heat, and he wes mede the favorite in the hooks, hut there wes Monterey money to hurn end the horses went to the post with "even money, take your pick" on the hoerde. Toggles won hy a little over a length. Monterey wes a hig favorite for the next heat, though a lerge number of tickets were written on Toggles. The horses were sent off head end heed hut no sooner had the word heen given than Monterey went to one of those disastrous breaks that heve meny times lost him a race when up against horses thet are not as fast es he is. By the time Williems got him squared away Toggles was out fifteen lengths in the lead and trotting es he always does—square as a die and with the resolution of e horse whose only desire is to get to the wire first. Monterey trotted a great mile, end he came so fast down the stretch that it momentarily looked es if he wonld beat out Toggles, hut the task proved too hard a one, and Toggles won by less than a sulky's length in 2:09½. Monterey was timed the last helf mile in 1:03¾—a 2:06½ gait—and but for the unfortunate break there is no doubt that Williams' horse would have reduced his record to 2:07½.

The special pacing race, in which Juliet D., Don, Bastina, Nutwey and Billy Beker conteeted, went to the first-named mere easily in three straight heats.

The event of the running cerd was the easy win of La Golete over Grady in the seven-furlong dash. The speedy Sante Anite mare galloped in a winner in the fest time of 1:26¼. It now looks as if La Goleta could heve heeten hoth Moringe end Merplot had she started in the mile race on Tuesday. The stahle compenions, Elsie Smith end Gihhityflibbett, ren one, two in the welter weight rece, with Smyle, the favorite, third. Celoso romped home a winner in the four-end-e-helf furlong race, while Castelar heat Grecias for the place. The Senta Anita Stahle scored its third win of the day with Los Modinos in the half-mile meiden race. He was e 2-to-5 favorite. Summeries:

Four and one-half furlongs—Celoso, 109, Devin, 1 to 2, won; Cesteler, 114, Ruiz, 10 to 1, second; Gracias, 114, Powell 8 to 1, third. Time, 0:45½. Losette also ran.

Handicap, seven furlongs—La Goleta, 107, Devin, 7 to 10 won; Grady, 118, Hennessy, even, second; San Venado, 105, Frawley, 7 to 10, third. Time, 1:26½. Petrarch wes left at the post.

Maiden two-year-olds, half a mile—Los Modinos, 110, Hennessey, 1 to 3, won; Inola, 102, Ruiz, 3 to 1, second; Talvez, 102, Gutierrez, 3 to 1, third. Time, 0:40. Pauline Mosher, Miss Mattie and Ellen Wood also ran.

LAYING UP HEATS.

"When the Douglass five thousand dollar stake was carried over unfinished until the next day, the judges announced that they had determined to heavily fine Foote, the driver of John Nolen, for laying up the first two heats, and also to fine other drivers for the same offsnce. Thie cannot have been pleasing news to the parties most interested and the subsequent announcement thet Foote stood fined five hundred dollars and the others lesser amounts must have been decidedly less so. There is not the slightest doubt that Foote could have been much neerer the top of the summary with John Nolen in eecb of the first two heats hed he sent the gelding along, as it was he was content to meke no move until in the third heet, after which he won out in the shortest possible order. This question of fining drivers for leying up heate is a rather ticklish one to deal with. Put Marvin end old Palo Alto in tha plece of Foote and Nolen. It was well known thet Marvin never figured to win the first heat and rarely the second except by accident; yet Palo Alto was heaten only twice in his long career end no hetter or truer or more enduring trotting race horse ever wore harness or faced e starter. Would it have been right to have forced on Mervin a system of racing, or rether a style of race driving that must inevitably heve ruined the great stallion's chences in every event he sterted in, covered Pelo Alto's name with dishonor and sent the substantially invincible combination into history as a pair of duffers?

Once on a time three very prominent turf men served in the judges' stand at Weshington Park during a meeting held by the Northwestern Breeders' Association. In one of the reces presided over by this triumvirate, George Starr end tha late Major Dickinson's hlack mere Cocoon end he, as well es the owner and his friends, thought the mare's chances to win so good thet they hecked her to win a very handsome sum of money. Starr made no move for either the first or second heat. His mere had been shipped a long distance and was a trifle renk and unsteady. Patiently and skillfully Starr quieted her down and in effecting this did little more then drop inside the distance and then jog leisurely home, giving Cocoon es good an opportunity to view the gigantic crowd, hear the hend, etc., etc. Cocoon did not finish anywhere nearly es well up as she hed figured to finish and eome people began to clamor for the official substitution of some competent reinsman in Starr's place. This request the judges refused to grent and in the third heet, Starr got away nicely and won the round off hand end thereafter won the race in the shortest spece of time then possible. When asked why they did not take Starr out after the first or second heat end substitute some one who would drive from word to finish the judges replied that primerily it was Starr's duty to win the rece if he could and that they ought not to force him to drive it in such a way that he could not helplosing it. When Foote leid up the first two heets he broke the law which was passed with the specific object of preventing drivers doing exactly as he did. The judges then hed every right to fine him and that disposee of the legality of their ection which has been called in question; some contending that so long as Foote wes driving to win the race, the twenty-five hundred dollar first money end the amount Mr. Huhinger stood to win he had every right to drive the race out as he thought hest in the interests of his employer. Now, then, for the policy pursued. It is plain thet if every horse is driven from wire to wire for every heat the races will not extend to as many heats and the contests for the money will he keener. It is equelly plain, too, thet the judges must not treat one driver this way and the next one some other way—they must do one thing or enother, punish every man who does not drive as hard es he can in every heat or let the thing elone altogether. Let us suppose that the Foote-Nolan case corresponds in every deteil to that of Sterr end Cocoon described, would it be right to force Foote to drive his horse so that he must get heaten? Suppose ageiu thet Nolan is like Palo Alto; if Foote persists in breaking the rules and disobeying the judiciel mendate he must eventually he expelled; yet would it be right to expal a driver, solely and simply because he was striving his hardest to do well and skillfully that which his employer wes paying him to do in that wey? Consideration of these facts, ee illustrated, goes ta show that this is a very important question and not one to he settled off-hand. However, so long as there is in the turf code a rule which prohibits the leying up of heats, the judges, if they do their duty folly, can only enforce that rule strictly end in accordence with the letter end spirit of the law.

Los Angelee Horse Show.

August Belmont of New York has consented to act as one of the honorery vice-presidents at the coming horse show, seys the Los Angeles Herald, end hes offered e cup to he competed for in one of the events. In e letter to the President of the Horse Show Association he suggested that the cup he offered as a prize for the best broken polo pony on exhibition. Among others who heve been chosen as vice-presidents are Prince A. Poniatowski of San Francisco, who has lerge mining and railroed interests in the central part of of the State; E. D. Beylard, also of San Freucisco, a great lover of fine horses; C. Hubbard, one of the wealthiest citizens of Redlands, who has a large stehle of horses and is likely to make entries in the horse show, end several other men of prominence.

Robert L. Bettner of Riverside, the famous polo player who created such e sensation e yeer or two ago on his wonderful pony Cigerette at the match at Burlingame, is an enthusiastic supporter of the horse show. In connection with Mr. Waring and others in Riverside, he has underteken to get up e series of what ere called Gymkhena events for the horse show meeting, such as tent pegging, a sport very popular in India, tandem riding over hurdles, in-and-out riding throngh obstacles, and othar attractiva events.

Commodore Frank Greenell, an Englishmen of lerge wealth who is spending the season at Coronado, has also accepted a vice-presidency and will he a valuahle ecqnisition to the Horse Show Association.

The Southern Pacific railroed has granted the associetion the seme retes on exhihits which were allowed the San Francisco horse show, by which exhihits returning from the horse show and certified to as having heen duly exhihited will he returned free to the points from which they came. This is a valuahle concession and will greetly aid the promotera of the horse show in hringing exhihits from a distance.

A $4,200 Pair of Horses.

At St. Louis, Mo., recently, a pair of carriage horses were sold at auction for $4,200, heing purchesed by Geo. Watson of London, England. The team were called Sampson & Dewey end were hred es follows: Sampson is a chestnut gelding, 16 hands high, foaled in 1893, hred by James Pussy, Feirmont, Ill.; sired hy Soudan, he hy Sultan (the sire of forty-four standerd performers, inclnding Saladan, 2:05¾; Stamhoul, 2:07½, and Mosul, 2:09¾). His first dem wes hy Memhrino Davis. Dewey was a hrown gelding, 16 hands high, foeled in 1893; sired hy the same sira as Sampson. His first dem was hy Tacoma, 2:19½.

THE Chicago Flexible Shaft Co., 158–160 Huron street, Chicago, end 97 Chambers street, New York, mekers of the celebrated Chicago Clipper, announce in another part of this paper a reduction in price on their '98 Chicago Clipper from $10.75 to $8.75. This price seems ridiculously low for a complete clipping machine of the very finest make. The mennfacturers edvance as a reason for reducing the price the fact that it has always heen their aim to put hut a manufacturing or shop profit on their goods; they believe that low prices stimulete husiness end open up a field for goods that would not he availahla at higher prices. For instance, a clipping mechine at $8 75, gneranteed for two years, is a necessity in every well-regulated stahle, while at two or three times this price it would be less generally adopted. They shape their policy on the theory that horsemen are alive to the fect that when they want a clipping machine they want one that will do their work, one thet is sold on the merits of the clipper alone, and not on the self-styled invisible, mysterious merits thet ere said to exist in some machines, hut are not apperent.

WHIRLWIND MAC, 2:17¼, has started in sixty-six reces and in only four has he heen heck of the money. He is nine years old end has been compaigned six seasons.

RACING RESUMED AT LEXINGTON.

Anaconda and Directly Meet and the Former Wins In a Close Contest.

Lexington, Ky., October 12.—After another day of postponement on account of wet weather, the Trotting Horse Breeders Association resumed its meeting at 10 A. M., with the weather cool and clear and the track in good condition and getting faster as the day progresses. Split heats and the howling over of the favorites were the marked features.

The chief event of the day was the 2:04 pacing class, in which Directly sold in the pools at $50 to $35 for the field. Rubenstein and Bumps set the pace in the first heat until the stretch was reached, when Directly and Anaconda had a whipping contest to the wire, the judges giving the decision to Directly. The second heat was won by Anaconda in a hot finish with Chehalis, Directly third, by no means up to his Louisville form. The third heat was won handily by Anaconda by two lengths from Directly. Anaconda won the fourth heat and race at dusk from Directly in another whipping contest. Results:

2:27 class, trotting, purse $1,000 (two heats trotted Monday)—Bessie Owens won second, third and fourth heats. Time, 2:13½, 2:15, 2:16½. Maggie Lass won first heat in 2:16½. Baron Wood, Barometer, Valoise, Chestnut King, Sampson, Guy Baron, Red Tape, Will Lana, Ambrose, Black Robert, Capstone, Judge Toley and Bonnacita also started.

2:12 class, pacing, purse $1,000—Birch Twig won third, fourth and fifth heats. Time, 2:12½, 2:14½, 2:14½. Lily of the Valley won first and second heats. Time, 2:13½, 2:13½. Harry Cozzens, Joker Patchen, Edgar Ross, Patches, Johnny Agann and Miss Edith also started.

2:12 class, trotting, purse $1,500—Hans McGregor won second, fourth and fifth heats. Time—2:11½, 2:12½, 2:11½. Georgianna won third heat in 2:11½. J B D won first heat in 2:12½. Aldrich, Alves, Sir Charles, Rose Croix, Dr. Leek, Humboldt Maid, Brown Dick, May Fern, Surpol and Caryl Carne also started.

2:21 class, trotting, purse $1,000—Miss Sidney won third, fourth and fifth heats. Time, 2:14, 2:14½, 2:16¾. Harry won first and second heats. Time, 2:12, 2:14½. Lillian M., Sparta Rex, Woodside, Dr. French, John P. Stewart, Oaklay, Kosie Lind, Montie Bayard, Bella Bells, None Such, Susie Howe, Marguerite, Tesla and Bourbon Bonnell also started.

2:04 class, pacing, purse $2,000—Anaconda won second, third and fourth heats. Time, 2:04½, 2:05½, 2:06¾. Directly won first heat in 2:04½. Chehalis, Rubensteim, Frank Bogash, Bumps and Planet also started.

October 13—There were five races for the fourth day of the Kentucky Trotting horse Breeders' meeting. It was clear and cool when the first race was called at 11 o'clock, growing colder as the day progressed, making the time slower. Results:

2:15 class, pacing, purse $1,000—Bell Boy won second, third and fourth heats. Best time, 2:09½. Joe Bantley won the first heat. Blaze Boy, Jim Pugh, Fannie Putnam, Edgar H. and Edward B. also started.

2:17 class, trotting, purse $1,000—Bonnatella won in straight heats. Best time, 2:13½. Sister Alice, Black Raven, Josephine Dixon, Espy Boy, Nigger Jack, Miss Sligo, Minnie Birchwood, Maggie Anderson, Dr. Robinson, Red Ray and Belle M. also started.

2:11 class, pacing, purse $1,000—Hal B. won first, second and sixth heats. Best time, 2:09½. Nora L. won fourth and fifth heats. The Bishop won third heat. Effie Powers, Ponta, Nellie Bruce, Kitty B, Oddity, Hydrogen and Evangeline also started.

Walnut Hall cup for 2:17 class, trotting, purse $3,000—Nico won in straight heats. Best time, 2:11¼. Improvidence, Tudor Chimes, Dufour and White Points also started.

2:20 class, pacing, purse $1,000 (unfinished)—Lily of the Valley won first heat in 2:15. Grace Tipton won second heat in 2:13½. Waggo won third heat in 2:14¾. Santa Ta, Alpha W. and Laundry Boy also started.

Two Important Decisions

An English court has recently decided that betting on a horse race is not taking part in a game of chance. Judge Henry, in the Circuit Court at Kansas City, Mo., some weeks ago, held that horse racing is not a gambling device. These two decisions, if approved by courts of last resort, will place betting on horse racing beyond the reach of the "truly good" crusaders who are ever busy interfering with the recreations of the masses. The Kansas City case is quite a peculiar one. A pool-room operator was arrested and fined in the police court. He appealed to the Circuit Court and sought release under a writ of habeas corpus, setting up as his plea that betting on horse races is not gambling, within the meaning of the Missouri law, which, it should be remembered, is much like that of every other State. The court promptly discharged the prisoner. We have not, at hand, the facts as to the plea of the applicant's attorney, but it set up that the State Supreme Court had held that horse racing and betting on horse racing is not gambling within the meaning of the law. If the upper court has so decided, the wisdom, which is but a synonym for good sense, of the decision will not be questioned. On the other hand, it is patent that betting on races can be allowed to go to an extreme which is, to say the least, dangerous to the health of a great sport. But that can easily be controlled by track managers, and kept within the proper bounds. Because of failure to understand the matter, judges of lower courts have placed racing and its incidental betting in the category with the faro bank and the crap game. Nineteenth century enlightenment has brought the truth to the surface in a few spots, and we have no doubt that eventually our courts will all do justice to the case and hold, with Judge Henry, that it is not a crime, nor even a misdemeanor, to bet on a horse race.—Horse Review.

At the Illinois State Fair lately held at Springfield, the Parkland French Coach horses and Percherons won fifteen first prizes out of a possible nineteen shown for.

Incompetent Judges.

The season of 1898, more than any in the past, has shown the importance of competent judges, says the American Stock Farm, for frequently the stand is occupied by men whose only recommendation is that they are prominent in other ways, and on this account the owners, drivers and public in general suffer. For many years the knotty problem of starters has been settled by wise selections to fill the difficult position. Paid starters of national reputation for competency and honesty have been the rule, rather than the exception, and there is no reason why the judges should not be chosen in the same way. The responsibility of the men who decide the races is enormous. They not infrequently decide wagers of large amounts, and by settling the positions of the horses they sometimes make or detract from the reputation of sires of speed.

It has been most apparent for many years that the paid judges must come, and yet no association is willing to take the iniative. Few, if any, of the leading associations are as fortunate as the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders, for this body of men are able to pick from among their number or immediate acquaintance men who are thorough horsemen, as well as men of reputation and position. Men whose decisions are never questioned, for it is well known that they will do their best, and that best is all that is necessary, as they know the rules and know also how to apply them.

This is not the case everywhere, and not unnaturally, for it is a difficult matter to find men who are astute horsemen and of strict integrity as well. For this reason the paid judge should be inaugurated. Some man whose knowledge of racing is established, and whose position among men is assured, could be found who, for a stipulated salary, would be willing to devote his time and energy to deciding races. Such has been the case on the running turf for many years, and no one has ever questioned the wisdom of the practice. It is unreasonable to expect any man to give up his time without any compensation, even though he might be an ardent admirer of the light harness horse. It requires years of application to enable a man to be a wise judge and the hours of study of the rules and the form of horses. It is not an uncommon thing to see in the stand men who have no conception of what the various horses in the race have done or can do, and yet how necessary that the judges should be posted on the form of horses.

Keen eyesight, quick wits and common sense are necessary requisites in a judge. These qualities may to some seem plentiful, but such is not the case. Judges frequently find themselves in a position where they do not know what to do next. This is a dangerous condition, for they are called upon to act quickly and to decide hard problems wisely. It is, of course, very complimentary to ask a man into the stand, and the temptation is great to enter it and show one's knowledge of a horse race, but it is wrong to do so unless one is thoroughly competent and well posted. Too much is at stake. A fortune may be decided away from its proper owner. Fraud may be overlooked, or an innocent person punished through the stupidity or culpability of the occupants of the stand.

Just why this has not been changed no one seems to know, except that, like all other reforms, changes come slowly. The judges' stand is now one of the weakest points of the management of trotting associations. It may be satisfactory for small county fairs to select for judges the Mayor or some other prominent man, but not so with the larger associations. These affairs should put on a metropolitan air. The right man should be in the right place. After all, the chief aim of associations should be justice to all, and this cannot be the case until the incompetent judge steps down and out, and the master of this profession takes his place.

The Stinson family, famous as colt developers through Patron, Houri, Tuscarora and Princess Clara, was in evidence again when Mary Cleete beat the creek youngsters of her age in the $2,000 stake at Louisville. R. Copa Stinson and his son Harry trained at San Mateo and when the sale took place in New York, one of their selections to develop was the black filly. She was trained at Cleveland last season by Harry Stinson, and could step fast for a yearling. This year the father worked her at Brantford, Ont., and as was stated, she worked in 2:23½ on a half mile track. Copa Stinson generously offered his son one-half of what the filly might earn in the Louisville stake and the $5,000 Futurity at Lexington, if he would get her and make the final payments in each stake. The filly named Mary C laste won in straight heats, her time 2:17¼ and 2:18, being the fastest of the year for a two-year-old. She is one of the richest bred fillies in the world, being by Oro Wilkes 2:11 (grandson of Guy Wilkes), dam Fida by Guy Wilkes; second dam Fidelia by Director, 2:17; third dam by Reavis Blackbird, and fourth dam by McCracken's Black Hawk. She cost $410 at auction.

In one district of France the commissioners of horse breeding have set out to discover, if possible, the relative merits of the sulky and saddle as aids in the development of good, serviceable horses; and also to discover if the American trotting stallion, developed entirely in harness, can be used under French conditions, to improve the French trotter. With these ends in view, the Derby de Havre, 3,200 metres (about two miles), for a purse of 3,600 francs ($700) was endowed in perpetuity, the race to be contested in harness, not to saddle as the rest of the great French races for three-year-olds are. In this particular district at least two reliable American-bred stallions are located and their colts and fillies were entered. This year, however, the race was won, as it has been since its institution a few seasons ago, by a French-bred trotter without a drop of American blood about him. Two half bred Americans came home second and third, to wit, Besancon and La Tosca, the former a daughter of Buford, the latter a daughter of Cash. Both horses have been well patronized in the stud, their individuality being considerably above the average. The track at Havre is a particularly poor one, hardly worth the title indeed, and the time of the winner was equal substantially to 2:45 to the mile.

W. F. Young:—"Absorbine" should be introduced among horsemen and stock farms in general. I am a race horse man myself, keeping 20 to 25 in training, and have used your remedy with good effect.

Yours faithfully,
Percy Taylor, 170 Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

JUDGE MAGUIRE REPLIES.

Says That He Favors Reasonable Appropriations for the District Fairs.

One month ago, on September 14th, the Breeder and Sportsman addressed the following letter to the Hon. James G. Maguire, candidate for Governor of California:

San Francisco, September 14, 1898.

Hon. J. G. Maguire—Dear Sir:—The breeders of live-stock throughout the State of California are unanimous in the opinion that the State appropriations for the District Agricultural Associations should be restored.

The District Fairs under the administrations granting them State aid have done much to encourage the improvement of all kinds of livestock in California, and by doing so have made this State famous throughout the Union for its fine horses and cattle, which have commanded large prices when sent East for sale and added greatly to the wealth of the State. Without State aid it is impossible to give adequate premiums for the various classes of exhibits to make the District Fairs successful.

The investment in breeding farms and fair grounds in the State represents many millions of dollars and the breeding business is one of the greatest industries of the State. These interests will suffer greatly by the loss of the District Fairs.

The Breeder and Sportsman is the representative paper of these interests in California, and in no sense a political organ. We believe, however, that the question whether the District Fairs shall be aided or destroyed is a vital one to our constituents and therefore desire to ask you in all sincerity, how, in the event of your election to the office of Governor of California you will stand upon the question of State aid to the District Agricultural Associations, and whether you will endorse the appropriations made by the Legislature for their support.

Hoping that you will find it convenient to give an early reply to our interrogation, we remain,

Very respectfully yours,
Breeder and Sportsman.

Under date of October 11th, nearly one month after receiving the above letter, Mr. Maguire sends the following reply:

To the Breeder and Sportsman:—On this subject, I can only repeat what I said at Visalia and other places in the South.

I am in favor of reasonable appropriations for the encouragement of County and District Fairs, such appropriations to be fairly distributed throughout the State and to be honestly used exclusively for the encouragement of agriculture, stock-raising and other farming pursuits, as such appropriations are now effectively used in the principal States of the Middle West. This includes, of course, encouragement of horse and cattle breeding by competitive tests and otherwise; but excludes the abuses heretofore complained of in the conduct of such Fairs, and the large waste of public money in connection therewith.

James G. Maguire.

John Nolan Wins the Transylvania.

There were nine starters in the Transylvania at Lexington, last Monday, and it took five heats to decide the race, but it finally went to John Nolan, son of Prodigal. The weather and track were all that could be desired and there was a large attendance. It was the fastest race ever trotted for the stake and over $125,000 went through the pool box on the result. Esgla Flannagan, seemingly the fastest of the field, won the first heat in 2:07¾. Gratten Boy secured the next one in 2:08. John Nolan had been seventh in both these heats, but he now went to the front and in the hottest kind of drives with Grattan Boy, Eagle Flannagan and Pilate, won the third heat by a length, the fourth by a neck and the fifth and last by a head. The time of these heats was 2:08¼, 2:09½, 2:09¾. Behind these four mentioned were Bingen, the horse that holds the record for the fastest mile trotted this year—2:06¾; Dione, 2:08¼, that delicate little piece of mechinery that has won many good races this year, and started every time in a field of crackerjacks; Caracella, Belle J. and Cut Glass. It looks as though the driver of Nolan laid up the first two heats of the race, though he may not have done so. The fact that he finished seventh twice, does not look like driving to win, but it may be that Foote could have won the race in no other way.

The 2:08 trot the same day was won in the same manner. There was a big field, including the California horses Klamath and Humboldt Maid in this event. William Penn won the first heat in 2:11¼, Rilma the second in the same time. Then Pilot won three heats, trotting them in 2:09¼, 2:09½ and 2:10¼. The Californians were outside the money.

The 2:13 pace was very similar to the trots, Hal B. taking two heats in 2:10½ and 2:10, when The Bishop came on and won the rest in 2:09¾, 2:11½ and 2:12. If there were no laying up heats last Monday at Lexington, the summaries at least give an idea that there was something akin to it.

Sulky Notes.

Lord Clinton, 2:08¾, has been sent to Europe.

Nazote, the brother to Azote, 2:04¾, will be treined next yeer.

Robert Patchen is out of it for the rest of the season. He has been sent home.

The Marcus Daly string will be sent home to Montana at the Lexington meeting.

It is said that the Village Farm did not win half es much money this year as it did lest.

The address of William Lomax is wented. Communicate with J. L., Burlingame, Cal. *

The Gretna Farm, Gretna, Ill., has a pretty sleek peir out in Redilda, 2:07¼, and Directly, 2:03¾.

When Caid, 2:07½, lends on the other side he will be the fastest trotter in Europa by the records.

The 2:16 trot at Lonisville had thirty entries, and twenty-four wera entered for the 2:24 class trotting.

It will be herd to 6gure on the time if Directly and Searchlight ever get mixed up on a good fast track.

Marcus Daly, who bred John Nolan, sold him for $1,000 The horse has won abont $15,000 this year.

In the 2:30 pace at Charter Oak the everage time was 2:08½, while in the 2:12 page tha average time was 2:15.

The filly by Advertiser, 2:15½, out of the dam of Sunol, 2:08½, has been named Sunolito and she is regarded as a great prospect.

J. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston, owns the two fastest trotting stallions descended from Electioneer—Bingen, 2:06¾, and Arion, 2:07¾.

Too bad that the dam of Direct, 2:05½, eire of Directly, 2:03½, was out of a mere sired by Jack Hawkins, a thoroughbred son of Boston.

Iago was driven a mile to wagon over the the Cleveland track lately. The local papers say he is getting hack to his old form and can go very fest.

Rustique, 2:18¼, by Electioneer, out of Miss Russell, Nutnla sister to Nutwood, and Mandlen, 2:25¾, by Harold, out of Nutnla, died recently at Allen Farm.

Ashland Wilkes, son of Red Wilkes and sire of John R. Gentry, was sold at the Woodward & Shanklin aala to John D. Creighton of Omaha for $3350.

The pacer Arthur L., 2:15, son of Direct, 2:05½, and owned by Louis Schaffer of Oakland, was seriously injured in a railroad wreck near Hornellsville, New York, recently.

Baby Ruth, 2:26½, by Cantion, and Altonette, 2:25, by Altago are new comers to the 2:30 list. Their records were made at Washington State Fair two weeks ago. Both are trotters.

Bingen should be turned loose for the stallion record. When the handsome son of May King is stepped from wire to wire right to his limit the watches will stop right close to Alix's mark.

The barn on the breeding farm of Huntley & Clark at Toston, Montana, burned last Sunday and destroyed nineteen trotting bred horses of gilt-edge breeding. The loss is placed at $15,000.

A three-year-old filly by Dexter Prince is considered one of the best ones that has ever been seen in Cleveland, Ohio. She was driven a mile in 2:22 recently and has had but very little work.

The mare Madcap, by Steinway, out of the dam of Al Gregor, started in a race for pacers of the three minutes class at Wichita, Kansas, September 23d, and was second in each heat in 2:20½, 2:20¼ and 2:21.

Another stockmen of means has joined the ranks of those who believe that good carriage horses may he bred by mating the French Coach stallion with the native mare of trotting blood. W. P. Reeser, Walla Walla, Washington, recently visited Oaklawn Farm, Wayne, Ill., and while there purchased two stallions and three mares.

There are some real good things to ba had "Among the Barrels" 863 Market street. Among them the best and purest of liquors and a splendid hot lunch every day. Drop in and enjoy them. *

There were some big pools sold on the Transylvania. Here is a sample: Bingen $250, Eagle Flannagan $250, John Nolan $250, Balle J. $25, Grattan Boy $25, Caracalla $15, Dione end Cutglass in the field $15.

The drivers who won heats at the Wheeling, W. Va., races, in which the time was suppressed, have been notified that they must pay fines of $1,000 each before they can start in other races. The track has been expelled.

At Springfield, Ill., they had a ten-heat pacing race last Tuesday. The time was 2:11½, 2:12, 2:13½, 2:11¼, 2:10¾, 2:13¾, 2.14¾, 2:16¼, 2:17¾, 2:20. Kitty K, 2:10¾, a four-year-old mere by Kermiss, son of Onward, was the winner.

Geo. West has certainly done wonders with Directly, 2:03¼, and those who claim he is one of the best trainers that ever sat in a sulky are not far wrong. He has a knack of keeping horses in condition and teaching them to trot or pace fast.

Baron Wilkes 2:18, again stands at the heed of the list in putting in new 2:30 performers, having ten to his credit already, with the prospect of adding several more before the season closes Four of his get have also reduced their records.

The Eastern papers are saying that Andy McDowell will winter in the East. We doubt it. The climate of California and the Pleasanton track are speed aiders that Andy is familiar with and knows he cannot get on the other side of the Rockies.

Five well bred mares by Dexter Prince are to be sold Thursday next by Killip & Co., together with a number of other splendidly bred horses belonging to Thos. Brown Esq. These Dexter Prince mares, being fine individuals, should bring good prices.

Vicious-tempered attendants will make vicious horses out of the best-tempered animals that can be found. The driver or a stableman who flies into a passion is not a fit person to have the care of horses. The horse imitates his associates to a remarkable degree.

A match race for $25 a corner between six horses owned by members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club will come off to-day over the Alameda track. Another match for $100 a comer is being arranged for two weeks from to-day over the same track.

Rustique 2:18½, the daughter of Electioneer and Miss Russell, died recently at Allen Farm, Pittsfield, Mass., aged ten years. The same establishment has also lost the chestnut mere Nutula, sister to Nutwood, by Belmont out of Miss Russell, aged nineteen, and Mandlen 2:26¾, by Harold out of Nutula, aged fifteen.

There are quite a number of horses with records in California that would bring good prices et the eastern sales. Horses are worth more in the East than they are here because they have greater earning capacity there. With a good circuit of district fairs next year good horses will be herd to buy in California.

Mr. F. W. Perkins, of Oakland, owns one of the best looking sons of Diablo there is in the State, and there are some fine lookers among that horse's produce. This colt is a two-yeer-old ont of a mare by Dictator-Sidney. He is a natural pacer and can pace as fast in the pasture field as the other horses of the band can run.

At Los Angeles, Thursday last, the judges fined James Sullivan $50 for laying up heats with Sable Frances, and declared all bets off. Sable was 4-5-4, the first three heats in 2:15¼, 2:15¾ and 2:17¼, and then won the fourth heat in 2:18¼. This heat was declared no heat. As Sullivan won the slowest heat in the race, it looks as though "there were others."

"Never was glad for this im-im-pediment in my speech but once."

"When was that?"

"Fe-fe fel-low asked me h-h-how much I would take for a-a horse, and while I-I-I was t-trying to tell him s-sixty d-dollars, he offered me a hundred."—Detroit Free Press.

Henry Fleischmann, the pioneer European buyers of the American trotter, arrived in New York from Vienna last week. He has bought some of the best horses that were ever exported to Germany, and his success with American bred horses in the Fatherland has been something phenomenal. He has won a number of important races on the Austrian tracks this year and is an enthusiastic advocate of the trotting blood of this country. He is here for the purpose of buying some of the star performers that will be offered at the autumn sales in New York.

The last half mile of the speed track at Golden Gate Park is down hill and lightning fast. It is amusing to watch drivers speed a horse over it for the first time. They either refuse to believe their watches or think that they have discovered the fastest horse in the world. A gentleman drove an old, out-classed trotter (which had been retired from the race track for several years because he could not beat 2:30) over this track recently, and made the last half in 1:08. Some of the road drivers say that driving over that portion of the speed track is simply a case of falling down hill.

Trotting horse breeders are rapidly learning that an animal that will not stand the training necessary to preparing it for racing is unfit for breeding purposes, and unsoundness of any radical sort, such as bone spavin, ringbone, etc, should be a positive bar of use in breeding ranks. A horse is worth no more than his capacity for endurance and work, and it is a loss of time and money to produce animals that cannot be profitably employed. The fact that a horse has produced what is wanted is not evidence that he will continue to after radical blemishes have appeared. The only safe rule is to breed to sound horses.

There will be sold at Killip & Co.'s sale of trotting bred stock which takes place at the corner of Market street and Van Ness avenue next Thursday, 20th inst., a gelding that should be snapped up by some one who wants a good roadster. He is six years old, broke single and double, a splendid free driver, and is by Dexter Prince, his dam being bred exactly the same as the dam of Toggles, 2:09¼, being by Pasbe from a mare by Hock Hocking.

Mr. F. W. Perkins, who went to Alaska with Jay Beach, the well known owner of Altamont, returned from the frozen north last week. Mr. Perkins reports that Mr. Beach's party have one of the best claims on the Kotzebue Sound, and will remain there all winter. Mr. Beach is in better health than he has been for a long time and says the climate agrees with him. His many friends in California hope he will return with a sack full of gold.

When John Nolan won the deciding heat of the Douglas stake at Lonisville he broke no less than four world's records. His heat in 2:08 is the fastest ever trotted by a green horse, the fastest by a four-year-old gelding and the fastest fifth heat on record. The two first-named records were previously held by The Monk 2:08¼ and the last was a pretty tie between Alix, Directum, Nightingale and The Abbott at 2:09¾. His race, in its entirety, beats the five-heat race record, previously held by Nightingale. It is however, only fair to say that Nightingale's race was finished in one afternoon, while Nolan had a night's rest between his fourth and fifth heats.

That judges often make mistakes when they accuse drivers of laying up heats is certain. At one of the district tracks in this State several years ago, a driver landed his horse first twice, and then owing to the condition of the horse was beaten in the third and fourth heats. The judges, influenced by a man that held a $2 mutual ticket, took the horse from his driver and substituted another. The new driver sent the horse out in the lead the next heat and drove him for all he was worth, with the result that the horse dropped dead before finishing the mile, the owner lost a valuable animal and got no part of the purse and was left stranded. All owing to incompetency in the judge's stand.

"There never was a time when on the trotting turf there existed," says The Horseman, "such a demand for the services of honest, intelligent, really capable young men; why is it that more young men properly equipped by nature for the business, do not take advantage of this existing demand? A man may be as honest, as honorable and as much of a gentleman in the sulky as in the pulpit, and so far as his associates are concerned he may choose them from any class he will. Without the required natural equipment, failure is as sure to follow a venture in the business named as the night the day; but that need not retard those that are properly qualified from making the most of their opportunities."

Are trotters worth anything? Just look at the following prices obtained at the Woodward & Shanklin sale et Lexington last Saturday: Oratorio, 2:13, b s, 6, by Wilkes Boy, dam by Dictator; W. A. Hadfield, $1800. Blennerhassett, b c, 2, by Onward, dam by Dictator; B. Tappen, $3300. Brown filly, 1, by Patchen Wilkes, dam by Young Jim; J. R. Graham, $1375. Pinta, 2:13½, b m, 6, by Manager, dam by Gray Eagle; W. Buckley, $725. Do So, b m, 5, by Dictator, dam by Red Wilkes; W. E. Spiers, Glenns Falls, N. Y., $2600. The sale was well attended and the bidding spirited when anything of interest was offered. Fifty four head were sold for $15,835, an average of $355.35. Don't this read something like a good times item?

Inferno, 2:15, the three-year-old gelding by Diablo, 2:09¼, is from a mare of unknown breeding. She was a gray mare, a fast trotter, and was driven a trial mile over the Oakland track years ago in 2:20 by O. A. Hickok. This mare was raised by Mr. Bassford of Vacaville, now deceased, and by him sold to the late Mayor Bryant of San Francisco, who used her as a road mare. Mr F. W. Perkins informs us that he drove this mare from Los Gatos to Pleasanton when she was to ha bred to Diablo and that she pulled the cart the whole distance by the bit and nearly pulled his arms out. "She was one of the gamest mares I ever saw," said Mr. Perkins," and it is a pity her breeding cannot be established. The mare died this spring while in foal to Diablo.

One of the great California prospects for next year is the trotting mare Phoebe Childers, 2:16¼, by Sir Roderick, out of a mare by Victor Patchen She is now at the Alameda track under the care of Mr. G Lapham. L. E. Clawson of this city, who owns the mare thinks three heats inside of 2:10 are not beyond his capabilities. She is a wonderfully pure-gaited mare, has been raced very little and is as sound as a new dollar. Her sire, Sir Roderick, was by Dictator, out of Prospect Maid, by George Wilkes, and died leaving but three foals. Victor Patchen, sire of her dam, was by George M Patchen 31, from Victress, by Williamson's Belmont. Victress was a chestnut mare and was quite a runner for the early days. She ran a mile as a two-year old over a very poor track in 1:53½. She was the dam of the bay colt Monarch, by Woodburn, that was quite a race horse.

The relative merit of Messenger and Bellfounder as perpetuators of trotting speed can be definitely determined only by what each accomplished in that direction, independently of the other. It must be conceded that the best success of each was obtained by a union of the blood lines of both. Setting aside all the cases where their blood lines were intermingled, and comparing the trotters which were descended from Messenger without a Bellfounder cross, with those descended from Bellfounder, but had no Messenger cross, it will be found that Messenger, through his thoroughbred sons, Bishop's Hambletonian and Mambrino, greatly outranked imported Bellfounder in transmitting the inclination and ability to trot fast. Bellfounder no doubt excelled Messenger, and especially his famous grandson Abdallah, in some respects. Saltpetre may possess some properties that are more valuable than any found in either sulphur or charcoal, but in the manufacture of that powerful explosive gun powder better results have been obtained by combining these three ingredients than by using either or any two independently of the other or others. Just so in the case of Messenger and Bellfounder better results have been obtained by crossing or combining one with the other than have been gained by either without the aid of the other.—American Horse Breeder.

Mr. HAGGIN'S FOREIGN SALE.

And the Great Benefits to Californla Breeders That Must Necessarily Arise From Such a Venture.

The recent sale of Mr. J. B. Haggin's yearling fillies in England, opens up a new market for well-bred American horses. It shows first that the English racing men have no prejudices against American-bred horses; and secondly, that a really high bred horse will sell for as much money there as anywhere else. And it shows likewise that the English remember the great horses of bygone years with memories more faithful than ours.

Pantaloon, a chestnut horse, foaled about 1830 as near as I can recollect, was far-and-away the most beautiful horse of his time; and it was Admiral Rous who called him "the first gentleman of Europe." He was probably the greatest of English broodmare sires, barring Sir Peter, from whom his dam was descended. Panteloon got The Libel from Pasquinada (sister to Touchstone), by Camel; The Libel got Treducer from Arethuse (dam of Fern Hill, a great racehorse) by Elis, the St. Leger winner of 1836; and Treducer got Sir Modred, who appeared in the list of Australian winning sires six years after his exportation to these United States of ours. It was the Sir Modred fillies that made Mr. Haggin's London sale the great success it was, one of them bringing £800 and two others over £600, while three others brought somewhere in the neighborhood of £500.

I know of several wealthy Australians who have taken up their residence in London. One of these is Mr. Daniel Cooper who owns New Haven, winner of the Melbourne Cup of 1896 and Mons Meg, winner of the Queen's Vase of 1891, beating the great Nunthorpe. Another Australian who is now prominent in English racing circles, is Mr. J. W. Larnach, owner of the Derby winner Jeddah, who also won the Prince of Wales' Stakes at Ascot and ran second to Wildflower for the St. Leger. Mr. Larnach's father was a practicing physician in Melbourne at a period when it was the usual thing to charge two guineas for a visit. Some of the profits of his profession he invested in suburban property at Hawthorne, Armedale and Toorak, which has since been sold at enormous advances upon the original cost, so that the son is a very rich man. It may be that the presence of such bidders as Messrs. Larnach and Cooper led up to the good prices realized for the Sir Modred fillies, but whether such be the case or not Mr. Haggin deserves the congratulation of all California breeders for the good prices realized. I have seen no detailed account of the sale, hence cannot say what the average price was for the entire consignment.

Of course it is a very easy thing for people to say that Mr. Haggin was a rich man and could afford to take big chances on a venture of this sort. I know of plenty of men who have as much ready money as Mr. Haggin and who would not have risked it as he did. When you take into consideration that he is well past seventy years of age and has been in poor health for several years, the importance of the undertaking becomes all the more apparent. He deserves the thanks of every American breeder for his pluck, and the result of the sale fully vindicates his foresight and his excellent native shrewdness.

In doing this Mr. Haggin has pointed out the way for other American breeders to get rid of their fillies which are just now a drug in the market. General Jackson and Mr. E. S. Gardner each shipped a big lot of youngsters to New York during the past season and for the want of remunerative prices sent their fillies back to Tennessee. General Ewing was more fortunate and succeeded in getting off the daughters of Topgallant at fairly good figures. But it is a positive fact that there is not one stallion out of five whose fillies are worth the expense of training, and therefore England has relieved the American market of forty-two head already, with more to follow. The breeders of California owe Mr. Haggin a greater debt in this matter than can be computed at the present writing.

Nor do I believe the proposition should end with consignments to England. France and Germany will pay good prices for really well-bred fillies, and if no one has the ready money with which to undertake it, a combination sale could be gotten up with consignments from a dozen breeders. Mr. L. J. Rose would be the best man to handle a shipment to Germany and I have no doubt could realize handsomely for his consignors.

HIDALGO.

THERE are not as many running horses in training in California as there were last year at this time, the high price of hay causing many of them to be given a rest in the pasture fields for awhile. After the green feed is well started, however, the usual number will be getting the "prep."

A Tale of the Turf.

Even experienced, successful racing men fall into error at times, from which nothing better illustrates the uncertainties of the sport. On Thursday, at Gravesend, Mr. P. J. Dwyer discussed with his trainer, Frank McCabe, the advisability of leaving Handball in the Jerome and Manhattan Handicaps at Morris Park.

McCabe thought the horse might have a chance in the Jerome, as he believes that Handball is a steyer. Phil could not see it that way. "The colt is not at himself," said Phil. "He has not one chance in a million, and I won't start him. I want you to declare him out of both events." To make doubly sure that Handball would be declared, Mr. Dwyer gave Secretary McIntyre similar instructions.

Imagine Phil's surprise when he looked over the entries next morning and saw that Handball was named for both the Jerome and Manhattan. He posted down to the offices of the Brooklyn Jockey Club forthwith, and a stormy session ensued between him and McIntyre.

"I thought I told you to declare that horse," said Phil. "So you did," replied the suave and diplomatic Colonel, "but I supposed McCabe would attend to it."

Phil was in no very pleasant frame of mind on the way to Morris Park. When he got there he immediately looked up McCabe. The trainer's explanation only threw light on the case in one point, namely, that Handball had not been declared from either event. Phil concluded he would make the best of it, as he said to McCabe: "Well, we have got to pay starting fees anyhow. You can go ahead and let him start in whichever event you see fit."

That Handball won the Jerome Handicap at odds of 25 to 1 is now of the past. But it may not be generally known that the son of Hanover was treated to a bottle of whisky in the paddock before he went to the post. Did Handball win on "Dutch Courage?" Perhaps; perhaps not. Anyway, whiskey doth accelerate the speed of both horses and mortals, and it is unfair to the betting public that a horse like Handball, say, should be treated to a speed producing elixir at one time and not at another.

When it is necessary to use stimulants on horses, or if it is necessary at all, why not record the fact on the bulletin board? When stimulants are not used the public should be so advised. Of course the Jockey Club might, for various reasons, prefer not to so enlighten the public. Then it should adopt a stringent rule against the use of any and all stimulants, for their employment is decidedly unfair to the betting public. Speculators find the natural and legitimate accidents of racing difficult enough to surmount, without having to indulge in guessing machines as to when a horse is to be treated to a bottle of whiskey and when he is to be run on the temperance plan.—Morning Telegraph.

Alpen Wins the Stallion Stake.

The Stallion Stakes, the richest prize competed for on the Western turf since 1894, was won last Saturday, at Hawthorne, by Alpen, one of the three colts sent to the post by the Fleischmanns, of Cincinnati. Cleverly ridden by Maher, the Eastern lightweight jockey, the colt won the race in a drive from Miss Marion, a filly owned by Barney Schreiber, of St. Louis, and F. H. Brunnell, of Chicago. Dr. Eichberg, another of the Fleischmann entries, finished third, five lengths behind Miss Marion.

The Barrister took the lead at the start. At the end of the first furlong Miss Marion was in the lead, with Alpen in second position, going easily, and Sea Lion third. Miss Marion then proceeded to open up a gap of four or five lengths, but Maher did not make a move on Alpen until the field was straightened away for home. Then he settled down and drove.

At the eighth pole Alpen was on even terms with the St. Louis filly. Then commenced the race. Alpen showed a disposition to bear in and Maher had considerable difficulty to keep his mount from fouling Miss Marion on the outside. Rutter, on the filly, finally straightened up and took her outside, and, driving furiously, gained a half-length on Alpen before the finishing line was reached. Alpen, however, was three parts of a length ahead at the wire. The time, 1:18½, was good, considering the condition of the track.

Alpen is a chestnut colt, by Sir Dixon, from Alpene, by King Alfonso; second dam, Penumbra, by Pat Molloy; third dam, Penelope, by Commodore, and so on. Previous to this race, Alpen had started in eleven races and was first seven times.

Rheumatism and Horses.

CORNHILL, TEX., March 24, 1896.

Please send me six bottles Gombault's Caustic Balsam by express. Your Balsam is the best liniment I have ever used, both for horses and myself. I have used it on myself for rheumatism with good success. I doctored four months and spent $120 for doctor and medicine with no results, but since using your Balsam I can work around on the farm. Would like the agency for this county.

OTTO A. BEYER.

The Hawthorne Trouble.

If the local papers are to be believed, the Hawthorne Club received a knockout blow by reason of a court decision rendered by Judge Watermen on Friday. While the decision in question is damaging to the racing interest hereabouts, prospectively at least, it is still safe to say there will be no interruption of racing here for the balance of the season. There is so much litigation, so many suits, counter suits and court proceedings of one kind and another as hearing on Hawthorne, that it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to untangle the legal meshes and make the situation plain to the ordinary layman.

Speaking in a general way, the troubles have been between warring partners, John Branock, who owns a quarter interest in the Hawthorne plant, making a fierce and aggressive war on Ed Corrigan, who owns a controlling interest. In the legal battles up to Friday, and in the bloody fight near the gates over a month ago, the Corrigan forces were successful, while Branock left no stone unturned in keeping up his fight. His latest court move was in resorting to quo warranto proceedings looking to the forfeiture of the Hawthorne charter, on the ground of gambling being allowed on the track in violation of the law.

The decision, however, does not definitely settle the case, as a demurrer is yet to be disposed of, not to speak of other possible motions and suits in the way of staving off early action on the part of Branock and the State behind him. Then it is at least possible that Ed Corrigan and Branock may patch up their differences, in which event, with the latter ceasing to be an aggressive and disturbing factor, prosecutions of every kind might be dropped. It must be borne in mind the Civic Federation plays no part in the game, and the State's present action is at the prompting of Mr. John Branock.

Speaking about the situation to-day, Ed Corrigan said there was no danger at all that racing at Hawthorne would be interrupted before the close of the season. At that, the general situation as affecting the future of racing at Chicago is not encouraging and is not likely to be until a safe racing law is enacted by the Legislature.

Days of Sprints are Numbered.

The decision arrived at last week by the English Jockey Club in regard to two-year-old racing and short distance events is of more than passing interest. The English turf finds itself in the same condition as ours is here—the increasing number of short distance racing affecting the stamina of the thoroughbred. The English Jockey Club last week passed a rule that half the total amount of added money at every meeting, shall be apportioned for races of a mile or more, for three-year-olds and upward, and that 50 per cent. of that half shall be devoted to races of more than a mile and a half. It was also agreed that prior to June 1st of each year there shall be no two-year-old race of greater value than $1,000.

There are rules that could be applied with equal advantage here. Numbers of our best two-year-olds are ruined annually by being forced like hot-house plants, to take part in some of the early events, which are so valuable, that for the sake of greed they are worth the risk. The objection to the rule applying to June 1st, is that no racing association will at first want dates before them. The only remedy for this is to make their all-age stake more valuable, and that is exactly what the well-wishers of the turf desire to see. The attendance will be just as large to see a stake like the Brooklyn Handicap decided as the Futurity, that has been proved, consequently gate receipts will not suffer. Owners will soon find it money in their pockets by the increased value of their stock, which, by not being run to death as two-year-olds, will make good returns in their three, four, five and six year-old form. The advantages of long distance races versus sprints have long been appreciated. The best stallions and broodmares are those which have proved successful in long distance races. Few sprinters have proved valuable in the stud.

Mr. Galway has already signified his intention of bringing these matters before the Jockey Club, and the sooner our stewards see things in the same light as their English brethern the better it will be for all connected with the turf. —N. Y. Com. Advertiser.

The Approaching Racing Season.

But two weeks will elapse before the California Jockey Club will throw open its gates at Emeryville, and the fall racing season will be on in full blast. The prospects are excellent for a good meeting, and although the number of high class horses will not be as large as later on, when the stables now racing in the East will have arrived, still the outlook for good fields and good racing is excellent. Last year, owing to the dry season which prevailed in this State, there were more sunshiny days than can be expected or hoped for this year. But though the winter months in California are called the "rainy season," there are three times as many days during which the sun shines and overcoats and umbrellas are discarded, as those on which rain falls and the mercury drops below 70 degrees. The track and stable at Emeryville are in the very best possible condition and many improvements for the accomodation of horsemen and visitors have been completed during the summer.

Saddle Notes.

Ingleside track is being put in fine condition for the winter meeting.

New Louisville Jockey Club Stakes for foals of 1897 close to-day. See advertisement.

Willie Sink has had such good luck at Chicago lately that the track followers now call him Willie Swim.

Sir Walter, ridden by Lonnie Clayton, won at a mile and a furlong at Morris Park last Tuesday and did it handily.

Willie Martin will not ride much more this season as he is still suffering somewhat from an injury received while riding at Saratoga.

Jockey Tommy Butler will ride for Burns & Waterhouse after November 1st. He is one of the best light weight jockeys on the coast.

It is now stated that Fleur de Lis has no bowed tendon, but is in splendid form and will start at the California Jockey Club's meeting in all probability.

Three Rancho del Paso bred horses won at Morris Park last Tuesday—Brier Sweet, Scotch Plaid and Sir Walter. Brier Sweet won the Dixiana Stake.

Mrs. Nettie Harbison will again have a string of horses running at the local tracks this winter. She recently leased three horses from Rancho del Paso.

The New Orleans meeting will open November 24th. Twenty stakes ranging from $1,000 to $4,000 are provided, entries to which close November 12th.

The horses are arriving from all parts of the country to be here in readiness for the opening of the racing season, which will take place two weeks from to-day.

Jimmy McCormick was the largest Chicago winner on Alpena, he having placed upon the Fleischmann stable some $2,000, spread about straight, place and show.

Tod Sloan made a wonderful score at Newmarket on September 30. He rode in seven races during the day and won five, was second once and unplaced once.

Barney Schreiber said, when guyed about the steeplechaser named after him: "I am glad my namesake is a jumper because he will the sooner be killed."

The California Jockey Club's new quarters, corner of Kearney and Morton streets, will be ready for occupancy in a few days. They are being very handsomely fitted up.

During the remainder of the present Morris Park meeting soldiers and sailors will be admitted free to the grand stand and paddock. Officers will be tendered the hospitalities of the club house.

John Coleman and John Quinn, two prominent bookmakers, have returned from a successful season in the East and are ready to put up their odds in the ring when the C. J. C. meeting opens.

J. H. McAvoy, trainer for Colonel Applegate, has entered into an arrangement with George Taylor, whereby the veteran jockey will from now until the close of the season ride the horses handled by Mr. McAvoy.

Although the California Jockey Club grounds looked very pretty on the opening last year, they are now so beautified by new lawns, trees, flowers and shrubbery that they present the appearance of a lovely park.

The fields have been small during the whole of the Los Angeles meeting, and it has been hard work to secure enough entries to make up the races. The racing has been good however, although the betting has been very light.

A new rule has been passed by the stewards at Morris Park requiring all jockeys to carry their whips to the scales with them, on account of the danger from them to onlookers, where they are thrown from the saddle to their valets.

At the opening of Latonia's Fall race meeting, seven books drew in for the first week, and two mutual boxes were in operation. The mutuals did their share of the work and investors who won were well pleased with the odds obtained.

Maher stated to a Chicago reporter the other day that W. B. Jennings had made him an offer to go to California the coming season of winter racing, but that he had not yet received permission to go to the coast from his employer, A. J. Joyner.

Pat Nolan, a well-known old-time steeplechase jockey, died at Sheepshead Bay last week. He had not ridden any in the last ten or twelve years, and when he retired he purchased a little place at Sheepshead Bay and conducted a livery stable.

The racing mare, Imp, will, on October 19th, be sent against the world's mile record of 1:38¾, made on a circular track, by Libertine, at Harlem, four years ago. The Harlem Jockey Club has offered a purse and a plate if Imp succeeds in lowering the record. Four speedy horses will set a pace for Imp, who will be ridden by Jockey Reiff. Imp is a black mare, four years old, by imp. Wagner, from Fondling, daughter of Fonso, second dam Kitty Heron, by Collicothe, third dam Mollie Foster, by Asteroid.

D. W. Higgins, "Ratsplan," is in Chicago and has his book, "California Racing and Its Needs" about completed. "Dave" wields as argumentative and caustic a pen as any turf writer in America and the book will certainly be interesting reading.

The outlook for a big influx of horses from the East is good. The yellow fever scourge at New Orleans is preventing many horsemen who intended racing there from taking the southern trip, and a majority of them will very likely come to the coast.

Yellow fever reports may prove detrimental to the coming winter race meeting at New Orleans, which commences November 24th. A number of owners will ship their stables to the Pacific Coast instead of going to the Crescent City as usual.—Chicago Horsemen.

Judge Smith of the Superior Court of Los Angeles has sustained the decision of Justice Owens in the poolroom case, wherein it was held that the ordinance compelling the poolrooms in the city to close up except when there are races in progress in the city is valid.

Among the Directors of the Coney Island Jockey Club, are W. K. Vanderbilt, Lawrence Kip, P. Lorillard, James Gordon Bennett, J. Henry Alexander, Geo. Pesbody Wetmore, Robert Goelet, A. Newbold Morris and many more of the wealthiest New Yorkers.

Briar Sweet has started fourteen times this year and been first to the wire every time but once, and that was at Ingleside on March 5th, when she was a short length behind Paul Griggs in a five furlong race in 1:00¾, with Tea Rose, Montgomery and Libertine behind her.

Flageolet, the sire of imp Rayon d'Or, died recently in Germany at the Graditz Stud. He was a chestnut foaled 1890, by Plutus, dam La Favorite, by Monarque, out of Constance, by Gladiator, etc. He was a number of years in France, where he sired some good horses.

Killip & Co will sell the yearling fillies from W. O'B. Macdonough's Menlo Stock Farm in this city November 21st. There are five by Ormonde that are said to be very high-class looking fillies. This firm will also sell the Palo Alto and the Spreckels yearlings during November.

The sale of the D. C. Schafer yearlings at Chicago, realized sorry prices, the star of the lot, a brown gelding, a full brother to Bolivar Buckner, by Blazes, selling for $150. The average price was $62. The youngsters were hatter than they looked as the car ride from Galletin, Tenn., had been severe on them.

Al Shaw, the Salinas jockey who was recently badly hurt while riding at Chicago on the Harlem track, arrived home last week for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Shaw. He has recovered from his accident and will probably return East in a few days to ride at the tracks at Cincinnati.

A number of race horses in training, the property of J. R. Keene, J. A. Bennett and others, were sold at auction, Wednesday, at Morris Park. Hendsel was sold to J. J. McCafferty for $4,000; Dr. Parker to J. D. Smith for $2,000; Sanford to W. H. Clarke for $1,250; Loiterer to J. J. McCafferty for $1,150.

The report that Morris Park would be cut up into building lots next spring published in some of the dailies, is characterized by Mr. A. H. Morris as "simply twaddle." "The Westchester Racing Association has the property another year, at any rate, and after that we have no definite plans."—Spirit of the Times.

The season for making entries to stakes is now at hand. Owners should exercise a little judgment in selecting names for the colts and fillies. It is to be hoped that the names claimed in 1898 will at least have a meaning, be euphonious and not of the outlandish sort. A good horse is worthy of a good name.

The fine two year olds belonging to Mrs. E. O. Pepper that Gene Leigh has been campaigning on the New York tracks are to be sold at public auction, October 20th. It is safe to predict that Kentucky Colonel and Black Venus will bring stiff prices, for they are both about as good as any of their age shown this year.

The Czarewitch Stake at Newmarket was won by Sir J. Miller's four-year-old bay colt, Chaleureux. Asterie, the property of Sir Weldie Griffiths, ridden by Tod Sloan, finished second, and Mrs. Langtry's Mermen was third. This race is a handicap of twenty-five sovereigns each, with 500 sovereigns added, for three-year-olds and upward. There were fifteen starters at two miles, two furlongs and fifty yards. The betting was 75 to 20 against Chaleureux, 8 to 1 against Asterie and 7 to 1 against Mermen.

The California bred mare Lena, by Apache—Rill, running in the name of F. F. Mitchell, caused a sensation at Hawthorne one day last week by winning the fourth race, defeating Dare II, Charlie Christy, Top Mast and David Tenny, at a mile and a furlong. Odds of 50 to 1 were laid against her, but she was little played, small bets forcing the price down to 30 to 1 at post time. David Tenny was a heavily played favorite. Charlie Christie was also backed, while Dare II was a good thing and John Huffman and his friends played him liberally at 5 to 1.

Jockey Linder said the other day: "Unless I can get in with a good stable I'm going to be a free lance. I have had trouble enough, and I want to stay clear of bad horses. Now that I am up I mean to guard against getting on 'dead ones.' At Sacramento I caught a couple, and you should have seen me whip them out. I never did let up heating them. You can bet I was never asked to ride those horses again. The Sacramento running meeting was a complete failure. There were days towards the close when you couldn't see a person in the grandstand, aside from the band and poolboys. I have seen bigger attendance up in the bushes."

The management did a wise thing in excluding from their grounds the tin-horn gambling schemes during the present racing season at Los Angeles, for there is nothing that so annoys the genuine sportsman or lover of racing as the presence near the track of a lot of fakirs with their wheels and other devices calculated to rob the unwary of their hard-earned money.—Los Angeles Porcupine.

The English Derby of 1900 has obtained the greatest number of entries on record, namely, 318. There were 35 subscribers for the inaugural race at Epsom, 1780, and the largest number prior to the year in question was the Derby of 1897, which Galtee More won, when 291 animals were nominated. There were 284 nominations for the Derby of 1898, and there are 271 for the Derby of 1899.

The leading winners at the recent Gravesend meeting were: The Oneck Stable, $11,180; James McLaughlin, $4750; J. W. Schorr & Son, $3335; Sam C. Hildreth, $4055; George E. Smith, $2680; E. O. Pepper, $3550; J. D. Smith, $1825; P. S. P. Rannolph, $2075; Turney Bros., $1495; Philip J. Dwyer, $1015; J. W. Colt, $2600; A. H. & D. H. Morris, $1180; W. B. Jennings, $6255; W. H. Clark, $4725; J. J. McCafferty, $2350; C. Fleischmann's Sons, $4350; George J. Long, $2540; E. S. Gardner & Son, $1875; Coughacres Stable, $1140; August Belmont, $1680; F. Gebhard, $1680; Bromley & Co., $1170; J. E. Madden, $3905; Mr. Chamblet, $1290.

Three very valuable stakes to be run in 1900 close today. They are the Kentucky Derby, $5000, one mile and a quarter; the Clark Stakes, $4000, one mile and an eighth, and the Kentucky Oaks, $3000, one mile and a sixteenth. These are among the most valuable stakes in America for three-year-olds, and California breeders and owners should patronize them liberally. They are to be run at the spring meeting of the New Louisville Jockey Club, which has one of the very best tracks in America for winter and early spring training. Look over the conditions of these stakes and mail your entries to-day to Chas. F. Price, Secretary, Louisville, Kentucky.

"Since the retirement of Hamburg, three-year-old form is at 'sixes and sevens,'" and almost any trainer is justified in asserting that he holds the trump card. The diversity of opinion as to the merit of horses of this age was demonstrated when ten went to the post for the Jerome Handicap. Practically all were backed, and the race went to Handball at 15 to 1. The race was run in remarkably fast time, and as most of the runners were right in it to the finish, there is every promise of many more spirited struggles between the lot before one is named as Hamburg's legitimate successor. Among the fillies it is a different story, as the crown is already conceded to Briar Sweet, and if this grand young mare maintains her form she is almost certain to finish at the head of her class.

The Westchester Racing Association the other day extended an invitation to all soldiers to visit their track during the meeting free of charge. Tre boys in blue were not long in taking advantage of the offer and the New York Times says the next day enough uniformed men mingled with the crowd to form a fair sized scouting party. A uniform was all the badge necessary for admission, and there were men there who had seen service in Cuba, and to whom a day's outing, with the accompanying excitement of racing, was of more benefit than all the drugs in the army stores. A small group from the Seventy first, sallow and hollow-eyed, even after the care they have received from anxious friends since their return to the city, and other groups, representing almost all of the New York regiments, were scattered around.

Mr. James R. Keene has decided to ship his stable of horses racing in England now back home about the end of this month. This is welcome news to the American turf, as it proves that notwithstanding the inducements and honor gained by winning races on the other side the future prospects are so good here for racing that a man can get all he wants without going abroad. John Huggins will also be seen in this country next year, with a small and select stable of his own, as his contract with P. Lorillard expires January 1st, and he is coming back home immediately after. It has also been rumored that Mr. Lorillard will race no more in England after the present season, but his recent success may tempt him to change his mind. Americans owners are getting better satisfaction with home racing, and with the addition of stables like W. C. Whitney's, W. H. Clark's James R. Keene's and P. Lorillard's prospects could not be brighter. Though Mr. Keene has always had a few horses in training, and his colors are seen just often enough to be remembered, he has not had a stable such as he formerly had, on account of sending his best horses to England. While Americans glory in the success of American horses on the other side, they would far prefer to see them racing at home.

Mr. Hendrie, owner of the great colt Martimas, winner of the Futurity, was tendered a reception by the Hamilton Jockey Club of Ontario, a few weeks ago. In his reply to the toast drank to his health Mr. Hendrie said every man had a hobby. It might be flowers, it might be cows, and it might be horses. His hobby was the horse. He did not go in for sailing or shooting; occasionally he went to a foot ball match, but during his leisure hours he devoted himself to horses. To bring a horse to the highest type was to race him. He had been doing that for a little over thirty years, and had ridden in races over forty years ago. Racing began in Hamilton many years ago, and his friend, Mr. Roach, was one of the few surviving gentlemen who had been associated with him. Referring to Martimas, he said that he bought the colt a year, less one day prior to the Futurity. He knew he had a good colt, and never lost faith in him. He witnessed the race from the top of the big grand stand at Sheepshead Bay. When the horses reached the head of the track Martimas was in front, and he told his friends that the colt would win and win he did. The silence was painful except for those of us who were jubilant. The people could not believe that a colt from Canada, owned by a Canadian and trained by a Canadian had won. As to the Flatbush Stakes he had not much to say, except that Martimas won easily, but for some reason he was disqualified. He did not propose that the colt should ever be hippodromed for the benefit of others. He knew that he had the best colt in America, and was determined never to start him under disadventageous circumstances.

AN UNFORTUNATE AFFAIR occurred at the Los Angeles meeting on Friday of last week, which resulted in Driver W. G. Durfee, son of C. A. Durfee, owner of McKinney, being ruled off. It was unfortunate, particularly for the reason that this is the young man's first year on the turf as a driver and trainer, a profession to which he seemed particularly adapted, so much so that those who have watched his manner of handling trotters and pacers were unanimous in the opinion that he had the making of one of the best trainers and drivers ever seen on this Coast. From all the evidence at hand in regard to the matter, it is evident that Mr. Durfee acted in a manner toward the judges which the rules designed to preserve decorum especially prohibit. He may have had great provocation, and probably did, but he should have controlled his temper and made a respectful appeal from a ruling which he considered outrageous. It is galling to any man to be accused of dishonesty when he has not been guilty of dishonest acts, but there is a way to reach these accusations and repel them without descending from the position of a gentleman, which position every driver should aim to occupy. Mr. Durfee began his career at the Oakland meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association this year, and attention was at once attracted to him by the excellent condition in which he kept his horses, the cool and quiet manner and good judgment with which he drove his races, and his gentlemanly demeanor on and off the track. It was said of him more than once, and it was a great compliment, "He will be a better driver than his father." It is very unfortunate that his career was checked in this way. The cause of the trouble was the losing of a heat with the mare Juliet D. after he had won two heats with her. The judges accused him of laying up the heat, fined him $50 and substituted another driver. The showing made by the mare in the subsequent heats goes to show that the judges were mistaken, and had Mr. Durfee kept his temper, he would have been completely vindicated. Unfortunately for him, however, he allowed his choler to rise and used language to the judges which they could not allow to pass unnoticed. When the meeting is over, and all parties are in the condition to take a calm and unbiased view of the whole proceeding, it is to be hoped that steps will be taken whereby the punishment inflicted upon Mr. Durfee will not be made permanent. He has received a lesson that will not be soon forgotten, and with it heeded an honorable turf career would lie before him were he restored to the privileges of the Trotting Association tracks.

You don't hear so much about the bottom being knocked out of the market for trotting stock as you once did. When some chronic dyspeptic gives you the old song, ask him this question, "If you owned a well-bred young stallion that had or could take a mark of 2:10 or better, what would you expect to get for him?"

THE DISTRICT FAIRS must be revived next year in California, and this can only be done by restoring the State appropriations. The loss to the farmers and stock breeders of this State must not be made permanent. It has been too severe as it is. Every person interested in the District Fairs should use his efforts to elect a State administration which will favor their restoration. Mr. Henry T. Gage, the Republican candidate for Governor, is an ardent believer in and supporter of these fairs, and the platform on which he is making his campaign is out-spoken for appropriations to maintain them. Judge Maguire, his opponent, has finally expressed his views on the matter, but as will be seen by reference to his letter on another page, his endorsement is not an enthusiastic one. Judge Maguire also endorses Governor Budd's administration and we all know that Governor Budd killed the fairs during his term of office. There is but one course for the voter to pursue who believes the district fairs to be a vital issue to farmers and breeders of livestock and that is to cast his ballot for the man who is pledged to vote for the appropriations which will restore them. The annual fairs did much to build up the the industries of California, and their discontinuance inflicted a corresponding damage. Mr. Gage says he favors the restoration of appropriations, while Mr. Maguire only favors "reasonable appropriations," which, as he endorses Governor Budd's actions, may mean cutting them off entirely as was done by the latter. It seems to us that the thing for the horsemen and breeders to do is to vote for Mr. Gage.

AN OPPORTUNITY to secure some very choicely bred and handsome youngsters will be offered by the sale of forty head in this city next Thursday, consigned by Thos. Brown Esq., to the well known firm of Killip & Co. The catalogues which are now ready for distribution show that many elegantly bred fillies and mares are in the sale, and no mistake will be made by buyers in securing them. There are five fashionably bred young mares by Dexter Prince, and several geldings by the same sire. Others are by Cupid, son of Sidney and Venus, several by Dexterwood, son of Dexter Prince and a mare by Nutwood, and others by Bay Rose 2:20½, son of Sultan and Madam Balwin, by The Moor. These are all from mares bred in the very choicest of trotting lines, by such sires as Mohawk Chief, Gen. Benton, Pasha, Arthurton, Sultan, Mambrino Wilkes, Monroe Chief, and other well known producing stallions. A large number of these horses are well broken and stylish roadsters, some of them showing great speed, though none have been trained for track work. They are sound and all right in every way. The sale will take place at the salesvard, corner Van Ness avenue and Market streets and will begin at 11 A. M. Thursday next.

A GREAT SELL was perpetrated on the turf papers recently by the report that a farmer and horse breeder in Orange county, New York, had driven a couple of four month's old fillies a quarter of a mile at the trot, hitched to a wagon, in 39 seconds. As far as we have seen every turf paper in America swallowed the dose, and marveled at the performance. We acknowledge having taken the bait, and though it was a hard one to keep down, we could not dispute the positive evidence that was offered. But now the New York Trotter and Pacer shows up the fake, and we understand it all. The fillies were driven a quarter in the time claimed, but they did not trot—they were driven at a gallop. The explanation is timely and brings back the breath that was taken away by the alleged performance. The next report of record breaking by horses of any age, color, or previous condition, must be accompanied by an affidavit signed by all the people who saw it, a photograph of the track, and also one of the person who tells the story—these not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith.

VOLUME 14 of Wallace's American Trotting Register has been received at this office. It contains more pedigress than any volume heretofore published, although owing to the condensed type used the volume is no larger than its predecessor. A cursory glance through its pages leads to the opinion that the data contained in them is accurate and reliable as ever. The numbers of the stallions registered in Volume 14 are from 26,900 to 30,399, which shows that nearly four thousand standard bred stallions have been registered since Volume 13 was issued. Breeders can hardly afford to be without the American Trotting Register. The new volume can be obtained by addressing J. H. Steiner, 355 Deerborn street, Chicago.

OCCIDENTAL THOROUGHBRED SALES.—Four auction sales of thoroughbreds are announced in this issue to take place at Wm. G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange, and as the catalogues will be issued at once, all who are seeking to get youngsters to prepare for the races will do well to send their address to him. The consignment of J. B. Chase's horses includes de cendants of the great four-miler, Katie Pease, and by such sires a Morello, imp. Clieveden, imp. Trentola, Del Norte, etc. The fame of the horses bred at this farm is well established. Following it will be the grandest lot of colts ever offered by SantaAnita Stock Farm, sons and daughters of Emperor of Norfolk, Amigo, imp. Conveth and imp. Chesterfield, the latter named Australian sire having several that will bring high figures. Chas. Kerr's sale of racehorses will also contain many jewels and should prove an attractive one to buyers. Following this is the sale of Theo. Winters' yearlings and two-year-olds. The reputation gained by horses bred at Rancho del Sierras is well founded, judging by the number of winners sold by Mr. Winters last season. Several other sales are being arranged for at this magnificent place and as the location of the building is unsurpassed, the box stalls new, clean and comfortable, the auctioneer one of the best in the United States, if there are any prices to be obtained for horses this year, they will be heard of at this place.

ANOTHER SALE of standard bred trotters is announced by Killip & Co. to be held in this city on the 27th inst. The consignment is not a large one, but is a very choice one, being from the Vioget farm in Santa Clara county, and consisting of a picked lot of youngsters sired by Wild Boy, son of Gen. Benton and Wildflower 2:21, by Electioneer. Wildboy is a producer of speed having sired Douchka, that took a record of 2:24 as a two-year-old, and others. This consignment is one of the best lot of youngsters ever sent to a salesring in this State. At the same time will be sold a few young horses from the farm of K. O'Grady, of San Mateo. Among them is a bay gelding by Monaco, son of Electioneer, and several by Hart Boswell, son of Onward and Nancy Lee, dam of Nancy Hanks. These are a grand looking lot of young horses. Further announcement of this sale will be made next week.

ONE of the most important and certainly the richest event of the Newmarket First Octoher Meeting is the Jockey Club Stakes, which has heen won in the past hy such well known horses as Isinglass, Loveno, Persimmon and Love Wisely. The race was run at Newmarket, England, Thursday, September 29th, and a field of nine faced the starter. The race was won hy the chestnut colt Cyllene, hy Bona Vista—Arcadio, owned hy Charles D Rose, whom Americans will recall in connection with a challenge for the Americas's Cup. That good sportsmau, Lord Rosehery, ran second and third with Valasquez and Chelandry.

State Fish Commission Report.

In the biennial report of the State Fish Commission, recantly forwarded to Govarnor Budd, special mention is made of the United States Fish Commission having extended its cooparation in the propagation of salmon, with the result that tha ontput of the several hatcheries this year was tha greatest on record.

In order to secure protection to striped hass the commismission suggests that tha month of June, the spawning period, ha declared a closed season for capture or sale.

In referring to tha lack of water in the streams during the past season, the Fish Commissioners say that, although the work of restocking will be taken op again next season, it will ha several years before the supply is fully restored.

Tha commission also recommends the appointment of game wardens by Supervisors, referring to the fact that in tha counties where wardens bava been appointed tha game and fish interests have beeo well preserved.

Striped Bass.

The striped hass anglers who have been so assiduously devoting their time and skill during the week to the waters of Oakland estuary have not been very successful, but few fish having been taken. The hass ara there in plenteous numbers; thay can he sean avery evening jumping and swimming in the shallow water, but they are a wary and most arratic fish. Heretofore the expresssed belief of tha angling wisacres has been that this fish would not frequent any but clean watars, or at worst tha muddy waters on tha eastern hay shora flats—this idea will quickly ha dispelled hy a trial of the fishing spots in the estuary, a cursory glance of which by the keenest fishermen or the most unsophisticated tyro will provoka the positive assertion that a more unlikely placa for catching those gentlemen pirates of the hay, tha striped bass, cannot well he imagined. Even now, although a fairly successful showing has been made, such anglars as Jack Cracknell, F. W. McFarland, Al Wilson, Mannel Cross and others ara not yet thoroughly convinced that their work has gona beyond the experimental and prospecting stage. Tha tackla found to ha tha most efficient has been, a twelve or fifteen strand cotty hunk line, at lesst a hundred yards of it on as good a reel as one can get; the hooks used are five ought Pennel or similar maka. One's rod should he strong and reliable, split hamboo, greenhearst or any first-blass rod that will hold a steelhead or yellow tail. The arrangement of the casting tackle is as follows: The hook is fastened on a leader (a piece of tha line itself is good enough, especially if dark colored) Tha leader should ha about eighteen or twenty inches long and fastened to a number five barrel swivel; before attaching the line to the swivel, the sinker (a perforated one known as the oval ie the proper style), should ha placed on tha line and then the end of tha line tied to the swivel. Tha reason for using this style of sinker is to giva tha fish an unimpeded run when he picks up tha heit from the bottom, for if he felt the drag of tha sinker's weight he would drop the bait immediately. The weight of the sinker, from half an ounce up to the beavier sizes, is to be determined by the weight and work of rod and line upon trial casts. When all is ready and the fishing spot is selected, the cast is made so as to get in from two to four feet of water, and then alertness, absolute silence aod fisb are the essentials for success in catching a striped bass in the estuary. The angler will stay right with bis rod, but with this precaution, he must bold the line in one hand ready to make a strike, and a bard one too, as soon as the fisb runs away with tha bait. This method of striking has been found effectual aod mora successful than the usual style with the rod. The bait used has been clam necks and bellies in generous sized lumps on the hook. Examination of fisb caught in the nest bas disclosed all kinds of food in their etomachs, small crabs, small smelt and shiners, carp, shrimps, etc., but in the locality across tha hay, clams seem to be the proper bait.

The reason for silenca and alertness in fishing for striped hass can ha well understood when the statements of the Italian fishermen are taken into consideration. They giva this fish credit for being the shyest and most wary fish in the bay; so great is their precaution when prepsring to seina tbam that avery care and effort is taken to get out the nets in as quiet, stealthy and catlike a manner as possible, the fisbarman well knowing that the least noise, such as a thump or knock on the bottom or gunwala of the boat, or the striking of the net or leads on the side of the boat is sufficient to send every fish within an eighth of a mila ofi on important business in an opposita direction.

During tha past week J. Cracknell canght a etriped hass waigbing over five ponnds and also several smaller ones; ha fisbed in the estuary from a boat. Lewis Rondeau ceoght a five-pounder and Fred Marcus landed soma small fish.

Trolling for striped bass in the Alameda waters has been best on moonlight nights. A number three Wilson spoon has been found to be the proper spoon.

Advices from Eal river are to tha effect that fishing has improved very much. The larga fish ara now coming in. Many anglers who have been awaiting this run of steelhead will soon be seen on the river, rod in hand, eager and ready for a fight with the game Eel river giants.

Salmon are plentiful in Humboldt hay, tha recent rains causing the fish to coma in, altbough thay are not now as numerous as last year. The close season expires to-day, no donht but thera will he a plenty of sport for tha anglar who enjoys tha sport of trolling or fishing for them with rod and line.

Surf fishing near Point Bonita is affording great sport to salt water anglers. C. Kewell and a friend caught fifty elegant sea trout there on Sundey.

"Doc" Watts had indifferent luck on the Paper Mill and near Point Reyes last Sunday. The fish taken at the Point now are generally rather small.

Russian river has been very low all season, no fishing is anticipated until heavy rains will enable tha steelhead to come in from the sea.

Tom cod give the Santa Cruz citizens some little recreation these times. Fishing from tha wharf for tha little fellows is the game.

Salmon are plentiful in Monterey hay. They are after the immense schools of sardines. Anglers are having good sport with them.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild dock as fixed hy the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild dnck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last vear hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Piumas, San Beroardino, San Diego, San Joeqoin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyoo, Tehama, Yolo and Yoha.

Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feh. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aog. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feh. 1.
Keru—Shppping game oot of the county prohibited.
Lake—Deer, Aog. 1 to Oct. 1.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Tha Black Jacks will ha out in force to-morrow.

Quail are reported to he plentiful near Petaluma.

W. E. Murdock bagged an even dozen ducks on the Olympic grounds on Sunday.

E. A. Fischer and C. F. Sinkwitz bagged fifty quail near Haywards last Sunday.

Ignecio, a favorite spot for W. Summerfield, panned out ten ducks for him on Snoday.

J. B. Hauer and L. Landsberger were at the Empire grounds on Sunday. The bags was fair.

San Bruno district was hunted ovar for quail on Sunday last by S. Cook; he brought in twelve birds.

Wild pigeons in countless thousands have been frequenting the Big Sulphur Canyon for the past ten days.

A live bird shoot for a dinner and things is on tha topic under the auspices of the Petaluma Gun Club.

An indication of tha scarcity of ducks is the high prices asked at the market stands. Teal, six dollars a doz n is the biggest price demanded in many seasons

Harry Wiese enjoyed a day's hunting at Point Reyes on Snnday. A moderate bag of sprig and teal was his reward.

Hon. Geo. Walker and his shooting companion Monk, gathered in twanty fine quail neer Point Reyes last Sunday.

Tha old reliable, Ben Baum, was afield Snoday near Fairville. His bag of qnail was just one short of a baker's dozen.

G. Hinkel and C. Griffith enjoyed a quail hnnt near Balmoot last Snnday. Two dozen quail and a brace of cottontails was tha bag.

H. C. Golcher enjoyed a pleasant and successful quail hunt for two days at the Point on the first of the week. The bag was seventy-five birds.

Vic Harrier, of Vallejo, and a prominent member of tha Drawbridge Club, is credited with the best bag on tha club grounds at Suisun last Sunday.

Careless hunters are responsibla for the death of a valuable mare owned by Sylvan Bordes of Livermore. Tha mare was shot on tha Bosco Grant last week.

Tom Williams, Dan Burns, Bob Milroy and Mosa Gnost, a quartette of well known turfmen, are on the list for membership in the Olympic Gun Club.

Among the duck hunters at Alvarado on Snnday were, H. Ostrander, who had three dozen birds at his ark, and Klavasabl and Shaw got forty-seven ducks at their ark.

Edg. Forster shot on Sunday in tha vicinity of Sears. His bag counted seventeen quail, thirteen doves and five "jacks." Ducks were scarce at Reclamation, hance bis sport on upland.

The combined efforts of Sogarhouse and Dickie Boy last Sunday wrenched one quail and a contumacious blue-jay from their happy homes in the greenwood at Point Reyes or thereabouts.

C. N. Carrington of Santa Rosa, whilst deer hunting last week, succeeded in killing a very big lynx, which measured over three feet seven inches from the tip of the nosa to the tip of tha tail.

A number of local sportsmen will take advantage of the chesp fares on the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway to-day, the occasion being tha regatta on Bohemian Lake, near Guerneville.

The weather conditions were adversa to sports afield on the Country Clnb grounds last Sunday; but few members of the Tamalpais Club were out. The drizzle spoiled tha chances for quail.

Tha Petalnma Gun Clnb has bad an addition to its roll of membership recently; J. F. Fairbanks, F. West, T. McLay, B F. Zirtman and A. B. Hill, composing the Lakeville Gun Club, are the new members.

John K. Orr, the veteran and well known sportsman, had his nsual good luck with English snipa on the Country Clnb grounds last week. He supplemented his string of snipa hy the addition of a nnmber of fresh water rails.

Of the few hunters who were lucky enough to hag ducks at Mowrys last Sunday Chas. Cata got nine sprig and teal, C A. Muller shot fifteen, and these few birds were abont all that the marsh in that district produced on Sunday.

Large hevies of qnail are reported along tha San Josquin river, neer Paradise cut, close to New Hope and Bellota and also along the levees close hy quail shooting has been excellent. Near Stockton on Rongb and Ready and Union islands, the hunters have made good hags of quail.

The duck season is fairly opened in Humboldt county, according to recent advices from Eureka, and the market is moderately supplied with all kinds of edible water fowl. Tha birds are not as plentifol as they will he later on, however. Qnail is a scarce article in the market, although reported to be plentiful in their native haunts

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company, evar aliva to tha reqnirements of the general public, and sportsmen in particular, will, commencing to-night at midnight, run a train for the accomodation of hunters who fancy tha marshes on the eastern bav ehore for the pastima of duck shooting. This train for Alviso, Alvarado and way stations will start at tha same hour as last year.

In San Meteo cnnoty the open season for rail commenced to-day, continning for one montb, up to November 15th. The nsa of a boat at high tide on the San Mateo marshes is prohibited. The old ordinance of Alameda county, embracing the above dates, has been void since the enactment of the present general State game laws. To make it valid and of force tha Board of Supervisors will bava to rapass tha ordinance.

The use of the smaller guaged shot guns seems to be increasing; heretofore most of the shooting bas been done afield, but now the marsh and duck shooting puts in a mild hid for the attention of shooters. Will Hunt, shooting from a blind on the Empire grounds at Black Point recantly, hagged seven teal with a twanty-gnage gun. Miss Rose Meyer, of this city, shooting at Schellville last week, used a twenty-gnage gun so effectively that seven English snipe and five teal ware her count for tha day's hunting.

Tha duck-hunting seasoo, which is looked forward to with much enthusiasm by sportsmen who love to roam over marsh lands in quest of game, opened last Saturday. The opening day's sport was not up to expectatioo, as game was scarce and few ducks were brought to town. Compared with previous seesons the number of sportsmen who visited tha haunts of the feathered tribe was small. Those who did go forth to get in the first shots left on Friday evening in ordar to locata themselues in favorahla positions to await early dawn to commence the first slaughter of "quackere" An absence of tha incessant report of guns usually heard on opening days was an indication to those who remained at homa that the sport afforded was of a limited nature, and with tha arrival of hunters the reports were found true.

The light rains that bave prevailed since tha opening day will tend to make huntiog better. Tha prospects for a good season are, however, excellent, and when tha flight of northern ducks commences to coma in, it is certain gama will ha plentiful.

The visitors to Suisun on the opening day made successful hags, the results, so far as we are able to learn, being as follows: Robert Boyer, of Oakland, 15 ducks; M. Hoytema, of San Francisco, two days' shooting, 73 ducks; Charles Parcells, of Oakland, 22; Julian Waller, 46; Cal. McMahon sculled by Golig, 14 mallards and 1 dozen teal; E. W. Ehmann, sculled by F. F. Krause, 2 dozen teal. It is surmised that Hoytema bad assistance, but he is without donht the king of hunters. Local hunters also did well, but owing to the large number who went out we are unable to give tha list.—Solano Republican.

Frank Vernon's bag at Point Reyes counted three dozen quail as the result of a Sunday shoot. His Llewellyn setter, which was slightly injured by an unlucky shot recently, is all right again and doing field work in fine form.

Claude Kagee, a market hunter of Rio Vista one afternoon last week shot forty grey geese. He shot from pits in a grain field; this rather remarkable shooting can be attributed to his skill in calling, as the flocks were very few, most of the geese being this season's birds and not on to the hunter's work.

Captain Thos. B. Merry, well known to the readers of the Breeder and Sportsman as a leading writer on equine topics, has been enjoying some great quail hunting in the vicinity of Visalia recently. Birds were plentiful, ground could not be better and hospitality unsurpassed. Good enough shooting conditions for anybody.

Ducks are reported in very fine condition on the hunting grounds near Stockton as a result of feeding on the grain in the stubble fields; the cattle on the islands and marshy grounds have eaten all the feed there, thus causing the birds to fatten on grain.

The privilege of shooting on the Hugh McDade preserves, adjacent to the Sargent track, has been purchased by Eugene Wilhoit, a Stockton sportsman. No hunters are allowed on the property, which is well protected. Those who are fortunate in securing permits from the lessee will enjoy some great sport.

San Joaquin county sportsmen are unanimous in their desire for a game warden A movement is on foot to have the supervisors make the proper appointment in the near future Many complaints have been made as to the prevalence of illegal shooting prior to the open season. This is a move in the right direction.

Los Gatos sportsmen have been enjoying grand sport hunting quail in the hills adjacent. The birds are very plentiful and some good bags have been made. The recent rains have been a great aid to quail shooters, the cold nights bring the birds down into the lower canyons, where they are comparatively easy to hunt.

Jos. Fine and Supervisor Bush, of Napa, while on a hunting trip in Mendocino county recently, with the aid of dogs, treed an old brown she bear and two well-grown cubs; a couple of shots from their repeaters knocked her out of the tree, the cubs succumbing to the inevitable in their turn. The dam weighed over 300 pounds.

The Country Club members had fine sport with the quail on the first day of the season. Among those who were out we note J. M. Kilgariff, Henry Oxnard, W. S. Davis, J. K. Orr, Dr. H. B. de Marville, Dr. F. W. Vowinckle and J. Leroy Michel. Most of these gentlemen are credited with bagging the limit number of birds, twenty-five for a day's shooting.

That the straight pull Lee rifle is a weapon of wonderful power and penetration is demonstrated by inspection of a specimen of its work now in the possession of Mr. Muller, the coast representative of the Winchester Arms Company. A steel-jacketed bullet was shot into a fir log seven inches in diameter from a distance of thirty yards. Upon splitting open the piece of timber the course of the bullet was traced cutting a slightly spiral course, with the grain, for a distance of sixty-seven inches, or nearly six feet. The bullet was not badly battered or flattened, although the effect of the rifling in the barrel was evident.

Sonoma sportsmen have been playing havoc with duck and quail since the season opened. On Saturday afternoon and evening Jack Ford, foreman of Fair's race track, and Foreman Sinclair of Fair's Lakeville ranch, killed 110 sprig in the Sonoma marshes. The next morning thirty-seven more, which they had been unable to retrieve owing to the increasing darkness, were picked up by a couple of early morning hunters John Wagnon secured thirty-seven on Saturday morning, and Captain Boyes eight near China Slough. Quail are quite plentiful, but are in hiding in the dense brush in the mountains north and west of town, but notwithstanding some fine bags have been secured by the local sportsmen.

One of the strangest, as well as the wisest, provisions of nature is that which protects a doe deer, as well as some other female animals, from enemies of the carnivorous species during the period when the offspring is very young. Between the toes of all the feet will be found a hole which extends into the foot about an inch, terminating in a sack in which is secreted a musk or scent of a very strong odor. Ordinarily, when the deer is walking the air is forced in and out of this opening and leaves enough scent in each track to enable a dog or wolf to follow it several hours after it has been made; but the foot of the doe is changed for several months after the fawn is born. The glands, if glands they are, dry up, and there is not a bit of odor in the track, and no dog, not even the best deer hound, is able to follow the trail. Many good hounds have lost their reputations by failing to follow the trail of a female bear with cubs, and perhaps a deer also. And now that the subject is at hand one might well wonder if other things are protected in like manner.

Fred Johnson, Wm. Swain, "Sherman" and C. L. Dietz were the Black Jack members at the arks on Sunday last. The bag was moderate, counting but two dozen birds. "Bill Nye" has the honor of soaking the first "can" this season. The president, Mr. Lemmer, has engaged the services of that inimitable tonsorial tartist, Fred Brushwush, who hereafter will provide these sporting sybarites, the Black Jacks, with a full supply of shampooed denizens of the tules; a preliminary experiment in shooting a dozen flamheaus who had been oicely shampooed was voted a signal success by the trial committee The birds present a fluffy appearance, thus making an easy target, and at the same time the iridescent plumage colors offer a marked and pleasant contrast to the dripping gore. The pipe line to the Antioch brewery has been abandoned and instead, a trolley will be rigged connecting with Bill Rentree's orchard; this will enable the members to have a constant supply of peaches on tap Secretary Markland has placed a porcelain-lined bathtub in his stateroom on the large ark This tub is a work of art and highly decorated, the chef d'oeuvre being a large eye painted on the bottom.

Ducks.

During the past week duck hunting has not been as prolific in results as the sportsmen could desire; on the eastern shores of the bay, from the Bridges to San Leandro, birds have been scarce and generally flying high. The Petaluma marshes, and along the western shores of San Pablo bay, have not shown evidences of quackers in great numbers. On the Suisun marshes and up the river some fairly good bags have been made.

The dry weather for over a week has prevented the birds from finding proper feeding ground; it looks now as if the main body of our native birds, who were so numerous recently, have gone South to the Colorado river and Gulf. Early rains will keep the birds that are left here until the northern flight comes in; until then the chances for good duck shooting and plethoric bags are somewhat slim to most of the local shooters.

Olympic Gun Club Jinks.

Early during the week cards announcing the "dedication jinks in the new club house" were received by the club members The gathering last night was a notable one; the program was replete with mirth, music and sentiment contributed by a galaxy of talent who always respond in a generous manner with their best efforts when called upon to contribute to the club entertainment. Now that the new quarters have been properly and fittingly accepted as part of the sporting appanage and history of the Pacific Coast, it is safe to assume that the future prosperity and greatness of the Club is now strongly assured.

Gilbert Defeats Elliott.

In the match for the Du Pont Trophy, at Watson's Park, Burnside, Ill., September 24, Mr. Fred Gilbert, of Iowa, defeated J. A. R. Elliott, of Kansas City, by a score of 97, to 94. The birds were a good lot, only two being floshed. There was a light wind from the northeast. About two hundred visitors were present. Following are the scores in detail:

Field Notes.

Hunters who venture out into the woods while the weather is at all warm and dry should remember that their dogs need water rather more often than their masters do. Setters in particular seem to suffer for lack of water far more than pointers. Those who have owned and hunted dogs will have noticed how deerly a setter, heated with an hour or so of hard hunting on a steep hillside or in thick cover, loves to plunge into a cool stream, often lying down in small pools so that the water can run all over him. Many people, too, keen hunters, fail to rest up their dogs sufficiently, only thinking of covering as much ground and of getting as many birds as possible. Such hunters will find that they gain rather than lose by stopping for a quarter of an hour or so at intervals during the day, giving their dogs a chance to freshen up a bit; at the luncheon hour, a stop of half an hour with a little more perhaps for a quiet smoke, should be taken and the dogs' lunch should certainly not be overlooked. Scraps from his master's lunch are not what a dog deserves after a hard morning's work. Dogs are just like human beings, and every hunter knows how refreshed he feels after a short rest at intervals, and after a half hour's loaf in the heat of the day while luncheon is being discussed. But little of the day is wasted, while the added pleasure of being rested in place of jaded, is reward enough, outside of the better shooting that can be done by a rested man than by a tired one.

Many people look upon a flask as a necessary part of a hunter's equipment. A small flask of whiskey for emergency is no doubt a good thing to have along, and comes in very handily when it really is needed. But such a flask should not be used until it is absolutely needed, as although a small nip does freshen a man up a bit temporarily, the effect is only temporary, the reaction leaving the hunter in a worse plight than "before taking." If a hunter cannot put up with the clear, cool spring water that he meets with in his trips, he should content himself with a flask of cold tea, or perhaps hard cider at the strongest. The latter is by no means as bad as plain whiskey or brandy, but the man who sticks to spring water while out hunting is the man who does the best work during the closing hours of the afternoon.

The question of what is a proper lunch for a hunter to take along with him is another point that is worth considering. It need hardly be said that the lighter the lunch and the more digesteble its make-up, the better for the shooter, and the greater hopes of his adding to the contents of his game pockets during the afternoon. Hard boiled eggs are good things to take along, but the eggs should be boiled for a good half hour, the longer the better and the more digestible they become. Sandwiches of corned beef or chicken, not ham or tongue, are the best, and are less likely to create an extra thirst than either ham or tongue. Hunters find that they have quite a sufficient thirst naturally without adding to it by artificial means, perspiration caused by exercise calling for the replacing of fluid lost by its action. A few good apples in the coat pockets are also welcome at any time, and don't take up much room; when stopping for a breather a good sound apple comes in handily. Summed up as a whole, a hunter's lunch should be a light one, and should be composed of easily digested condiments. Gun headache comes very frequently from indigestion, and the man suffering from indigestion, even though only slightly, is in no sort of shape to hold his own in a hard day's work after grouse or quail.—Commercial Advertiser.

H. Clay Glover, Esq.—Dear Sir:—I have used your Mange Cure for the past two years in my kennels for mange and other skin diseases, and it has not failed in a single instance to effect a perfect cure. In the summer of 1881 I had eight cases of mange all of which I cured in two weeks with your Mange Cure. Please add this to your numerous testimonials. Yours truly,

John W. Bunnell, Professional Dog-Breaker.

The Merced Meeting.

The Interstate Coursing Club, I. N. Halton, President, has decided to hold its ninth annual plains meeting at Merced, November 1st and 2d. The entries will close at the draw, which will be held on Saturday, October 29th. The club had at first intended to put off the meeting till December, but as the rains have already commenced it was decided to advance the meeting a month. The entrance fee will be $15 and the total money will be about $2000. This will be divided into prizes at the draw as the nominators think best. Not more than sixty-four entries will be accepted,

Judge Boll and Slipper Wren will officiate as at Union Park. The committee having the meeting in charge is composed of J. H. Rosseter, R. E. de B. Lopez, A. L. Austin, J. R. Dickson and I. F. Halton.

The St. Bernard Club.

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of this leading and influential specialty club was held last Monday evening. The business transacted of particular interest to the fancy and kennel interests of local and coast import was the strongly expressed determination to support and act in concert with the Oakland Kennel Club in the successful conducting of the coming bench show in the Exposition Building, Oakland, during three days in December.

The bench show committee of the St. Bernard Club, Messrs. Thos. H. Browne, Dr. Cluness Jr., Jos. E. Cutten, H. A. Wegener and J. B. Martin have been unanimously elected members of the Oakland Kennel Club.

The Oakland show will of course be under A. K. C. rules. The dates will be either the 8th, 9th and 10th, or the 15th, 16th and 17th of December. Two hundred entries at $2 per entry will insure the cost of the show. The building has been tendered rent free, a very generous and public spirited action on the part of the owners.

Breeding and Rearing.

One of the most important parts of the dog owner's duties is that relative to the rearing of the poppies that may be born in his kennel. The late Charles Darwin in his Descent of Man said: "It is surprising how soon a want of care, or care wrongly directed, leads to the degeneracy of a domestic race!" And breeders of all kinds of livestock know this to be perfectly true. No amount of care and attention will turn an ill-bred and badly-formed animal into a good one, and years of anxiety, trouble and expense go for nothing if proper regard is not paid to the selection of the stock from which to breed. We will admit that many good-looking dogs, including some that have won no end of prizes, have been bred in a haphazard or happy-go-lucky fashion, but it would be most injudicious to breed from such sires or dams, for sooner or later the breeder would meet with severe disappointment, and probably throw up the whole thing in disgust, regarding the business as a lottery. That it is not a lottery is amply proved by the fact of there being so many specimens at the present day, the result of careful breeding from pedigree stock. We desire, therefore, to impress upon the minds of all breeders the necessity of exercising the greatest care in the selection of stock and the importance of adhering to one type. Before commencing operations the breeder must make up his mind what he desires to obtain, but in the case of a novice we should suggest his endeavoring to secure the help of some one in his neighborhood who has had experience in breeding. It is impossible to put down on paper with sufficient clearness rules to meet every individual case. So much depends upon the animal to be bred from, that we suggest the course already mentioned in preference to any other. Usually old breeders are most ready to help the new beginner. But it is very desirable that the owner of the dog should know as much as he can, and therefore he should study the uses of the various breeds which have been brought into existence; so that in the decision as to any variety, he may know which is best suited to his purpose. In selecting a stud dog, it is advisable to choose one that conforms to the orthodox standard, and whose pedigree is pure. Even though the well-bred dog fails to impress his own likeness upon his stock, it is more or less probable that some of his puppies will "throw back" to a well-bred ancestor of first-cless proportious, while in the cese of a badly-bred sire the litter will he chiefly distinguished for its veriety in type, temper, etc.

The vexed question of in-breeding has been fought oot over end over egeiu, and like meny other subjects, has its chempions both for and egeinst. But from the most re-liable evidence before oe, there seems to he little douht that in-breeding mey he permitted to a limited extent, and when not cerried too far is oseful in meinteiuing certein features. When adopted, it is much hetter to put fether to daughter, end mother to sou then hrother to sister. Bot the greatest cere is needed in the edoption of this system, for when cer-ried too fer it not only stops the growth of the progeny hot weekens their intelligence end constitotions. It is a general exiom thet once in end twice out is a sefe role for in-breeding.

Very much depends on the selection of the stud dog, end too much attention cannot be peid to the stete of his heelth. A delicate or unheelthy dog is more likely then not to trens-mit some of his defects to his offspring, the consequence of which will be thet there will he greeter difficulty in rearing the puppies, and they will probehly he of less velue when they reech meturity, if ever they do so. The diet of a stnd dog most he good and liberal, and he should he exercised every morning and evening, either by being taken oot for a welk or having a good scemper round his pleygroond. A plunge into cold weter helps wonderfully in keeping a stud dog in vigorous condition, and in warm weether this bath can be allowed daily. Those who wish to secure the services of a stod dog other than their own, are advised to see it for them-selves and then judge from its condition and appearance whether it is likely to suit or is in a good state of health.

An eqoel amonnt of attention shoold he peid in the selec-tion of the female as of the male. And it most he born in mind that the mother should be specially strong in those points wherein the sire is deficient, so that the two may "nick" well together. It is a generally accepted fact in breeding that the sire gives the ontward formation, while the dem controls what may be called the internal qnalities, such as temperameni. Both in the case of sire and dem the ani-male should he well grown before they are osed for breeding, and it is inadvisable to use either ontil they have reached a yeer and a half old. Some yoong hitches show a disposition to breed very early, and when this is the case precautions will have to he taken to prevent a mesalliance. When the proper time has come, and it is evident that the bitch is in seeson, arrengements shoold at once he made for the services of the stud dog. The period of heat generally lasts shoot three weeks, and the best time to use the dog is efter a fort-night has expired, when a discherge which takes place shoot that time cesses.

When it is cleer that the hitch is with pops she should be very well exercised up to aboot the sixth week, efter which, thoogh daily exercise is necessary, it most be gentle, care be-ing taken to see that she has no violent jumping, straining, or gallopiog. It is also a good plan to lead her when out for a walk duriog the last week of her pregnancy. If these directions he carried oot, a healthy bitch will need no medi-cine. Duriog all this time the food must he regolated, and cere taken that she is neither too fat, nor allowed to get too thin, as both etates of body are equally dangerous. The happy mean must he attained, and this will be most com-paiihle with a high state of health. In order to know whether the bitch is in this condition, the ribs may be taken as a goide. If they can he felt hut are not evident to the eye, she may he regarded as in a proper state of body. The food shoold he liheral, and consist chiefly of slops, such as hroth, gravy, milk and bread, with screps from the table and vegetehlee. The qoantity of meat should he very limited, though if she has always heen used to it a small portion may still he given, es in such cases it would be nnwise to with-hold it eltogether.

A week or ten days hefore her time is up, the bitch will begin to grow restless, looking not for a quiet corner where she may make herself comfortahle and be at home during her coming troohle. It is best to give her a quiet place where she will he alone, and free from interference hy other dogs. All that will be necessary in her new abode is a flat, smooth piece of board raised a few inches off the floor, over which may he nailed a piecs of old carpet, and some straw over all. The board, which may he thirty to forty inches wide, according to the hreed of dog, should have a flap neiled round it so that the whelps may not roll or tomhle off, es they would otherwise he very apt to do. The carpet is needed so that the little s'rangers may hold themselves firmly, by their claws, while suckling. While the whelping is going on the chief thing is to secure perfect qoiet for the bitch, who should he distorhed as little es possihle. If she is in good heelth and her time of labor is not ouduly prolonged the hest way is to leave her alone, for some hitches are very sospicioos and easily made angry at eoch time. No feed should he given during the process, hot there should be some water within reech. After the process is entirely over some milk-warm gruel shoold be given the bitch, who should have this every two or three hoors for the first three daye. It is both s rengthening and soothing, and can he made with either milk or water. Half milk and half water is a very good mixtore. She will also relish a little beef-tea or gravy after the first few dishes of gruel.—Country Gentlemen.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Curtis & Sons' kennel egein landed the winner of the steke last Snndey at Union Coorsing Perk. This wes the third consecutive time. Rosette did the trick handily.

Aldon Rediance, a grand prize winning fox terrier bitch, by Von Voit—Warren Sproce is now owned by Rev. J. W. Flinton, of Victoria. Rediance has heen on the bench six times, under six different judges and won over every bitch egainst her excepting Warren Sentence and Hendicraft.

The Japenese speniel, Yum Yum, owned by H. A. Wegener and well known to frequenters of recent hench shows, who was the smallest and best specimen of the breed on the Coast and almost perfect in color, cream and white, and markings, has soccumbed to old age and its attendant in-firmities.

A meeting of the Pacific Coast Field Triels Cloh will be held within a few days. Advices from the southern part of the State are to the effect that several of the Southern Cali-fornia members of the cloh will be in this city shortly. A fnll ettendance is deeirahle, the details regarding the mem-hers stake will be definitely egreed upon as soon as the meet-iog is convened.

Tommy Tickle, one of the best known boll-terriers in America, recently hed a screp with a hedgehog near the camp of his owner, J. L. Arden, in the Adirondacks, and was so severely injured that he had to he killed. Over three thousand qoills were stuck in his head and jaws and in fact all over his body. He never made a sound and he died as he had lived—game to the finish.

Coorsing at Los Angeles goes on every Sonday at Agri-cultural Park with onabated interest. John Grace, Jr., seems to have definitely settled the heretofore vexed ques-tion of judging these races; the young gentlemen hes sop-plied the want in a fitting manner; his thorough knowledge of the sport and executive ability in being clear-cut, decisive and quick in deciding a coorse hse given general satisfac-tion.

Fox terrier racing is a new enterprise in the line of sports promoted in the interest of the pool hox. Possibly the vast amoont of money passing thrnugh the hoxes at the coorsing parks has prompted the introducoion of fox terrier racing, which, if successful in catching on, has the simple advan-tage of enahling the sports (?) to witness the game and blow in their dongh within the city limits instead of spending two hours of time going to and coming from the large parks.

Over 500 people were present at the initial meet of the San Josquin Coursing Cluh at McDougal villa, last Snuday. A fourteen dog stake was run off. The hest course in the rons wes hetween Flashlight and Red Chief, as they were compelled to start a second time, when the former won hy a score of 3 to 0. Nick L. was defeated in the firet ties hy Gladiole; Cal. C. put So-We-are out. Red Chief won from Here-We-Are, and Arno ran a bye with El Diahlo. In the second ties, the longest run of the day took place, Cal. C. winning from Gladiola by a score of 25 to 21, hoth dogs be-ing all out at the finish. Arno shut Red Chief out, and in the final, Cal. C. disposed of Arno, efter a hard run, by a score of 8 to fi Arno took second money and Gladiola and Red Chief divided third and foorth money.

We regret very moch to announce that Hubert White had the misfortune to lose the well-known St. Bernard, Roxie Savege Taylor, last Saturday. The dog's death wes due to accidental strangulation.

Roxie was hred hy R. E. Savege, of Salt Lake City, whelped December 7, 1894, and hy Bosco of the Rockies ex Nellie Queen of Wahsatch. His hench record since his ap-pearance on the Coast is as follows: Third in open class San Francisco, 1896; first Sacramento, Stockton, San Jose and Los Angeles, 1897; first in challenge, Oakland, 1897, and first Sacramento, 1898. This grand stud dog has fortonately left a goodly nomher of promising sons and daughters on the Coest who can he coonted on to maintain a stendard that hes in the past been eegerly sought for hy fanciers.

THE FARM.

Standard Breeds of Ducks.

The American Standard of Perfection recognizes ten breeds of ducks: Pekin, Aylesbury, Rouen, Cayuga, Colored Muscovy, White Muscovy, Gray Call, White Call, Black East Indian and Crested White.

Of these the first four are of the greatest importance, the Muscovys and Indians being rare, the latter being the bantams among ducks and bred only for amusement. The Crested White is bred for ornament almost exclusively and is rarely seen except about parks and ornamental ponds.

Nine-tenths of all the ducks bred and sold for market purposes are Pekins or their grades. They are the universal favorites and the principal breed in this country, although it has been but a few years since they were first brought from China.

Aylesburys are pure white in color and grow to good size, but have never taken strong hold on the markets of this country. Rouens are not great favorites, although they are beautifully colored and grow to be as large as any breed we have.

The Pekins have been bred in domestication for centuries in China and have remarkably short wings, the full grown duck not being able to fly more than a few feet and a flock of them can be confined by a fence not more than three feet high.

They make great weight at an early age, and are almost the only breeds used on the market duck farms of the East for early sales. The one fault with the full-grown Pekin is that it is always sheding its feathers and is, therefore always full of pinfeathers, which makes it very hard to clean. When killed at ten weeks old this trouble is not experienced, as it has not yet begun to shed.

Aylesburys come from the fens of Aylesbory, England, where they are bred in great numbers by cottagers, who by this means add to their small earnings. They differ from the Pekins in having delicate pinkish bills and shanks, while those of the Pekins are orange yellow. Just why they are not as great favorites as the Pekins would be hard to tell, but the fact remains that but few of them are bred and most of the so-called Aylesburys show distinctive marks of Pekin blood.

Rouen ducks came originally from Rouen, France, where they have been bred for centuries. They are evidently of Mallard origin, as they are marked exactly like the great green headed Mallard that is common to American sportsmen.

The Muscovys came from Brazil and are remarkable as great flyers and for their habit of perching in trees and sleeping in high places. They were first called "musk ducks" because of the flavor of their flesh. The drake is much larger than the duck, a peculiarity not noticed in the other duck families, and is not often found outside of the show room.

The two varieties of Call ducks are quite rare and of no practical use to farmers.

Besides the Crested ducks there are in this country a very few Mandarin ducks. These are peculiarly marked in color and plumage and are only seen at rare intervals, as they are not profitable for market purposes.

Ducks are constantly increasing in numbers and every year are better appreciated for their many merits. They are prolific layers, free from disease and quick growers. Well cared for, a flock of ducks is more profitable than an equal number of hens, no matter what the breed of the hens may be.

In discussing stamina in live stock, Wallace's Farmer says: "We can make phenomenal gains on hogs and can hide their skeletons in a mass of flesh, but if this forcing process is continued, either on the male or female line, impotency and small litters or weaklings are liable to follow. The change from the native bred hog to the high bred animal of any of the improved breeds is a radical one, and it is not possible to push pork production to the utmost without decreasing the vitality and stamina of the animal. There is a limit to human endeavor in this direction and nature says 'stop.'"

A report from the tobacco raising district of Cuba in speaking of the great scarcity of oxen, the principal work animal of Cuban plantations, says that many individual tobacco growers have each lost 300 to 400 oxen, besides the great number lost by large companies and firms. The demand for these animals will be enormous, as practically all on the island have been confiscated by commanders of both the Spanish and insurgent forces to feed their respective commands.

It is reported that those who are engaged in the sheep business on Grand Island are suffering great loss by death of sheep that foundered on wheat. The ground of the stubble pasture is covered with wheat which was blown out by the north wind, Fodder.

At the Farmer's Institute in Marysville last Saturday, Prof. Fowler interested a good-sized audience with a talk on 'Fodder and the Sort from which the Best Results Are Obtained." He pointed out at length the advantages which alfalfa has over wheat and oat hay, laying stress on the elements in the alfalfa best fitted for work stock. He asserted that the California farmer must wake up to the necessity of diversified farming. Alfalfa, he said, is the key to the problem. It is a cheap food to be had in abundance, and its great value remains to be realized by the farmer; it is the element that builds up muscle in stock and it is due largely to that fact that the farm raised beef has greater demand in the market than the range beef.

Corn, fed with alfalfa, is a desirable combination. Many farmers plant corn for fodder and think that to cultivate it is not necessary. This is a mistake. The results derived from cultivating are highly satisfactory. He saw whole fields of corn stalks in Kern county, which were irrigated and cared for, that reached twenty-one feet in height, and was rich in proportion.

Of the silo, Prof. Fowler is a strong advocate. Many times during the year the farmer does not have sufficient food for his hogs, etc. The silo, filled with succulent corn and alfalfa, always insures fodder that the stock appreciates.

Scientific Dirt.

We are very scientific in these days and talk of bacteria, bacilli, micrococos, pasteurizing, sterilizing, etc, and there is danger that we shall forget that scientific dirt is just as bad as the other variety. Dirt under a Latin name is just as dirty as it is in English, and requires just as much soap and water, hot water, scrubbing brush and elbow grease as the old variety that our fathers used to wrestle with before the days of washing powders and concentrated lye. We need no special sterilizers or pasteurizers to keep the milk cans clean; leave all these complicated machines to the scientific fellows, and go at the cans and dairy vessels in the old-fashioned way, as if bacteria and bacilli had never been heard of; use plenty of water, soda, sunshine and fresh air. Have your milk vessels clean first, and think of bacteria afterwards. If your butter or cream are off flavor, nine times out of ten is that your stable, cow or dairy is dirty, just plain dirt that doesn't need a microscope and a chemist to find it; only a thorough cleaning and the trouble will vanish. The tenth time you may need the help of the expert, but don't ask for it till you got rid of the common dirt; then you may look for the scientific variety.—Hoards' Dairyman.

When selecting wheat for seed get that which is plump and in no event take inferior or shriveled grains. At the New York station a selection of 1000 grains of seed wheat was made and the plump grains planted and compared with an equal number of inferior grains, both kinds being treated alike in the soil. Five rows of large seed produced a total of 3472 panicles, or an average of a fraction over fifty-four panicles per row. The five rows of small seed yielded a total of 2205 panicles, or an average of 441 per row. The plants from the large seed averaged over 52 ounces of straw and 24 ounces of grain, the small seed yielded only 29½ ounces of straw and 11 2-3 ounces of grain. It will be noticed that the large grains produced nearly twice as much straw as the small grains and over four times as much grain as well as a much larger amount of grain in proportion to the straw.

Some information relative to an important point in the relative conformation of different hogs of even the same breed and litter is given in Blooded Stock. It says: "Take two pigs, both one length from the top of head between ears to tail, that the one that is the shortest in the side of back from point of the ham, he the best backed pig and the easiest feeder, will fatten on less feed. To get this you will find the distance from tail along back to hip bone or point of ham is longer. In selecting breeding animals keep this point in view. Shorten the side or coupling of your hogs by running the ham further along the back from the tail instead of shortening the length of your hog. If you never noticed it, go to your pen and hunt it up—see the difference in length from tail to point of ham along the back."

While farmers with large areas sometimes claim that "farming don't pay," other farmers manage to live and save something on ten acres. One of the successful farmers on a small farm made it a rule when he went to market to bring home more money than he carried. His rule was to endeavor to sell, in value, more than he purchased, and to grow everything on the farm for his own use that the land would produce.

The weight of lambs according to age depends on the breed and other conditions. Live lambs at two months old should weigh 50 pounds and dress 36 pounds after slaughtering. Three months lambs should reach 25 per cent. more in live weight. There is a loss of from one-fourth to one-third in dressing, but there is no rule in governing the matter, and lambs differ greatly. One that is from a dam that provides an abundance of milk will get a good start ahead of one that is not so fortunate, while shelter and care also influence their growth.

There is great diversity of opinion as to the proper quantity of winter wheat to sow to the acre, which is as it should be. Rich land requires less seed than poor land—early sown less than late. One variety of wheat, owing to its stooling propensities, will be as thick from sowing three-quarters of a bushel as another variety with one and a half bushels. A very good rule will be to sow one peck to a half bushel more on poor ground than on rich ground, and be acquainted with the stooling propensities of the variety sown to determine the other points.

The Armour Packing Company says that the best breed of hogs for the fancy export trade is a cross of a Tamworth boar and Yorkshire sow. The food for the first four months of the pig's existence would make really very little difference whether it be corn or smaller grains. However, from four months up to the time it is marketed, say for six months, we are of the opinion that the use of corn should be discontinued entirely, and the animal fed on peas, barley or crushed oats with a fair proportion of green vegetable food.

During June, July and August of the present year the number of sheep dipped at the Chicago Union Stock Yards was 33,800 against 82,700 during the three corresponding months of last year, a decrease of 48,900 heads. A proportionate decrease appears during the first three weeks of September. This indicates a heavy diminution of numbers in the feed lots and much smaller mutton supplies next spring.

No house renter should pay more than one-fourth of his income for rent, and no farmer should put more than one-fourth of his capital into buildings. Many a new farm building has ruined its builder.

Cattle are becoming scarce in the West and the Eastern markets will be affected by the conditions existing in the cattle regions. Farmers who raise more calves and of good quality will get good prices for them by the time they are matured. There is no better way to dispose of the surplus foods than to have sufficient stock to consume it.

CONTINENTAL Ointment

10,000 ENDORSERS!

"I have thoroughly tested CONTINENTAL OINTMENT, and I have found it the best article for its purpose I have ever used. It keeps the hoof soft and healthy and growing, and for cracked heels, scratches and the like, it is simply perfect."
WM. B FASIG,
(Theo Secretary N. O. Fair Association).

"I had a fine pacer and his feet were sore and full of fever and corns; he was not fit to drive on the roads, and to-day I can drive him as far and as hard as anybody's horse, and it will not make him sore nor lame. He was cured with CONTINENTAL OINTMENT. Our druggist keeps it through my recommendation."
R. H. LYTLE, Palatine, Ill.

Any Druggist or Harness Dealer can easily get CONTINENTAL OINTMENT for you, or we will send a can on receipt of price.

New York Racing Lawe Have Done Much to Elevate the Sport There.

The New York law which governs racing in that State has placed the sport on a higher plane there than it has ever enjoyed heretofore. It has taken racing out of the hands of gamblers and placed it under control of those who love the sport for its own sake. When such men as W. C. Whitney, the Vanderbilts, James Gordon Bennett, Lawrence Kip, A. H. and D. H. Morris, J. H. Alexander and gentlemen of the same sort who race and breed horses for pleasure and not for the purpose of gambling on them, take charge of racing affairs, the causes for improvement in the condition of turf affairs in New York are not difficult to understand. The result of this making racing the very highest class sport in New York is the improved prices that are being obtained for horses that are to be raced or used for breeding in the Eastern States. A few days since, imported Meddler, a stallion belonging to J. Malcolm Forbes, sold for $49,000, and later the mare Tulla Blackburn brought $7,500 and several others over $5,000 each. On Thursday of this week at an auction sale in New York the following sales were made :

Kentucky Colonel, b c, 2, to A. H. & D. H. Morris, $10,000.

Black Venus, blk f, 2, to Sydney Paget, $7,500.

Satin Slipper, b f, 2, to M. F. Dwyer, $4,100.

Rhinelander, b c, 2, to J. W. Rogers, $3,800

Kinnikinnic, br h, 4, to T. J Healy, $3,000

Sailor King, ch g, to J. J. McCafferty, $4,600.

Bannock, ch c, 4, to Ed Hughes, $1 550.

Effervescent, b f, 2, to J. S. O'Brien, 2,100.

Of course the high prices paid for these youngsters were not given because they could he used for gambling purposes, as gambling can be just as effectually done with a lot of cheap skates as with high-class race horses. It is because in New York the promoters of racing recognize the fact that it must be kept clean and above suspicion and have taken its control out of the hands of the gamblers and bookmakers and shaped it by legislation, so that high-class horses have a value as money-earners, and the associations so conduct their meetings that large sums can he earned in stakes and purses by high-class thoroughbreds. In other words the sport of kings has been elevated to that plane where the betting of money is looked upon as merely an incident, and not as the foundation on which racing rests. It is no uncommon thing to see twenty thousand people at a race meeting in New York, three-fourths of whom do not bet a penny on the result, or if they do, in small amounts of a few dollars, wagers being laid between one another. It is true that there are large sums placed with the bookmakers by those who love the betting game, but simple gambling on the races by everyhody is not encouraged, but on the other hand all sorts of obstacles are thrown around the betting ring to keep the piker and the tout from breaking in and making their presence distasteful to genuine lovers of the sport. New York has put racing back in the position it formerly occupied—the sport of gentlemen.

THE road horse is classed among the "tops of the market," and is being better appreciated by foreign as well as American buyers.

Auctione Next Month.

Catalognes for the sale of J B. Chase's choicely bred yearlings will be issued next Thursday and all who are interested in the breeding and racing of thoroughbreds will find these splendidly compiled books to be superior to any heretofore issued by the Occidental Horse Exchange. The youngsters represented are royally bred and we doubt if a better looking lot was ever shown in a salesring. The Mo ellos need very few words of commendation while the Clievedens and Trentolas out of such mares as Mistake, Mystery, Mary E , Lady Clare, Miss Lou, etc., will show that they inherit the proper conformation to make high class stake horses, the breeding and game qualities they inherit from both sides of the house. Mr. Chase has bred many racehorses that have proven large money winners, but we doubt if he ever bred such a uniform lot as these. Several prominent horsemen have visited the Sonoma Stock Farm to inspect these youngsters and are lavish in their praise of them. The total absence of leggy, gangling, flatsided fillies was noticed—instead they saw high headed, well balanced even turned thoroughbreds that looked like trained horses in minature.

E J. Baldwin's sale will also be the scene of lively competition for he has not reserved a yearling foaled in 1897, hence horsemen can have the best opportunity they have ever had to get the cream of the celebrated stock farm at Santa Anita. Sons and daughters of Emperor of Norfolk, Amigo, Honduras a phenomenally fast horse full brother to Joe Harvey's great mare Wheel of Fortune, Crito II., Imp. Duncombe, Imp. Chesterfield, etc., out of the best mares bred or purchased by Mr. Baldwin. It is his intention to sell his two and three year olds and horses in training later on in the season. The yearlings have only been halter broke.

Chas. Kerr's consignment will astonish and please every lover of the race horse The reputation his Antrim Stock Farm has achieved as the birth place of some of the greatest racehorses in California is well known and the yearlings he will offer will be the best he ever bred. Theodore Winters has had remarkable success with his yearlings and so has everyone who purchased any at the last sale. The catalogues of all these sales will he issued immediately. Mr. E R. Lowry, one of the most eloquent as well as one of the best posted horse auctioneers in the United States, is making arrangements to sell these and all other horses for Mr. Layng at the Occidental Horse Exchange, a place recognized by all as one of the most unique and comfortable to hold a sale in of any in the United States.

A Hereditary Trait.

The starting gate is in use on some of the tracks in Ireland, but is not much liked. Not long since in a race on "the old sod" a mare called Irish Ivy, a two-year-old with a hereditary capacity for jumping, faced it for the first time. When she was brought up in front of it, although it was unbecoming in a juvenile to tackle such things, she thought she was expected to jump it. So jump it she did, and an eye witness to the performance describes it as follows: Her jockey could scarce keep from laughin' as the filly cleared this new-fangled sort of fence, and came clear away from her field, and won runnin' away. But it was declared a false start. Jumpin' was not allowed. All the horses must go the other way —underneath. So they were sent back. 'Twas all the same to Irish Ivy. She waited this time as if she had had starting machines in use all her time—as if, indeed, she had been brought up on nothing else. She just gave one neigh, directed right at the man with the trigger, as much as to say, 'I'm your mare—it's all the blessed same to me, under or over or through the bull's-eye middle of the outrageous invention if you prefer it ' 'An' I'm blowed,' said our friend, 'if she didn't win again."

WINTER RACING IN CALIFORNIA

As has been demonstrated during the past six years, no locality north of the equator except California can furnish the weather and accompanying conditions which are necessary to high-class racing during the winter months. New Orleans comes nearer filling the bill than any other place outside this State, but they have yellow fever to fight, and many other things which are unknown out here on the shore of the Pacific. Saturday next the California Jockey Club will throw open its gates for the first day's racing of the winter season. It seems almost absurd to call it "winter" when the snn is shining, birds are singing, flowers blooming and tbe lawns on the Club's grounds as fresh and green as an Eastern park on a bright and perfect day in May. The C. J. C.'s grounds look more beautiful than ever this year, and there are so many improvements that those who visit the track will find it the most complete race course in America.

The outlook is for as great interest to be taken in the game as ever, and on Saturday next there is certain to be an hegira to the foot of Market street, and the lively scenes enacted last year will be duplicated, except that instead of those waiting for the boats being cooped up in a barn-like structure, a magnificent new ferry building has been provided and will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated. There will be the usual number of boys selling "tips" and "handicaps," by following which, if the criers are to he believed, all the money in the hands of the bookmakers can be transferred to the pockets of the purchasers. There will be boys selling programs, and we all know that one "can't tell one horse from another" without this absolutely necessary document, which costs but a dime. There will he papers for sale containing information that will guide the reader into a knowledge of the racing game which will enable him to win fabulous amounts. But among all the publications there will be one which will be in demand above all others—the daily racing edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. It will contain the official form chart, a first-class handicap prepared by one of the best handicappers in America, tips and forecasts made by all the daily newspapers and also tips made by its own experts, which will he contained in no other publication. Besides these features a special effort will be made this year to have its news columns filled with the latest and best to be learned in the racing world. A description of each race as run, written hy an expert, will he provided every day, and everything of interest to racegoers will be given in the columns of the DAILY BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. As a medium of advertising it will be one of the very best. Nearly every advertiser who paid for space in its columns last year has already applied for renewal, and the chances are that space will be hard to secure after the first week. It behooves those who wish to take advantage of this splendid medium to apply for space as soon as possible.

THE three fastest pacing stallions—Star Pointer, 1:59¼, John R. Gentry, 2.00½, and Joe Patchen, 2:01¼ —are each represented by one or more 2:20 performers.

THE Pittsburg horse Guy, driven by Pat Garvey, was the greatest throw-down for the talent during the Lexington meeting; he sold for $5 in pools of $150.

LOS ANGELES MEETING CLOSES.

It Has Not Been as Successful as in Former Years.

The two weeks' meeting given by the Sixth Agricultural Association at Los Angeles came to a close last Saturday. While the meeting cannot be considered a great success when compared with those of previous years, still, taking the condition of things into consideration a very creditable showing was made. There were some excellent races run and trotted in fast time, and there other races which were not so good. There is no doubt but some very raw work was done by those who tried to "win by losing," but the officers of the Association were on the alert and but few of the schemes went through. There was not as large an attendance as in former years, but the people turned out in sufficient numbers to make the meeting a success financially.

The 2.17 trot opened the program to-day. In this race Lou was installed as favorite, with Iran Alto second choice and the others at liberal odds.

Iran Alto assumed the lead and led around to the stretch, with Lou a close second. Alto broke when within 100 yards of the wire and Lou came on and won by four lengths, Alto second, Nellie Bly third, Sable Frances fourth and Mahla McKinney last. Time, 2:15½.

In the second heat Lou was favorite at 1 to 2, Alto second choice, 2 to 1; Sable Frances and Mable McKinney, 10 to 1, each, and Nellie Bly 20 to 1. Alto took the lead and at the quarter was a couple of lengths ahead with Mahla McKinney second, Lou a close third. McKinney broke, however, after passing the quarter pole and Lou assumed second place. At the five furlongs Sable Frances and Nellia Bly became frightened at a shadow of the starting gate, so the driver of the former claimed, and broke badly, the latter narrowly escaping being shut out on account of it. Alto led into the stretch and won under a pull by three lengthe, Lou, the favorite, second; Mabel McKinney, third; Nellie Bly, fourth. Time, 2:13¾

Iran Alto was still a favorite at 2 to 5 in the third heat, while Lou was quoted at 5 to 2, Sahla Fraoces 10 to 1, Mabel McKinney 20 to 1, and Nellia Bly 40 to 1. The bunch was sent away to a ragged start, in which Nellia Bly had decidedly the worst of it. Mahel McKinney took the lead but broke at the eighth pole and before she could be got on her feet Alto and Lou had passed her and taken first and second places, respectively. At the half Alto led by a length over Lou, while Nellie Bly had in the meanwhile passed McKinney and taken third place. Near the three-quarters Lou broke badly and Alto went on and won under a pull four lengths in front of Nellie Bly, who had beaten out Lou for the place. Sable Frances was fourth and the time 2:17½.

The fourth heat Sable Frances opened in the betting 8 to 1 Suddenly a few betters swooped down on this price and money began to pour in on the brown mare. The bookmakers, who always are timid in this city, became alarmed, and the price had been cut to even money at post time. Sahla Frances, although given about a length the worst of the start, went ahead and took the lead, with Iran Alto and Mahal McKinney as contenders. To those watching the race it seemed as if the drivers of the other horses were apparently not trying to pass Sable Frances, for the mare swung into the stretch several lengths in the lead of Iran Alto and won by about two lengths and a half. Mahel McKinney being third. When the time was posted, as 2:18¼, the suspicions of the judges were further corroborated, as the mile had been covered in a second lower than the previous heat. After a consultation Sullivan was fined $50 and the heat was declared no race.

The fifth heat and race was won by Iran Alto. That animal took the lead and was in front from one to four lengths the entire distance. Sahle Frances was second and Mahel McKinney was close by the latter. McKinney persisted in breaking nearly all the time and although she finished third, behind Sahle Frances, she was set back to the fourth position for running, Nellie Bly being advanced to third place. Alto won with ease by several lengths and the others scattered. Lou was distanced in this heat and was evidently much distressed The time was 2:17¼.

Napian, the favorite in the five furlongs, running, broke down, shortly after passing the half, and considerable money was burnt up in consequence, as the horse could finish only third. Ojai was off in the lead, Napain second, Pauline Mosher third. At the half Ojai was a length and a half in the lead, Napian second by a length. At the three-quarters Ojai was a length in the lead, Sir Urian by a neck, Napian third. Ojai won by half a length, Sir Urian second by six lengths, Napian third. Time, 1:02¼.

La Moroma, the entry from the Baldwin stable, captured the second running race, a five-eighth mile. Saucy Eyes was off in the lead, Smyle second, Castalar third, Gibbity Flibbitt fourth, La Morona fifth. Smyle led at the half by a head, Castelar second by three lengths and the others in a bunch. At the three quarters Saucy Eyes was first by a length, Smyle second, Castalar third. In the stretch Devin sent La Moroma along, took the lead from Saucy Eyes and won by half a length over Saucy Eyes, Smyle third, Castelar fourth, Palomares fifth. Time, 1:02½.

Fig Leaf was the "good thing" in the third running race, the seven-eighths of a mile, and "Spike" Hennessy, her rider, is said to have made a nice clean up by winning the race, as he had a bunch of tickets on Fig Leaf at 3 to 1. Those tickets seemed to act as wings to Hennessy, for he got his mount away in the lead and at the quarter was two lengths in the lead. Kaiser Ludwig, second by a length and Prompto third At the half Fig Leaf was three lengths in the lead, Kaiser Ludwig second by a head, Prompto third The pace was too much for the Kaiser, though, so he slackened up in his pilgrimage to the wire and allowed both Prompto and Masoero to pass him. Fig Leaf's lead had been cut down to two lengths as the horses swung into the stretch, but the horse could not be touched, and ran with several lengths to spare; Prompto second by a length, Masoero third, Kaiser Ludwig fourth, Queen Nubia fifth, Howard last. Time 1:29.

Lady Ashley was looked to do the trick in the six and a half furlongs, selling race, the last on the card, but she failed to materialize. She was left at the post and never figured as a possibility. Pat Murphy took the lead, Tarihio second, Smith third. At the quarter Murphy was only a head in the lead of Tarihio, who was two and a half lengths in front of Petrarch, who had moved up to third position. Taribio took the lead shortly before reaching the half, with Petrarch hanging on to her tight, a length in front of Petrarch, who had only a head in the lead of Petrarch and close behind the latter was Smith. The horses had a pretty brush down the stretch, but Tarihio won by half a length, Patrarch being the same in front of Tom Smith. Pat Murphy and Lady Ashley were the also rane. The time was 1:21½. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14.

The first race to-day was a special trot for named horses and resulted in another driver being fined for laying up a heat. This time it was Bunch, driver of Thompson, who had to pay, and $100 was the amount. Thompson was the favorite, while Our Jack opened at 8 to 1. There was a rush to play the latter, and from the liberal odds offered at the first his price was hammered down to even money. Thompson led all the way round to the three-quarters and was about a couple of lengths ahead of the others. Our Jack came with a rush at the end of the stretch and beat Thompson by a head, the heat being done in 2:18. The judges fined C. F. Bunch, the driver of Thompson, $100 for laying up the heat and declared all bets off. Bunch made no apparent objection and accepted the fine.

On getting the word in the second heat Thompson went out in the lead. Silver Ring went after Thompson and assumed the lead. Osito being third. Ring led to the three-quarters, but Thompson took the lead again and won. Osito finished second half a length ahead of Silver Ring. Osito broke badly in front of the wire. Our Jack was fourth. Time, 2:14½.

Osito was played liberally in the third heat, and was expected to land the money, as he was quoted at 1 to 2; Thompson 6 to 5, Riley and Our Jack 10 to 1, Silver Ring 20 to 1 Thompson took the lead and after passing the half was two lengths in advance of Silver Ring and Osito. The latter made up the lead of Thompson and a gallant effort was made to win, but Thompson was still half a length in advance of Osito at the finish and under a pull. Our Jack was third, Silver Ring fourth. Time, 2:15½.

For some reason Osito was again installed as favorite in the fourth heat at 1 to 2, Thompson, who had captured the two previous heats, being 2 to 1. Our Jack was 3, Mamie Riley 10 to 1, Silver Ring 20 to 1. Silver Ring soon took the lead, but after passing the quarter Mamie Riley had moved up and was contanding with Thompson.

After passing the one and one-half Osito caught the bunch and was third as the horses turned into the stretch, Thompson having taken the lead from Silver Ring. Mamie Riley was off her feet. Osito started at the head of the stretch to overcome the two lengths' lead held by Thompson, and for a while it looked as if Sanford might be able to land first under the wire. Osito broke at the seven-eighths pole, but was soon got on his feet, and continued in second place ahead of Silver Ring. Thompson landed the heat, however, without trouble, winning the race. Osito was second, but breaking badly all the way down the stretch, while Silver Ring was third, Mamie Riley fourth, Our Jack distanced. Osito was set back, though, in fourth place for breaking, Silver Ring getting second place in the heat and Riley third. The time was 2:16¾.

The Semi-Tropical stakes for 1898, was a walk-over for Direct Heir, the entry of M. S. Severance. This stake was inaugurated in 1896, and out of twenty-one animals entered Direct Heir was the only one to materialize. The animal is a handsome black colt by Direct—Bet Madison, has good action and gives much promise.

The association gave a purse of $400 in addition to the entry fee of $50 for this event.

Inola was hooked to do the trick in the opening running race, a four and a half furlongs for maiden two-year-olds. Lew, the owner of the filly, had the moont, and it was claimed he had put his money on Inola. In any event her price was 9 to 20 at the opening, but was 1 to 3 and cut in some of the books at post time. Ellen Wood was 2½ and 3½; Peter Weber, 8 and 7; Miss Mattie, 20 and 30. Inola took the lead, with Ellen Wood second, Peter Weber third. At the three-quarters Inola was still in the first position and was a length a head of Petar Weber, who was a length in advance of Ellen Wood. In the stretch Petar Weber was a neck in the lead of Inola, who was two laughs ahead of Ellen Wood, but Inola was evidently beaten. Peter Weber increased his lead to half a length as they came down the stretch. Inola had the pole, but when within 100 yards of the wire Weber, who was evidently tired, swerved over toward the favorite and interfered with her. The colt finished half a length ahead of Ellen Wood, who had come on and finished half a length in front of Inola. Lew entered a protest, and Weber was disqualified for fouling, although it was a decision on a technicality for the reason that Weber had Inola beaten, even before tha foul. The race was given to Ellen Wood, Inola second, Miss Mattie third. Time, 0:53¾.

Hennessy had the mount on Miss Daly in the second running, and the mare was backed from 3 to 5 to 1 to 2. Whistlehird was 3, Palomar 9, Carlist and Igo 10 each. Miss Daly was off in the lead and was a length in advance of Palomares. Daly was still a length in the lead at the three-quarters, while Palomares had moved up a second position, being half a length in front of Whistlehird, who had three lengths the best of Igo There was a whipping finish with Whistlehird on the inside and Palomares in the center of the track. Hennessey was able to beat out Whistlehird by half a length, who in turn was a neck in front of Palomares. Igo was fourth. Time, 1:10½.

Rubicon failed to win the third running race, and the crowd who had put up $5 to win $3, had tighter pockets as the result. Amasa, who won the race opened at 4 to 1 and was 5½ to 1 at post time. Moringa, who was supposed to be the only contender against odds on favorite, was quoted at 7 to 5, then 9 to 5. Roadwarmer was 25, then 60, than 20, Ojai was 60. Moringa got tha worst of the start, and Amasa took the lead, with Roadwarmer second; Rubicon third, Ojai fourth. They continued in these positions to the half. At the three quarters Amasa was a length in the lead, Roadwormer second by half a length, Rohicon third by four lengths, Moringa fourth. Rubicon passed the Warmer in the stretch and finished second to Amasa, Roadwarmer being third, Moringa fourth. Time, 1:01.

Masoero succeeded in landing the final race, a six and a half furlongs, it being the third time the gelding had startad. He was favorite at 6 to 5, Kaiser Lodwig second choice at 9 to 5. Pat Murphy 2 to 1, Artesia B. 20, Viking 80. Viking was left at the post. Pat Murphy took the lead, Kaiser second, Masoero third. At the half Murphy was two lengths in the lead, Kaiser Ludwig half a length in front of Masoero who was four lengths in advance of Artesia. At the three-quarters Pat Murphy was still two lengths in front of Kaiser Lodwig, who was a head in front of Masoaro. In the stretch Masoaro took the lead and won by half a length from Kaiser Ludwig, who was a length ahead of Pat Morphy. Artesia B. fourth. Time, 1:22½. Sommaries:

SATUBDAY, OCTOBER 15.

The final race of tha regular meeting of the Sixth District Agricultural Association was run yesterday afternoon.

The attendance, considering that it was the final day, and a mixed free for-all harness event, a fast running event and a gentlemen's pace were on the card, was not large. It was what is known in race parlance as "get-away day," and the judges were therefore on the alert for any possible jobs. They became suspicious in the first heat of the mixed free-for-all," for circumstances seemed to warrant the belief that Joe Wheeler, the favorite, had been doped.

The field of five was detained nearly half an hour on account of Much Batter refusing to start with the others. Bunch was unable to get his horse to moving right, and the animals were given a recess, and walked up and down the track to try and steady them. Joe Wheeler broke one of his hopples and a new set had to be put on, When the horses came out again Wheeler took an ugly streak and began acting peculiarly. They were sent away without Much Bettar, who was practically left at the wire. Wheeler was bounding and jumping into the air, and Havey seamed to have no control over him. The animal was seized with a sick spell on the track, so the driver afterward reported to the judges, and the result was that Wheelar was shut out along with Much Batter. Wheeler was led to his stall and there became very sick. The symptoms were said to be those caused by the administration of some drug. It could not be positively proved that any "dope" had been given the animal, and after a talk with the driver, the judges decided to let the heat go toward determining the result of tha race, but to declare the hets off. The heat was won by Rex Alto, Monterey second, Little Thorn third. Rex Alto took the next two heats and won the race, he being second choice throughout to Monterey, who lost at least one heat by breaking near the wire.

The special pace for road horses, gentlemen drivers, was an easy thing for E. Adam's brown mare Lady Margarat,who would have captured the event in straight heats hut for had breaking near the stretch in the third haat. Geo. R. captured that heat, but could finish no hetter than third in the following heat.

The best race of the entira meeting was the fourth event on tha card, the Main Street and Agricultnral Park handicap a sweepstake for all ages, distanca oua mile. Nearly all of the best horsss at the track participated and the mila was covered in 1:39¾. The Baldwin stahle had La Goleta and San Venado entared. Burns & Waterhouse's stahle was represented by Shasta Water and Marplot, while Crane & Owen entared Grady. Tha Baldwin entries were coupled, as were those of the other stahles, and in tha hetting Baldwin's entry opened at 3 to 5, hut closed at 4 to 5 and even money. Burns & Waterhouse's entry opened at even money and closed at 6 to 5, while Grady opened at 3 and closed at 4. Grady carried tha top weight of 117 ponnds, La Goleta second with 111; Marplot 108, San Venado 104 and Shasta Water 100. The wisa ones thonght Grady and La Goleta too heavily weighted, and the Burns and Waterhouse entry was looked to to do tha trick

There was soma delay startiug tha horses, principally on acconnt of Piggott failing to break with Marplot. Mr. Caldwell finally got them away to a good start, with San Venado in the lead, Marplot second, Shasta Water third, La Goleta fourth and Grady last. Marplot soon moved up and had assumed tha lead at the quarter, being a head in advanca of San Venado, who was too lengths in front of La Goleta, who was a length and a half ahead of Grady. At the half Marplot was still ahead in front of San Venado, who was two lengths in advance of Grady and La Goleta. Than ensued a pretty spriut as the latter horses started after the leaders, and they came up in splendid slyle, but La Goleta was abla to maintain tha hurst of speed longer than Grady, for as they turned iuto the stretch she was two lengths in front of him. Grady was half a length in advauce of Marplot and San Venado was fourth, bnt Shasta Water was close up. Thera was a pretty brush down the stretch for second place and Shasta Water finished with a rnsh, hnt went under the wire half a length hehind Grady, who was still two lengths behind La Goleta, tha winner. San Venado was fourth, Marplot last. Tha tima was 1:39¾ for the mile, 1:14¾ for the three quarters, 48 for the half and 25½ for the quarter.

Burns & Waterhonsa had Obsidian and Midlove in tha Junior handicap, fiva and one-half furlongs, and the s able entry opened at even money and went to 4 to 5. Headwater was first 6 to 5 and then 8 to 5. Correct remained at 6; Reina de Cuba want from 12 to 8, Ocarona 5 to 7, Carminita 12 to 10. They were sant away to a poor start with Midlova in the lead; Correct second, Hsadwater third, Obsidian fourth. Headwater took the lead at the half, Midlove second and the others badly strnng out. Headwatar led a length and a half at the wire, Midlove second, Correct third, Obsidian fourth, Cuba fifth, Ocarona sixth, Carmenita last; time, 1:07½.

The selling three-quarters of a mila for a purse of $200 was an easy mark for Lady Ashley. Tha horse opened at 3 to 10, bnt fell in prica to 4 to 5. Promptu was 3 and 2; Elsie Smith 20 and 30, Ivy Leaf 3 and 5, Losetta 12 and 30, Tom Smith 12 and 25, Petrarch 10, Reina de Los Angeles 8 and 12. Ashley got off in tha lead and maintained her positiou throughout, finishing four lengths ahead of the second horse. Thera was a beautiful battla for the place, in which Losette, Fig Leaf and Prompto finished in the order named, noses apart. The tima was 1:14

Geo. Blein, known from tha Pacific to tha Atlantic by those who have attended the auction sales of California-bred trotters, as "Shorty," came into tha Breeder and Sportsman office last Monday, on crutches. Probably no person in tha world has broken as many colts, or shown as many in the salesring as "Shorty," and in all of his years of experienca with horses ha never received an injury of any kind until two weeks ago, when he stepped in hehind an old plng "worth ahont two dollars and a half" to fix his harness, as he expressed it, and was kicked on tha knee. Sioce the breaking up of tha Corbett farm, "Shorty" has gone into the trucking business at San Mateo and has been doing well. He read with glea the account of the great race won hy Mary Celeste, 2:17¼, the first of the get of Oro Wilkes to race, and feels confident that all of this young horse's produce will be fast. No person in the United States has broken as many fast colts to lead beside a saddle horse as "Shorty," and his work in the salasrings of this country has never been excelled.

The meeting given at San Josa thia year by tha horsemen was on the co-operative plan. When all expenses were paid the halanca was divided amoug the owners of starters and amounted to $9 for each start.

IN OLD KENTUCKY.

Samuel Gamble Saw the Transylvania and Tells About It and Other Things.

Under date of Octoher 12th, Mr. Sam. Gamble writes to the Breeder and Sportsman some very interesting notes of the great Transylvania race which came off at Lexington the day previous. After giving the result of the race (which was received hy telegraph and already printed in these columns), Mr. Gamble says: Fully two hundred thousand dollars changed hands on this great race, the fastest five-heat race aver trotted, and here is the summary and the time by quarters:

Time by quarters—
Second heat	0:31¾	1:03	1:35½	2:38
Third heat	0:32¾	1:03½	1:36	2:08½

And, oh my! You should have been here to sea littla Miss Dione right op in the front of the fight each heat all the way, and I am frank to admit that I was very much surprised at her great showing. She is certainly entitled to a reception when she arrives home, and Thomas Keating must receive great credit for his trainiug of her. The little mare has campaigned all the season, and to see her finish it hy trotting fiva hard heats, as I timed her separately in 2:08, 2:08½, 2:10, 2:10 and 2:10½, snrprised me greatly. Besides, Mr. Keating let up on his driva tha last few rods of tha last three heats. Mind you, Diona was in all these heats lapped on the leaders at the quarter, half and three-qnarter poles and all finished in a bunch. It was the closest and fastest race I ever saw, and I do not expect to see it repeated again. Just think of five such fast heats to be trotted by this sweet little mare, and then for her to ba hehind the money. In former years such speed would have won this stake. Bingen was not up to his speed, being tied up from lack of a workout. He is a very fast horse and went a fast and great race under tha circumstances. Pilatus must he considered in tha conversation as a great all-round stallion, and I would like to see him owned in California.

I expect to ship eight head of young fillies from here to California and will probably leava Saturday, the 15th inst., in company with Mr. Keating. The horse sales here, up to date, look like old times, and tha Woodward and Shanklin was one of the best I ever saw. Think of the untried yearlings selling from $1,000 to $2,750, and tha broodmares from $750 to $3,000, and of pricing Directum at $30,000, when good buyers want him and would perhaps pay $20,000 for him.

I saw tha once great colt John A. McKerron tha other day. Ha has some great admirers, and had he been good, and people here not afraid ha was knocked out, he would he wanted at good money. I like this colt, his breeding, his namesake, the king of horse boot and harness makers, and the colts owner, and I pray and hopa that this great colt may yet come around all right and prove my predictions of his graatness as a trotter and also aa a sire. Any kind of a business must have the proper management and above all, the speedy, high class harness animal.

I predict that some day Mr. Forbes great colt Nico, by Arion, dam by Sultan, will be a candidate for the world's trotting record, as ha has the right way of going and the speed.

W. O. Foote, the driver of John Nolan is, to my notion ona of tha best headed and coolest race drivers I ever saw.

Yoors truly,

Samuel Gamble.

Klatawah to bs Sold in New York.

One of the wonders that goes from the golden West to the greatest horse mart of tha East—Madison Squara Garden, is the young phenomenon, Klatawah, son of Steinway and Katie G., by Electioneer.

Klatawah is tha greatest pacer of tha year, having established a three-year-old record that is liable to stand for many day. Tuis great youngster first started in 1897 as a two-year-old at Oakland, landing second in each heat in 2:22½, 2:21½. Two weaks later at Sacramento, ha started in his second race, which ha won easily in 2:18½, 2:19½. Ha was not allowed to do anything more until this season, when ha fulfilled tha promise of his breeding and early work, electrifying the horse world with his remarkable speed, establishing a mark for coming youngsters to aim at and placing his name among the famous performers of history. At Peoria, Ill., July 15, 1898, this great colt established a world's record for three-, aar-old pacers, in a race against fifteen other starters. In tha third heat, without a break or wobble, he went under tha wire in 2:06¼. September 28th, at Louisville, Ky., ha again lowered his race record, marking it as it now stands, 2:05½. He is a beautiful hay colt, 15¾ hands high. He is a trotting-bred pacer, does not wear hohles and cannot he driven from his gait. A pair of light quarter hoots is the only riggiug he wears.

He is a most noble animal, worthy son of a noble sira. Yet ha is but one among the many wonderful performers and aristocratically-bred leaders, tha cream of the four hundred of the horse world, that will ha sent to Wm. B. Fasig & Co.'s Greatest of All Sales at Madison Square Garden in Novamber.

A Circuit of Horse Shows.

A project is now afoot to join the cities of New York, Boston, Newport, Westchester, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburg and Chicago into a circuit and hold shows in each city on dates consecutively arranged. It is needless to point out the many advantages that would accroe from the formation of a horse show circuit, it will suffice to say that if one is formed the various associations will secure the entry of many horses that would otherwise not be taken away from their home town; the exhibitors will have a much increased aggregate of money prizes to win, and the people will be given the opportunity of seeing the crack horses of various great cities pitted one against the other and to profit by the decisions of the judges. Tha only trouhle that seems to remain to he dealt with is the time. Horse shows cannot he successfully held until late in the fall and then not far into winter. Horses cannot be got into show shape during tha summer months in the Eastern climate and then the races must ba over to permit the exhibition of sundry turf celebrities on the tan bark arena.

The latest a show may conveniently be held in any year seems to he abont the third week in November. After that society is on other pleasures bent and probably the attendanca would not be as large hy one-half the first week in December as it would he a fortnight earlier. Then again in tha spring cara must be taken not to extend the circuit too late, otherwise breeders will keep their stallions and in foal mares at home, robbing tha shows of more than half their interest and educational value. To properly conduct shows at each of the eight cities named and to provide ampla tima for shipments between towns, tearing up and settling down would require not less than three months. Sixteen to eighteen days at least must he allowed for shipping and getting ready to go and settle and that deducted from the thirteen weeks in three calandar months would leave none too many days for each of the larger cities named. To fend properly against this and yet provide the proper facilities all around it seems that it would be best to make two circuits,one in tha West and one in the East, drawing the dividing north and south line just east of Pittsburg. This would necessitate tha inclusion of several more cities in the Western chain, bnt as Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis and Kansas City have all demonstrated their ability to hold successful horse shows, if they should he included with Pittsburg and Chicago a compact circuit would be formed that could he made to serve tha interests of owners and public alike in the most acceptable manner. Reduced to six towns each, tima enough could he found to hold all these shows in the fall or in the spring, preferably in the fall. There are fine horses enough in the country now to "go around" and the double circuit may doubtless be arranged so that exhibitors may jump from the one to the other and snfler little loss of time or inconvenience—just as is the case with racing combinations—Horseman.

Chas. Marvin, who drove so many record breaking miles with the trotters bred at Palo Alto Stock Farm, has not allowed his hands to lose their cunning, and at Lexington last Saturday, in the two-year-old pacing division of the Kentucky Futurity, landed Ecstasy, a filly hy Baron Wilkes out of a mare hy Harold, first under the wire in the two fastest heats paced hy a two-year-old this year, tha time heing 2:15½ and 2:10½. The last heat is the fastest ever paced in a race hy a two-year-old, and has only heen beaten by one harness horse of this age by Directly's great mile in 2:07¾ against time. There ware but three starters in tha race, Matin Bells, Bride Elect and Ecstasy. In the first heat Ecstasy broke on the first turn and fell back a hundred yards and seemed to he ont of it, but Matin Bells, who was far in the lead, broke at the three-quarters and Ecstasy came with a rush and took command, winning handily from Bride Elect in 2:15½, the fastest mile of the year for a two-year-old.

In the second heat Matin Bells led to the half in 1:04½, lapped hy Ecstasy, who carried her to a break at tha three-quarters, and, coming on, finished in the world's record time, 2:10½, distancing Bride Elect.

Chas. Marvin still holds tha record for driving tha fastest two-year old trotter in the world, Arion, 2:10¾.

Echoes From the Transylvania.

When Prodigal's four-year-old son, John Nolan, won the Transylvania this year he added a great deal of history to that already historical race. In the first place the horses starting in it had the fastest average records of any field that ever scored up for the word in the great stake. The race was won by a four-year-old gelding that started the year as a green horse. It was won in the fastest average for five heats ever trotted in a race. There was more money played on the race through the auction pools than ever before in its history, although it has long been considered the heaviest betting race of the year. Here are some of the comments on the race from Eastern turf papers:

"Eagle Flannagan won the first heat in 2:07¾. There are hundreds who believe that with Nolan out of it Eagle Flannagan could not have won. Grattan Boy and Pilatus were both able to beat him. It is believed, too, that could Miller have laid up Grattan Boy as Nolan was, he could have beaten even the four year old, and then there are others who believe Pilatus would have beaten the entire party had McDowell remained in the background until the fourth heat. Dione trotted the race of her life, but was outclassed. In every heat she was in front to the half. Equity was very lame when Geers warmed him up, and had to be drawn, leaving nine starters. The track was not fast; near the pole the footing was very soft. In the first heat Bingen, Eagle Flannigan and Dione fought from wire to wire, Eagle Flannigan winning by two lengths from Bingen, with Dione third and Grattan Boy fourth. There were many rumors afloat regarding John Nolan before the race was called. It is said that Foote received word from the Association that he would be severely dealt with if he resorted to laying up, and that Hubinger had decided to draw the gelding. Foote did deliberately lay up the first heat. At the end of the second he should have been declared distanced under the rule. In the heat in question Nolan broke on the lower turn when in fourth position and coming up fast. He did nothing but dance, and to save his chances Foote finally ran him to within the distance. Had Foote attempted to trot him home he would have been distanced to a moral certainty. John Nolan made a move for the third heat, and he won it after a keen race all the way. Eagle Flannigan was laid up while Pilatus and Grattan Boy raced with Nolan. All through the stretch they fought, Nolan finishing a length in front. Pilatus was second and Bingen third. Time 2:08½ In the fourth heat Eagle Flannigan and Pilatus hung to John Nolan all the way and the fourth driving finish resulted. Nolan won by three-quarters of a length, Pilatus being half a length in front of Eagle Flannigan. In this heat Hudson made too much of Eagle Flannigan. He trotted him outside of three horses down the back-stretch, around the lower turn and to the wire. The last heat was one of the most desperate ever seen on a race track. At the half the magnificent field of Dione, Pilatus, Bingen, Eagle Flannigan and John Nolan were together. In the next quarter Grattan Boy moved up and as they swung into the stretch this field of the six fastest horses ever seen in a race, was all bunched. It was a whipping fight home, first one and then the other showing in front. At the distance Nolan was in the lead, tired but game, and Foote driving him like a demon. Heads and necks separated four of them at the wire. Nolan had won by a nose from Grattan Boy, who was a head in front of Eagle Flannigan, and Pilatus fourth another head back."—American Sportsman.

I am not going to attempt to present an argument that the best horse did not win the Transylvania, but I must in all fairness say that it was through the good graces of the judges that he did, for if the role had been applied, John Nolan would have been marked "Dis" in the summary at the conclusion of the second heat. He made a break at about the five-eighth post and ran the entire distance to save himself from a shut out, and in this manner landed on the right side of the flag.—Driftwood in Horse World.

Well Bred Youngsters.

Down at the Vioget Farm at Lawrence, Santa Clara county there are being worked nearly twenty head of youngsters by Wild Boy (son of Gen. Benton and Wildflower) and Eros, Electioneer's son that sired Dione, 2:09¼. These colts and fillies are being got ready for the combination sale which takes place in this city next Thursday at Killip & Co's salesyard. They are a very choice lot of youngsters and there are several fast ones among them. That well known trainer and driver John S Phippen, who handled the trotters at Palo Alto Stock Farm for many years writes to us that he has been down at Lawrence for a few days assisting Mr Vioget in handling some of them and he says: "They are a very desirable lot. I don't know when I have seen a lot of colts that gave more promise of speed. I hope they will fall into the hands of men who will give them a chance on the turf, as they are sure to give a good account of themselves." Such an endorsement from Mr. Phippen should carry great weight. At this same sale Mr K. O'Grady, of San Mateo, will offer a lot of choicely bred ones by Hart Boswell, and one by that coming great sire Monaco. That fine road and race mare Mia Louise 2:15½, by Steinway, out of Addie Ash, by Indianapolis, is to be sold at this sale. She is a fine individual and should pace a great deal lower than her mark. She can show a quarter in 30 seconds at any time and is all right. She is a great prospect for 1899.

In addition to this fine lot of trotting-bred horses, there will be a number of draft horses belonging to J. Naglee Burke, and seven or eight general purpose horses consigned to this sale by Mrs. F. Johnson.

This is an important sale, and those wanting good sound young horses to drive on the road, race or to send to the breeding farm should not miss this sale. The salesyard is on the corner of Market street and Van Ness avenue, the firm is the old reliable auction firm of Killip & Co., which has been in existence for many years in California and handles all the principal sales on this coast.

The horse is still on top. In New York last week a policeman driving a cab horse captured a thief in a motor carriage after a chase of a few blocks.

Some Theories of Horseshoeing.

[BY W. HUNTING.]

A great difficulty in the science of horseshoeing is to fairly test any method. A scientific test is one so arranged as to avoid as far as possible all sources of error, and repeated so often as to be certain that no error has been overlooked. Some questions have been tested. Many still require exact research. Daily experience at the forge is open to grave error. Few men possess the brains necessary for correct observation of simple facts. They overtook important details, allow prejudice to mislead them and draw conclusions which are entirely illogical. In America great attention has been paid to the action of the horse. So carefully prepared tracks horses have been paced in every way and instantaneous photography has been used to gain exact knowledge of the animals movements. The footprints have been measured and deductions made. Some similar work is required with horses shod and unshod or shod in various ways. Everyone can tell us that shoeing affects the relative position of the bones of the limb and even the movements during progression. Unfortunately we all differ in our conclusions and explanations and each man adduces proofs from his own experience. When the so-called experience is examined it is found full of possibilities of error. Exact tests are wanted and these we have not.

Let us just glance at some theories which have been asserted and denied over and over again; which have formed the basis of systems of shoeing and so did good or harm as their value has been correctly or incorrectly interpreted.

The theory of expansion.—For over a hundred years the question has been debated—Does the foot of the horse expand during progression when the weight of the animal is placed upon it, and contract when the weight is removed?

Careful, honest men, sound, practical men, highly trained, scientific men have ranged themselves on each side and assertion and denial have alternated. Measurements were made by means of callipers by tracings on paper, by tape and string. Great care was taken by all sides to measure the foot off the ground and on the ground. What was the result? Some said the foot on its ground surface does not expand or contract, others said it expands, whilst another party asserted that it contracted.

In recent years the question has been tested in Germany by Professor Lungwitz and in England by Veterinary-Captain Smith. These observers used apparatus with fine electrical adjustments which leave a little room for doubt as to what really takes place. Their work shows that the old observers were possibly all correct and that the structure of his foot has a good deal to do with the movement. Some feet expand, some contract and some are neutral. A good sound foot, the frog of which takes a bearing on a level surface, does expand when the weight of the horse rests fully upon it. If, however, the heels are high and the frog takes no bearing then the hoof contracts. Between these two extremes there may be a neutral state. Of course this movement is interesting and important in relation to horseshoeing only as it effects the bearing surface of the hoof. The movement at the coronet is too apparent to be the subject of dispute. The expansion theory is now settled and the degree of expansion is so slight that it may be safely ignored as a factor in the art of shoeing. The expansion is about equal in extent to the thickness of a sheet of writing paper.

What a lot of erroneous practice has been based upon this theory! Shoes to cure all evils by permitting expansion were invented. Some had hinges or joints at the toe, some were made in a series of movable sections. Others, again, attempted to give freedom to the foot by having the nails placed on one side only. Still others, who recognized that loose shoes were too common with the unilateral nailing, attempted to allow expansion by keeping the nails well forward. Miles, who wrote on the subject some 30 years ago, argued that if there were expansion of the hoof there must be movement of the arch of the sole at the same time. He was right. There is a little, but not so much as to warrant his advice that the sole should be pared so thin that it might yield easily.

Descent of the heels is another theory upon which an important detail of shoeing was founded. It was noticed that when a shoe was so applied to a hoof that a slight space existed between the extremity of the shoe and the horn of the heels the space was almost obliterated when the weight of the horse rested on the shoe. This is a fact which anyone may see, but from the fact a deduction was made that nature had formed the back parts of the hoof elastic and yielding to allow this downward action. It was erroneously assumed that even when the whole foot took a level bearing, the heels yielded downward, and a theory was framed that this descent was the cause of corns.

Upon this stupid theory was founded the practice of fitting shoes at the heels so that a space of an inch or an inch and a half took no contact with the hoof. For a whole generation in London this practice was accepted as sound and scores of horses were lamed as the result.

Frog pressure is not a theory, but it has been a frequent and vexatious bugbear to farriers. At one time the idea was held that the frog could not stand pressure and should not come in contact with the ground.

At another, frog pressure was insisted upon as a first necessity in shoeing. To gain frog pressure, heels were overlowered as though heels were of no consequence and frogs alone were essential.

The fact is, the frog will stand pressure and should always have a bearing, but its action should be only what is afforded by structural soundness and relative proportions of all parts of the foot.

Perhaps at the present time there is no subject on which more undigested and inexact theories exist than that of "The regulation of conformation and action by shoeing."—Horseshoers Journal.

A very handsome souvenir edition has just been issued by the Horseshoers Journal of Detroit. It contains many valuable articles written by expert shoers and veterinarians and its front page is adorned with a beautiful colored picture of Directum Kelly, 2:08¼.

The New Standarde.

Those wishing to register their trotting or pacing bred stock should do so before November 1st. Many animals are eligible now that will not be after that date, and the fee on animals over two years old is to be doubled. The following will be the rules of the new standard:

THE TROTTING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard-bred trotter:

2.—A stallion sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, and he himself has a trotting record of 2:30 and is the sire of three trotters, with records of 2:30 from different mares.

3.—A mare whose sire is a registered standard trotting horse, and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, provided she herself has a trotting record of 2:30 or is the dam of one trotter with a record of 2:30.

THE PACING STANDARD.

2—A stallion sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, and he himself has a pacing record of 2:25, and is the sire of three pacers with records of 2:25, from different mares.

3—A mare whose sire is a registered standard pacing horse and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, provided she herself has a pacing record of 2:25, or is the dam of one pacer with a record of 2:25.

4—A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided she is the dam of two pacers with records of 2.25.

4—A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided her first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard pacing horse.

6—The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse out of a registered standard pacing mare, or of a registered standard pacing horse out of a registered standard trotting mare. Any animal that cannot be registered as standard under the above rules can be registered in the non-standard department.

Double fee for animals over two years old.

At the same meeting the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That on and after November 1, 1898, the fees charged for registration of all animals over two (2) years of age shall be double the regular fees (the age of animals to be computed from the first day of January in the year in which they were foaled)

Applications for registration as standard under the rules now in force should be sent in prior to November 1st next. Should anything be lacking to properly complete these applications for registration, ample time will be given to secure lacking proof, etc.

Registration blanks will be promptly mailed.

Respectfully, J. H. Steiner.

Sulky Notes.

JOHN NOLAN was registered when a colt under the name Free Liver.

EAGLE FLANAGAN has been a half mile, timed by quite a number of watches in 1:01.

WHEN they want to lay Rilma up a heat they take off her toe-weights.—Boston Globe.

NANCY HANKS, 2:04, has a weanling by Bingen, 2:06¾, and a two-year-old by Arion, 2:07¾.

J. O. CHANDLER of Kentucky has bought the California gelding Dr. Leek, 2:11¼, by Sidney.

BUMPS won $3,000 more than his entrance money this year, although he did not win a race.

IT is said 80,000 people were on the St. Louis Fair Grounds when Star Pointer paced against the record.

MR. H. M. HANNA will succeed the late Col. Edwards as President of the Cleveland Driving Park Association.

THE trotting season of 1898 is ended. It has not been half as bad in California as some of the papers have painted it.

THE leader was down to the half in the first two heats of the Transylvania in 1:03, and in the last three heats in 1:03¾.

MANY a horseman will be out on a still hunt the coming winter for money-earning material to campaign next season.

THE Ohio trotter Percy, by Sidney, will be one of the year's greatest race winners. He has won close to ten races so far.

IMPETUOUS 2:13, will be bred to Prodigal 2:16, sire of John Nolan. Ecstasy (2) 2:10½, is out of the dam of Impetuous.

GEERS thinks Bingen would have lowered the stallion record at Louisville had the son of May King been forced to his limit.

ALL of the horses belonging to the late Col. William Edwards will be sold in one of the New York sales of Wm. B. Fasig & Co.

SECRETARY GOCHER, of the National Trotting Association, has run down half a dozen ringers within the past month in the East.

ALL the outside watches caught Directly in 2:02¾ when he won the third heat at Louisville which the records show was paced by him in 2:03¼.

J. B. IVERSON will very likely send Prince Gift, 2:12, East next season to trot for some of the big purses hung up on the Eastern circuits.

W. E. SPEIR, of Glen Falls, N. Y., has purchased Mary Celeste, 2:17½, the two-year-old daughter of Ora Wilkes, who was a winner at Louisville.

THE fact that more successful harness horse meetings have been held this year in the East than for five years past speaks well for the future of the industry.

SAM CASTO is at Irvington now with a stable of young trotters and pacers. He has a full brother and sister to Chebalis, 2:01½, and a half-sister to Ella T., 2:08

SPAIN, the pacer owned by Elwood Smith, Wilkesbarre, Pa., now has a mark of 2:17½. On his water-pail are the words, "My name is Spain, but I'm no Spaniard."

THE Selma wintered horses made a poor showing this season, and it is doubtful if as many will be wintered there this year. It is reported that the Hamlin string will not go South again.

ONE of Oregon's promising youngsters is Alta Dell, by Holmdel—Dwina, by Altamont. She has taken a record as a three-year-old this season of 2:18¾, and is owned by Mr. Karster, Reedville.

PRODIGAL has seven new performers this year, six of whom are trotters, and the average of their records is 2:14, 63-100 seconds, and the average of their ages 3-2-7 years. No other stallion ever equaled this.

ANDY MCDOWELL has sold the stallion Oslund L., 2:16½, by Lockheart, which he purchased recently. It is said he got $3,000 for the horse or about double what he paid for him. Oslund L. will go to Russia.

THOSE drivers who were forced to contribute to the National Association treasury during the recent Los Angeles meeting, are all agreed that it was one of the finest meetings they had attended for a long time.

THE horses belonging to Roosevelt's rough riders have all been sold at auction in New York At the close of the sale the auctioneer announced that 1070 horses brought a total of $31,070. The horses brought $5 to $40 per head and averaged $29 per head. Only a few of the horses went to Cuba

MISS MARGARET, by Direct, made her first start of the year at the Greensburg Pa., meeting, and won a heat in 2:16. In the next trip she stepped to the half in 1:05½ and was just beaten by Sir Alcantara in 2:13½.

THE fastest time average of sire and son is held by Direct, 2:05½, and Directly, 2.03¼, pacers. The average is 2:04¾. Among the trotters the fastest average of sire and son is that of Arion, 2:07¾, and Nico, 2:08½, being 2:08.

WARREN STONER, son of the late R. G. Stoner, will have a trotting stable out next year. He has engaged Jack Curry as trainer. It is said young Stoner will also start a stock farm and will purchase Oakland Baron 2:09¼ from the Stoner estate.

AT the coming National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, the trotting classes will be judged by Major P. P. Johnston, of Lexington, Ky.; Mr. S. H. Rundle, Danbury, Ct., the owner of Quartermaster, 2:21½, and Mr. Albert C. Hall, New York.

MANY trainers have already expressed a desire to train their horses at Pleasanton track this winter if they can get stable room in the town. The outlook is for more horses to be in training in California next spring than have been seen on the tracks in years.

HORSES are advancing in price in California as well as in other sections of the country. A consignment of general purpose and road horses sold in San Francisco this week brought just about double the price a similar consignment brought here a year ago.

AN Eastern association tried the plan this year of setting aside the last day of its meeting for consolation races, the purses offered being competed for solely by horses that had won nothing during the week. The plan worked well and gave general satisfaction.

MUCH BETTER acts as though she were raced to death. She was one of the most perfect drivers and best of actors early in the season, but at Los Angales performed like a track-sour horse and refused to score. She is two hundred pounds lighter than when the season opened.

THE Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association was particularly unfortunate to have such weather during its meeting. This is said to be the first time for fifteen years that the rain has interfered with the Breeders meeting at Lexington—the greatest harness horse meeting held in the United States.

JAMES THOMPSON, of Stockton, who had Little Thorne and other good horses on the circuit this year, has leased the track at Lodi and will put it in shape for training purposes this winter. There is stable accommodation at that track for a large number of horses, and it is one of the best winter tracks in the State.

A correspondent at Portland, Oregon, wants to know the record of Solo, bay mare by McKinney. Her record is 2:25¾, made in this city July 1, 1896, in the third heat of a race in which she beat Clay S., Addison, Ellert and Donatrine. She has not been in training this year but is said to be much faster than her record.

ON the authority of Eastern correspondents who went into all the particulars, we published the rumor that Searchlight had been sold to Senator McCarthy, of New York, for $12,000, and all the Eastern turf papers also published the statement. Both Thos. Keating and the Senator now deny that the trade was made.

DIRECTINA, 2:16¾, the four-year-old filly by Direct, 2:05½, out of Stemwinder, dam of Directum, 2:05¼, was shipped East to her new owner week before last. The handsome little mare made the trip in an express car attached to the express train and went through to New York in five days, and the price of her ticket was in the neighborhood of $600.

ONCE in a while an owner is found who has the good judgment not to drill a fast colt to death. Mr. Streetir of Kalamazoo, owner of Peter the Great, 2:12½, only started the colt once in his two-year-old form, and then he was second in the Kentucky Futurity for two-year-olds. This year he has started but once, and he won the three-year-old Futurity as he pleased.

J. S. TAYLOR, of Napa, has a yearling filly by Prince Airlie, son of Guy Wilkes, out of Pamela, by Regal Wilkes that he purchased at the Corbitt dispersal sale. Mr. Taylor has got her thoroughly broken, and drives her from his place to town, a distance of three miles, three times a week. She shows that she has speed, though never allowed to display much of it.

W. O. FOOTE, driver of John Nolan 2:08 and Rilma 2:09½, says that if Rilma entirely recovers from a slight injury received by striking herself in the 2:08 trot the other day, the first good day and track at the present Lexington meeting he will hitch the two to pole and make a trial for the team record for trotters, which is now 2:12¼, held by Belle Hamlin and Honest George, made in 1892.

VILLAGE FARM, Buffalo, has been comparatively unfortunate this year, yet at that, at the close of the Grand Circuit it heads the list of winners, with $24,825. James Butler is second with $15,400, and would probably have been at the head if Directum Kelly had not been taken sick and Gayton got cut down. The biggest winning sire of the year is Marcus Daly's Prodigal, by Pancoast, dam Beatrice, by Cuyler. His get won $16,150, of which John Nolan landed over $11,000.

A GENTLEMAN tourist was taking in the sights of the city the other day. One place he visited was an immense bonded warehouse. The goods of all kinds stored therein and particularly a cargo of barrels upon barrels of the finest and best of whiskies, wines, liquors, etc., etc, excited his interest and thirst, he being of convivial nature, he exclaimed in a looging voice, "Ah! just for a spigot and glass, I'd then give you an imitation of pouring oil in a rusty lock." His companion put him on. Go to 863 Market street "Among the Barrels" and help yourself. *

ON the day that Harry Stinson's two-year-old filly Mary Celeste won the $2000 Matron Stake at Louisville, her dam and her yearling sister were led into the Hedges sale ring in New York. The dam, only seven years old, and by Guy Wilkes, dam by Director, brought $130, and the yearling sister was knocked down for $90.

MARCUS DALY will sell in New York City next November the entire string of young trotters that he has campaigned so successfully in the Grand Circuit this season. Cuprum 2:12½, Improvidence 2:13½, Laurels 2:15½ and Limerick 2:19¾ are among the fast ones in the lot. All are by Mr. Daly's horse Prodigal 2:16, the sire of John Nolan 2:08.

THREE horses owned by members of the Golden Gate Driving Club had a hot race last Saturday. They were J. Ohlandt's Haviland, driven by Gen. Berry; E. Aigeltinger's Our Joe, driven by Dan Misner, and R. Johnson's Way Boy driven by the owner. The race came off at Alameda and was for $25 a corner. Haviland won the first heat, with Our Joe second and Way Boy, owing to an accident to his harness, a very poor third. Way Boy won the next two heats, Our Joe being second in the second heat and last in the third heat. The track was very cuppy and slow.

WE learn from James Sullivan, who returned from Los Angeles the early part of this week, that the officers of the Sixth District Association reinstated Driver W. G. Durfee after the close of the meeting there. All horsemen having an acquaintance with the young man will be glad to learn this. It has taught him a lesson that he will not soon forget, that one of the first things a young driver must learn is that he must show respect to the judges and other track officials. Mr. Durfee has the making of a splendid driver and trainer, and with the warning given should go on and accomplish a great deal on the circuit next year.

MR N. A. COVARRUBIAS, the genial director of the Sixth District Agricultural Association at Los Angeles is quite a horseman. He owns a pair of three-year old pacers that are destined to his money winners if put in training next year. One is by Hugo, out of a mare by Benefit, the other by Corinel out of a mare by Salisbury. Both these youngsters have paced an eighth in 16 seconds barefooted. Mr. Covarrubias has a pair of black road horses that are considered the best broke team in Los Angeles. They are perfectly matched and can road better than three minutes. In his stable there is a carriage team of pure white horses, with heavy manes and tails which sweep the ground. These beautiful horses are as gentle as kittens and are driven by Mrs. Covarrubias.

FARMER BUNCH has returned from Los Angeles. He visited this office as soon as he arrived in the city to tell us that the judges were right in fining him that $100 for laying up a heat the last day of the meeting down there. "It was this way," said the Farmer with a smile on his face. "When we were warming up Our Jack was trotting like a streak of greased lightning and we all knew that he could beat every one of us if he acted well. My old horse weighs 1400 pounds and did not suit me. I thought Our Jack would beat me on his merits, so I did not try very hard, but he got to acting badly, did not trot worth a cent and I was caught. I paid the fine, thanked the judges for imposing it and in the next three heats I went out with my horse and won. The fine was all right and taught me a lesson."

MR. JOHN DINUE, the Pooh Bah of the California trotting tracks who fills the offices of marshal, assistant starter, superintendent of the paddock, distance judge, patrol judge, or any other old duty that he is called upon to perform, is back from Los Angeles. Jack says that while the meeting was not as largely attended as in former years, there was a fair crowd each day and some excellent racing. He also brought the news that it is the intention of the Los Angeles Association to give a big fair next year, with liberal premiums for all sorts of agricultural products, and a better racing program than has ever been offered in Southern California. This, of course, provided the fair appropriations are restored. Mr. Dinue says that he saw the pacing stallion, Silkwood, 2:07, while down there, and that he looks better than he ever did in his life and will be campaigned next year.

THE following report comes from Hornellsville, New York of the accident which happened two California horses two weeks ago: "A serious wreck occurred on the Erie R. R. near Belmont as a result of which two valuable horses are laid up in this city. They are Arthur L., 2:15, by Direct 2:05½, out of Nellie, 2:26, by Geo. M. Patchen, and Toots, by Monbars, 2:11¾, out of tha same dam. They are the property of Louis Schaffer, of Oakland, Cal., and are here in charge of their driver, David Herspring. Arthur L. is a black stallion six years old and is almost the counterpart of his sire Direct. He made his record as a three-year-old and had worked a trial in 2:07½. He is badly injured about the knees and has a strained tendon, while his stable companion Toots, is injured in the loin and had his tail broken. Toots was a green horse, but very promising and was fully as fast as Arthur L. They were en route to New York, but will probably never race again.

IRAN ALTO, son of the dead champion, Palo Alto, 2:08¾, trotted to a record of 2:13¾ in a winning race at the Los Angeles meeting. Iran Alto was foaled in 1892 and trotted to a record of 2:19½ in his three-year-old form, starting six times that year and not winning a race until late in the season when he won a stake for three-year-olds at Los Angeles in straight heats, getting his mark of 2:19½ in the second heat. He was not campaigned in 1896. He started in ten races in 1897, and failed to reduce his record, in fact he did not win a heat that year. This year he won a dash race at Oakland in 2:22½. At Sacramento he started once in a dash race, but did not finish better than fourth, the mile being trotted in 2.17. Iran Alto got into first class condition when he reached Los Angeles, and in the race won by him there he was ready to trot for a man's life. The heat that he won in 2:13¾ he was pulled almost to a walk and could have trotted the mile in 2:12 or better. He is a better horse now than he ever was, and, like his illustrious sire, has not come to his speed early. It will be remembered that Palo Alto took his record of 2:08¾ when he was nine years old. If Iran Alto keeps right it is thought he can trot into the 2:10 list next year with ease. He has been to the half in 1:0[illegible] year in a race.

MR CORRIGAN INJURED.

Elward Corrigan may have cause to long remember, in an unpleasant way, the day of the Stallion Stakes, at Hawthorne, says Daily Racing Form of October 11th. Resting easily in a big arm chair in a room at the Great Northern Hotel, he last evening, wrapped in a blanket and attired in a negligee shirt, told the story of the accident which has for the time being disabled him.

"We were late," said he 'in leaving the city for the track. Sam Ecker—you know him, an old time turfman from St. Louis—and I started from the hotel in my buggy at 1:25 P. M. Of course we were going along some. A man who has but little time is apt to drive fast—maybe covering a mile in three and a half minutes. When between Halstead street and Ashland avenue, on Jackson boulevard, out of a side street came a little woman (they tell me that grandmothers now ride wheels) that looked to me like a little old setting hen. I pulled out so as to save her life and she ran on ahead of us:

'I had noticed a man driving a heavy side bar buggy on the left and quite a bit ahead, and now we had nearly come abreast of him. This man pulled over to the right (my position was near the right curbstone) and there was nothing left for me to do but to run into him or kill the old lady. So into him I went. Hort him? I guess so, as he was picked up unconscious. My left wheel ran over his right hind one and along we tilted and jolted striking the ground all together about thirty-five feet from where the collision occurred. I fell underneath Ecker, who weighs over 200 pounds, and down came the buggy wheels on top of us. The horse stopped in going twelve feet. Did anyone catch him? I should say not! I had hold of the reins, one in each hand, and with me pulling and the weight of the whole works on the hit he couldn't be expected to run far could he?

Well, the first thing I heard was, "It's Corrigan," and "Get the horse by the head." Then they lifted off Ecker, (who was knocked senseless) and the balance of my load. And do you know, it seemed as if I would never get free. I was conscious but couldn't speak or move hand or foot. Finally they got me on to the curb and a lady gave me a cup of water which revived me. When Sam came to, we compared notes and finding no bones broken, he called a carriage and went to the race track. Sam had his leg and his arm cut but we took a stiff horn of liquor and both stayed out the afternoon. When we reached town, my! but I was stiff and sore. Sam went home, and leaving me said, 'Ed, I'll see you in the morning.' I laughed as well as I could. (There! I got the worst of it just then.) Mr. Corrigan had coughed and the effort set him writhing, and said, "No! Sam, I guess you won't get around for a few days, no more than I shall. Then I went to my room and here I am apt to stick for a few days."

The injured horseman cannot use his right arm and said that his ribs on the right side and all feel as if they were alive every time he stirs. He said that in all his experience he never before was thrown from a buggy and injured and wound up with, "I wish they would keep old ladies from riding bicycles.

New Grounds for the State Fair.

The Superior Court of Sacramento county made an order last Wednesday directing the State Agricultural Society to sell Agricultural Park, The Legislature of 1897 passed an act authorizing the Society to file a petition in the Superior Court asking leave to do this. The petition was filed shortly after the adjournment of the Legislature and since then the Society's attorneys have been busy perfecting the title. Superior Judge Johnson declared the title to the property clear, and appointed W. E Gerber, cashier of the California State Bank, as commissioner for the purpose of making the sale. Gerber's bonds are fixed at $90,000.

Under the decree of the Court the property must be sold at private sale, either in parcels or as a whole, as may be most advantageous. All bids received must be reported to the Court and it will determine whether the prices offered are reasonable. If the Court determines that the price is not reasonable, a new sale is to be made.

Steps to sell the property will be taken at once. When these grounds were laid out in the early history of Sacramento they were far outside the city limits. Year after year the town grew out toward the grounds until to-day they are in the very heart of the residence portion. The property covers sixteen city blocks and is considered very valuable. The estimated value of it is $90,000, although it is confidently expected that much more than this will be realized. To insure purchasers that the title under this sale may be good, the State guarantees the title to be perfect or if for any reason the title is found defective, purchasers may obtain their money back if they make claim therefore within five years.

The sum realized from the sale of this property, according to the provisions of the act, are to be paid into the State Treasury, to be drawn out again upon the requisition of the directors of the Agricultural Society for the purchase of new grounds. The present intention of the State Board of Agriculture is to purchase and fit up new grounds as soon as the old grounds are sold, and members of the Board say that the new grounds will be situated either within the city limits or adjoining the city. They predict that the purchase will be made in time to have the new grounds in shape for the State Fair next year.

Betting on Races by System.

An eastern writer who has evidently had experience in the line whereof he writes asks a question that annually perplexes thousands of hopeful turf tenderfeet and sums up his conclusions as follows:

"Is it possible to devise a system to beat the races?

"Thousands of people who have pored over turf statistics during long winter nights firmly believe that systematic play will win. Many others who have paid some attention to the laws of chance or to the vagaries of luck, to put the matter more plainly, are not so sanguine.

"That much time and thought are annually expended in the development of 'systems' is certain, and that some of these hard and fast methods of betting achieve at least temporary success is also certain. But this ready road to fortune is strewn with the wreckage of countless hoarded savings, and it is yet to be demonstrated that anyone has stood the crucial test for any period of time.

"The simplest form of systematic betting is that of parleying over the mounts of some particular jockey. That is, you begin with a specified sum, say $10, and if you lose double your bet or increase it sufficiently at each new hazard to win back your losses and a stated sum besides. This scheme, like a good many others, is all right—if it is lucky.

"For example, any follower of Maher would have won all through the season up to the period three or four weeks ago, when Maher began to lose. The Bank of England would scarcely have tided the daring speculator over Maher's succession of twenty-three losing mounts.

"Systems of parleying over the favorites or the second choices are winning. But when outsiders land in front, as they did the first days of the Gravesend meeting, then the prospect is not quite so cheerful.

"You can prove anything by figures. You can work out a system of betting based on favorites and second choices that will put you in the mood to look with pity on the demented folk around you who continue to work for a living. Your system is perfect—on paper—but when you come to put is into practical operation, that is quite another matter. Score of contingencies not provided for in the figures will confront you at every turn.

"Among two or three well-backed horses you will find it difficult, for example, to decide on the particular one that is favorite. And you cannot afford to make a mistake if your system demands that you should bet a big amount of money, say $1,000 or more.

"A scheme of betting that has some merit was put in operation a few years ago by a couple of clever young men from Brooklyn. But there was not very much 'system' about it after all. It was merely a matter of betting on form. The card each day was 'doped' down to from three to four selections in each race, according to the number of entries, first, second, third and fourth.

"Then the young men began betting on the first choices to win $10, and they kept doubling up for six races, when, if they failed to strike a winner, they began over again. A similar practice was pursued with the horses named to be second, third and fourth. The transactions were carried in column account form, and a separate account was kept for each column.

"The feature of the plan that permitted its successful operation for a time was the fact that frequently big bets placed on the third and fourth horses at profitable odds happened to win.

'Undoubtedly handicapping and the study of form, condition and price are the best guides to betting. If the average man can't beat the races by betting on the best horses, he can't beat them at all. The handicappers, some of whom have grown rich in the last few years, hold to this proposition. They assume that the best horse will win.

'Of course, the best horses do not always win, but they win a big majority of the races, and if a man can successfully handicap to the best form, and bet that way, he is pretty certain to make a brave fight with the layer of odds, even if he does not beat them appreciably.

"A clever young handicapper has won handsomely this season through his judgment of form and of price. When he handicaps three or four horses very nearly together, jockeys and other conditions being equal, instead of betting on one that is favorite, or second choice, he bets on one that is at a long price, 10 or 15 or 20 to 1. Of course, he only wins occasionally, but one can afford to lose quite a number of races if he can land on a 20 to 1 shot once in a while.

"This seems to be the real secret of successful betting. Suppose, for example, that there are ten horse in a race. Your handicap shows that the contest ought to be between four of them, and these four are very close together, not more than two or three pounds between any of them. Suppose, further, that one is a favorite in the betting 7 to 5, another second choice at 5 to 2, that the third is quoted at 10 to 1, and the fourth at 20 to 1.

"If your handicap is correct, then these prices are obviously wrong, because there is not the difference of 7 to 5 and 20 to 1 between any of the quartet. Therefore when you bet on the 10 to 1 horse, or on the 20 to 1 horse, you are simply betting against the bookie. You are betting that your handicap is right and that his prices are wrong. And if you are a clever handicapper you are bound to be financially right sometimes, because the result will demonstrate that the odds quoted were wrong.

"When a man bets on the favorite the percentage is against him, but when he bets on the outsider that ought to be favorite, then it looks as though the percentage is with him and against the man who lays the odds.

Travereer's Career.

Traverser, chestnut son of imported Rossington and Betsy Broeck, by Ten Broeck, fell dead in a race at Chicago one day last week, death being caused by the breaking of a blood vessel. Traverser had a checkered career.

As a yearling he brought $100 at a New York sale and was soon after shipped to Bermuda. Later he reappeared in New York, the property of two sporting men, who, being short of money, mortgaged him for a small sum. The paper and the colt came into the possession of ex-Mayor Graham and he sent him to Bradley to train, giving him a half-interest.

When Traverser was installed at Saratoga early in the spring of 1897, he was a skeleton, but being sound he soon began to take on flesh, and in galloping him Bradley early discovered that he was possessed of remarkable speed. He took the colt with the rest of his stable to Detroit, intending to effect a coup with him, but sending him to the post at Highland Park before he was ready, he was beaten by Benhadad August 26, 1897. Then followed a succession of victories, and he was soon heralded as the Hamburg of the West. Not content with ruoning Traverser in every race to which he was eligible on the tracks near Detroit, Bradley shipped him from Windsor the evening after he had won a race to Chicago in a box car by freight. He reached here in the morning and won a stake at Harlem in the afternoon, and was reshipped the same day back to Windsor, and won a stake there the afternoon of the day he reached Canada. Without a single night's rest on the ground he was reshipped to Harlem, and three days later ran unplaced in the Speed stakes, in which he met Flora Louise, Bock Massie, Gath, Ahuse and other sprinters. He was off badly or he would doubtless have made a better showing. Bradley continued to drill the colt, and he won a number of races.

James McCormick, trainer for Burns & Waterhouse offered $10,000 for Traverser, but he was not for sale. Late in the fall, however, he leased the colt until May 1, 1898, for a consideration, Bradley to receive 60 per cent of the purses owned by the colt. He was then taken to California and given a rest.

As a three-year-old he won for his trainer a number of valuable stakes and handicaps, defeating the best colts of his own age, as well as horses in the elder division. He won the California Derby and was accepted as the best three-year-old on the Coast. Burns & Waterhouse again tried to buy him, but failing, they returned him to Bradley. Bradley began to race him on the Eastern tracks, but he was stale and a fortunate accident to one of his legs forced his owner to let up on him. Bradley shipped him to Washington park, and before the soreness was gone out of the injured leg he began racing him. The failures of the colt this season are well known to racegoers, but he was nevertheless a popular favorite, and he will be missed by many lovers of the thoroughbred.

Champion Sprinters to Meet.

At Tacoma, Washington, to-day, three of the fastest sprinters in America are to meet in a race for $250 a corner. The horses to enter this contest, which will be over a half-mile course, are Arabian Prince, Fanny Lee and Wild Girl. Arabian Prince is the champion of Montana, having defeated all comers. In the course of his career, which has covered a long time, Prince has never been beaten. Fanny Lee is considered the fastest trick in the State of Washington. The California mare, Wild Girl, is owned at Stockton, and out of twenty-two starts she has been defeated only once, which was by Cyclone. She has encountered some of the swiftest sprinting talent on the coast, and her record shows that she has more than held her own. She is owned by the Boden brothers. B. Boden left last Tuesday for the north to ride her in the contest. Her weight will be 118 pounds. Each party will put up $250, and the winner will take it all. Win or lose, the Bodens will run Wild Girl against the time made in the race, and will bet that she can beat it by two seconds. They are sanguine of winning and lowering the time as well

It Never Fails to Cure.

Sinkin, Mo. Nov. 10, 1897.

The Caustice Balsem you sent me is the best liniment I ever saw. It is all that you claim for it. I have tried it on horses, and my family have used it, and it never fails to cure. I do not intend to be without it. I am doing all I can for it but people are afraid of it. EUGENE STEERS.

No occasion to be afraid, as it is absolutely a safe and reliable remedy for any one to use—L. W. Co.

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well-known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bell Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches, it has no equal.

Saddle Notes.

THE racing season will open one week from to-day.

DICK CLAWSON will be back in California in about two weeks.

HARRY KUHL will be associate judge at Ingleside during the P. C. J. C. meeting this winter.

THE imported stallion, Dandy Diumont, was sold at the Belle Meade sale for $1,500, and goes to Maplewood stud.

RILEY GRANNAN is said to he contemplating coming to California this winter for the purpose of booking over the races.

AN Australian breeder advertises for suggestions for names for a colt of Vanguard out of Vanity. How would Drum Major do?

FRED MULHOLLAND, the well-known turf writer, has returned from the Los Angeles meeting and resumed work on the Call.

HEADWATER, son of Watercress, is one of the best two-year-olds that has appeared in California since the close of the winter season.

VOLUME VII of the American Stud Book is now in the hands of the binders, and it is expected to be ready for delivery next week.

JOCKEY KING was indefinitely suspended at Los Angeles by the judges, and Judge Brooks says he shall not ride at tracks where he officiates.

MANY complimentary things are said of the boy Devin, who rode so well at the Los Angeles meeting. He is said to be a coming high-class jockey.

JAMES M. MURPHY has consigned his once great race horse, Buck Massie, to the Woodard & Shanklin December auction sale at Lexington, Ky.

M. LEAVITT, who has the program privilege at both tracks during the coming winter meeting, is a candidate for the Legislature in Alameda county.

STARTER JAMES F. CADWELL arrived in this city last Monday from Los Angeles where he officiated as starter during the meeting which closed last week.

JOCKEY JOHNNY MCDONALD, of California, was set down indefinitely by Judge Rees last week, at Hawthorne. It was for a very bad ride on Schorr & Son's Wilson.

J. STOBEY CURTIS, the South African millionaire, shipped his horses in training and yearlings from New York to England last Saturday. He has had little or no luck in this country.

IT is expected that between fifteen and twenty books will cut in the first day of the California Jockey Club's meeting, and that the number of odd makers will increase as the season progresses.

TOD SLOAN will return to this country next week, and it is said has persuaded Morington Cannon, one of the leading English jockeys, to accompany him hither to see how racing is carried on over here.

THERE is already a great deal of inquiry about the Ormonde yearlings to be sold by Killip & Co., live stock auctioneers, in this city next month. They are a grand looking lot and will be wanted by many.

R. Porter Asbe will have a string of racers at the local tracks this winter. If Rninart will stand the prep. he will be started. Don Fulano, Colonial Dame, Ballister and several others will be in the string.

AT the recent sale of yearlings and two-year-olds belonging to A. H. and D. H. Morris at Morris Park, John W. Schorr & Son paid top price, $950, for a chestnut colt by St. Florian from the famous race mare Reckon.

STARTER CALDWELL believes he can do better work with the recall flag than without it, but he will have to manipulate the gate under the original plan by which the raising of the barrier is final and not to be tried over.

ALL of Geo. Rose's book clerks leave Chicago to-morrow for the coast, but Mr. Rose will stay in the windy city until the racing there is over. It will crowd a Pullman to its full capacity to convey the clerks and their families hither.

ATTORNEY REEL TERRY, who is a pretty good judge of a horse himself, says that the youngsters by Gaston Asbe's stallion Homer are the finest looking lot he has ever seen. They are all strong, lusty looking fellows and look like race horses.

IT is pretty nearly a foregone conclusion that a large majority of the turfmen who race at all this winter will come to California instead of going to New Orleans. Not only has the fear of yellow fever induced many to turn this way, but the racing is much higher class here, and everything in the racing line conducted on a better plan. The weather is better here, the accommodations first class and the patronage of the tracks much larger than at New Orleans.

TRAVERSER, one of the best young horses that ever raced in the West and winner of the California Derby, burst a blood vessel in a race at Chicago, October 14th, and dropped dead on the track. It was a case of a good colt being simply raced to death.

THE race between cyclist J. S. Johnson and the thoroughbred horse Forhush, by Fred Knight, dam Isabella, at St. Louis on October 6 resulted in a winning for Forhush. The distance was one mile and Forhush's time was 1:42¾, while it took the cyclist 1:54 3 5 to go the route.

JOCKEY JESSE EVERETT will come to San Francisco to ride during the racing season here. He is in the employ of Rome Respess, but W. B. Sink Jr., will probably have second call on him here. Everett is said to be a good jockey and one of the most gentlemanly young fellows in the business.

J. T. WILLIAMS, one of the old guard of Southern turfmen, a man who owned the great gelding Checkmate and the crack colts Joe Cotton and Bob Miles, and who has at times filled the position of starter, is now living in Kentucky and engaged in the wholesale trade of the leading product of that State.

EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, has been appointed presiding judge at Ingleside, by the Pacific Coast Jockey Club. Mr. Smith combines a thorough knowledge of racing with a reputation for strict integrity and attention to detail in whatever he undertakes, and will make an excellent official.

BEFORE George Keene was claimed out of a selling race by Samuel Hildreth he ran in the colors of the Fleischmanns and his performances were none too consistent. He was always an uncertain quantity in a race, and his races were few and far between. At Morris Park, however, he has been entered almost every day since the meeting opened and has put up a good race each time and several times returned a winner.

TUESDAY, October 11th, the racing at Morris Park proved quite a triumph for Rancho del Paso, for of the six races five were won by animals bred at Mr. Haggin's California ranch. There were Julius Cæsar by Tyrant, Briar Sweet by Sir Modred, Sir Walter and Scotch Plaid by Midlothian, and Toluca by Nomad. Briar Sweet not only showed her heels to all the colts in the Dixiana Stakes, but conceded them weight. And yet there is a prejudice in this country against fillies.

THE death of Traverser has caused the excessive amount of racing required of the good colt to be brought to the front properly enough but in passing it may be remarked that there are others that are not allowed to eat the oats of idleness to any remarkable extent. There is the case of Espionage, for instance. She won October 6, ran unplaced October 10, won October 14, won October 14, won October 15, and was down to run again October 17. She is certainly required to pay her way about as harshly as Traverser ever was.

LA GOLETA, one of the products of the Baldwin ranch at Santa Anita, should win her share of the purses during the coming winter meeting here, if she keeps right. She beat a good field in the mile handicap at Los Angeles Saturday and ran the distance in 1:39¾, which is within half a second of the Coast record. Grady was second and Shasta Water third. During the meeting La Goleta ran five furlongs in 1:00 and seven furlongs in 1:26½. She is by Amigo, son of imp. Prince Charlie and Mission Belle, by Grinstead, out of Rosebud, a mare by Grinstead, and consequently a closely inbred filly.

THE special commissioner in the Sporting Life writes of Tod Sloan as follows: Sloan's judgment in race riding is marvelous. He keeps his opponents on the stretch—a horseman thorough from beginning to end. Whether his system will revolutionize jockeyship is another matter. But certain it is that our professors have much to learn as regards judgment in pace—which is at the little American's finger ends—the even way of getting the most of a miler at a mile, or the same on the T. Y. C. proportionately, is Tod Sloan's strong forte. There is no suspicion of gallery riding about him.

IT is said that Simms & Anderson, who secured from Tommy Burns' parents a contract for the lad's services for the next two years at $3500 a year, are willing to sell that contract for $16,000. Inasmuch as Burns has signed with Mr. Schorr for the next two years at $10,000 a year, the Simms & Anderson contract cannot be worth much. It is doubtful if the latter contract will stand. It ought not to stand, for it was secured without the boy's consent and at a figure far below his real worth. Burns' parents evidently did not know what a serious mistake they were making. Burns declares that he will stay on the ground rather than work for Simms & Anderson.

TULLA BLACKBURN, a great mare by the great race horse Luke Blackburn was sold at the Belle Meade sale October 14th for $7,500, being purchased by W. C. Whitney, Ex-Secretary of the Navy. One of the greatest three year-olds that has raced in the West this season is Candle Black, bay colt, by imp. Candlemas, out of Tulla Blackburn. He has won a number of races and has rarely been outside of the money. Candle Black is Tulla Blackburn's first foal. Tulla Fonso (2), her second foal, has been winning races right along this season, and is acknowledged to be the best two-year old in the West. Like her dam she has great speed and the stamina to carry it any distance.

EX-SECRETARY WHITNEY is now the owner of imp Meddler. At the sale of thoroughbreds belonging to Malcomb Forbes, Esq., held in New York, on Monday last Meddler was knocked down to Sidney Paget, acting for Mr. Whitney, for $49,000. Mr. Whitney now own besides Meddler, such good ones as Jean Beraud, Plaudit, Mr. Clay, High Degree, Sir Vassar, Geisha and several others. He states that with Mr. Paget he will begin breeding horses as well as racing them. They have already purchased several mares, among them Tulla Blackburn, Madam Reel and Helen Mar. It is not their purpose to breed exclusively, but will get together a choice lot of about twenty broodmares for their experimental stud.

IT has been proposed to the stewards of the New York Jockey Club that next season, when licenses are granted to owners, trainers and jockeys, a badge be issued which will be good on all tracks for the season. The idea of this is that when the officials suspend anyone so licensed, the penalty will include taking up the offender's badge while the suspension lasts. In this way the full sting of the punishment will be felt. Under the present system when a jockey is suspended he struts around posing as a martyr. Condolence is tendered from all quarters, and the result is they return to work swelled up with exalted views of their own importance. To refuse them admission to the grounds would be a lesson of the right sort and would surely have the desired effect.

ALVARADO II. won a remarkable hurdle race at Chicago, last week. Alvarado II. was schooled over the hurdles in California and started once. He was left at the post then, and when he did run he disgusted his trainer, Sam Hildreth, by faltering at every obstacle. Last week, W. B. Sink, Jr., decided to give him another trial. At the post Starter Brner told his assistants not to try to turn the old gelding, as he would swing around unaided, and when Alvarado was standing with his tail to the barrier the gate went up. McAuliff, the rider, made no effort to start until Mr. Sink yelled "Go after them." When Alvarado started he was twenty lengths behind the last horse. McAuliff rode him with judgment, and on the flat he soon made up the lost ground. At the fourth hurdle he was second and led by three lengths over the last one, winning with ease. The old gelding promises to be a success over the sticks.

CHARLES F. PRICE who will be Chief of the Board of Stewards for the California Jockey Club during the coming meetings, has gone on a visit to Los Angeles, where he has some old Louisville friends. Mr. Price is a very vigilant racing official and quick to detect anything wrong about a race. He watches the equipment of gallopers very closely. If a horse runs without blinkers one day, the next time has them on and wins, and the third time out is noticed without them, "something is liable to drap." The same applies to spurs or whip. From the time the horses come out of the paddock gate to go to the starting post until the winning post is passed, Mr. Price never takes his eyes off the bunch of horses and riders, and the probabilities are that his presence in the little box of a stand in the inclosure at Oakland will be exceedingly beneficial to those who want to "get a run for their coin," and correspondingly disastrous to the dealers in "mackerels."—Call.

IN its account of the race meeting held at Boise, Idaho, the Rural Spirit says: "Director Johnson made a ten strike when he secured P. F. Regan for a starter. Mr. Regan gave thorough satisfaction and did his utmost to conduct the races in a creditable manner. Several times he found it necessary to fine the jockeys, trainers and owners, but in no instances was the punishment unjust. If other starters were as impartial and strict as Mr. Regan racing would be better throughout the country. Professor L. D. Newman was secured as clerk of the course, and under his able management the events improved daily. The one noticeable and disagreeable feature of the races was the actions of several horseowners who resorted to touting. The better class, of course, abstained from such practices, but there were quite a number of small horsemen and, in one instance, the proprietor of a string of horses who did not consider it beneath his dignity to stoop to such methods. The managers have determined not to permit such a number of touts on the course next year as it injures the meeting."

APART the report that Morrie Park is to be cut up into building lots in the near future, Rider and Driver says: "We believe that no matter what may be the inclination of the widow and sons and daughter of the late John A. Morris, to control the property, the Westchester Racing Association and the Turf and Field Club are protected by a long lease of the property with the privilege of renewal. It speaks well for the sportsmanship of the Racing Association and the cleverness of the owners of the property that by a provision of the lease all but a very small percentage of the income goes to the maintenance and improvement of the property. On top of these disquieting reports in regard to the dissolution of Morris Park there also comes the consoling news, or rumor, or what not, that the Westchester Racing Association is about to consolidate with the New York Driving Club and hold trotting and running races, jointly, on a large piece of land recently purchased by a syndicate directed by ex-Corporation Counsel Wm. H. Clark, the syndicate property being on Yonkers avenue, between Yonkers and Mt. Vernon. All of these reports and rumors, however, are unofficial.

OF the fate of the mutuels at Latonia, the Enquirer says: "The mutuel machines have been once more stored away until some time in the indefinite future. The Latonia management announced some time ago that at the current meeting the public would be given an opportunity to 'make their own odds,' and to that end the mutuel machines were put on at the opening of the meeting. There were three machines in the line for the first two or three days, but the play in them was not sufficiently great to realize anything like running expenses from the five per cent commission charged. No attempt was made of any kind to discourage the public from playing in them, but it was evident from the first that they would not take. People would stand around and complain about the odds offered in the books, but instead of trying to remedy the evil of which they complained so much by going to the mutuels and playing on a 5 per cent basis, they continued to do their betting in the books for the single reason that they wanted to know when they bet just what odds they were getting against their money. The management to reduce expenses took off two machines, but even then the commissions on the play were not sufficient to pay the salaries of the force required to operate the machines, and finally, after a trial of eleven days at a considerable loss, the mutuels were abandoned entirely.

JOHN D. SIEBE, the present efficient Assessor of this city, and one of the most popular officials that ever filled that responsible position, is again a candidate for the office. His experience of two terms, and his proven integrity and fairness in making assessments of property are reasons for his re-election to the position. Mr. Siebe is one of those independent, self-reliant men, who knows his duty and dares [illegible] it. He should be kept in the Assessor's office another [illegible]

A FEELING OF CONFIDENCE in the future of the light harness horse industry prevades the country. Beyond the Rockies there are no doubts in the minds of any but the splendid showing made this year by the breeders, the associations and the horsee will be repeated on a still larger scale next year. The auction sales at Lexington proved that there is faith in the future, and that it extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. California is the only section of the country where harness race meetings have not shown an increased attendance over last year, and there are two good and sufficient reasons why this is the case—a drought which affected three-fourths of the State seriously, and the killing of the appropriation bill which made the agricultural fairs possible. But these are evils which will not exist next year. The rains will soon begin falling and then the pastures will be green with the life sustaining grassee, and the stock farms will take on renewed life. There will be more horses in training by the first of next May than have been seen on California tracks for three years past. Many of these horses will be trained for the purpose of making the trip across the continent where the big purses are to be found in profusion. With a new Governor in the chair who will recognize the value of the stock breeding intereste to the State and affix his signature to the bill which provides for the maintenance of the fairs, many of the horses which would otherwise be taken East, will remain in the State and compete for prizes at home. The outlook is most favorable for such a Governor being in the chair of State. From nearly every county there come reports that the horsemen and live-stock breeders are unanimous for Mr. Gage, because he has emphatically pledged his aid and support to the fairs, and they do not want to take any chancee of getting another enemy to their interests in that position. The feeling of confidence which pervades the industry is already manifesting itself in the values of horses with speed and fit to train. It will pay any breeder who owns good trotting-bred stock to begin early in the spring to break and train his three-year-olds and over, as there will certainly be a demand for all those which show speed. The manegere of fair grounds and race tracks should see that their property is put in order so that horses may be trained and raced thereon and a good, big circuit is almost sure to be arranged for next year in California. The Eastern salesrings will take many of the best young stock from this State this winter, Oakwood Park, Palo Alto and other large farms having already arranged to make shipments. Those who buy harness horses for racing purposes in the East are turning their eyes westward in search of new meterial to pit against those already sold from this section. There is no need of continuing our whistling to keep up our courage waiting for the tide to turn. It has already turned and California breeders must put themselves in position to take advantage of it. Prosperity is here in the harness horse business. To prove this, it is only necessary for a person to start out with the intention of finding a horse to enter in the races next year.

ENTRIES CLOSE TO-DAY for the stakes to be run during November and December at Ingleside track. The conditions of these stakes are set forth in the advertisement of the Pacific Coast Jockey Club in this issue. Do not let to-day go by without making your entries with Secretary Green.

The Lexington Herald of October 16th says: Mr. C. W. Williams, of Galesburg, owners of the famous Allerton, is here attending the trots, and when he returns home he will take with him 25 of Allerton's children. In 1897 Mr. Williams bred Allerton to a number of high-grade mares in this and adjoining counties, with the result that about 45 colts were produced. Under the arrangement, both the owner of the sire and those of the dams should have the privilege of bidding on the produce, the colts to go to the highest bidder. On yesterday the colts were brought to Lexington, their names put in envelopes and Mr. Williams and the owner in each instance wrote on a slip what he would give for the produce. The result was that Mr. Williams secured 25 of the get and the various owners of the dams got the remainder. The highest price paid was $176. Mr. W. L. Spears got one of them and R. C. Estill got another. The names of the other owners could not be secured. Allerton's fame is world-wide. He is one of the greatest producers on the continent. The dams of those colts are all of choice breeding.

The Season of 1898.

The close of the two weeks' meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association at Lexington practically ends the harness racing season of 1898. Whatever disappointments may have been expressed in individual cases, the record of the season's sport has demonstrated the strength of American breeding interests in such a way as to afford general satisfaction to horsemen. More than 1,600 horses have been added to the standard lists of trotters and pacers, 2:30 being the standard time for the former and 2:25 for the side-wheelers. Such a list of newcomers, unprecedented in number, shows not only that horse breeding for speed has become a business of large proportions, but also that the growth of track interests is keeping pace with the rapid increase in the number of horses available for racing purposes. A few years ago a large proportion of all the 2:30 performers in the country could be seen at a single Grand Circuit meeting, but now only the few that give promise of extreme speed ever appear on the big tracks. The season has produced twenty additions to the 2:10 trotting list. The pacing championship has been retained easily by Star Pointer (1:59¼), who has equaled his own record once and paced three other miles in less than 2:00. The trotting championship of the season is considered somewhat open to question. It may be claimed perhaps with justice, either for Directum Kelly, Bingen or John Nolen. Directum Kelly up to the time of his retirement on account of sickness, won every race in which he started, and was the largest money winner of the year. Bingen trotted the fastest heat of the season when he circled the Louisville track in 2:06¾. John Nolen's claims to distinction include the winning of the Transylvania Stake at Lexington last week, which constitutes a sort of championship in itself, and also the fact that his race earnings of nearly $16,000 are far in excess of those of any other harness horse that has been out this year. Neither James Butler, Col. J. Malcolm Forbes nor J. E. Hobinger, the owners respectively of Directum Kelly, Bingen and John Nolen can be expected on such a showing easily to yield his claim to distinction as the best trotter of 1898.

THE absence of Major P. P. Johnson from the judges' stand at Lexington on Monday was noticeable. He is said to have told Driver Foote that he would not put up with the tactics the latter displayed at Louisville, when he led his horse up. It is understood that Foote complained about this, and the Major, who is president of the National Trotting Association, did not act as a judge. As it turned out, Foote did lay up John Nolen two heats in the Transylvania Stakes, the first and second, although it seemed as if he could do no better than seventh in the first heat. Nolen broke in the second heat, and it was by dint of hard work that Foote got him inside the flag. Before the fifth heat was started, and while scoring, Bingen threw a shoe, and while it was being put on the darkness came on so fast that it was just barely possible to trot the last heat according to rule.

A NEW Richmond is in the field in Southern California in the person of Mr. Frank Greenall, an English gentleman who resides at Coronado and will establish a stock breeding farm there, his purpose being to engage in the breeding of thoroughbreds. He will place at the head of his stud the horse Puryear D., by imp. Deceiver, out of Ada D, by Enquirer. During the Los Angeles meeting Mr. Greenell bought Lady Ashley for $600, and has secured several other well bred mares.

NEW YORK horsemen are contempleting making Saratoga the place for a great harness meeting every year, with large purses and stakes that will attract the best horses in the United States.

Endorsed By Doctors.

Dr. H. E. Davenport, a prominent physician of Sheridan, Ind., writes: "I have used quite a number of remedies for the removal of curbs, splints, thickened tendons and tissues generally, but for the last two years I have not been without Quinn's Ointment. I have tested it thoroughly at different times and say without hesitancy that it is the only reliable remedy of the kind I have ever tried." For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all hunches Quinn's Ointment has no equal. Price $1.50. If you cannot find it at your druggist's, address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y. For sale in San Francisco by Messrs. J. A. McKerron and J. O'Kane.

That Los Angeles Incident.

In a personel letter from Secretary Thorne of the Los Angeles Agricultural Association, that gentleman corrects a statement published in the Los Angeles daily and copied into the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. The objectionable matter was a report of the circumstances connected with the ruling off of Driver W. G. Durfee during the recent meating there. The report stated that the controversy was between Mr. Thorne and Durfee, in regard to this, Mr. Thorne says: "I did not say one word to Durfee until the whole thing was decided. As a mattar of fact Durfee came up in the stand after Mr. Brooks had fined him $50 for pulling his horse in the heat and started to talk to Mr. Coverruhias, one of the judges. Mr. C. referred him to Mr. Brooks, the presiding judge. I was writing up the judges' book at the time, He asked Mr. Brooks why he was fined. Mr. Brooks told him. He then got mad and started to talk. Brooks said: 'Mr. Durfee, if we find that in the next heat you have not pulled this mare then we will remit the fine.' Durfee still talked and then he was fined $25 for abusive language, He was still abusive and started to go down the steps when Mr. Brooks said: 'You are ruled off, Mr. Durfee.' Up to this time I had not said one word. I thought Durfee did not hear Mr. Brooks so I repeated to him what Brooks said as I was nearer to Durfee than the others. That was all I said. In the heat that we put Mr. H. McGregor up to drive the mare Juliet D. in place of Durfee, in going around the turn the driver of Billy Baker, who was ahead of Juliet D. in some way stopped in front of Juliet D., and the mare got all tangled up with Billy Baker's sulky, breaking one wheel all to pieces. This delayed the mare very much, so we could not, neither could any one else, tell from that heat whether the mare was pulled by Durfee or not."

From the above it is plain that the statement made by the papers that the controversy was between Mr. Thorne and Mr. Durfee is not true, and the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN hastens to make the correction.

AN item is going the rounds of the Eastern turf papers to the effect that the stallion, Dexter Prince, which is nineteen years old, will be raced and that Superintendent Covey, of Palo Alto, thinks he is the fastest trotter alive. It's funny how a little error made by a type machine will cause such statements as this to be made, and it is more amusing still to see them accepted by all the expert horse writers in the East. It all came about in this way. A California correspondent writing an account to the American Horse Breeder of a trip to Palo Alto Farm, told of a youngster by Dexter Prince that Superintendent Covey thought "as fast as any trotter alive." A typo on some journal that copied the item omitted the two or three words relating to the colt and made the old stallion the fast one that was getting the slowest kind of work to keep him from going too fast. Dexter Prince was a fast horse in his day and honors are coming thick upon him during his old days. But he is not being trained to race—herdly.

IT was an accident that caused one of the Electioneer family instead of a descendent of Guy Wilkes to win the two year-old trotting division of the Kentucky Futurity. Had Mery Celeste, daughter of Oro Wilkes, not met with an accident there would have been nothing to it. She would have won in a jog, for the Merchant was all out in 2:21½ in the second heat; Celeste broke her check in the first mile and was shut out. Later on she worked a mile in 2:15½, which shows that she had speed in plenty to down The Merchant. The letter is a very fine looking chestnut colt, sired by the Conquerer, 2:12½, dam Brightlight, by Autocret Jr. He was bred and is still owned at Keystone farm, Paxton and McCoy proprietors. Omaha, Neb. In his yearling form he took a record of 2:29¾ and has the distinction of being the only yearling to take a standerd record in 1897.

MINNEQUA MAID, by Wood's Hambletonian, begins to loom up as one of the greatest of broodmares. She is now credited with Nightingale, 2:08, Milan Chimes, 2:13¾, Chimes Girl, 2, 2:26, and Scapegoat, pacer, 2:14½. Milan Chimes and Scapegoat are new performers. The first named dropped dead at Hartford last July in his first race, in which he got his record. Had he lived it is probable that he would now be in the 2:10 list. Chimes Girl has trialed close to 2:12, but broke down before getting a low record. Scapegoat was sold as a counterfeit early this season and now acts as a coming crackerjack.

MARY CELESTE, 2:17½, who was distanced in the first heat of the two-year-old Futurity, broke her overcheck when she made a break on the lower turn, which was all that caused her to be flagged. She was driven a trial a half hour later in 2:15½ and was immediately purchased by W. J. Spier, of Glens Falls, N. Y., together with her yearling sister. After her performance at Louisville, many considered her a sure winner at Lexington. Her mile shows that 2:20 would never have won but for her mishap.

THE May Stock Farm, near Lexington, Ky., has been leased by Congressman Joseph C. Beiley, of Texas, to be used for breeding trotting horses. Electric Bell, a full brother to Bow Bells, by Electioneer, out of Beautiful Bells, stands at the head of the stud, with twenty good brood mares. The farm will be superintended by Allen Steele, formerly trainer for Major P. P. Johnson. It is expected that Mr. Beiley will make his permanent home there.

FIVE four-year-olds won a total of nearly $40,000 on the Grand Circuit this year. The four-year-olds have done much this season to explode the idea that horses are in their poorest racing form at that age.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited). Ducks and quail, shipment from the county restricted as follows: No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds a week.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Diego—shipping quail out of the county prohibited.
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of this county prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.

Olympic Gun Club Reception.

The formal dedication of the handsome new quarters of the Olympic Gun Club took place on Friday evening, October 14th. The reception and "high jinks" were under the auspices of a committee composed of the following gentlemen: President, H. H. White, assisted by Corresponding Secretary Merton Allen, Recording Secretary Clarence A. Haight, Treasurer A. A. Borlini and Directors C. W. Hibbard, E. T. Allen, C. F. Grant and W. J. Golcher, who acted as a reception committee and W. J. Golcher, the chairman of the entertainment committee.

The club members were were out in force; among the guests many notables and gentlemen of prominence were observed. Success in the highest degree crowned the efforts of the gentlemen having the affair in charge

The program for the entertainment was commenced early in the evening and was ended early in the morning owing to the many encores received by the following well known entertainers: Frank Thompson, bass solo; Henry C. Larsen, violin solo; Jack Cathcart, comic selections; Ben L. Tarbox, barrytone solo; A. Hirsch, zither; Marlow and Kelly, specialties; William O'Brian, tenor solo; Billy Hynes, comic selections; Frank L. Carpenter, reading; William Finnie, tenor solo; Rob Mitchell, anecdotes and antidotes; "Kid" Nelson, and others.

Game Protection for Marin County.

Compared with previous seasons the quail shooting in Marin county is far from satisfactory in results for the hunter in those sections outside of the preserved grounds that are at his disposal for a quail hunt. The scarcity of birds is mainly the result of their wanton destruction out of season for the past three years and especially prior to the open season this year. The action of the county authorities in dispensing with a game warden some time ago is now bearing fruit. Sportsmen have been loud in their protests against the existing order of things, but it is hardly probable that anything will be done to stop the illegal practices without a unity of action by all parties concerned. We quote a prominent San Rafael sportsman who says:

"This indignant outcry over the wanton slaughter of birds comes not only from members of such organizations as the Country Club and the San Rafael and Tamalpais Gun Clubs, but from sportsmen of every description who have the best interest of the county at heart and wish to see the law enforced. The commonly expressed opinion is that the evil can be remedied in only one way—by having a game warden and an efficient corps of deputies, who will not only be on the lookout for violations of the law, but will punish the malefactors, rich and poor alike. A suggestion has also been made that the open season should be reduced to two months."

A movement is now on foot for the purpose of holding a meeting composed of representative sportsmen and also delegates from the clubs who hold shooting preserves in the county who will discuss the matter thoroughly and formulate a plan of procedure calculated to bring about the best results.

This matter has already been commented upon by the Breeder and Sportsman and we are very sorry to say that the state of affairs now in vogue as regards game and fish in Marin county was predicted at the time the Board of Supervisors in a spirit of mistaken economy dispensed with the services of their county game warden.

Rail

A week ago to-day the open season, in San Mateo county, for rail prevailed. At daybreak on Saturday morning the Belmont and other marsh land in San Mateo county was dotted far and near with a small army of hunters, many of them who had not missed their annual rail hunt for years past. A lively fusilade was kept up all day long and nearly everybody had a good string of the toothsome birds as a reward for his day's shooting. It is estimated that several thousand rail were shot on the opening day of the season. The following day witnessed as large an invasion of the hunters, but the bags were few and far between. A general impression with some of the sportsmen seems to prevail that the preliminary battue decimated the rail supply and that the marsh was shot out in one day; this is hardly probable, although the intentions to that effect were direct enough. The rail, in common with other birds and water-fowl, is endowed with the instinct of self preservation and from instances we have noted time and again, has shown a deal of cunning and sagacity that would hardly be accredited to so clumsy a bird. The birds in this particular section, no doubt, took early and quick action in seeking other and temporarily, at least, safer quarters, which were not difficult to find in the miles of marsh land bordering the southern bay shores. It may be of some interest to our readers to peruse the following account of the habits of tha land rail as noted in the Shooting Times:

The most remarkable thing about the landrail is its extraordinary instinct or passion for migration. Whence comes to it that overpowering desire which, twice in the year, impels it, weak-winged though it is, to change its quarters, to range during our English springtimes as far north as the bleak and frozen shores of Arctic Greenland, to descend in the fall of the year away south into Africa and eastward into Asia, reaching on its return migration countries so distant and so widely sundered as Natal and Afghanistan. At present, in spite of theories and surmises, we have no satisfactory reason offered to us for the wonderful migration—recurring steadily, persistently and unfailingly year after year—of a bird like the landrail, whose weak wings and strongly developed legs plainly attest the fact that its natural powers of progression lie far more in running and walking than in flying. The extent of the migration of the landrail, although not yet perfectly ascertained, is reasonably well known. In its northern passage it reaches, during April and May, England, Scotland, Ireland, the Hebrides, the Orkney and Shetland Islands, the far Faroes, nay even such solitary and remote Atlantic rocks as the lonely Islet of St. Kilda. It is well-known to North Europe, resorting in its spring passages to Norway, Sweden and Denmark. But beyond even these great migrations there is established the fact that this feeble-winged creature, which in September seems scarcely capable of flapping heavily for thirty paces before the gunner, can and does summon up powers of flight sufficient to carry it across stormy and trackless seas as far north as Greenland, and as far northwest as the Bermudas and the eastern shores of North America. Wonderful as are the facts and records of migration, the case of the homely landrail is certainly one of the most remarkable among the instances of this over-powering instinct.

Los Angeles Notes.

We are indebted for the following sporting information from the southern part of the State to Mr. E. R Rosse, of Los Angeles, and a well-known sportsman.

Duck shooting has been very good since the opening of the season, large bags have been made on the Cerritos, Recreation and Alla Gun Club preserves. The Greenhead Club is in the van on dock shooting; on October 1st, six of the members, Messrs. Ross, Preuss, Menasco, Alexander Matfield and Van Valkenburg bagged over 200 ducks, many of them being mallard.

Quail shooting is poor in the vicinity of Los Angeles, birds being very scarce. A few good bags have been made; on Sunday, October 9th, Ed. Tufts, Blades and John Schumacher killed seventy-three birds. Schumacher's individual bag was thirty-eight quail, his English setter dogs Valiente and Rowena (both well known field trial winners who have some promising sons and daughters entered in the coming Pacific Coast Derby) performed some exceptionally fine work, Valiente's wide ranging qualities located most of the bevies and Brother John and Rowena did the rest.

A new duck shooting club is now being organized in the City of the Angels which will, in every sense, be a most exclusive club. Mr. Sam Alexander and James Monasco have leased, for a period of ten years, a tract of shooting ground composing about 1,000 acres and located near Santa Monica. They propose constructing a club house which will cost $2,500 and will also make extensive improvements in the way of ponds, wells, etc. They have nearly completed sinking the first of four contemplated artesian wells. This will insure a plentiful supply of fresh water for the ponds, particularly so in a dry season. The new club will probably be incorporated with a membership roll of not more than twenty-five. The grounds adjoin both the Recreation and Alla Gun Club preserves, the projectors, contemplating quarters and shooting grounds for the new sporting club which will be second to none in their districts as Menasco, who is supervising the grounds and outfit is not only thoroughly conversant with such matters but has also an enviable reputation for successful management.

The Los Angeles Sharpshooters Tournament, commencing this week (Oct. 20, 21, 22), is meeting with favorable attention from marksmen and a large attendance of shooters is expected.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Rail are said to be not so numerous in the San Mateo marshes as they have been in the past.

H. Justins has just returned from a business trip up and down the Coast in the interest of the E. T. Allen Co.

J. Shackelton and C. Griffiths shot a string of twelve rail at Belmont on Sunday. Geo. Cook's bag counted up fifteen rail.

D. Ostrander and J. Dennis were at Alvarado on Sunday. The shoot near their ark gave them a bag of one dozen ducks.

Chas. Griffiths, whilst hunting for quail near Belmont last Sunday, found twenty quail traps, which he immediately destroyed.

A trip to the Belmont marsh last Saturday gave E. Schuller twenty-nine rail, T. Landing twenty-five and M. McManus fifteen quail.

Otto Feudner has been at Dixon for the past week. He will probably have something to say about shooting and fishing on his return.

W. Price and Al Schuman made a combined bag, consisting of a dozen rail and a dozen quail near Laurel creek, San Mateo county, last Saturday.

G. Shaw, E. Klevesahl and F. J. Schultze hunted for rail at Belmont on Saturday and Sunday. The string counted twenty-five birds. Lew Holden and Fritz Walpert also shot twenty-five rail between them at the same place in two two day's shooting.

Geo. Franzen, Geo. Sharp and F. Barr of Belmont, during a shooting trip embracing Saturday and Sunday last near Belmont, made a most excellent showing of a variety in game, the combined bag was: twenty-nine rail, twenty-one quail, one teal and forty-two cottontails.

The Black Jacks shoot at Sherman Island last Sunday resulted in small bags with the exception of "Stumpy" Weyman, who shot six mallard ducks and a dozen and a half English snipe. Counsellor Zimmer made a fair bag of ducks. Lemmer, "Bill Nye," "Sherman" and Johnson were not in it.

A number of market hunters have gone over to Nevada. One of them shipped to a local commission house this week nearly twelve dozen canvas-backs for which he received $9.50 per dozen. A great many consignments of game birds have arrived in the markets in very bad condition owing to the hot weather recently. Ducks and quail are both high-priced in the local markets.

Duck shooters are advised of a particularly good opportunity to procure one of the famous Mullins metal hunting boats. Edg. Forster, with Clabrough, Golcher & Co., has the disposal of two of these desirable shooting boats. Forster, who is a genius for originality, has arranged to dispose of the boats by raffle; a limited number of tickets are on sale at a very moderate price. They are selling well and two lucky hunters will soon be in possession of a fine boat apiece for an exceedingly small outlay.

Hunters who generally depend on Saturdays or Sundays for a days sport in the field or marsh, did not as a rule have as favorable conditions for their shooting last week as were desirable. Quail hunting gave better results than the quest for ducks, but that is not saying much. As for the ducks, many of them have gone over to the Carson district, Pyramid Lake, etc., where they find better feeding grounds. Those that are left have kept well out on the bay. The outlook for shooting to-day and to-morrow is not encouraging, the weather has been too warm and pleasant to bring many birds from the north.

Advices from San Rafael give the following particulars regarding a warm seance had with a lynx on October 8th, whilst out hunting in the hills near San Rafael. John Smith, in company with a young man named J. Graber, had shot and killed a lynx, weighing fifty-four pounds. For some time past the ranchers on the north side of the hill have been losing chickens each night, but where they went to never could be ascertained. This afternoon Smith and Graber, while resting under a tree, saw a number of feathers falling from the top. Looking up they discovered a lynx making a meal of a chicken. Smith shot at the animal, which fell to the ground, and he went to pick it up. As he stooped over the lynx sprang at him and imbedded its claws deep in his flesh. Graber rushed to his companion's assistance and knocked the animal to the ground again. The lynx was about to make a second attempt, when Graber shot and the animal fell dead. In a tree close by the remains of several chickens were found.

It not infrequently happens that when hunting birds, particularly if game is scarce and wild, that the gunner will recklessly begin to fire at birds that rise either actually or almost out of range. The idea is that "perhaps I may get a wing." The chances are, if the man can shoot at all, that he plants a few pellets in the bodies of game birds at long ranges without breaking a wing. Those pellets cause the bird incalculable suffering, and in all probability result in its dying a lingering death, unless some bird or animal of prey puts an end to its sufferings. Random shooting is most reprehensible and certainly most unsportsmanlike. If your bird, quail, snipe, etc., gets up wild, line it well, and hunt carefully along that line; if your dog is any good you'll strike some trace of it, and can possibly get in an effective shot at close range. Random shots don't fill a game bag but careful hunting and careful living and following up of birds that have previously jumped wild, will often result in surprising even the hunter himself.

Among some of Jack Fanning's recent performances we note the excellent shooting done by him at the Altoona Rod and Gun Club tournament held two weeks ago. During the first day's shoot, in ten blue-rock events, Jack made 111 out of a possible 131, averaging 84 2-3 per cent. In a fifteen live-bird race Fanning ("who has not a superior anywhere") made a straight score. The weather was cold and foggy. During the second day's shooting, Fanning did some wonderful shooting, his score of 152 out of a possible 155 beats all previous records for those grounds. His longest straight run was seventy-seven breaks. A summary of the events shows two straights of ten birds each, nine targets each in two ten-bird races, a straight twenty and ten string, a fourteen out of fifteen and clean scores in a fifty and two ten target matches. Fanning's average for the second day was 98 per cent.; this record was made with California made powder (Gold Dust) by a Native Son. Fanning stood at the 31 yard mark while all other shooters were placed at 28 yards.

Blanchard Creek and "Spirit Lake."

In a former communication I referred to a fishing outing which a party of four of us enjoyed along the justly famous Blanchard Creek. This stream is located in the northwestern part of Idaho. Its length does not exceed twenty miles, yet it flows amidst towering mountains and through some of the wildest and most picturesque scenery of Idaho. In the Indian tongue Idaho signifies "Gem of the Mountains." Certainly, no more romantic and appropriate appellation could possibly be applied to any region.

Blanchard Creek finds its source beneath the frowning shadows of Bald Mountain, or, as it is more familiarly known, "Old Baldie." This grand peak soars aloft to the height of 7,000 feet above the sea level. All around the base and sides stand dense pine forests, only the extreme summit of the peak being clear of timber. Hence the name, "Baldie."

Deep snow covers the entire mountain during the winter months. In the spring the snow and ice gradually disappear from the sides, and by the middle of June none can be found on the summit. Just north of "Old Baldie" stands "Kit Carson," another peak scarcely inferior in size and altitude to the former.

Blanchard Creek flows from the eastern base of "Old Baldie," but the general course of that stream is almost due north. It is a beautiful and picturesque water course. The average width of the creek is about ten yards. The channel is very tortuous. Its waters are ice-cold, clear as crystal, and the current is swift and strong.

The waters of this beautiful mountain stream fairly teem with trout, some of them being very large, weighing from three to four pounds. Annually, during the "open season," thousands of trout are caught in this stream, during the fishing season, it is a veritable paradise for the angler.

Notwithstanding the fact that vast numbers of fish are captured each year, yet the supply does not appear to become exhausted. Several kinds of trout are found in this stream.

Within two days we caught nearly 600 trout—among them several scores of the beautiful "rainbow" trout.

Spirit Lake, one of the most beautiful sheets of water to be found in all Idaho, is situated about thirteen miles due south of Blanchard creek. From the latter stream we proceeded direct to Spirit Lake intent on capturing some of the magnificent lake trout with which its waters abound.

After a brisk drive of about three hours over a beautiful winding mountain road, and amidst a grand old forest, we reached the margin of Spirit Lake. We struck the lake at the extreme northern end.

Boats were hastily procured and we launched forth. Somehow it wasn't our day to fish; or, the fish were in an unsocial frame of mind. We tried different kinds of flies; we used sinkers and bait, and we trolled for them.

We began fishing about eight o'clock A. M. and kept at it for about five or six hours. But the lake angling was a failure throughout. About two o'clock we gave it up and returned to our camp weary, wet and disgusted. I say wet! while we were out in mid-lake, a heavy June thunder storm came up and drenched us to the skin.

How many did we catch, I think I hear you ask? Four of us caught less than a "baker's dozen" —— and they were miserable little things. About four o'clock the clouds lifted and the sun came forth with all his fiery splendor.

Connected with Spirit Lake is a weird Indian legend. It is an object of superstitious fear and dread to the untutored red man. For generations past no Indian could be induced to approach the lake, cross it, bathe in its blue waters, or even eat any fish caught there. At all times and under all circumstances, the Indians avoid the lake as if it were a pestilence.

Spirit Lake, in shape is nearly in the form of the letter "Y." Its waters are very blue in many places—almost as dark as indigo. This is, no doubt, due to the fact that the lake is very deep. The Indian legend affirms that the body of any one drowned in the lake is lost forever; that it never rises to the surface and can never be recovered.

During the past twenty years, a number of white people have lost their lives in the lake. So far as known, not a single body has ever been recovered. The deep waters of the lake sullenly refuse to yield up their victims.

On all sides the lake is shut in by high rugged hills along whose sides and summits dense forests abound. In many places the shores are rocky and abrupt, but notwithstanding, the timber seems to come down to the very water's edge.

Viewed from any point, Spirit Lake is a lovely sheet of water, and full of strange, weird interest. But despite its tranquil beauty, it bears a sombre aspect. Over its blue bosom impends a gloomy shadow which all the bright sunlight can not dispel.

No doubt the mystical legend of the Indians has much to do with the sense of forboding which seems to hang over the face of the lake like a melancholy pall!

Just before we broke up our camp that day, and started for Rathdrum, the nearest point where we could reach the railroad, we beheld a beautiful spectacle.

Where our tent was temporarily pitched, the rain had ceased falling, but far to the south, at the upper end of the lake, the rain still descended in a sort of drizzling mist. Old Sol was shedding down a vast wealth of golden sunlight. A gorgeous rainbow displayed its prismatic arc, one end of which rested afar up on the side of the steep mountain, and the other down on the broad and sleeping bosom of the lake. The magnificent rainbow, the great day-god, the flood of the glorious light, the deep emerald of the piney forest vividly contrasting with the indigo hue of the waters of the lake! Was any element of grandeur and beauty lacking to complete this panorama of scenic splendor.

With that sight in mind's eye, we drove away.

I almost forgot to state that, after all, our day's fishing did not prove to be a dismal failure. Spirit Lake is fed by a large creek which flows directly from the base of Bald Mountain and empties into the upper end of the sheet.

This stream flows through a rocky defile, is very tortuous, the banks being beset with a dense growth of tangled underbrush. It is nearly impossible to travel up or down the stream.

Two of our boys landed at the mouth of the little stream and resolutely pushed their way up. The creek abounded in fine, large trout; the results fully justified the hardship and labor, for in less than two hours the boys pulled out forty-five magnificent fish.

Then the rain came on and drove them back to the lake. They reached camp about an hour late, but their baskets were full to overflowing. They were soaking wet, but soon dried out by the big, roaring camp bonfire.

After all, our trip to Blanchard and Spirit Lake was pleasurable, profitable and—successful. J. M. Baltimore.

The striped bass continue to give battle royal to the angler who strives for them in the turgid waters of the Alameda estuary. Al Wilson, Manuel Cross and W. R. McFarland, a trio of fishermen who are known among the followers of the gentle art as skillful anglers, have been persistently and systematically developing the sport; for the past fortnight or more, they have made an average catch up to date of twenty pounds per day, some heavy fighting fish are numbered in this estimate. Many strikes made by large fish were lost owing to the cunning of the fish in helping the fisherman. In this sport, one difficulty has confronted the sportsmen, and that is, the extreme hardness, in certain places, of the mouth of the striped bass, making the attempt for an effective strike futile time and again. Other anglers of note have been comparatively successful and lucky considering the days and trips devoted to the sport. At all events, the developments in the taking of striped bass with rod and line and the knowledge acquired in the past few days relative to this fish are of incalculable value to a host of anglers who have been waiting intelligible advices in regard to this sport for a long while past.

Fishing on Eel river is first class at present. Salmon are plentiful, as are steelhead, though the latter are not running as large as they were last year. Among those at present on the river are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maskey, Dr. Von Hoffman, W. F. Shattuck, Fathers Casey and Lynch, John Gallagher, John Benn and others. The angling for small steelhead is most excellent, plenty of two, three and four pounders are being caught. Last Sunday John Butler, who returned from there on Wednesday, caught two salmon weighing over thirty five pounds each. Mr. Shattuck landed one who scaled twenty seven pounds. Since the season opened between seventy and eighty visiting anglers, principally from this city, have been fishing the waters of Eel river from Grizzly Bluff to Fortuna. The wisdom of the county supervision of fish and game is here apparent, Humboldt county being one of the best protected shooting and fishing sections in the State, bringing about a condition of affairs appreciated alike by the sportsmen and the business men and residents of the northern county.

The work of preparation for a commencement of operations at the government hatchery on Price creek has been pushed with all possible activity since the arrival of Messrs. Hatch and Fassett nearly three weeks ago, says the Enterprise. Anticipating the arrival of the fish eggs, which came on the second inst., they have exerted their energies to the end of having the hatchery house in order and inaugurating the necessary preliminary work. What is now being done will be of vital importance to Humboldt county and the gentlemen named intend that it shall be well done.

Bay fishing at all points has been good; the salt water anglers have a variety composed of rock fish, smelt, sea trout, flounders, salt water eels, perch, capezoni and striped bass to select from when enjoying a day on the bay or at the surf-beaten cliffs outside of the heads.

Salmon and steelhead of large size and in fairly plentiful numbers are now being caught in the Sacramento by Red Bluff anglers. The fish are caught with the spoon.

Proper tackle for striped bass fishing can be procured from either Clabrough, Golcher & Co. or the E. T. Allen Co.

Pointing.

Some interesting data on the subject of the pointing faculty in dogs has recently been written by "Moorman" for the English Stock-Keeper, which we quote in full for our readers:

In dealing with this fascinating matter it may be suggested at the outset that both pointing and setting is rather instinctive than inculcated in Pointers and Setters, and would be better referred to as the pointing instinct; but I think if we look closely into the matter it will be apparent that the setting of dogs to game is not so instinctive in the ordinary sense of the term as many suppose. On the contrary, it will rather prove to be a faculty gradually instilled into the nature of certain breeds, and one which requires certain modes of handling and training to be brought out in the majority of instances, although it is, through the working of hereditary influence, so strongly developed in certain cases as to appear spontaneously and merit the assumption of its being instinctive.

Various reasons have been suggested as to the origin of the process whereby a dog sets or points its game, but I cannot see that the idea originated in the animal's intelligence, although it is often stated that it represents in the domesticated dog the sense which its wild ancestor made before springing upon its victim. It may be correctly presumed that the wild dog of prehistory was very much as is the wild dog, the dingo, jackal, or wolf of to-day, and if the wolf were the ancestor of the dog, it is scarcely likely that but one or two breeds would possess the faculty, because it is an assured fact that all breeds of dogs have been evolved from a parent stock, or else wolves, when in pursuit, would be inclined to point or set their quarry, which we know they never do. Such personal experience as I have had of wolves never showed me them in other than headlong pursuit of their victims, in fact it is most unusual for them to creep up to their quarry, even when merely prowling round after prey. The fox, we know, secures the bulk of its provender by stealth, and in approaching the object of its quest will frequently assume an attitude of setting. This, however, cannot in any way be construed into a deliberate point; it is rather an incident in the chase of the quarry where the fox halts to avoid giving alarm to the intended victim through noise or its presence being discovered to view. The fact that the feline tribe halt and secure their victim by a spring does not bear on the case, because where the pointing faculty is instinctive in other dogs—it is recorded in collies—and other animals, such as even the pig, there is no tendency shown of capturing the bird or animal pointed or set at until it seeks safety in flight. In the case of Collies and Terriers, which have come to set or point at their quarry, the habit more or less regular and pronounced, may be possibly and not improbably ascribed to imitativeness. Doubtless in some instances this is the case, but there is a notable case on record of a sheep dog which, although trained exclusively from a puppy upward, took to pointing to game and other fur and feather entirely on its own account, but without following it up when the game moved.

The origin of the pointing faculty must, however, I think, be sought for elsewhere, and be due to the very remote sense of the fowler and his nets. There can be no doubt but that the setting dog, not the Setter, was of earlier origin, and almost universal employment, before the pointing dog came into fashion or use, and that in the evolution of our various breeds of dogs the Spaniel or fowler's dog of our ancestors came by induction partly, and then by training, to "set" at the birds after they were found, whilst the fowler actually located them, and prepared to cast his net, the original, but not necessarily crude or ineffective manner in which they were taken. It will be well understood that a dog of Spaniel type, hunting slowly, and by scent only, would be taught to draw on the game, and as slowly end steadily "set" to give the approaching fowler a fair chance for making his cast. As time advanced, dogs of the hound type (Pointers which did not point, we might say), being brought to similar work in the field, either by actual training or the exercise of imitativeness, adopted or became adept in a similar setting habit, but which by virtue of the natural form of the dog, or a different tendency of natural trait, resulted in the adoption of a pointing attitude instead of the setting one. Thus we come to the Setter and the Pointer.

That the pointing faculty is so markedly less developed in some specimens of the same breed, even in members of the same litter, is to my mind a proof that it is less due to instinct, taking instinct to mean the regular recurrence of inherited ides, than to its repeated inculcation in the course of training up successive generations to the same style of field working; whilst the backing of one dog when drawing close on game by one or more others is, as a rule so entirely foreign to the natural mode of working by dogs in an untrained state that the practice of backing seems to serve as further argument to enforce the fact that the pointing faculty was not originally instinctive in the breeds of dogs which have come down to us as Setters and Pointers

Belgian Hares.

The fancy for Belgian hares in England is a decidedly pronounced one, well known strains of prize winners commanding fancy prices, the breeding of these hares being quite a business. Of the few fanciers on the Pacific Coast we note that, at present, Mr. C. P. Nettleton, of Haywards, has several pairs of choice hares for sale. In England the Belgian hare is most esteemed for the table. The opportunity now offers itself to establish a hutch of Belgians for pleasure or profit.

Standards.

GORDON SETTER—The Duke of Gordon is credited with being the originator of this favorite breed of settars (1820). A splendid intelligence, fine scenting powers and great endorance are the main characteristics of the Gordon black and tan setter. In the best specimens will always be found the leading features of the collia, setter and bloodhound, perhaps in about equal proportions, giving what is known as the type. The points of the Gordon setter are almost similar to those of the English setter, excepting as follows:

Head is somewhat heavier than that of the English setter type, broad at the top between the ears, skull slightly rounded, occiput well developed, the depth from the occiput to the bottom of the lower jaw is much greater than with the English setter. The width between the eyes should not be too great. A well formed head is of first importance. The nose is a trifle wider, being moderately long and broad across the top, the nostrils well distended. Many Gordons also show slight "haw" and "dewlap," a proper development of these has been conceded for the true type.

The body is heavier than the English setter, but is generally judged on the same lines. In shape the flag is the same as in the English setter, except that it is a little shorter; the coat is certainly denser and coarser than either the Irish or English setter, inclined in many very good specimens to a decided curl, though a curl is not to be sought after in this breed.

The great beauty of this breed is the coat and color and prominence should be given these points in judging. The black should be a rich and glossy jet, not brown or rusty, the tan should be a rich dark mahogany without the slightest trace of fawn or yellow. The tan should appear on lips, cheeks, throat, spot over the eyes, well defined, forelegs nearly to elbows; hindlegs as far as the stifles and on the under side of the flag, but not extending to the long hairs. These are the only two colors admitted on the Gordon, although a little white is not seriously objected to, yet it is considered by good judges as a decided blemish, the prize winners of to-day being absolutely free from white.

The Greyhound in India.

In speaking of field dogs for work over the hunting grounds of India, a writer in The Field has tha following to say regarding greyhounds:

Of those hunting by sight, facile princeps is tha greyhound. Ha is, to my mind, the dog for India so far as the sport obtained from him goes; as a companion, of course, he is inferior to many. India is essentially a riding country; in most parts of the plains of India the going is excellent, and nothing adds so much to the enjoyment of a morning ride as to have a couple of good greyhounds with you, greyhounds that would be useless at home owing to their "ronning cunning," but who are just what is wanted here. Many a time have I seen one of a brace of longtails go into a patch af sugarcane while his companion waited outside. Presently, away steals a jack, which you see before tha waiting dog, as you are higher from tha ground; then suddenly you see all the muscles tremble and off he goes—tally-ho—and out of the cane tumbles the other dog and away we go after master jack. Across two or three fields with mud walls and ditches on both sides through a small patch of cane not big enough to give him shelter, and "whoop! whoop." over he goes with those terrible jaws closing over his loins, and his troubles are over. Then, perhaps (with the help of the ever-present terrier), we put up a fox, and, though we do not have to gallop much, to a lover of dogs, to see the way he twists and (to use a pig-sticking phrase) "jinks" with the dogs close at his brush, and to see the play of muscle as time after time tha dogs turn with him is indeed a treat.

Bot anyone who has watched greyhounds work will enter into my feelings, and I can only say that if a man is fond of riding, and is in almost any part of the plains of India (except tha black cotton districts), his greyhounds will afford him endless amusement, as jacks, hares and foxes are plentiful nearly everywhere and are met with in the course of an ordinary morning's ride.

As regards the greyhounds, I would say get big ones with sound constitutions, and as little inbred as possible, and never let them ont into the sun in the middle of the day. Also give them lots of food, lots of work, lots of grooming, and look constantly to their feet. If this is done, they will amply repay the trouble taken with them. Next to the greyhound for this work, and in some respects even in front of him, I would put tha lurcher—that is to say, a good lorcher—collie and greyhound cross for choice. He has got the nose and intelligence which the greyhound lacks, quite enough speed for his job, and altogether is a very satisfactory animal to possess in India, especially as he is, as a rule, harder than tha pure greyhound. The only drawbacks to the breed are the difficulty in getting good specimens, even at home, and the extrema ugliness of the ordinary lurcher that one usually has to put up with.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The litter of eight St. Bernard puppies by Lady Joanita R—King Menelek has tha distinction of almost perfect markings.

A striking and unique feature of the parade celebrating the improvements which have been made on Market street, will be tha collie team and St. Bernard display of the Presidio Kennels of this city.

Mr. Davis, who gave such general satisfaction at the last Vancouver show, and tha well-known writer and fancier, A. Russell Crowell, are both spoken of to act as judges for the coming Oakland Show.

The Presidio Kennels had the misfortune to lose, by reason of tha hot weather during the past week, a fine litter of seven St. Bernard puppies. They were by Irma—Alto Millo and were whelped on September 29, 1898.

It is reported that tha splendsd pack of foxhounds owned by Walter S Hobart has been given by the latter gentleman to the San Mateo Hunt Club, a proviso in the transfer being that the pack shall revert to the donor should the Club be disorganized. The Hobart pack was formerly ron near Washington, D. C., and is well known to sportsmen throughout the country. The pack at present numbers twenty-six couples of grown dogs and ten couples of puppies.

Several of the leading Eastern sporting publications in the current numbers give misleading accounts of the destruction of John Lucas' kennels by fire and the loss of eleven (?) valuable setters and pointers. These statements are radically wrong and were evidently taken from tha unreliable sensational reports of tha affair published in the morning dailies on October 2d. The only correct account of the matter appears in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of October 8th to which we refer our contemporaries.

It is rumored that a kennel club will soon be organized in Fresno. A bench show to be held in January is proposed by the Fresno fanciers. Whether the contemplated show will be held under tha American Kennel Club rules or under the rules of the Pacific Kennel League is at present a debatable question. A majority of those favoring the movement lean strongly to the idea of acting in conjunction with the San Francisco and Oakland Kennel Clubs; this action will give them a recognition of wins throughout the United States.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club which is scheduled for October 20th, promises to have a large attendance. At this meeting all preliminaries concerning the field trials will be disposed of and arrangements made for the selection of judges, location of grounds where trials will be held, etc. President Henry Keller of Santa Monica promises to be in attendance, accompanied by John H. Schumacher of Los Angeles. Judge Post of Sacramento and Joseph Terry will also be in the city on that date, as well as other visitors from interior towns.

Emmet V. Sullivan, who has been somewhat interested in coursing events recently, is reported to be sojourning in London at present. On dit, his return to San Francisco will be signalized in coursing circles by the performances of some fast longtails who will skyrocket o'er the sward and show the effete leashmen of the Pacific Coast a thing or two in coursing. No doubt his re-entry to tha sport will be an acceptable innovation to the passe conditions of the game and its uncertain pool-box conditions in vogue just now. New impulses and their corresponding financial support is just what is needed from time to time for tha continuance of enterprises that are fostered by the patronage of sportsmen of liberal and complaisant proclivities.

At the recent New Westminster, B. C., bench show, the R C. St. Bernard Shasta (Reglov—Empress Inno), owned by Mr. Emil Pferdner of Victoria again took first honors under C. K. C. rules. This St. Bernard bids fair to be one of the leading dogs of the breed on the coast, having improved wonderfully since the previous show, when he took first in open dogs and a special for the handsomest dog in the show. Shasta will probably be bred to Peg Woffington in the near future. There is a possibility of this dog being seen on the bench in the next San Francisco show. The bitch Laura Alton (California Alton—Tomah), now in whelp to Alta Millo (Sir Judith's Bedivere—Santa Rosa) will soon be sent north to Mr. Pfeidner, who recently purchased her. Alton has a good record as a brood bitch; she was whelped September 5, 1893; her bench winnings were: first in puppy class, Oakland, 1894; first in novice, San Jose and Oakland, 1895.

Dr. H. C. Glover—Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in giving you my endorsement to your Mange Cure, having used it on camels, Llamas, cattle and African wart hogs with perfect success. Would recommend it as a speedy cure for skin diseases. Respectfully yours,

W. A. CONKLIN, V. S., Director.

THE FARM.

The Cost of Pumping Water.

Until within the last decade the water supplies used in irrigation in our Western States were brought to the places of utilization almost wholly by gravity. There are, however, large volumes of water situated at such low levels that gravity will not carry it to the fields and only in recent years have we come to a realization of the fact that this water may be raised by pumps or other lifting devices to elevations from which it will flow by gravity to the irrigable lands. Not only is the water which may be raised from wells or low-lying streams available, but that which finds its way by seepage from irrigation canals and irrigated lands may be gathered into wells and pumped to the surface and again employed in irrigation. The real value of pumping as a means of irrigation and the extent to which it may be employed, are as yet scarcely appreciated. A great many windmills and some water wheels are utilized in our Western States for this purpose and a little pumping is done by steam and gasoline. But the value of the water supplied to be derived from lifting is sure to increase greatly as the cheapness and adaptability of this method become to be fully recognized. According to the government reports the average first cost of water derived from gravity supplies in the whole United States is $8.15 an acre. The average annual water rental is $1.07 an acre. The average cost for a second foot of water on account of construction of some of the great gravity canals of the West, based on the assumption that their whole supply was utilized, varies between $125 for the Bear river canal, Utah, and $730 for the Turlock canal, California. The cost of an acre irrigated for the same works varied between $5 for the Bear river canal and $14 50 for the Turlock canal. The average cost an acre irrigated by some of the greater of the storage reservoirs of the West varies between $19.96 for the Hemet valley reservoir in California and $81.80 for the Sweetwater reservoir in Southern California. On the other hand numerous windmill pumping plants have been erected in the West, the first cost of which is equivalent to a charge of about $20 an acre irrigated, or less, while the cost of maintenance, equivalent to annual water rental, is practically nothing. Hydraulic rams have been utilized in pumping for irrigation at a cost of about $10 an acre irrigated, with practically no charge for maintenance and operation. Gasoline pumping engines are extensively used in the West, the first cost of which has been equivalent to about $30 an acre irrigated with a cost of operation of $1.25 an acre. Water power pumping plants have been erected at costs ranging from $1 to $15 an acre irrigated, and with operating charges varying between $1 and $2.50 an acre. Of steam pumping plants so far erected in the West the cost has ranged from $5 to $10 an acre irrigated with an operating charge of from $1 50 to $3 per annum for each acre irrigated. The certainty of supply should be estimated as an advantage in all pumping operations.—H. M. Wilson.

Crude Petroleum Kills Cattle Ticks.

The Kansas City Times, in a recent issue, gives an account of the "dipping station," at Mammoth Springs, on the State line between Arkansas and Missouri, where cattle, from below the fever line, are driven through a large tank, filled with so-called chemical oil, and emerge therefrom thoroughly disinfected.

It has been demonstrated that the Texas cattle fever is produced and spread by a special variety of cattle ticks, and that if these can be destroyed the worst infected animals become incapable of spreading the disease and are passed on through the quarantine lines. Veterinarians and scientists have been searching and experimenting for years to find some sort of a preparation that could be applied, that would kill the ticks, but not injure the animal, and, according to the Times, this has been found in this so-called chemical oil We have assurance, however, from a most creditable source, that this chemical oil is, in fact, practically, only crude petroleum, and it is, therefore, highly probable that a good application of any form of crude petroleum would effectually destroy all ticks. Of course, when any large number of animals are to be treated, the most expeditious and economical way would be to run them through a dipping vat, as at Mammoth Springs, or at Forth Worth, Tex.

Presumably, the Bureau of Animals Industry, at Washington, is giving this matter careful attention, and if crude petroleum will do what is claimed for it, announcement to that effect will be made in due time.

Beef Cattle Notes.

Some 500 head from the XL ranches in Eastern Oregon are now en route for Gazelle via Butte Creek, having been purchased by Miller & Lux. About 300 head from the Jesse Carr ranches at Clear Lake on the Oregon border, are also en route for Montague, for delivery to the agent of Miller & Lux.

Harry Wells of Edgewood, Siskiyou county, who bought a lot of large steers in Southern California at the time of the drought last summer and shipped them by rail all the way via the McCloud R. R., has sold them lately making a good profit on his bargain. He bought them cheap when in poor condition, and after fattening them up on our mountain grass, sold at a good price.

The Klamath Fall Republican says there has been upward of 1,000 head of cattle sold in Wood River Valley so far this fall at the average price of $27.50 per head, which means that the sum of about $30,000 has been dropped in that little valley this season for cattle alone, the like of which has never before been equaled in these parts.

To Keep a Cow From Jumping.

Make a good strong halter and surcingle; make both of good leather or of good three-fourths inch rope; put the surcingle around just behind the forelegs, having a good large ring fastened to it under the brisket. Put the halter on as on a horse, having a stout ring under the chin. Fasten a short chain from the ring in the surcingle to the ring in the halter, having it short enough that she cannot raise her head more than two feet from the ground, or less if she is very bad. The surcingle where it crosses the back end halter on the nose should be wrapped with soft cloth to keep them from rubbing. With this a cow can neither throw nor jump a fence, and still she can throw her head around to her sides to fight off flies.

A dairyman of wide reputation concluded to adopt the daily milk record, rather because of those who advocated it than from any conviction of needing it himself. His herd was of his own breeding; had handled every cow from birth; he and his sons did the milking, says an exchange. Before beginning the record he made note of the joint opinion of himself and sons as to the half dozen best cows in the herd and an estimate of their season's milk yield. When the year's record was completed it was found that in order of actual merit the cows stood thus: First, his fifth; second, a cow not on his merit list; third his fourth; fourth, his first; fifth, his sixth; sixth, like the second, and his second end third still lower on the list. These facts were verified by subsequent records. Still more remarkable, this experienced owner proved literally "by the book" that about one-fourth of his cows were being kept at an actual loss.

Feeding pumpkins to milch cows will produce as large quantities of rich milk as anything grown. When planted with corn this crop is produced at the trivial cost of harvesting. In many places pumpkins are condemned for milk producing as they are claimed to have a tendency to lay on fat and check the flow of milk. At the present time the managers of the Riverside dairy farm at Pueblo, Colorado, are making some extensive experiments in regard to the value of pumpkins as milk producing food, how best to feed them and if the pumpkins are to be fed without the seeds. No doubt the flow of milk is increased but the cows that have been fed the seeds along with the pumpkins have noticeably decreased in milk flow.

The national government has announced the opening of Cuban ports for the entrance of American cattle, free from duty. It is estimated by experts in the east that 1,000,000 head of cattle will be required to meet the demand. The estimate is considered too large by western cattlemen, but good authorities are of the opinion that 250,000 head will be required, and most, if not all, will leave from gulf ports. We will send no cattle from Northern California, as our cattle could not withstand the climate. This does not apply to cattle raised below the fever line in Texas or cattle raised in Mexico. Cattle raised below that line are perfectly acclimated and will bear the transfer to Cuba without serious loss.

The Armour Packing company is planning a regular daily delivery of fresh meats from its various houses in the United States to the larger cities of England. It purposes to ship fresh beef in refrigerator cars direct to London and Liverpool and distribute it over England every day. By means of leased refrigerator space in the trans-Atlantic steamers the company expects to ship meat at least once a week and by means of supply depots in England to distribute it in fine condition at lower prices than native English beef can be sold.

Dr. Kier, of Yolo county, reports that the cattle on the Perkins ranch afflicted with anthrax are still under quarantine, and that no new cases have appeared. He believes the disease will be stamped out without any further loss. At a recent meeting of the State Board of Health held in Sacramento, an informel discussion was held on the subject. Dr. Mathews said that much of the disease reported throughout the State was not anthrax et all but Texas fever. The tick which generates this disease in cattle, the doctor said, would be exterminated in that portion of the State where the thermometer reached 30 degrees, and it would then become the duty of the board to draw lines enclosing that portion and maintain a quarentine preventing the reintroduction of the disease therein next year. It is the purpose of the board to ask the next Legislature for authority to deal with the stemping out of such diseases as anthrax by independent action, without resort to the tedious and unsatisfactory method of bringing action in the counties where the disease has been found to exist.

The San Benito Advance says: The following remedy for bloat in cattle is given by one of our prominent dairymen: Three tablespoonfulls of coal oil, two tablespoonfulls of salt; one tablespoonful of black pepper. Put in a bottle of water and give as a drench. The remedy never fails to give instant relief.

The stockmen of Solano county have formed a protective association, which will make a thorough investigation regarding the diseases that have recently appeared among the cattle, to prevent the spread of the same and recurrence in the future.

Stockmen are predicting that Shorthorns and Herefords will make more breeders richer during the next ten years than did the longhorns in twice that period.

OPEN AIR HORSE SHOWS.

Horse shows held in the open air are becoming so popular in the East that a movement is on foot among the prominent horse owners of New York to hold an annual open air show on Manhattan Field, One Hnndred and Fifty-five street. The ground has heen leased for three years and the show will be held annually in May during afternoons and evenings hy electric lights. The show is to he conducted on the highest plane and will cater equally to the amateur and the professional element, in the way of classes, and will aim to he not only a social function, hnt an affair of much attractiveness, at popular prices. Every afternoon and evening there will be some special equestrian event of a spectacnlar character, which will be an innovation upon horse show programs. It is possible also that an open-air show may he held in Brooklyn next October in which many of those interested in the New York open-air show will take part. There is in this a suggestion to the San Francisco Horse Show Association that might well he acted upon. The evening weather in San Francisco can hardly he depended npon to permit open air horse shows in any months bnt September and October, but in those months there would he nothing to prevent a gathering in the open air, and if a canopy were placed over the audience evening dress could be worn with impunity. Over in Oakland the climate during the fall months is particularly well adapted to an open air show, and in addition it would certainly attract a very large attendance if properly managed. The tremendous expense of a huilding large enough to show horses properly is one of the greatest drawbacks to holding horse shows, and the open air idea is a solntion of the prohlem. There has been some talk among the leading horse owners of this city in regard to holding a show in the open air hy electric light, and it is to he hoped that steps will be taken to carry out the suggestion. It would be a novel entertainment and there need be no doubt as to its popular reception hy the puhlic.

DIRECTUM, 2:05 1-4—Champion Trotting Stallion.

Sold this week to W. E. Spiers, Glen Falls, N. Y., for $30,000.

Manuel Wins at a Mile.

To George J. Long's colt, Manuel, son of Bob Miles, belongs the distinction of winning the first two-year-old race of the season at a mile, At Morris Park, Thursday of last week, this sterling son of Bob Miles and Espanita came from nowhere in the stretch and, wearing down Autumn's lead, stride hy stride, won by a head in the last jump. At the head of the stretch Autumn was sailing along in front with three lengths of daylight between himself and the nearest horse, while Manuel was half a dozen lengths away.

As Maher, on the leader, looked hack he saw that Manuel was closing fast. Almost in the same instant he felt Autumn falter, and in a twinkling he was riding hard with his hands. Ride as he would, however, he could not stall off the determined challenge of Manuel, who wore him down and beat him a head on the post.

Unusnal interest centered in this race, hecanse of the fact that in it two-year-olds were asked to go a mile for the first time this season. Turfmen looked forward to the event as an indication of what might he expected from the contestants as three-year-olds. It was conceded that the race would be between Autumn and Manuel, the fact that the third horse was beaten eight lengths for the place proves that the opinion was based on a solid foundation.

There has been a lot of discussion among the trainers at Readville all season, as to the relative merits of the two Forbes farm horses, Bingen, 2:06¾, and Nico, 2:08¼. The latter has always been a very high-mettled colt, and in his early education rank and unreliahle, hut like many another high-mettled horse, has become steady and now seems to he a far more reliable performer than his stable companion. Bingen has the faster record, bnt Nico has as much or more speed, and with a year or two more age will, if nothing happens to him, he a candidate for the very highest honors. The southern trip was rather in favor of the four-year-old, as he start d twice and won both races, while Bingen lost two out of the three races in which he started.

RACING SEASON OF 1898-99.

Favored with weather which would enthuse an admirer of the halmiest Italian skies, on an afternoon which has hecome throngh custom a half holiday to many, the opening of the winter racing season at Oakland to-day should he auspicious of a splendid season to come The officials of the California Jockey Clnb, headed hy that indefatigable worker and lover of high class sport, Thomas H Williams, have left nothing nndone to make the opening day a success. The grounds are in perfect order and the track is the same. Superintendent Fieldwick has reason to he proud of his work, and fast time should be made. The officials in the stand will be Joseph Murphy, Presiding Judge with John J Carter as associate. J B. Ferguson will manipulate the barrier, and Chas. F. Price will occupy a stand to himself where his experienced eye will he on the jockeys from start to finish to see that they do what they ought.

The principle race of the day is the Opening Handicap, $1,250, for two-year-olds and upwards, one mile. The weights have been announced for this race hy Handicapper Brooks as follows:

Of the above George Keene, Judge Denny, Benhadad and several others have not arrived, and others will not start. The probable starters are : Grady, Ruhicon, Morellito, Moringa, San Venado, Recreation, Napamax, Olinthus, Buckwa, Wheel of Fortune, Satsuma and Highland Ball. E. J. Baldwin said that La Goleta would not be a starter, but he may change his mind. If Olinthus can run a mile he should make a good showing as he has been carrying weight for age in most of his starts this year, and he is in, heing a two-year-old, at 89 pounds. Recreation is also well treated. Grady, on his condition at Los Angeles, will be inside the money in all probability.

The balance of the program is a good one and there will doubtless be an immense crowd present to enjoy the day's sport.

DIRECTUM SOLD FOR $30,000.

W. E. Spiers, of Glens Falls, New York, Purchased the Champion of Trotting Stallions.

The Green estate of Dublin, Cal., has sold Directum, the great son of Director and Stemwinder, and holder of the champion record for trotting stallions since the day in October, 1893, at Nashville, Tennessee, he defeated Hazel Wilkes and Nightingale in three straight heats, trotting the last heat in 2:05½, a mark that no stallion has since reached. Directum was foaled in 1889, and is therefore nine years old, but he is as sound as a bright new coin from the mint, and if there is a horse in America that can further reduce the stallion record it is Directum himself. At the recent sale of trotting-bred stock at Lexington, Kentucky, six yearlings by Directum were led into the ring. The highest priced one sold for $2,750 and the lowest for $860. The average for the six was $1,393 33. These youngsters attracted so much attention by their grand looks and evident ability to trot fast that as soon as the sale was ended several parties went to the telegraph office and wired the owners in this State for a price on Directum. The reply to all these inquiries was $30,000. Offers of $20,000 were received, but the Green Brothers thought the prices obtained for Directum's yearlings proved him to be worth all they asked. Then Mr. Spiers of Glens Falls, New York, one of the wealthiest men in the business, telegraphed that he would pay the sum asked for the horse if he could be passed upon by a veterinary of his selection. No horse ever received a more thorough examination and none ever passed more satisfactorily. Mr. Spier's commissioner will arrive in the State within a few days to take charge of the stallion and ship him East. Messrs. Green have specially requested Mr. Spiers to again put Directum in training, firmly believing that he can still further reduce his record. The writer saw the great horse trot an eighth in 16 seconds on the Pleasanton track last April, and he was so fat that he looked like a cart horse. He has as much speed now as he ever had in his life. Directum was bred by the late John Green. That gentleman's death and the death of his wife lately, has forced a settlement of their estates. For this reason Directum is sold and for no other. In the settlement of an estate money can be divided, but great difficulties would be presented in apportioning a valuable horse like Directum. The sending of the champion to New York will be a great loss to California, but we are glad to know that he will be in such good hands. His new owner, Mr. Spiers, is a very wealthy gentleman, with a love for the harness horse. He has been one of the most liberal buyers in the East this year, and including the price paid for Directum, has invested at least $6,000 in mares and young horses this year. Directum will be mated with some of the choicest mares in America next year and will have an opportunity to prove himself a great sire. The two and three-year-olds sired by him will probably nearly all be trained in 1899. But two or three of Directum's get were ever worked for speed and of these Jummye, bred by Milu Knox, of Haywards, was the only one raced and she took a record of 2:23¼ last year, which we have heard she has reduced to 2.15 this year on one of the eastern tracks.

At Mr. Spiers' farm at Glens Falls, are the following mares: Miss McGregor, 2:13, by Robert McGregor out of Morgan Bella by Administrator; Sappho, 2:15½, by Robert McGregor, out of Pauline by Ashland Chief; Lady Winship, 2:23½, dam of Leicester, 2:17½; Miss Fanny Jackson, 2:30, dam of Jacksonian, 2:13½, and Pitsony, 2.22, by Happy Medium, out of a dam of Kentucky Union, 2:07½. Mr. Spiers has recently purchased Mary Celeste, 2:17½, the two-year-old daughter of Oro Wilkes, the three-year-old filly Dainty Daffo by Wilton, the three-year-old filly Jamie T., 2:14, by Bow Bells, and several other splendidly-bred and fast mares.

It is rumored that Myron McHenry, who drove Thos. Keating's horses on the Eastern circuit this year whenever the latter was indisposed and unable to sit in the sulky, will spend the winter in California with Mr. Keating and endeavor to pick up a string of harness horses to take East next spring. McHenry is acknowledged to be one of the leading trainers and drivers in the country.

Lenna N.'s Pedigree Again.

Mr. Wallace is still worrying over the pedigree of Lenna N., 2:05½. When this journal dug up the evidence which went to show that she was out of a Benton mare, the veteran compiler of the Trotting Register rushed into print and charged that the whole pedigree was manufactured. Doubtless imbued with the belief that no record existed of the mare Nettie George being bred to Gen. Benton, he asserted that if in the books at Palo Alto was recorded such a fact, and the date agreed with the age of the mare, the sire of the dam of Lenna N. would be "reasonably well established." Well, the records of Palo Alto Stock Farm showed just such a state of facts, and Mr. Covey, the Superintendent, so stated in a communication to this paper and also to The Trotter and Pacer of New York. Now, that the records are in evidence, Mr. Wallace insinuates that as the foal was dropped in another county, and after the mare had changed hands, there is still a doubt as to the identity of Lenna N.'s dam. He then accuses a former owner of Nettie George of all sorts of things. There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who has looked into the matter at all, but Lenna N., 2:05½, is by Sidney, out of Miss Helen, by Gen. Benton, second dam Nettie George. As far as the rest of the pedigree goes there is no actual proof. It is "said to be" as follows: "Nettie George, by Norfolk, third dam by Ashland, fourth dam by Volscian, fifth dam by Bulwer and sixth dam by Illinois Medoc. As all these stallions stood in this State, and as Nettie George was bred by Buck Whiteside, a man who raced horses here in early days, and sold by him to D. E. Callahan, another gentleman who owned and raced thoroughbreds, and then passed to Wesley George, a race-horse owner who gave her her name, the supposition is that her breeding is as stated. Nettie George was raced, which she would not have been, in all probability, had she not been running bred. As far as we know, no one has as yet tried to register Miss Helen or Lenna N. The information about them was published as a matter of general interest, and the names of the parties furnishing the same were given. This paper has no interest in establishing a pedigree for Lenna N. or any other animal, except that it considers it the duty of every journal devoted to breeding interests to publish any information that will tend to clear up pedigrees that are obscure. Mr. Wallace has devoted a lifetime to a work that has been of incalculable value to the horse breeders of America, and is probably the greatest authority on pedigrees of trotting horses in the world, but his great reputation and knowledge, nor yet his extreme old age, justify him in branding all evidence as false that does not suit his fancy.

Return of Thos. Keating.

Thos. Keating arrived at Pleasanton Tuesday night with his great string of champions. Klatawah, 2:05½, was the only one left behind, and the champion three-year-old was shipped to New York where he will go under the hammer at the Fasig sale. Keating made the most remarkable campaign ever made by a trainer of harness horses. Nearly $30,000 in coin was earned in purses and stakes by the horses under Mr. Keating's charge, and the world's records for three, four and five-year-old pacers were also captured. Dione, the little daughter of Eros, trotted the fastest heat that was trotted by a mare this year except Mattie Patterson who just tied the mark. She won four out of eight starts and was inside the money every time but once. Searchlight, 2:04½, won ten out of eleven races that he started in. Anaconda, 2:04½, went to the post fifteen times and won eleven first moneys. Mr. Keating was in poor health the greater part of the time, and secured Myron McHenry to drive for him whenever he was unable to sit in the sulky. It is probable that Mr. McHenry will form an alliance with Keating, and if the two prepare a string at Pleasanton this winter for another tour over the Eastern circuits they will be able to take the pick of the best trotters and pacers in California.

How the Directums Sold.

The great sale which came off at Lexington during the recent meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association, resulted in good prices being obtained for all the good prospects and good aged horses. The get of Directum, 2:05½, brought prices which proved that they are highly valued by those looking for racing prospects for future years. They were all yearlings and the sale is one of the most remarkable in the history of the harness horse. The prices were as follows:

Vevania, b f, 1, by Directum—Virgia Wilkes, by Georgia Wilkes; W. E. Spier, Glenn Falls, N. Y., $1,000.

Hardwicke, br c, 1, by Directum—Impetuous, 2:13, by Dictator; N. W. Hubinger, New Haven, Conn., $2,750.

Directum stood at $100 in Kentucky. But six of his crop of foals resulting were offered for sale, and the result is an average of $1,393.33—a rather profitable investment for the breeders.

Few three-year-olds were out this year in California, but the probabilities are that there will be a much larger number in training next year.

Cross-Firing—Shoeing the Pacer.

[BY JAMES McCOOL.]

To prevent a pacer from cross-firing seems to be a subject that has called out the ideas of farriers and trainers quite often. The different styled shoes advocated by horseshoers and trainers to prevent cross firing are many; and after reading of so many different styles of shoes that will prevent cross firing in the horse papers and journals of the country, I fail to see anything in them about the methods employed in preparing the foot for the shoe. As methods for doing a great many things have changed of late years for the better, I hope the following for shoeing a cross-firing pacer will be new to many and induce some practical shoers to advance a still better and easier one. First, note the length of the toes, the length of pasterns, whether short or long, on both front and hind feet. As the trouble lies in the front feet as often as in the hind, don't overlook them or they will be in the way of the hind with any kind of shoe on the hind feet. Having had some experience in shoeing the pacer, I find that he can be shod by two entirely different methods, and either will stop him cutting his quarters.

A shoe with a long, sharp calk at the heel and another between toe and quarter on the outside, will cause the foot to go from right to left and left to right with less stride and less speed. This is the rim shoe method, or dressing of the foot from the bottom on the inside well and rolling the shoe from the toe on the inside to the quarter, with the wall of the foot cut away on the bottom and side till the foot is out of level, and the toe so far from the line of motion that the feet go criss-cross, falling short and to the outside of the front feet on the opposite sides. With a plain shoe and a level foot, with toes on a straight line with the front feet, the angle and length of toes to correspond with the action of the front ones, and no pacer will cross-fire unless he is pulled too hard or drove to a break. The first thing I do after removing the shoes of a cross-firing pacer, I measure the feet and get the length and angle of toes; if the front ones are long, and at an angle of forty-two degrees, I reduce them from the bottom till they stand at an angle of forty-eight, providing the feet will allow that much cutting or rasping. If not, I raise the heels with leather till I get an angle of forty-eight or forty-nine, then I apply a square-toed rolling motion bar shoe as light as will his serviceable and give action to the feet. Having quickened the action and shortened the stride in front, I remove the hind shoes and get length and angle of toes; finding the hind feet at an angle of fifty degrees, as they usually are when they cross-fire and cut their quarters, I lower the heels and extend the shoe past the toe till I get an angle of forty-two. This shoe should be half an inch wider at the toe with the holes punched well to the inside of the web at the toe to allow shoe to extend past the wall of the toe. With the toe of the shoe almost square and as light as possible, and one inch of heel of shoe extending back behind the foot. Having raised and quickened the action in front and lowered and increased the stride behind, the hind feet are forced to pass under and to the inside of the opposite front feet.

By following this method, I find no trouble with a straight footed pacer after the toes grow out behind, and no necessity for anything but a plain shoe if the feet are kept at an angle to correspond with the action front and hind, keeping in mind the length of the pastern bones in the pasterns are like the long toes, and should always be considered in connection with the foot when preparing the foot for the shoe. This method will never fail on a line pacer; that is, one whose toes behind point in a direct line to the front feet. If he is too wide behind, we must apply a different style of shoe. This shoe should be slightly wider at the inside toe, with the holes well to the inside of the shoe at the toe, so as to let the shoe project past the wall from the center of the toe back half way to the quarter, with the outside wheels well turned out. This style of shoe forces the foot to break over on a more direct line with the front foot on the same side. Knowing my methods to be contrary to the ideas of a great many, I am very confident also that the pacer will not cross-fire, providing the feet are dressed level and the toes at a length and angle to correspond with his action front and hind, and the shoe adjusted so as to cause the foot to break square over the line on which he travels, or on a straight line with the front foot on the same side.

Red Wilkes at 24.

At the Interstate Fair, Trenton, N. J., the Belle Meade stock farm exhibited the great old sire Red Wilkes, and it is gratifying to note that his 24 years rest lightly upon him. He seems as active and vigorous as a horse of half his age, and would look so, were it not for the sprinkling of gray hairs above the eyes. No published portrait does the veteran justice, for he is a truly magnificent, up-headed horse, built in massive mould but with a harmony of proportion that relieves him from coarseness. He is a deep, rich bay, with faint star, and white hind pasterns, circled by black spots around the coronet. These spots usually reappear upon his offspring. His noble head presents a cheerful, kindly countenance, and his big hazel eyes fairly beam with intelligent interest in his surroundings. Al Thomes, then whom there is no better all-round horseman, speaks enthusiastically of his great speed as a colt, and he still retains a superabundance of nervous energy that renders it expedient to give him his daily road work under saddle.

At the Cleveland sale in 1895 the two-year-old gelding Ben Chabova was sold out of the Oakwood Park consignment for $390. His name was changed to Walter D., and under that name he has won four races and a second money this year, earning a record of 2:23½. He is by Charles Derby 2:20, dam by Idol Wilkes; second dam by Bell Morgan. His owner, A. Ansell, of Uniontown, Pa., says Walter D. had only six weeks' work before going to the races. Until this summer he did not think the gelding was fast enough for a race horse, but believes now that he has the best horse in his class and says he can step him a mile in 2:10 on a half-mile ring.

Where the Axe Should Be Laid.

[Iconoclast in Chicago Horseman.]

I was very much interested in the highly judicial article in a late number of The Horseman discussing the rule against laying up heats and quite agree with you that it is not exactly what the necessities of the track require. Doubtless the intention of the framers of that rule was good, but equally without doubt it has failed to effect the purpose of its enactment, and still more without doubt, if possible, it will continue to be a failure in this respect. Drivers may still be fined (in rather exceptional instances); the authorities may still go further and suspend or expel drivers, owners and horses, and still heats will be laid up. When the operation of any law is in many cases manifestly and palpably unjust that law will, in spite of spasmodic efforts to enforce it, sooner or later become a dead letter.

The trouble with the rule is that it is too extreme, too doctrinaire. It is not sufficiently practical. It assumes that all "laying up" except where the winning of a heat is impossible, is absolutely vicious. This is an erroneous assumption and utterly at war with the commonly received opinion among the best horsemen. Not only do emergencies arise where to trot for every heat is impossible, but they are not infrequent where to do so means the certain loss of the race and of any position at the finish that will give a horse any part of purse or stake. While the object of a trotting association is to amuse its patrons, the object of a driver or owner is to win his races. The enforcement of a rule which in very many cases frustrates the legitimate desire of the driver to win, which, in fact, makes it impossible frequently to accomplish this purpose will always be attended with great difficulty and cannot be carried out without inflicting great injury upon the trotting turf.

Every race-goer knows that there are very many cases in which to drive for every heat means the certain loss of the race and any place in it; and yet the men who drive horses in such races have paid their entrance fees and complied with all the conditions laid down by the association. If they can win without violating any proper law and without in any way infringing upon the rights of others, it seems just and reasonable that they should be permitted to do so.

A case of this kind occurred at Louisville last year, and I mention it not because it is an isolated one, but because, in this instance, the judges were themselves convinced of the hardship of the rule as applied to this case. One of the most irreproachable drivers on the track was in charge of Louis Mac. At that time this mare was capable of trotting one good mile, but not two fast ones in succession. She came in second to the winning horse in a fast heat. Her driver, knowing her condition (and the mare losing a little time at the start), laid her up, well knowing that if he drove her for second place in the second heat she would be worthless in the third. For this offense he was taken out of the sulky and fined heavily. Upon reflection, however, the judges remitted the penalty. Cases similar to this arise frequently and are liable to occur at every meeting. It is certainly a very great hardship in such cases to deprive a good horse of a chance of at least getting back his entrance fee.

There can be but one opinion about laying up heats for the purpose of influencing the book betting and enabling the people in the scheme to rob the public. No one except the robbers themselves can justify or excuse such a prostitution of racing. The parties to such flagitious proceedings cannot be too heavily punished and the trouble heretofore, in some cases at least, has been that too broad a mantle of charity has been apparently thrown over such offenders. Men engaged in such work should not only be expelled, but expelled without the hope or possibility of reinstatement. They are an incubus upon honest racing. They are men who would, if the opportunity was afforded, cheat and swindle in any other line of business. They are on a level with ringers, with the three-card-monte man and with gold-brick swindlers. But it is the associations themselves that offer the premium to such rascality, by permitting the pernicious system of betting on heats to be continued. The bookmaker is the prolific source of this evil; abolish him and most of it would disappear as if by magic. Let all the betting be on the final results, not on heats. Everybody, or at least almost everybody, realizes this, but the bookmaker pays for the privilege; the tracks derive a revenue from the practice, which they are reluctant to relinquish. Instead of this, by fining honest drivers for using the means to win, which in the absence of the rule against laying up heats would be strictly legitimate, they hope to relieve somewhat against the effects of a system which they permit and encourage. The remedy is an efficient and palpable one, but as it would interfere with their earnings they do not care to apply it. Whatever necessity, real or apparent, there may be for heavily penalizing drivers and possibly owners for attempting to win races, without killing their horses, grows out of the reluctance of the associations to relinquish their share of the profits growing out of the altogether indefensible practice of betting on heats, a practice that has occasioned more trouble upon the track than all other causes combined.

It is, to say the least, extremely doubtful whether this policy of the associations is not a short-sighted one and really costs the associations much more than any revenue they derive from it. The dissatisfaction of many of the most prominent drivers and owners growing out of the partial attempts that are made to enforce the present unwise rule is certainly no light matter. It has not only shown itself frequently during the present year, but during every year of the attempted enforcement of the rule. It will continue as long as the rule exists and will be a perpetual source of trouble and annoyance and will alienate many of the warmest friends of the trotting turf. Besides this, it will never under the present system be generally enforced. An occasional spasmodic effort will be made in that direction, provoking great complaint and dissatisfaction and making the drivers the vicarious sacrifices for the sin which really lies at the door of the associations, which have it in their power to prevent illegitimate "laying up" by simply abolishing book betting on heats. Whether they will eventually adopt this course and put the axe at the root of the tree depends entirely upon the wisdom of the men in control.

A Brush With Flying Jib.

The once great champion Flying Jib 2:04 will be returned to California this week coming with the Keating string. The following story of an incident in the life of the fast pacer is taken from the Horse World.

The soft breezes quivered, the leaves that, painted by the autumn sun, were glowing bravely in every shade of red, brown and gold that Sunday when I drove, hitched to a light wagon, a rakish looking bay gelding over the Boulevard in Cleveland to Wade Park. His thin lively ears pricked and turned and played, and his great intelligent eye glanced from side to side and back at his new driver, as with his easy, trotting jog he stepped along, a king of his race, admired by the many ladies and gentlemen in swell turn-outs who met us. There seemed nothing created that he feared; he was bright and cheerful and happy and pleasant, prompt and alert to the slightest touch of the rein—in short, he was that perfection which a road driver may live to an old age and die without finding.

That bay gelding was Flying Jib,—"the Jib horse"—the first horse in the world to beat two minutes in harness, one of the soundest, sweetest and most intelligent horses ever foaled, and the fastest horse on the road the world has ever seen. No wonder Captain Griffith would never sell "the Jib." We got to the speeding ground at Wade Park in a quiet, trotting jog. The Jib seemed to know the purpose of the smooth, straight stretch, for his ears pricked more lively, and he glanced oftener back to me, poking his nose out in gentle reminder and, if a horse wonders, perhaps wondering if "that guy holding the reins realized that he was sitting behind a horse that could beat any horse living in a brush down the road." The other fellow came along: I mean the fellow with holders on the lines, quarter boots on his steed, blue glasses and a knowing, confident look. He sat straight back, his arms at length and the lines taut. He had that bantering, tantalizing, aggravating if-I'd-only-let-loose-of-these-lines-where-would-you-be air as he glanced at Jib and me. The Jib moved a little faster and I took him gently back as my rival loosened on his reins and asked his horse to step along. I allowed him to open up about a length of daylight, and just when the other fellow thought it was "too easy." I slacked away to the Jib—whizz, phew, a clatter of feet on the hard road like the roll beat of a snare drum, a whiff of wind and the Jib was gone. I commenced gasping for breath as the wind carried away my hat and took the few remaining feeble hairs from the top of my head. The wagon meantime swishing from side to side, the sparks flying, and I began to realize that I was riding on a streak of lightning, or rather behind one. Then I weakened—I've said a thousand times that I could ride as fast as a horse could go—but the Jib taught me I was mistaken, and I spoke to him taking him back with a slight tension and the Jib, back on a trotting jog looked around as much as to say "What do you think of that?" We turned and presently met my rival road driver; he was a good fellow at heart, honest enough to go into the "excuse column" when he was beaten; he held up both hands and we stopped. "Fore God, Mister, what is that you are driving? Why, this horse I have has a record of 2:12, and I didn't think a man could boy, beg, borrow or steal a horse he couldn't beat, but you went past me like the Empire State Express would pass a funeral. That's the first time I was ever beaten on the road, but you beat me good and plenty."

Wins Big Money in Russia.

Frank Caton, who has been training in Russia very successfully for several years, is home in Cleveland on a brief visit, says the American Sportsman. He reports that during the summer he won the great international race at Moscow with the five year-old stallion Passe Rose by Patron, trotting in 2:14¾ and 2:14¾, both being faster than the previous Russian record of a mile. But for an error on the part of the boy who had the pacemaker, Passa Rosa would have trotted in 2:12. He carried the young horse away too fast, the first quarter being in 31½ seconds and the half in 1:04. Second money in the International went to Will Caton's horse Edgar, which he bought at Xenia, O., last spring. Edgar trotted a dead heat with Monetta 2:14¼ for second money, and in the saw-off won trotting the fourth mile in 2:17½, while Monette finished in 2:19.

Mr. Caton stable won from April 29, 1897, to April 29, 1898, 266,000 roubles ($133,000). He won both the Emperor's and Empress' Prize. He has in his stable the filly Cleopetra by Prince Warwick, out of an Orloff mare, that has won 13 straight races as a three and four year old, earning over $14,000. Mr. Caton says Frank Star has been quite successful in Russia this year. Recently he won a race with the Orloff horse Nedrtrogua, driving him 2 2-3 miles in 6:32.

Docking Horses' Tails.

A New York paper says: There is a decided move on hand to abolish the cruel and absurd practice of chopping off horses' tails. It is said that the leaders of fashion in England have given up purchasing short-tailed horses, and as the docking craze originated in a foolish idea of aping the English, it is likely that in a short while the fashion will change here also. The practice as now carried out is even more absurd than when first originated. Years ago horses used for coaching purposes were docked, one of the arguments in favor of the system being that if the leaders were driven with long tails they were continually switching the wheelers in their faces, and that it would not look well to drive two docked-tail horses in front and two long-tail horses behind. But at that the tails were not cut off to such an absurd stump as is now customary. In view of the probable change in the fashion it would be as well for consigners to send their stock, intended for carriage use, into the market, with natural tails.

BUMPS 2:04¼, has been sold to F. G. Hartwell of Chicago, who will use him as a road horse. The price paid was $3,500.

ORRIN S. HICKOK has been asked to judge the trotters and roadsters at the Cleveland Horse Show to be held November 8th to 12th.

A Nailless Shoe.

Mr. McDougall, of Wellington street, Glasgow, Scotland, has invented a nailless horseshoe which, if all reports are true, will shiver the spines of horseshoers. Mr. McDougall's invention has two projections, one at each side at the back of the shoe, which engage rings at the end of a band passing over the front of the hoof and fastened in the middle by a screw attachment to the center of the shoe. Great simplicity is claimed for the arrangement, and the services of a farrier will not be needed when a horse loses one of these shoes, as another can be put on in a few minutes by any practical man. This new invention was put to a severe test in a recent trial—the horse on which the shoes were fitted being driven to a heavily laden van and worked up and down steep grades and on granite paved streets. The shoes showed no signs of shifting, and they were not taken off until worn out.

AT Allentown, Pa., there was an attendance of 65,000 people on one day of the fair held this year and never less than 10,000. This is the way they drew the crowd. There were buildings filled with agricultural products, and with horses, cattle, sheep, etc., for all of which rich premiums were offered. There were 64 side shows, a continuous vaudeville performance, rope walking and baloon ascensione. An excellent program of races were pulled off on the half mile track and the week was made a regular picnic for the people of the surrounding country.

CONGRESSMAN BAILEY, of Texas, in a conversation, outlined a plan for prevention of the dropping of heats. He suggested that every race should end at the termination of five heats, and that the horses should share in the purse according to the average of their positions. The average for a horse that trots 2, 2, 2, 3, 2, is better than that of a horse which trots in 10, 1, 8, 5, 8, the total of the first being 11 and of the other 32; and Mr. Bailey would base the distribution upon this average.—Turf, Field and Farm.

TWO MORE trotters bought at Lexington last week by the foreigners were Marie, 2:20½, by Young Jim, and the green horse Valois, by Volta, 2:19, dam Ennice, by Electioneer. He has no mark, but was second in 2:16¼ in the first heat of the 2:27 trot.

Horse Owners Should Use
GOMBAULT'S
Caustic Balsam
The GREAT FRENCH VETERINARY REMEDY
A Safe, Speedy and POSITIVE CURE.

Prepared exclusively by J. B. Gombault ex-Veterinary Surgeon to the French Government Stud.
SUPERSEDES ALL CAUTERY OR FIRING
Impossible to produce any scar or blemish. The Safest best BLISTER ever used. Takes the place of all liniments for mild or severe action. Removes all Bunches or Blemishes from Horses or Cattle.
As a HUMAN REMEDY for Rheumatism, Sprains, Sore Throat, Etc., it is invaluable.
WE GUARANTEE that one tablespoonful of CAUSTIC BALSAM will produce more actual results than a whole bottle of any liniment or spavin cure mixture ever made.

Definite Aim in Breeding.

The export trade in horses from this country is one well worthy of consideration by those engaged in breeding. England, and in fact nearly every other foreign nation, is making increased demands at good prices for our best ones. They have found that it is cheaper for them to import their horses from America than to raise them, and if we are wise we shall try to produce the type of horses they want. Foreign agents who come here to buy know just what they desire, and they will ship only such as are in demand in their respective countries. It is necessary, therefore, that the breeders of the United States shall fully understand the wants of the purchasing public, and then bend their energy to secure just such types of animals as are sought after. The horsemen who have accomplished the most have been those who have had a definite purpose which they have kept constantly in mind. To be successful requires practical knowledge of the business, coupled with great energy and push. There never has been, and probably never will be, a time when any stallion or particular breed, however meritorious, will attain any very prominent place unless vigorously pushed forward by some one, but where a horse actually has merit a market for him and his stock can be worked up if the owner goes about it in the right way and keeps at it persistently. It will require the expenditure of some money and much thought to establish a high reputation either for some particular stallion, breed or stock farm; but in the end if judiciously managed, the owner will be fully repaid for both. Much has already been accomplished in many different lines, and yet there are plenty of comparatively unworked fields.

There is a good field for one whose preference is in that direction for building up a reputation for the production of uniformly superior carriage horses and gentlemen's roadsters. Plenty of stock farms are famous for the production of speed, but the trotters fall short of meeting the requirements, as they lack in nearly every essential point what the markets require. They have no particular type, as they are produced in nearly every size, shape and breed known. They are wonders in their class, but they do not suit the fancy of ninety per cent of the purchasing public. Whether it be in the breeding of trotters, carriage and gentlemen's drivers or in any other line, every one should, however firm his opinions may have been at the start, be ready to modify, or entirely change, if with further research and experience he has reason to do so. Uniform conformation and color, together with trappy gait, intelligence, courage and good disposition, are the essential requisites that must be kept in mind if we would succeed.

Sires of Six 2:10 Performers.

Twenty years ago a stallion with six of his get with records of 2:30 or better attracted national attention and was classed as a very great sire indeed, and ten years ago the owner of any sire was content to boast of six 2:20 performers, considering that he was truly the owner of a great extreme speed sire—and so he was, for, if we have made no miscount, in 1888 only four stallions had each so many as six 2:20 performers to their credit, they being George Wilkes, with thirteen; Electioneer, with nine, and Blue Bull and Nutwood with six each. In 1898—another period of ten years—we have four sires each with six 2:10 or better performers to their credit—a marvelously progressive showing. The list of present day extreme speed sires, and the 2:10 performers to their credit, is as follows:

- Chehalis (p) 2:04¼
- Del Norte (p) 2:08
- Ella T. (p) 2:08¼
- Doc Sperry (p) 2:09
- Piedmont (p) 2:09¼
- Altao (t) 2:09¾

BARON WILKES, 2:18, by George Wilkes, 2:22, dam by Mambrino Patchen—
- Bumps (p) 2:04¼
- Rubinstein (p) 2:05
- Rachael (p) 2:08¼
- Oakland Baron (t) 2:09¼
- Baron Rogers (t) 2:09¾
- Red Silk (p) 2:10

MAMBRINO KING, by Mambrino Patchen, dam by Edwin Forrest—
- Heir-at-Law (p) 2:05¾
- Lady of the Manor (p) 2:07¾
- Nightingale (t) 2:08
- Mocking Boy (p) 2:08¼
- Moonstone (p) 2:09
- Dare Devil (t) 2:09¼

- Pearl Onward (p) 2:06¼
- Benzetta (t) 2:06¾
- Gazelle (p) 2:07¼
- Pilatus (t) 2:09¼
- Colbert (p) 2:09¾
- Col. Thornton (p) 2:09¾

To fully realize the progress that we are making in the matter of breeding harness speed, it is only necessary for one to compare the showing of ten years ago with that of to-day. Ten years ago not a single sire had to his credit two 2:10 performers—indeed, we had but three 2:10 performers, all told, in 1888. To-day four sires each have to their credit six 2:10 performers, and more than a score of sires have to their credit one or more 2:10 performers, and the last ten years have witnessed the fall of the popular measure of a sire's greatness from 2:20 to 2:10. What the next decade will bring forth in harness speed production it is folly to predict, but that progress will be unimpeded every process of logical reasoning on the subject fully warrants. The end is not yet in extreme harness speed production, nor will it soon be.—Western Horseman.

Delmarch, 2:11 1-2.

Mr. M. L. Huse, of Indianapolis, Ind., who bred the bay stallion "Delmarch, 2:11½," writes: "I have tried all the different remedies advertised for restoring curbs, splints and bunches. I feel safe in saying that Quinn's Ointment is by far the best I ever used."

A Deserved Compliment.

Edward H. Aigeltinger, the well known dealer in hay, grain, wood and coal, whose place of business is at 1722 Ellis street, is a candidate for Supervisor of the 12th Ward at the approaching election. Mr. Aigeltinger is Vice-President of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association, and one its most enthusiastic members, attending all meetings and nearly always presiding over the deliberations. On Saturday last nearly fifty members of the association met by agreement at the corner of Golden Gate Avenue and Market street, all seated in their road or park rigs, and formed a procession which drove through the principal streets of the city. The procession was led by Dr. I. B. Dalzell's handsome four-in-hand, and was marshaled by Geo. W. Berry. No finer lot of roadsters ever lined up in this city and the procession attracted a great deal of attention. Each rig bore a placard on which was printed, "For Good Streets and Roads, E. H. Aigeltinger, Candidate for Supervisor." The whole thing was a complete surprise to the worthy gentleman himself and he greatly appreciated the compliment thus extended him by his fellow members of this popular driving club.

Mr. Aigeltinger is peculiarly well fitted for the office of Supervisor, being a thorough business man with a knowledge of the needs of the city, and one who believes that anything worth doing at all is worth doing well. As a member of the Board of Supervisors he could be depended upon to favor good streets, and give his personal attention to seeing that the taxpayers got value received for their money. The members of Golden Gate Park Driving Association, regardless of politics, will vote for Mr. Aigeltinger to a man. His election to the office would be a real benefit to the city.

Definition of a Chancy Horse.

The well-known horse dealer, F. J. Berry, of the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, gives the following definition of what constitutes a "chancy" horse, a term much used now-a-days by dealers in the East:

It is a horse so superior in conformation, action, style, color, substance and beauty, possessing all the size and qualities that the market demands and so perfect a model of a gentleman's roadster, coach and carriage horse that he has but few equals. This kind of a horse there is no particular value upon; they are so scarce that there is but little competition in their kind. They are so called chancy because their value depends upon the customer and how much money he wants to pay for a fine horse. If this class were more plenty there would be a market value established, but being so scarce the price depends more upon the price that the owner holds him at and whether he is obliged to sell, and also upon the amount that the purchaser wants to give up when he finds an animal that just suits him. This class of horse has already become so scarce and dear in our market that the owner can get most any price that he wants to ask—as much or more money than they would have brought when horses were at the highest price, ranging in price from $200 to $500, and even $600. They do not have to possess so very much speed to bring these prices if they have size, color, and quality and action in keeping with the price.

Blue Grass Notes.

It is said that Mr. D. D. Streator, of Kalamazoo, Mich., presented Peter V. Johnston with one-half of the purse when he won the Kentucky Futurity. The amount was $3,550.

Andy McDowell last week bought a fast yearling colt by Dr. Hooker from R. P. Fox. Mr. Fox also sold to W. E. Spier, of Glen Falls, N. Y., a yearling by Dr. Hooker, out of the dam of Bettie Igo, Maggie Igo and others.

About $110,000 went into the pool box on the Transylvania, of which the Hubingers placed about $25,000. It was a great betting race, and the Connecticut boys will take a lot of money home with them from Kentucky.

Last week Messrs. Bride & Herdic, the well-known pool-sellers, paid to Mrs. B. J. Treacy $85 on a pool ticket that her late husband, Capt. B. J. Treacy, had in his pocket at the time of his tragic death in Boston two years ago.

The Kentucky stallion, C. F. Clay, secured his fiftieth 2:30 performer recently at Troy, O., when La Forn won the race in the 2:40 class in straight heats. Time, 2:20½, 2:20, 2:20.

Nick Hubinger lost $5,000 on the three-year-old division of the Kentucky Futurity, backing Charlie Herr, and won $10,000 on The Merchant, winner of the two-year-old division.

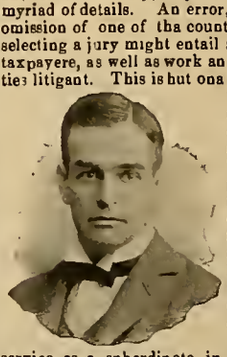
Mr. John T. Hughes, of this city, has sold to Col. F. W. Blees, of Macon, Mo., the great saddle and show stallion, Rex McDonald, one of the best horses of his class that ever lived. The price received by Mr. Hughes is said to be $5,000. Mr. Hughes purchased Rex McDonald in Missouri about three years ago for the reported price of $3,000. The horse has been shipped to his new owner.

The K. T. H. B. A. will lose money on its meeting this year for the first time in more than a dozen years. This is due to the miserable weather, as neither the horses nor the people could be held here on such uncertainties as confronted them as regards the purse races. The program, however, was carried out to the letter, and verified the motto of the Association never to declare off. This misfortune, however, will not injure the financial standing of the Association, as it is "built upon a rock."

Billy Abshire, the two-year-old chestnut gelding that won the second heat and secured second money in the Lexington, on Tuesday, has been sold by his owner, James B. White, of Richmond, Ky., to B. H. Tuthill, of New York City, for $1,700. Billy Abshire is rather a small gelding, but a sure enough trotter, and will some day be heard from on the trotting tracks of the country. His sire is Hax Hall (son of William L.), dam Sally Absbire, by Vatican. He was trained at the Lexington track by young Waller Traynor, who deserves much credit for making him the good trotter he really is. He is smooth-going and good-gaited, and we think will develop into a good-sized horse. He is a cheap horse at the price paid for him.—American Stock Farm.

William A. Deane.

The office of County Clerk, to a greater extent than that of any in the county, requires a thorough knowledge of a myriad of details. An error, such as might be made in an omission of one of the countless technical requirements in selecting a jury might entail a serious loss in money to the taxpayers, as well as work an irreparable damage to the parties litigant. This is but one of the intricate duties in which the responsibility for its correct execution rests upon the clerk of the county who represents the people in this office. There is no end of equally important things which confront this official in the daily routine of his work. A perfect performance of them can be satisfactorily done only by one who has learned the hard lessons which experience alone in this department of our institutions can give.



A reasonably good term of service, as a subordinate in this office and later as Chief Clerk, gives Mr. William A. Deane, the Republican candidate for County Clerk, especial favor with the conservative voter whose desire is to have economy prevail in the administration of civic affairs.

He is no stranger in this community where he has spent many years of a useful and industrious career.

And if these sterling traits of character which have marked his progress in the past; if the years of honest conduct to his credit, during which he has transacted the business of his position with equal grace and courtesy to every body without distinction, avail, Mr. William A. Deane will be chosen on next election day by a big plurality.

Henry S. Martin.

One of the candidates of the Republican party, who is deserving of every voters support is the well and favorably known San Francisco gentlemen, Mr. Henry S. Martin, who is in the race for Sheriff.

He has progressed apace with the march of his native city and has been identified with the growth of San Francisco for many years. He executive ability has been in demand upon numerous occasions, and as treasurer of the Golden Jubilee Committee, and on the Finance Committee of the Midwinter Fair, he rendered creditable service to this community. A giver of liberal charity, he has also devoted his time in behalf of the same worthy cause, and has performed Spartan duty as director and past-president of the French Hospital. When the boys in blue were patiently enduring the lot of the soldier, when sickness entered their ranks, and food was scant, no one contributed more readily, and enlisted his efforts in behalf of them with greater zeal than the big hearted Henry S. Martin.

With a bright record to his credit, the probity of his character silences the tongues of slander, and is an assurance to the people that if honored by an election to the high dignity of Sheriff, he will wear it with becoming grace, and always be found ready to do his duty in upholding the supremecy of the law and order.

H. N. Clement.

The Republicans, in their selection of a candidate for Judge, were desirous of securing an able lawyer, whose integrity would be unquestionable.

Mr. Clement, who had never been a candidate for office before, except in the matter of two successful nominations for freeholder, hesitated to accept. Upon the solicitation of members of the bar, however, and receiving assurance of their support, he was placed on the ticket.

Uniting an untiring zeal for study with a ripe legal knowledge, Mr. Clement ranks among the foremost of his profession. He is especially well conversant with the municipal branch of the science, and his articles on Chinese immigration and dissertations on the system of taxation in the New Constitution have added materially in the elucidation of these subjects.

Mr. Clement is the right man to whom may be safely conferred the solemn responsibilities of the office to which he aspires. Endowed with the ability to trace difficult problems of the law to their equitable and logical results, he will honestly and fearlessly administer justice to all for whom it becomes his duty to render judgment.

Chas. S. Laumeister.

The people of these United States have always liked to bestow public honors upon the men who have reached success in life by a hard struggle up from the ranks.

No better type of the self-made man can be found than Charles S. Laumeister, the excellent gentleman of well known business ability whom the Republicans of the Second District have selected for Railroad Commissioner. He came to this city from Germany when but ten years of age and began his career as a miller. Mr. Laumeister succeeded so well that in 1872 he established the "Laumeister Mills." In 1888 he was elected Sheriff on the Republican ticket and served two terms. Two years ago when running for Mayor the returns showed that had he been the sole Republican candidate he would have received the largest plurality ever known in this city.

As a courteous, liberal-minded citizen whose works of philanthrophy have long been recognized in this community, Mr. Laumeister is without a peer in San Francisco.

JOHN D. SEIBE, the present efficient Assessor of this city, and one of the most popular officials that ever filled that responsible position, is again a candidate for the office. His experience of two terms, and his proven integrity and fairness in making assessments of property are reasons for his re-election to the position. Mr. Seibe is one of those independent, self-reliant men, who knows his duty and dares do it. He should be kept in the Assessor's office another term.

Sulky Notes.

Sales of trotters now remind us
As the average upward climbs,
That we soon will leave behind us
All the worry of hard times.

THE harness horses have gone into wintar quarters.

WHAT will Klatawah (3), 2:05¼, bring at the Fasig sale?

CUT GLASS, 2:10½, goes to Europe, having been sold for $3,000.

WHEN Directly took his record of 2:03¼, he went the last half in 1:01¼.

THERE will be a good circuit in California next year with generous purses.

SIDNEY POINTER, 2:14½, is a 2:15 performer to the credit of Star Pointer.

W. E. SPIER, Glenn Falls, N. Y., has purchased Jania T., 2, 2:14, of Geo. A. Fuller for $2,000.

FLYING JIB, 2:04, was shipped to Lexington on Saturday and returned to California in Keating's car.

WHAT'S in a name? A Pennsylvanian horse is called Budweiser, and his driver is named Sober.

LODI and Pleasanton will probably be the favorite training grounds for the harness horses next spring.

ANDY MCDOWELL intends bidding for the lease of Belmont Park, Philadelphia, for the season of 1898.

ETHELWYNN has in Impetuous, 2:15¾, and Ecstasy two fillies whose two-year-old records average 2:13 1-8.

COBWEBS, 2:12, son of Whips, seems to be able to beat anything he runs up against on the New York speedway.

JOHN NOLAN has a record that will be hard to smash. He is the winner of the two fastest five-heat races ever trotted.

FIVE thousand dollars was the price paid for Tommy Britton, 2:09¼, by his new owner Jerry Allis of Minneapolis.

DR. J. C. MCCOY, of Kirkwood, Del., has bought a yearling by Directum, out of Fedora, by Nawcomb, for $1,500.

MORE trotting bred horses have been sold for $1,000 and upwards in the United States this year than for several years past.

SPLIT SILK, 2:09¼, is tired of the racing game. At Lexington she absolutely refused to score and was taken to the stable.

THE fastest trotter of the year is Bingen, 2:06¾, but the great race horses of the year are John Nolan, 2:08, and Directum Kelly, 2:08¼.

I. M. MULHOLLAND, candidate for Surveyor General on the Democratic State ticket is the owner of that good little son of McKinney, Osito 2:14¾.

MARGARET S., 2:12¼, by Director, recently trotted a half to wagon over the Belmont Park track, Philadelphia: 1:06. The little mare is now 12 years of age.

THOSE who saw Peter the Great, 2:12½, win the three-year-old stake at Lexington think his chances to beat all records are the best of any trotter now in evidence.

IT is reported that Andy McDowell, who will winter in the East may be a bidder for the Driving Club privileges at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, for next year.

THE public wants finished horses. Unbroken or undeveloped animals, no matter how well bred, unless ultra fashionable at the time of the sale will not bring large prices.

ANY old stallion with a trotting pedigree cannot get a large patronage any more. He must have speed, size and conformation or the mares will not be booked to him.

WHEN the matter is sifted down and a reasonable conclusion arrived at, it will be seen that betting on heats has caused the trotting turf more trouble than anything else.

LUCY WOODRUFF, dam of four in the list, including Silkwood, 2:07, died recently. She was in foal at the time of her death to Jay Daw, son of Jay Bird.

PETER THE GREAT clipped three-quarters of a second from the Futurity record when he trotted the third heat in 2:12½. The previous record was 2:13¼ made by Preston last year.

PACERS are very popular with the road drivers of San Francisco. During a drive over the speedway or the ocean boulevard, about one half the speed certs one sees are drawn by pacers.

THE running horse methods which it was thought would improve trotting have nearly all proved failures. Running and trotting are akin, but the relationship is farther removed than many think.

CHARLES MERLING, the horseshoer who went East with Keating this year and shod his horses all through the circuit, will not return to this State this winter, but will locate in Denver, Colorado.

TRAINER JAMES SULLIVAN has sent his horses to Chico, where they will be turned out for a while. Mr. Sullivan will spend a few weeks in San Francisco before beginning to work his horses again.

ANACONDA is probably the only pacer in the 2:05 class that carries heavier shoes behind than he does in front. His front shoes weigh less than seven ounces and his hind shoes a little more than eight.

DIRECTUM will be missed in California next year. Quite a number of breeders here had made up their minds to send several mares to him, and the probabilities are he would have made a heavy season.

AT Lexington, last week, Miss Sidney won the last three heats of a five-heat race in 2:14, 2:14½, 2:16¾; on Friday she won in straight heats in 2:14¼, 2:15, 2:15½. And still they say "the Sidneys are soft."

C. H. KERNER has at his farm at Great Barrington, Mass., a colt by Patchen Wilkes that was broken to harness during the past summer, and that a few days ago stepped a half in 1:09, last eighth in 14 seconds.

DIRECTLY, so far this season, is the only pacer that has gone a mile better than 2:04 that did not have a faster record previous to this year. His mile in 2:03¼ in the third heat at Louisville gives him this distinction.

STARBOUL ought to make a good sire. Every one of his get can trot fast, and can go the route. His daughter, Nellie Bly, trotted two miles this year in 4:47, or within two seconds of the record at the distance.

COPIES of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of January 15, 1898, and February 12, 1898, are wanted at this office. Any of our readers having copies of these dates will confer a favor by sending the same to this office.

IDOLITA, 2:21¼, and Crystallina, 2:19¼, two of the season's best two-year-olds, were bred in studs owned by widows. The former was bred by Mrs. Jane L. Stanford at Palo Alto; the latter by Mrs. A. L. Stout, Faywood, Ky.

REX MCDONALD, the well-known saddle and show stallion, has been sold by John T. Hughes to Col. F. W. Blees, Mexico, Mo. The price is said to be almost $5,000. Rex was the big thing at the last Kansas City horse show.

CALIFORNIA horses are more in demand in the Eastern States, and bring better prices on an average than the horses from any other locality. No mistake will be made in consigning good horses with records to the eastern sales.

AMONG the great stallions, McKinney, 2:11¼, stands right up in the front rank. He is not only a sire of fast trotters and pacers, but he is a sire of individuals. He is himself the type of a handsome trotter and his get all look like him.

MARY CELESTE: 2:17½, has a double cross of the blood of Director, as well as a double cross of the blood of Guy Wilkes. Her sire, Oro Wilkes, was by Sable Wilkes, out of a Director mare, and her dam Fida, was by Guy Wilkes, out of a Director mare,

IN the second heat of her race at Gloversville the mare Dora Highwood, owned by Vernon Miller, Oneida Castle, stumbled and turned a complete somersault with sulky and driver. Strange to say no one was injured, although Miller was thrown several feet.

AT Killip & Co.'s sale last Thursday, L. E. Clawson's mare, Mia Louise, 2:15¼, by Steinway, out of Addie Asb, dam of Cibolo, 2:13½, was sold to Mr. J. P. Staley, of Sidney, Ohio for $250. Mia Louise will be bred to McKinney, 2:11¼, before she is shipped East.

AT Terre Haute, October 14th, Star Pointer paced a mile to wagon in 2:06, in an effort to beat the wagon record of Joe Patchen, 2,04¾. Although not successful, it is a very creditable performance, as the track was poor, the day cold and raw, and a high wind prevailed.

CHAS. F. BATES, the well-known New York dealer, has sold to A. C. Bostwick of that city, four standard trotting bred bay mares for $10,000. They are very stylish and high class either in single or double harness. Mr. Bostwick will probably exhibit them at the Horse Show.

MONROE SALISBURY returned from the Klondike mining region last Tuesday. It probably made his pulses quicken when he heard of the great campaign made by California bred horses in the East this year, and the wonderful showing of the get of his "little black rascal," Direct, 2:05½.

THE three-year-old filly Juana by Dexter Prince, dam by Electioneer, was purchased recently by Matt Hinkle of Cleveland, for $1,000. Juana was driven in 2:22¼ a few weeks ago. She can step in 2:18 and is one of the best green things of her age in Cleveland. Henry Sanders will get her to train.

CLOUD POINTER, the brother to Star Pointer, 1:59¼, owned by J. W. Titley & Son, Chicora, Pa., has worked an easy mile over the track at the Titley farm in 2:30. The fastest mile Star Pointer ever worked over the same track was in 2:24¼. Cloud Pointer will be in the Village Farm stable next season, and as he is a fine, large individual he is expected to join his great brother in the extreme speed list.

ALTONETTE, owned by George M. Needles, of North Yakima, took a trotting record of 2:25 at the Washington State Fair, and adds another to the list of her sire, Altsgo. Altonette is a large brown mare, 10 years old and has raised several colts. She has had very little handling, and from the way she won her race it was plainly evident that she is a race mare of high order. We look for her to be one of the stars another season.

THE well-known harness horse trainer, James Sullivan, is taking a rest from the hard work of the year and will remain in San Francisco for a few weeks. He had a string of fourteen horses this year and the work required to get them in shape for the summer campaign was greater than most people would suppose. For the past six years Mr. Sullivan has averaged thirty miles a day in a sulky for two hundred and fifty days in the year, and has ridden more miles than there are in the circumference of the earth.

HENRY A. FLEISCHMANN, the Austrian buyer, is credited with saying in a conversation a few days ago: "You see, our stock has improved so rapidly with the infusion of the best strains of American blood with that of our native breed that you must not be surprised if in ten years from now we will be shipping high-bred stock back to this country." If our good horses and mares continue to go across the water in the future, as they have been of late, Mr. Fleischmann's prediction is not so very far out of the way.

AT the Corbitt sale in New York two winters ago, Frank Rockefeller purchased for $160 the black mare Directress, by Director, dam by Almont, second dam the dam of Cspoul 2:28½, by American Clay. At thirteen years of age Directress is the dam of three in the list, and is one of Mr. Rockafeller's most valuable brood mares. Her latest in the list is Dollads Wilkes, 2:23, by Guy Wilkes, a mare that in her first start was second in 2:16¼, and which has since won several races, including two at Mineola, L. I., last week.

AT Vienna, Austria, the great Herbst Prize, $1500 to the winner, mile heats, two in three, was won by Que Allen, in 2:12¾, 2:12½, the fastest two consecutive heats ever won by a trotter in Europe. Abnet was second, Robbia P. third and Bismarck fourth. Que Allen won $1,500; Abnet, $650; Senator A., $250; Bismarck, $125. Abnet trotted the first heat in 2:13¼, which is her best European performance. Col. Kuser was disqualified for running. The result of this race leaves Que Allen champion of Europe.

THE great brood mare Ethelwyn, by Harold, that W. E. Spier recently purchased from the McDowell consignment in the Woodard & Shanklin sale, is now the dam of two champion two-year-old fillies—Impetuous, that in 1895 took a record of 2:15¾ at the trot in Nashville, and Ecstasy, that won the Pacing Futurity last week, taking a mark of 2:10½. Ethelwyn is now sixteen years old, and it looks as if she were destined to be one of the greatest of brood mares. If she never gets another performer, these two are evidences of her greatness.

ANDY MCDOWELL will remain in the East this winter and will train a large string of horses at the Cloverdell Stock Farm, formerly owned by A. H. Moore, at whose death the farm and all the stock, including Director and Red Wilkes were sold. The new owner of the place has been liberal in his purchases of horses at the sales this year, and Mr. McDowell will have some choice ones to handle. The prospects for 1899 in the East are greater than ever before and by the opening of the harness racing season there the business will be booming all over that part of the United States.

F. J. BERRY & Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, write: "There has been considerable improvement in trade during the past week, although the advance has not been as marked as hoped for. Receipts have been liberal, but the offerings of high-class horses have not equaled the demand, there being an urgent demand at very satisfactory prices for first-class export stock, including heavy drafters. 1,300 to 1,400 pound chunks, stylish drivers and speed. The more ordinary grades of horses have sold readily at rather low values, it being only the best stock that has realized a profit to the sellers.

IT is said that the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will in the future dispense with the customary annual September "breeder's meeting," and in its place run a big fair, which will surpass in scope and extent any similar exhibition held in New England. With a track second to none in the country; with equal railroad facilities, the trains bringing people to the very gates of the park; with more than a million people living within a radius of twenty-five miles of the track; with grounds well situated for an exhibition of such gigantic proportions as desired, the association is well situated to carry into operation a fair which would attract the attention and patronage of all New England.

According to the Philedelphe Press the greatest amount ever raced for on this continent wes $200,000, end this is the way it happened.

James L. Aiken of Denver, e wealthy retired contractor of that place, has been spending the summer at Atlantic City and was at the Lafayette Hotel e few days ego. Some of Mr. Aiken's friends who had been present et the recent Futurity race at Sheepshead Bay, were telling him about the struggle and great value of the stake and to exceed $50,000. "This year, boys," said the old gentleman, with a contemptuous curl of the lip, "thirty-eight years ago, I witnessed the finish of the greetest race on record for e stake of $200,000 in gold. The race was ageinst time, and was won by the mare Sylph, belonging to A. B. Miller, who a few years ago was still living in Denver. The race wes arranged through the efforts of Secretary of War Flood to defeat a scheme of a New York Lobby to obtain an appropriation of $5,000,000 for carrying the mails overland from Chicago to San Francisco. Mr. C. W. Russell, e friend of the Secretary and a partner of Mr. Miller, offered in answer to arguments presented by the lobby to bet $200,000 in gold that he could put a mail line on from Sacramento to St. Joseph, Mo., then the terminus of railroad communications, to make the distance —1950 miles—in ten days. The wager was taken. Mr. Miller won his bet by employing eighty post riders and using 300 horses I saw the finish of that great race on the 18th of April, 1860. The first horse, Border Ruffian, ridden by a man named Baker, made a run of twenty miles in forty-nine minutes. The rider carried the mails and each rider was required to make sixty miles of the distance. The horses were all thoroughbreds, and a number of them could make a mile et a 1:50 gait. Sometimes the men were almost lost in snow storms end often the riders were chased by the Indians. One rider lost his horse, hot saved his mail bag and walked twenty miles with it to the next relay. When the last courier errived at the sixty-mile post out from St. Joseph he was one hour behind time. John Fry, a popular rider of the day, wse to make the last run, and had three hours and thirty minutes to win. When the time for his arrival at St. Joseph was up, 5000 people had collected on the banks of the river. All eyes were turned to the point from which the horse and his rider were to emerge into the open country. When seven minutes of the time only remained no sign of the courier could be seen. There were a a thousand watches being held in the crowd. At last a dark figure shot out from the distent woods. It was Frye and the gallant mare Sylph. She made the run of the last mile in 1:50, reaching the ferry-boat with a fraction over five minutes in the ten days' race to spare. Some of the riders in that race were given $5000. It cost more than half of the stake to win it."

Glenelg.

The sale of the Glenelg yearlings at Harlem a few days ago cannot hot serve to impress one with the thought of what a wonderfully stout and virile horse this great son of Citadel was. When he died last November Glenelg was thirty one years old, yet his now yearlings will make their mark in the two year-old contests of 1899, and on Mr. Tyree Bate's farm there are now a number of Glenelg weanlings, one being a grand bay colt from Lida C., the dam of The Reeper.

Few horses imported from England have left a deeper or stronger impression on American thoroughbred breeding interests than Glenelg. The stout blood of Citadel, Kingston, and the exceedingly game and staying Defence that flowed in potent current through his veins have been of incalculable value. Look at this brilliant galaxy of his sons and daughters: Monitor, Firenzi, Dry Monopole, Los Angeles, Little Minch, Gleaner, Louisette, Strathspey, Mintzer, Ferida, Bertha, Aella, Dan Sparling, Tristen, Post Guerd, Ada Glenn, Danichefi, Grisette, Insolence, Herbert, Ferons, Grenadier, Pracioss, She, Sir Joseph, Heel and Toe, Kittie Clark, Judith, Minnock, Mirth, Cammie F. To look at those names is to recall the fact that in the course of their careers they at one time or another placed almost every honor possible to be won on the American turf to his credit as a sire.

It is evident that the influence of the potent blood of Glenelg must long be recognized and prized by the breeders of this country. That his daughters have produced such great race horses as Volante, Santiago, Troubadour, Santa Anna, Bermuda, Jennie June, Dagonet, Keloolah, Marie Stuart, Estrella, La Sylphide, Protection, Can Can, Ballarat, Chaos and Take Notice is amply sufficient to insure this. His son, Post Guard, has already made his mark as a sire and such good horses as Tristan, Dry Monopole and Little Minch can hardly fail to do so when mated with their properly selected crops.

Glenelg was a model race horse. He was suited by any and all kinds and conditions of race tracks and could sprint six furlongs or stay four miles with the best of his day. And as he was so were, as a rule, his sons and daughters. Even such brilliant sprinters as Little Minch and Gleaner showed when asked the question that they were just as ready to go the long route as they were to do a dazzling five furlongs. And when shall we again see such a mare as the unequaled Firenzi?—Racing Form.

English Commente on Sloan'e Jockeyehip.

(The Sportsman.)

In eny reference to a day's racing just at present, it is as impossible to avoid mention of Sloan as it was for Mr. Dick to refrain from referring to the head of King Charles I. when he was drewing up his famous memorial. The little man's achievement of winning five races off the reel and being beeten a head in another at Newmarket recently, was a truly wonderful one, and reminds me of some of the exploits of poor George Fordham over the same ground. Since he made his first appearance for the season at Manchester last week Sloan hes won no less than sixteen races out of twenty-seven, an average thet is probably without precedent, and which, of course, it will be impossible to maintain. I was specially interested in the Newmarket St. Leger, for I certeinly thought that in a real set-to with one of our jockeys he was bound to come on second best. This may be a somewhat mistaken estimate, though in this particular race it must be remembered that Collar was apparently hopelessly beaten at the Boshes and that nothing hot the style in which his jockey persevered and a wonderful display of gameness on the part of the colt got him to Galashiel's head at the finish. The lat er seems to have turned over a new leaf, and has run as smoothly as possible in his two races this week. The only serious objection that I can see to Sloan's method is that he has very little power over a really awkward horse, as was shown when Boomer bolted with him as soon as the flag fell for the Rutland Stakes.

(The Sketch.)

Now that Tod Sloan is with us again, his style of riding is freely criticised by the old school of racegoers. Sloan may not have a handsome seat in the saddle, but he sits a horse to the best advantage, and by adopting the bicycle stoop he misses the wind, if any. But, after all, the taking feature in Sloan's riding is his getting off so well He does not believe in riding a waiting race, for Sloan knows that, despite the last great rush, it is possible to be beaten on the post. The The proper place to wait is in front, and the old theory about "weight will tell" is about played out. One old trainer used to give his jockeys the following orders: "Get home the nearest way you can and do not take too long about it.

A Story of Meddler'e Sire.

At the sale of the Neponset Stud held at Morris Park on the 17th inst., St. Gatien, the noted sire of imported Meddler was offered for sale. St. Gatien is in England, and the auctioneer stated that there was a reserve price on the seventeen-year-old horse of $7,500. No one could be induced to make an offer of that much, and for the very good reason that it is a little too risky to pay a large sum for an old horse 3000 miles away. The offer of St. Gatien revived an old story, with which few of the present racegoers are familiar. The stud books show that he is by Rotherhill or The River, but in Ireland, where the latter horse stood, it is asserted that The Rover was responsible for St. Gatien. When St. Gatien ran his sensational dead heat for the English Derby with Harvester, The Rover's owner, a man named Daniel Shine of Listowel, County Kerry, Ireland, was in financial straits, and the sheriff's officers seized The Rover, whose approximate value had been much increased by St. Gatien's showing in the blue ribbon event. Party feeling was at fever heat in County Kerry at the time, and, although the officers were supposed to be keeping close tabs on their prize, they found The Rover lying dead in his stall one morning with his throat cut.

In addition to his dead heat for the Derby, St. Gatien had a phenomenal racing career, during which he suffered defeat only three times in four seasons. Meddler was not raced after his two-year old season, but his progenitors were. His dam, Busybody, won a fortune through the medium of such notable events as the Middle Park Plate, One Thousand Guineas and The Oaks. She was sold as a three-year-old for $44,000. Meddler's granddam, Spinaway, was also a classic winner, and his third dam, Queen Bertha, was a signal success both on the track and at the stud.

President Wheeler, of Washington Park, Chicago says that without helpful legislation there will hardly be racing over that course next year. As for Harlem and Hawthorne, they may have racing next season, even with the laws remaining as they are, but that might invite hostile action from this and that quarter, as was the case this year, albeit no closing of the tracks followed. But conditions of that kind forbode no good in the end, and the lesson of 1894 is liable to be repeated. It is unfortunate that factional feuds and fights mark the the condition at Chicago as bearing on the racing magnetes, and this fact tells against united action in trying to secure the needed racing legislation.

Lititz, Pa., March 22, 1898.

Mr. W. F. Young, Springfield, Mass.—Dear Sir:—I am very well satisfied with your "Absorbine" which did exactly what you said it would. Yours respectfully,

Jacob Biedenger.

A Promising Future.

The turf season, which is so near at an end in the East, has in many respects been a notable one, in spite of the fact that few horses of the highest class have been seen. The sport has been clean and as a whole under the rigid discipline which the stewards of the Jockey Club now enforce, and whenever it seemed necessary prompt action has been taken.

Among the events of the season which may be termed notable were the purchase of Hamburg early in the season by Mr. Marcus Daly and the advent of Hon. W. C. Whitney to the ranks of turfmen and breeders. Other prominent acquisitions are ex-Corporation Counsel W. H. Clark, Perry Belmont, L. V. Bell and F. V. Alexandre. That men of their standing and prominence should take an active part in racing speaks well for the stability of the sport, and it cannot do otherwise than benefit it. New blood means new life and this is always followed by renewed activity and a wider growth.

Four years ago the outlook for racing in the East was anything but promising—in fact, the sport seemed to be in serious danger. Concerted efforts by prominent men led by Mr. August Belmont, were productive of the best of results and legislation was passed which prevented the destruction of the spurt. Each year since then the Jockey Club has progressed in the right direction. To-day its position is unassailable, for it is not only upheld by the law, but it has as well the support of the best classes in the State. These facts have induced the new comers to invest their money in horse flesh, and breeders have shared in the good results with owners, trainers and the racing associations. A continuation of the present policy is all that is needed to perpetuate and still further popularize the sport.—Spirit of the Times.

Why Horses Should be Clipped.

It is a positive shame to use a horse hard when he has on his long, heavy coat. Kept under artificial conditions, he has not a chance in the world to comply with the demands of nature, as the wild horses do, and often he is worked so hard that he sweats freely and then stands all night wet to the very skin, using up to dry his hair all the heat that should be going to recuperate his tired body. In this way he loses strength steadily, whereas if the clippers should run over him he would dry off in twenty minutes and then stand warm and comfortable all night. Just think how it would feel to lie down on your bed with clothes wringing wet with gummy sweat. It is not likely you would be very comfortable. Every up-to-date stable is equipped with a clipping machine.

When speaking of clipping horses it reminds one of the the great improvements going on in this line. Probably the greatest clipping machine ever invented is that of the '98 Chicago Clipper, which has practically revolutionized the horse clipping business in this country. This machine has just been patented in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany and Russia and is an entirely new departure over the old style belt machines, as it does away with all unnecessary weights, belts, stands, balance wheels, etc. It is very simple in design and is made on the same principle as the chainless bicycle. Gears are substituted for belts, thus doing away with the great amount of slippage which was always such a source of trouble with the old style machines.

No experience is necessary to operate this clipper and the knives may be forced as fast as the operator can work and there is no such a thing as clogging. It was with this machine that all records were recently broken by Ted Hanson of New York, who clipped a horse complete in fourteen minutes, which was a most wonderful performance and which was not possible with the old fashioned machines. The price of the clipper, $8 75, brings it within reach of every stable owner and there should be no stable in the country without one of these most useful machines. It is now for sale in all the principle countries and is everywhere looked upon as the greatest friend to the horse and horse owners.

Does More Than Claimed.

Walcott, Ind., March 23, 1896.

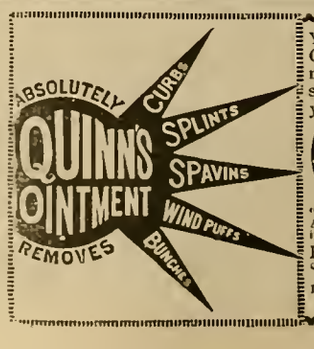
The bottle of Gombault's Caustic Balsam just received, for which accept thanks. Yes, you have my consent to publish my letter to you in regard to the merits of the Balsam. It is all and more than you claim for it. I had no ax to grind in speaking so highly of it. I have used it many times and know whereof I speak. It is a grand medicine.

Chas. E. Ross.

Kilbourn City, Wis.

Dear Sir—I would say that I have sold 10 cans of Continental Ointment and all that used it think there is nothing like it. I can say for myself that I used it last winter on my hands for cracks, and for the first time for years I had no cracked hands. I think it cannot be beat. Yours truly,

N. Van Alstine, General Blacksmith.



Your stable is not complete without Quinn's Ointment. An infallible cure for all ordinary horse afflictions. Follow the example set by the leading horsemen of the world and your stable shelf will always hold a bottle of

Quinn's Ointment

A. L. Thomas, Supt. Canton Farm, Joliet, Ill., remarks, "I enclose you amount for six bottles of Quinn's Ointment. After one year's trial must confess it does all you claim for it." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins, Windpuffs or Bunches,

Price $1.50.

In his race at Morris Park last week, Ben Holladay, five-year-old son of Hanover, proved himself e grand horse. Holladay carried 130 pounds and best Jefferson, the only other horse in tha race that made eny showing, though the latter carried hut 87. Tna distance was ona and three-quarter miles and the time was 3:01½, which is only two and one fourth seconds slower than the record estahlished hy the seme horse last year with only 118 pounds up.

Norman Brough, has been appointed to tbe position of handicapper, clerk of tbe sceles and third judge by the Pacific Coast Jockey Club aod will officiata at the meeting which begins November 14th. Mr. Brough is considered one of the most competent handicappers on this Coast. The P. C. J. C. are giving the locel people representation this year. With Edwin F. Smith as presiding judge and Mr. Brough es handicapper the Coast is well represented

In a short time Meddler will in all probability be located in Kentucky, where he will bave every chanca of proving his value. William C. Whitney has bought an extensive estate there, upon which he will locate his valuable collection of broodmares with Meddler as king. Mr. Whitney has added another well bred mere to his list of matrons, having purchased Poetess, tha four-year-old chestnut filly by the Bard—Ella Lakeland, from Williem Laimbeer, paying $3,000 for her. John Hynes is spoken of as the probable trainer of the Whitney-Peget string next year.

One of the good brood mares of Australia is Indostry, hy Musket, out of Pearl Ash, e full sister to Potash II, granddam of the American horse, Yankea Doodle. Iodustry is the dam of four good race horses owned in Austrelie, all sired by Gogo, son of Wildoats, sire of Oatcake or imp. Mariner. The foor ere Gaulus, last year's Melhonrne Cup winner; The Grafter, who lately won the Craven Plate, ona and one-quarter miles, carrying 127 pounds, at the A. J. C. meeting; Alemene, winner et e mile in 1:40¾, heating a field of 33 horses, and Gauleon, second in Maiden Stakes, one and one-helf miles.

The horsemen et Latonia are preparing e petition to have the present meeting extended until about Novemher 15th, or two weeks longer than tha schedule dates. Tbe petition will be presented to the Latonia management some tima this week, and at present it is not known whet actioo will he tekan on it. The horsemen at Latonia, a majority of whom will teke their strings to the Naw Orleans track, will esk in the petition thet Latooia extend the meeting in order to fill in the tima hetween November 1st and the Crescent City track's opening [Later: The petition was beard and the date extended to tha 15th as requested.]

Ornament, chestnut colt, 4, by imp. Order, dam Victorine, hy imp. Rayon d'Or, will race no more. He will go into the stud at Beanmoot, the farm of H. P. Headley, near Lexington, Ky., where he was foaled. He goes into the stud with a long list of great turf events to his credit, and few, if any, horses have assumed the role of progenitors of their kind with a more brilliant and anviaole turf record. His breeding is unimpeachable by the most critical connoisseur, and his foture in the stud should he as hright as his turf career in the past. On hoth sides of his family he is from producing blood, and with the opportunities ha will have in Kentucky ha is destined to meke a great sire.

Galopin, by Vedette—Flving Dutchess, had, on October 1st, a substantial lead over the otber stallions whosa get are running in England, he ranking first with a total of $90,715, won by ten of his get in fourteen races. Second place belongs to Ayrshire, whosa total is $72,835, end St Simon is a good third, with $71,760. His largest addition of late was $4,050, won hy Victoria May when she landed tha Autumn Breeders' Foal Plate. Non Nicer, who has since been destroved, placed $5 420 to the credit of Common when ha won the Palatine Plate. The Amarican sira Sensation ranks well up, end the get of Sailor Prince, Atbeling, Pontiac, Dnocombe, Goldfinch end Simon Megus have made a crediteble showing.

Sloan end His Compeers.—Sloen's five winners out of seven mounts last Friday at Newmarket is not hy any meaos a record, for it has been not only several times eqoaled in tbe past, bot heetan on et least two occasions. Georga Fordham, for instence, et the Bibury Club (Stockbridge) meeting wes successful in seven reces, which inclooled a dead beet on Athena in the Hamilton Post Sweepstakes, bot in the decider he was heaten hy Leonine; and Fred Archer at Lewes, on August 5, 1882, rode six wioners (bis only mounts). Ha rode five winners in one day at the following meetings: Chester, 1883; Menchester, May 16, 1883; Windsor, May 24, 1884; Manchester, Juna 3, 1884, and also at the Bihury Meeting in the sama yaar. Of jockeys now living, T. Loates rode five winners at Yarmouth on July 26, 1889, and at Windsor on May 2, 1896 he won all the five races in which he rode. Another instanca which will readily occur to Northern sportsmen is that of Setb Chaodley, when that jockey rode fiva consecutive winners—his only moonts—on tha second day of the Pontefract Summer Meeting in 1893.—London Sportsmen, October 3.

W. H. Laudeman, who made a book at Chicago this sommer, said to a newspaper correspondent the other dey: "You ask me if the hookmakers here ere making plenty of money, and I answer hy saying the reverse is the case. You will think it sounds strange when I tell you that since the close at Washington Park the Chicago hookmakers are out close to a quarter of a million of dollars. I don't know a single one that is a winner in that time. I myself em a hig loser; the Applegates have lost heavily on the season. O'Leary, John Condon's partner, is said to be $40,000 hehind, Marcus Cartwright is probably $25,000 to the had, Barney Schreiher, George Rose and other prominent penciliers are losers, so that yoo can set it down the Chicago season has heen a disastrous one for tbe hookmakers."

The Westchester Racing Association had a very successful season at Morris Park, New York this year. The treck was in the hest of condition and several track records wera hroken. Among the performances which deserva special mention, says Spirit of the Times, wera those of Ben Holladay, the speedy son of Hanover—Mollie L., probably the best type of a stayer on the American turf to-dey, in tha Morris Park Special, in which ha carried 130 poonds to victory, at two miles over the Withers course, in 3:33½, e track record breaking performance, and in the Municipal Handicap, et one mile and six forlongs, in which ha egain shouldered 130 pounds and won in hand in 3:01½, scoring his second victory in this event, he having won in 1897, in tima which is now the record. The reappearance and victory of game Sir Walter, ona of the most popular horses who ever looked through a hridle, delighted his admirers as he showed that he still possesses his speed and gameness for which he had always beeo noted. Three-year-old fillies of class hava not been numerous this season, bnt there is one who occopies a class hy herself. This is that grand mare Briar Sweat, who captnred the Dixiana Stekes, scoring her eleventh consecutive victory. The question of two-year-old supremecy is still unsettled.

By the prices obtained at the sale of two-year-olds from Mrs. E. O. Pepper's stahle at Morris Park last week, it is evident there is a good demand for fashionably hred youngsters. All of tbem have performed well end ere apparently sound, hot there is e long winter before they can prove their usefulness, which alone detracts generally from the prices obtained at this season of the yeer. King Barleycorn and Ned Wickes may go to New Orleans, hot the others ere sure to spend their winter at home. Tha bargain of the sale was Satin Slipper, and Mr. M. F. Dwyer's other purchase, Greetland, also proved a good investment, es Mr. Dwyer probahly won him out in his race run half an hour efter the sale. Satin Slipper is hy Kingston—Lady Stylites, so there is every reason why Mr. Dwyer should he partial to her, if Kingdon has not made him weaken. Kentucky Colonel wes probahly the best sold, as he has no Eastern engagements, hut should make a grand three-year-old. Black Venus has proved herself such a smart filly that the amoont paid for her looked small. She should win many races in the Whitney-Peget colors. T. J. Healey, who trained Kinuikinic for Mr. Laimbeer, thonght enoogh of the colt to pay $3 000 for him. Bannock was also hought by his treiner, Ed Hughes, end at what seemed a small price.

Frank Talmage writes to the Breeders' Gazette: The proper position or seet in a saddle can best ba tanght a ledy by one of her own sex. It is much eesier to attain the proper seet hy receiving the necessary instruction before end at the time of taking the first ride. This is apparent to ell, for e wroug position once assumed in the seddle is very herd to overcome. As to the proper management of the horse line after line coold he written, and ons can receive en endless number of lessons solely opon this sobject and yet not be eble to pot ioto practice the first principle of his readings and teachings without long experience. This arises from tha fact that horses, like people, are of different dispositions, end have what horsemen call different moutbs.

It is agreed hy all teechers of equitation thet the curb bit alona in e horse's mooth will sooner meke a fool out of e horse than anythiog else, and a fool horse generally carries e fool rider. The proper bitting is the old English style of two hits—a curh and a snaffle—and two sets of reins. All riders in America have been long sinca converted to this, except the cowhoys. There are eevaral weys to hold the doohle reins, anyone of whicb is easier then holding the single set—this probahly for tha reason that it employs hoth hends and keeps them in their proper place together. The horse is not constantly fighting the curh, and consequently forming had habits. Ha receives the soft and confidence in his rider, and only by the ose of tha snaffle can the horse's head be kept in its proper high position. The curb always hrings the chin to the chest, an unoaturel and dangerous position, as it is quite likely to shot off the horse's wiod.

The turf bas received a number of powerful new ecquisitions tbis year, most notable of which perheps beve heen the advent of Mr. William C. Whitney end ex-Corporation Counsel W. H. Clark amoog the lists of prominent owoers. It now appears to ba reasonehly certain that Mr. Perry Belmont intends to follow tha axemple so worthily set by Mr. Whitney aod Mr Clark. That is to say, Mr. Belmont is egain getting together a string of thoroughbreds, and high class ones too. It is not bis first appearance in racing. A few years ago he owned that sterling performer Magian, aod e nomber of otber horses. Magian, however, broke down and was retired to the stud, and the remainder of Mr. Belmont's string, not being of quite the calibre that suited bis fancy, were disposed of. Now Mr. Belmont is beginning all over again and in the right wey. He was tha reel porch-ser of Mr. Gelwey's Ethelbart at the Morris Park sala a few days ago, when that colt was knocked down to tha hid of A. J. Joyner for $11 600. It transpires also that he was the actnal huyer of John E. Madden's Frohsinn, recently sold to Joyner for $6,500. Joyner formerly trained for Mr. Belmont, and will probahly have charge of this new lot of horses that is getting together. Tha decision of Mr. Belmont to re-enter upon a turf career is most eocouraging. Men of the calibre of himself, Mr. Whitney and Mr. Clark ara just the sort that ere needed in racing. It is to be hoped that he mey not stop et his recent purchases, but that he will continoa until ba has collected together a stable of high-class racers. He has certainly mada a good beginning in Ethelbert and Frohsinn, es these two-year-olds are among the best of the year. —Morning Telegraph.

GOOD TIMES in harness horse affairs are on in the East. The auction rings and the fair grounds have been crowded there during the past season, and capital is beginning to circulate among horse breeders and all connected with the great industry. California is about the only section of the Union where the revival has been felt but slightly. There is, however, a way to make the business take on some of its old-time life, and that is by reviving the old-time district fairs. And in the language of the woodchuck hunter, "we must have them." One week from next Tuesday the people of California will go to the polls and select a man to fill the office of Governor for the next four years. As every man connected with the horse industry knows, the Governor of the State has it within his power to make or kill the fairs. The present Governor killed them, and by that act greatly reduced the value of thousands of dollars worth of horses and other live-stock in California, and destroyed many smaller industries that had been built up by these fairs. Mr. Henry T. Gage, candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, has pledged himself, and his party is pledged, to restore the fairs. The Democratic party evaded the issue altogether when asked to favor the agricultural fairs in their platform, and its candidate for Governor, forced to say something on the matter, has given them but a qualified endorsement. It seems to us that it is therefore the duty of evely horseman and every one interested in the breeding, rearing, training, driving and furnishing the noble animal to vote for the man who emphatically declares that he will sign the appropriation for the maintenance of these district fairs. There is no politics in the matter. It is a case where every man should vote for his own interests. We know that with Mr. Gage as Governor, the fairs will be restored. With Mr. Maguire in the chair there will be doubt. We cannot afford, at this time, to take any chances. The district fairs will restore prosperity in the horse industry of the State. Let those interested take no chances on their continued suppression.

REPORTS that anthrax had broken out in Yolo county brought Mr. A. B. Rodman, of Woodland, hurriedly home from Oregon, where he had gone to look after some mining interests. Mr. Rodman has a large number of choicely-bred broodmares and colts at pasture near the infected district, and as he has had previous experience with the disease among his stock, he was naturally considerably alarmed when he heard of the cattle dying on the Perkins farm. He called at this office on his arrival from Oregon, and was much pleased to learn that the disease was abating in Yolo and no new cases had been reported since the cattle had been attended to and quarantined. Mr. Rodman says the only sure preventive is vaccination with the Pasteur virus. This is manufactured in New York and can be obtained there at any time. Some years ago the dread disease got among the stock owned by him and as soon as he learned the nature of it he procured the virus and vaccinated all his stock. The result was that he never lost a head after the vaccination had been performed. Dipping, he thinks, may be efficient in preventing the disease from spreading, but vaccination is the safest precaution to take as well as the cheapest and easiest. Anthrax he believes to be one of the most contagious of diseases, and related an incident where a cow had died from it. He had her carcass cut open and examined, and found the spleen simply a watery mass. A few hours after he passed the place where the autopsy had been performed and a half-dozen hogs, which had eaten of the carcass, lay dead. All animals dying from anthrax, he says, should be burned to a cinder. Any portion not entirely consumed will retain the germs of the disease in a dormant state for years.

A REFORM THAT IS NEEDED in all racing, both harness and saddle, is a cessation of the undue prominence now given by the daily press (and, we are sorry to say, many associations and clubs) to the gambling feature. The daily press, for some unaccountable reason, generally gives columns to the doings of bookmakers and betting men, where lines are devoted to the breeding establishments, the owners of the same and the horses produced. The associations, small district and large organizations alike, influenced naturally by the great revenue derived from the betting privileges, grant more favors to those controlling them and those who bet large sums of money than to the breeders and owners of the horses. The prominence thus given to the betting side of the great sport is the very thing that arouses antagonism to it among a class of people who would otherwise favor and endorse it. We all know how in the early days of the circus, the pious would frown against such amusements as most wicked and sinful, but when Barnum and Forepaugh and other showmen made the menagerie the principal portion of the show, the saintly deacon took his little boy to see the animals and incidentally remained to gaze upon the girl in tights and spangles as she danced upon the tight rope. The old country fair, where the pumpkins and peaches of the farmer were piled in profusion alongside the log-cabin quilt and the knitted stockings of his sponse, in friendly competition for a prize against the like productions of their neighbors, drew the preachers and the religiously inclined and they all stayed to see the races, as that to them was but an incident to the show. And there are others like them in this day. Horse racing as a sport is endorsed by nearly everybody, and it is only when it degenerates into a gambling business that the public begin to frown upon it. It is the duty of all those identified with the great industry of horse breeding to elevate the sport of kings instead of dragging it down. This can be done by making the wagering of money on results less conspicuous. New York has solved the problem and made racing fashionable instead of obnoxious. Other States can do the same, and the first step in that direction is for the newspapers to give less prominence to the betting side show and more to the great sport which has furnished diversion for the best classes in all civilized countries for generations past.

NELSON'S Second Annual Combination Speed Sale will be held at the Alameda race track on Thursday, November 17th. The last sale given by Mr. Nelson at Alameda was a great success and owners were much pleased with the prices obtained. To this sale have already been consigned twenty trotters and pacers with records, among them that great little campaigner, Plunkett, 2:13¼, one of the best road horses in the State. Those having fast roadsters or track horses, wishing to consign them to this sale, should address J. M. Nelson, Alameda, Cal., for terms and particulars. The sale will be well advertised and the horses all properly catalogued.

EASTERN HORSEMEN are already laying their plans for next season's racing. New stables are being formed every day, and prominent society men are taking an interest in the turf matters, which they have thought little of before. Next season it is more than likely Richard Croker will be racing there, also Pierre Lorillard and James R Keene on a much larger scale than ever before. W. H. Clark is making extensive arrangements, and would not secure first call on a jockey like Maher unless he meant to race on a generous scale. Perry Belmont's colors have occasionally been seen in the past, but next season's turf goers will become familiar with them. It is also rumored that J. B. Haggin will race a stable in the East. His colors will be welcomed back again, but from what he once told the reporters, there are doubts about the reports being true. John Sanford is another man who is likely to have a string in training next season under Jimmy Rowe's watchful eye. R T. Wilson, Jr., is increasing his stable. Bromley & Co. are selling all their dead wood, and will start with only two-year-olds, which are sure to be the best obtainable. J. E. Seagram always has a number of horses in training, and the best of them will be raced in the East. A. H. and D. H. Morris must be planning a strong stable, when they add Kentucky Colonel and Manuel to their already powerful string.

FIFTEEN head of trotting bred colts and fillies were sold by Killip & Co. in this city on Thursday. They were from the Vioget Farm at Lawrence, Santa Clara county, and mostly the get of the stallion Wild Boy. The majority were two and three-year-olds. The average of the sale was not quite $60.

PARK HORSES, in common with all others used in harness felt the effects of the hard times which began in 1893. Prices for animals of this sort are tending upwards, however, and it is a satisfaction to those who believe that the very best animals of this description can be bred from some of the trotting families, to know that a recent sale in New York showed the trotting bred park horse to be a very great favorite with buyers. The sale took place on the 17th inst. and the highest prices since 1894 were realized. All of the animals were from the stables of M. H. Tichenor & Co., Chicago. Like nearly all of the high steppers that have got to the front in the sales and the shows in the last few years, they were well-bred trotters, some of them having records earned in races. Horsemen from Boston, Philadelphia, Newport, Chicago and Kansas City were on hand to bid for the prospective prize winners in the choice collection, and remarkably good prices resulted. T. W. Lawson set the ball rolling at the afternoon sale by paying $5,000 for the first three horses offered. Best Yet, a beautiful specimen of the trotting-bred park horse, brought $2,000, the top price for single stepers. She is Wisconsin product of the well known Fearnaught family of trotters. The critics pronounce her to be almost faultless in conformation, and she displayed brilliant and true action. Bullard Boy and Willard Lad, the pair that sold for $3,000, were raised at Knoxville, Ia., and were got by Garnett Wilkes, a son of the noted trotting Onward, 2:25¼. They are rich bays, finely formed, with deep, round bodies on short legs, and a breedy, clean cut look about them. Thirty-nine head sold during the afternoon for $24,885, an average of $638 each. Prices ruled somewhat lower at the evening sale, yet 15 head brought $6,075, an average of $405.

KLATAWAH, 2:05½, the champion three-year-old pacer, will go under the hammer at New York next month. Californians who have recently returned from the Eastern circuit, say there is much speculation among horsemen over East as to the price the great colt will bring, and the concensus of opinion is that the first bid on him will be at least $10,000.

November's Auction Sale

The interest being taken in the sales which are to be held at the Occidental Horse Exchange is increasing and as catalogues for the J. B. Chase and E. J. Baldwin sales are to be mailed to horsemen everywhere, it would not be surprising if excellent prices will be obtained for every animal offered. The silver tongued auctioneer, E R. Lowry, will wield the gavel and all the good points of the royally bred race horses will be dilated upon in a manner that will cause lively bidding. The youngsters by Clieveden and Trentola, out of such mares as Marigold, Miss Lou, Centella, etc., are race horses, if there ever were any. Imp. Clieveden was shipped to New Zealand at the earnest solicitation of the horse breeders there, for every colt and filly he sired has proven a high class race horse, one of them called Clive, is said to be the greatest race horse in Australia. We have only seen a few of his colts race here, but they are high class. Mr. Jones has the horses belonging to Mr. Chase, looking strong and lusty. They will be greatly admired before the sale and worshipped by their owners afterward.

The Santa Anita lot will be hard to best and when seekers after Emperors of Norfolks, Amigos, Chesterfields, etc., want them they will find these are out of the mares whose pedigree have made this farm famous. The Santa Anita horses have more than held their own this year.

Chas. Karr is preparing his for the sale. Only halter breaking them, hence buyers will have every opportunity to get all the good there is in every one offered. They are out of royally bred dams of famous winners.

The Theodore Winters horses are well known and will bring excellent prices, for this eminent breeder thoroughly understands the breeding problems and has made a specialty of having nothing but race winners to offer.

Remember these sales are held in a theatrical-like pavilion, where every one is welcome and seats are provided for all.

RAFAELLO, the two-year-old Farandole—Jennie S. colt, which got out of the maiden class at Latonia last week, defeating a fair lot of colts was this spring the stable companion of Heliobas, the youngster sold by George Whitney to Bromley & Co. for $10 000. Rafaello was thought to be as good as Heliobas by his owner. Rafaello was taken sick at the same time as Heliobas, and did not start until recently at Newport. He has tried a half dozen times to break out of the maidens, but until last week failed. It is not within the range of possibilities, however, that Rafaello will ever be as good a race horse as Heliobas.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

AMONG the horses belonginging to the late Col. Edwards of Cleveland, Ohio, that are to be sold at the Fasig sale in New York, is the filly Fairway. She is by Steinway, out of Maggie McGregor, and therefore is a full sister to Al Gregor 2:11, W. W. Foote, 2:16½, and other fast ones bred at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Pinmas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5. Ducks, Nov. 1 to March 1. Ducks and quail, shipment from the county restricted as follows: No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds a week.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
Santa Barbara—Deer, Aug. 1 to Aug 22. Use of bounds prohibited. Quail, one day, Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Diego—Shipping quail out of the county prohibited.
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of bounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.

Change in the Game Laws.

Orange County has passed a new ordinance for the protection of game and shortening of the shooting season. It provides that quail shall be killed only on five days during the open season, commencing October 1st and ending October 5th. The duck season has been shortened one month, it will open on November 1st. The shipment of quail and ducks out of the county has been restricted as follows: "No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds per week." It is asserted that the new ordinance will be strictly enforced. The game conditions of that section warrant the change.

Field Notes.

We note in our exchanges a fair average of hunting accidents in various districts as the season advances; the majority of them are due to gross carelessness—whilst accident pure and simple are responsible for the balance. In this respect we are prompted to give some timely comment by a well-known Eastern sporting authority in the Commercial Advertiser.—The most careful man with a gun may trip or fall and may receive injuries from his own gun, or may inflict most serious injuries on one of his friends. It was an accident; that is all that can be said about it, no matter how much the consequences may be regretted. But by far the large majority of hunting fatalities or accidents result from gross carelessness in handling guns or from a direct non-observance of all common-sense rules in regard to shooting in the woods, in a boat, or on the marsh. There are some men that are so excitable that it is absolutely unsafe for them to have a gun in their hands; unsafe for them and for their friends. They will shoot at anything, even at a sound or a moving object in the brush that they cannot see. A man was recently killed in the Adirondacks who had told his nephew to shoot at anything that he saw moving in the bushes. The nephew took him at his word and shot. After the shot it was found to be the uncle, shot through the heart. The only safe rule is "never shoot at anything until you can see it plainly," and can be sure that it is a proper mark for your aim.

A man with a rifle can only put one bullet into you as a rule, but that bullet will generally do the business. No matter how bad a shot a man may be, once he aims at something he ought not to be aiming at he is nearly sure to hit it plumb center. A reckless and greedy hunter with a shot gun is indeed a man to beware of in the brush. He scatters his favors broadcast and pays but little attention to the whereabouts of his fellow-hunters when once a bird has jumped up in range. While fatal accidents with the shot gun in the woods are not rare, they are yet fewer in number than similar accidents with the rifle, in comparison to the number of men that use those weapons when on a hunting trip. Bird shot does not fly very far, and although wounds are plentiful, as a rule they don't amount to much. Still, a reckless man with a shot gun in the brush is something that it is safe to give a wide berth to

A great number of accidents, fatal or otherwise, are caused by carrying loaded guns in a wagon or buggy, just "on the chance of getting a shot as we go along." Others are caused by shells being left in the guns when the noontide lunch and rest take place. It is a good and safe plan never to lean your gun against a tree with shells in it, and never to lay it flat down on the ground when loaded It doesn't make a bit of difference even if the "safety is up" or if "the hammers are at half cock" Remove your shells and you won't lose many chances of getting a bird, even if you hunt every day of the year and every day of your life. It is far better to lose a bird than to run the risk of killing or maiming yourself, a friend or a dog. The man who clambers over an old fence or who crawls under barbed wire fencing with a gun loaded, whether the hammers, safety or otherwise, are up or down, is a man who should be left severely alone when invitations are next issued for a hunting trip.

Nitro and Black Powders.

In olden times, when most gunners used to wad their guns with wisps of tow, pieces of paper, wads punched out of old felt hats, and even pieces of the paper-like substance with which hornets make their nests, pattern and penetration of shot was but little thought of. If a man killed his fair share of game in the field that was all he wanted. But in the later days of trap shooting, when the loss of a single bird or the miss of a solitary target meant the loss of a purse, then shooters began to be more careful and to inquire into the best wadding for their guns. Of course, there were wads in those days, but they were crude and few in number when compared with those now in daily use by thousands of shooters throughout the country. Gresseproof, white felt, nitro card, field, pink edge and black edge are some of the wads to be found in shells nowadays, and each cracker-jack has some combination of the above wads that goes to form "the only wadding my gun will shoot." Literally speaking, that is not exactly the case, but it is a fact that some guns shoot better with certain formulas of wadding than with others. Some guns require 10-gauge or 11-gauge wads, and hard wads at that, to make them shoot well; others, on the other hand, need soft wadding and smaller wads to suit their taste. Guns are kittle cattle and each one seems to have its its own peculiarity.

These many and varied styles of wadding are the necessary outcome of the growth in favor of the so-called nitro or smokeless powders. When black powder was used by everybody shooting a gun it was not so particular a matter how the powder was wadded, so long as it was rammed home hard, forming a good gas check, and sufficient in bulk to drive the shot out of the barrel before blowing it to pieces. Smokeless powders require close confinement to bring out their good qualities to the best advantage, and for them wadding of different kinds is necessary in order to produce the desired effect. Black powder can be fired satisfactorily from brass shells, but nitro powders cannot be used in that way, as they require a good tight crimp over the shell.

Notwithstanding the large output of shells loaded with smokeless powders, the number of shells loaded with black powder still keeps far in advance of the smokeless powder shells.

The cartridge loading concerns in this country load many millions of shells with smokeless powder each season, but the proportion of such shells to those loaded with black powder is in the ratio of one to ten, that is, for one carload of smokeless powder loaded shells there are ten carloads of shells loaded with "good old black powder."

The demand for black powder shells comes principally from the south, southwest and west, the market hunters of those sections using up millions in their work of decimating the ducks, prairia chickens, quail, etc., and filling the cold storage warehouses in the large cities with thousands of head of game that should by right be the property of the sportsmen of the country.

The work of the smokeless powder used by the Spaniards during the late war has called the attention of the sportsmen of this country to the excellence of the sporting compound known as smokeless "shot-gun powder." Thus the manufacturers of that compound have received an amount of free advertising that is bound to be of benefit to them and also sure to result in an increased consumption of their products. But before a shooter will change from black to smokeless powder a certain amount of prejudice has, as a rule, to be overcome. Shooters are cranks, and hate to try "new-fangled contraptions" when their old favorite, black powder, seems to be all that they could possibly desire. The advantages of smokeless powder in warfare have, however, been so forcibly brought to their notice that they are now bound to recognize its advantages in game shooting. Less dirt, less noise and less recoil, with an almost total absence of smoke to bother the shooter's second shot, are some of the advantages claimed for smokeless powder over its old rival, black powder.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Sunday shooting is against the law in New Jersey.

C. Shaw made a bag of fourteen teal at Alvarado on Sunday.

W. F. Andrus, well known to the sporting fraternity, has returned from Portland, Or.

Geo. Walker did not find the quail very numerous at Tocaloma on Sunday last.

Quail shooting is good in the hills near Cazadero and Duncan's. Birds are plentiful.

Dr. E. N. Ayers has been enjoying a week's quail shooting near Hanford. Birds were plentiful.

It is a noticeable fact that the press is in accord for the first time, on the question of game protection.

T. J. Lewis spent four day's duck shooting on the Empire grounds last week. He reports birds as being rather scarce.

"Lake" made a variety bag counting up fifty-three ducks on the Suisun marsh, near the Teal Club's location, on Sunday last.

Jacksonville, Or., sportsmen are devoting themselves to quail shooting. Good bags have been made recently, the birds being plentiful.

Small bags were made by most of the hunters on the eastern bay shore last Saturday and Sunday. The weather was too hot and ducks were now est.

W. C. Brown bagged ten, Henry F. Wagner eight and Fred Drinkhouse sixteen quail respectively on the Tamalpais Club grounds on Sunday last.

Geese are flying south in vast flocks. Ducks were seen coming in in numerous flights during the week, but they are very restless. Many of the flocks turned about and winged their way to the northward again, probably to Tamales bay, where they are said to be in countless thousands resting on the bosom of the calm and placid arm of the Pacific.

Twenty pairs of Mongolian pheasants have been shipped from the Willamette valley to Jacksonville and Medford, Or. They will be kept in captivity until spring, when they will be liberated.

A quail hunt near Belmont on Saturday and Sunday last resulted in a bag of 123 quail to H. Collins, who shot over his pointer Sprig, and Ben Baum, who had his English setter Rodcaster in the field with him.

The recent Texas Kennel Club's show in connection with the State Fair at Dallas was very successful. A good lot of dogs were benched, although many Southern dogs were barred from exhibiting by reason of the quarantine. The total number of entries was 230. The show was conducted under the A. K. C. rules.

The Black Jack arks at Sherman Island were visited on Sunday last by "Sherman," John Lemmer, Fred Johnson, Bert Weyman and Secretary Jim Markland. The combined bag counted up two dozen birds; of these all but two were shot by Weyman and Markland. The other shooters had an attack of malarial "wuzzer."

Otto Feudner enjoyed both duck and quail hunting last week at Dixon. He reports ducks rather scarce in that vicinity at present. The hunters are waiting for rain and the northern flight. Quail are very plentiful, but hard to get at, the country being not only very brushy, but heavy blackberry vines in profusion also hamper the working of the dogs. Birds are scarce in the open sections of the country, sheep have gone over the ground; the quail will not frequent any place where sheep have been grazing.

At a recent meeting of the Drawbridge Shooting Club held in Vallejo, by-laws and regulations were adopted which will govern the club and their shooting grounds in the future. The members are now permitted to shoot over the grounds at night only on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays between the hours of 4 and 9, and their early morning shoots must be confined to Thursdays and Sundays. A penalty of expulsion and a fine of $50 will be imposed upon any member guilty of shooting ducks out of season.

The following will be of interest to quail hunters: "The San Mateo Leader has been requested by the owners of several of the large estates about this locality to remind quail-hunters that the killing of quail on their premises will not be permited under any circumstances, and should any of the violators be detected they will be vigorously prosecuted. The owners of these various places provide for the feeding regularly of the birds, and it is not proposed to allow their indiscriminate killing without a protest. A word to the wise is sufficient."

Duck hunters who selected the different shooting grounds in Marin county for a day's sport last Sunday had varying success. Among those who were out we note a bag of twelve sprig and teal made by Le Gall and several friends who were at Bundelle; W. E Murdock shot a dozen teal and sprig and E Forster and J Shackelton bagged fifteen teal, "can" and blue bill on Petaluma creek in the Reclamation district. At Sears Point, W. Williams and son bagged eight teal.

Coyote drives promise to become a popular form of sport in the foothills near Stockton. The sport is somewhat of a novelty and like all new things a little difficult to get started properly. Preparations had been made for a month past and last Sunday about one hundred people gathered at Smith's ranch ten miles from Ione. The start was made early in the morning, but the rain of Saturday night, by making the ground very wet and heavy, hampered those chasing the coyotes, and the animals succeeded in getting into underbrush, from which it was found impossible to dislodge them. Another drive will probably take place to-morrow.

W. F. King and A. D. Lockwood were together on a three days' quail hunt near San Andreas, Salt Spring Valley and Mokelumne Hill in Calaveras county recently. They shot but eighteen birds on the trip, the weather was exclusively hot and the ground very dry. King's dogs Maximus and Professor's Lad worked hard, but the birds gave off but little scent and what few quail were flushed took to the dense brush and then would run as only quail can and will. The birds seen were nearly all old birds, evidently they did not do much mating in that section this year. Mr. Lockwood continued the hunt for a week and was very successful.

Rail hunters on the San Mateo marshes last week had very indifferent success owing to the scarcity of birds. A reason for the scarcity of rail this season in that district is offered by those who have been in a position to closely observe the bird, its habits and the surrounding conditions—the claim is made that the rats, who swarm over the marsh in countless squeaking hordes have eaten the eggs and young birds to such an extent as to prevent all chances for their natural increase and propagation in this favorite haunt of the rail. The fact that few young birds have been shot and scarcely any of them seen this year seems to give credence to the statement.

The late spell of hot weather and dry ground has told severely on many good dogs who have been afield with sportsmen quail hunting. A striking example of the lack of scent is related by Mr. Pelletier, of the Empire Gun Club, who had his dog Sprig out recently. The day was very hot and the ground excessively dry—both man and dog were fagged. Once when Pellatier called his dog in to him and as the dog stood beside a small bush wagging his tail in response to his master's encouraging and kindly words, the commotion caused by the dog's tail striking the bush flushed a quail that had been lying low under that particular cover. The bird's flight was short.

C. A. Haight, Jim Maynard and Al Willard of Guatemala, C. A., selected for their hunt on Sunday a location near Stockton, the bag counted fifteen ducks and two dozen English snipe. The rain caused the ducks to fly away from the shooting ground and they did not get much duck shooting until noon on Sunday. Haight's English setter bitch Flashlight did some splendid work on English snipe, this being her first experience with these birds. These gentlemen will be the guests of Ellis Johnson at Staten Island tomorrow for a duck, quail and snipe shoot. They will leave to-day for Palmers (on Androus Island) and take a steam launch from that point to Staten Island Mr. Willard is the Auditor of the Guatemala Central Ry Co., and an old sporting companion of Maynard.

Amateur Fly-Making

The decrease in the number of anglers who make their own flies is commented on by Mr. Chas. Walker in Land and Water. In treating of "The Advantages of Amateur Fly-Fishing" the writer regrets the falling off and reasons that it has a strong effect against that advance in the art of fly-fishing which same would be a natural result from fishermen using their own experience towards even a modification of the standard patterns to suit the localities which they frequented. "One of these reasons," he states, "why fishermen have to a great extent given up making their own flies probably is because trout flies can now be bought at such a very small cost. Another seems to be that, though fly-fishermen have increased to an enormous extent of late years, as a rule they do not seem to care to know more about the habits of the trout and the insects and creatures they feed upon than is absolutely necessary in order to catch some fish at any rate. It is difficult to account for this fact, but a fact it is, and I am afraid that the proportion of these fly-fishermen whose only interest in fishing seems to be the actual capture of the fish, and who care nothing for the fascinating study of the fish they pursue, is vastly greater than it was twenty or thirty years ago, and that the proportion of those who study the habits of the fish and the insects they feed upon is steadily diminishing. The only way of accounting for this which has occured to me is that now the leading writers on fly fishing have laid down rules as to what flies should be used in each month, and when the fisherman goes to buy his flies he is sold the 'orthodox' ones, or thinks they are sold to him. This saves him a lot of trouble, and he goes down to the water, chooses one of the patterns, haphazard, and if that does not kill tries the others in succession. This is, of course, the extreme, but I am afraid that it is really the method pursued by the great majority of fishermen. But this saving of trouble saves also, or should save, one of the greatest pleasures of fly fishing, which is the pitting of one's intellect against the cunning of the trout. The man who fishes thus is a mere machine, and all that is necessary for his success or partial success is the power of being able to cast neatly and skillfully. But it is impossible to account for this lack of interest entirely by the increased facility of obtaining artificial flies. A very fair proportion of fishermen, apparently, don't want to know anything about the natural flies, and show evident signs of boredom if a conversation turns to this subject. From what I have heard from and of old fly-fishers, fishermen thirty years ago took the greatest interest in flies. Most of those whom I have met have had several little stories of a particular fly which they had copied from nature, with which they had met with great and much-envied success on some river. One does not often meet with men with these stories among the modern fishermen, and there cannot be the slightest doubt that this is because nowadays there are but very few men who make their own flies. The facility of obtaining flies has also had another bad effect, for the fisherman goes naturally for his flies where he can get them cheapest He does not know anything about the natural flies, and, indeed, would not recognize most of them if he saw them. Neither do the fly-dressers. They, many of them, have never seen one of the flies which they imitate, but dress them entirely by the recognized rules. There are undoubtedly a few places where flies can be bought which are, to a certain extent at least, copied from the natural fly by the dresser; but these flies are expensive and are not nearly so much in demand as are the cheaper kinds. The average fisherman, however, cannot appreciate the difference between artificial flies, and if two flies, one a good and one a bad imitation, were placed before him, the chances are about even that he would choose the bad one. All these circumstances militate against advance in the art of fly-fishing, for it makes every improvement the work of the few, and causes these improvements to be of not the slightest interest to the great majority of fishermen, except that they are willing to profit by them."

Successful angling for the striped bass seems to have shifted from the Alameda estuary and the distribution of sport now lays along the eastern bay shore at different points reaching up as far as Vallejo junction. A number of these fish have been caught at Rodeo during the week. Reports from Vallejo and Mare Island state that the bass are freely taking the hook baited with live minnows. Al Hall has been catching striped bass almost daily near the Navy Yard. Three fine fish were caught near California City last Sunday. These moonlight nights are most favorable for trolling.

The take of trout spawn on the Eel river station near Willets, under the supervision of Col. A. V. La Motte, promises to aggregate several million eggs. These eggs will be transferred to the hatchery at Ukiah and when hatched the fry will be distributed in the streams whose waters course along the line of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway Company. The recent rains have made the streams in Sonoma and Mendocino counties somewhat higher and anglers have been getting fair results from their efforts.

The bait casting record of Mr. J. F. Emery, 71 yds, 1 ft with a 2½ oz bait, at Wimbledone Lake tournament in May, 1896, has been exceeded by the same caster, who at Klevedon, in Essex, on Saturday, October 8th, made the new world's record with a 2½ oz. bait—from the winch—and succeeded in reaching the enormous distance of 87 yds, 2 ft. (263 feet). Mr. Emery is a member of the Gresham Angling Society.

Eel river angling is productive of excellent results to the sportsmen on the stream at present. Dr. Von Hoffman remembered his city friends this week with a consignment of speckled beauties.

Bay fishing is fairly good.

Pacific Field Trials.

At the Executive Committee meeting of the Pacific Field Trials Club held last Saturday it was decided to hold the trials for 1899, near Bakersfield, commencing on Monday, January 16th. A Members' Stake will be run for all pointers and setters to be handled by owners, said owners to be members of the club in good standing, professional handlers barred. By professional handlers is meant any person who handles dogs other than his own for a pecuniary or other consideration. Three prizes, consisting of trophies, will be given in this stake; they will be announced prior to the running. The entrance fee will be $10; entries are to close on January 15, 1899. This stake will be the first event of the meeting. The Verona Kennels will contribute beautiful and suitable prizes to be awarded the winners of the Members' Stake.

The Champion Stake will be open to all pointers and setters who have won first, second or third prizes in any recognized field trials. The heats in this race, the first time the dogs are down, are to be at least two hours. Entrance fee $10, entries to close January 15, 1899—excepting for Derby and All-Age winners at the current meeting. Fifty per cent of the entrance money will go to the cup winner, the runner up will receive twenty-five per cent. The cup for the Champion Stake is offered by W. S. Tevis, Esq.

Col. Arthor Merriman, of Memphis, Tenn., has been invited to judge the coming trials.

The Executive Committee consists of J. E De Ruyter, President; Judge C. N. Post, of Sacramento; John Schumacher, of Los Angeles, and J. M. Kilgarif, Secretary.

News from Bakersfield is to the effect that on the private preserve of Mr. W. S. Tevis, birds are plentiful and the ground in promising condition; elsewhere in that vicinity quail are somewhat scarce.

Poisoning of Dogs.

Poison has terminated the life of many a valuable dog. An exchange furnishes some interesting information to poisons and their antidotes. It may serve to save some owner a favorite dog and for that reason is here repeated:

The most commonly used poisons are strychnine and arsenic. If not given alone, they enter into the compositions of preparations which are poisonous, so that it is well that dog owners know the symptoms of poisoning through these agents. In arsenic poisoning there is great heat and pain in the stomach and bowels, often accompanied with swelling, and the belly is very tender to the touch. There is frequent vomiting, great thirst, and more or less discharge of frothy saliva, frequent evacuations of fluid, dark-colored matter, sometimes marked with blood. The dog soon loses muscular power and shows indisposition to move. The tongue and lips are red and swollen, and breathing labored and painful. The antidotes for this poison are hydrated sesqui-oxyde of iron, twelve parts of which combine with arsenic, forming an insoluble compound. Light magnesia will also remove one-twenty-fifth its weight of arsenic from its solution in water.

Strychnine poisoning is evidenced by severe, acute pains, which make the animal utter sharp cries, twitching and jerking of the head and limbs, and drawing up the fore legs and hind legs toward each other, with the back arched. The cramps and twitching are not continuous, but are readily brought on by touching the dog or a sudden noise. Foaming at the mouth is also a frequent symptom. Give an emetic at once, mustard and hot water, coffee, salt and hot water, afterwards give lard or any fat in large quantities. We published recently an account of experiments with lard as an antidote for strychnine, the results of which may be vouched for, and lard being something always within easy reach, should certainly be tried. Ten grain doses of chloral (dissolved in water) every 15 or 20 minutes until 50 or 60 grains are administered, may be tried. This is in extreme cases, if the convulsions quiet down one might stop at 30 or 40 grains.

Pacific Advisory Committee.

The American Kennel Club, in pursuance of the action taken by the Executive Committee at their meeting held July 14, 1898, have appointed a special committee to act as a board until the regular election of members to the Pacific Advisory Board. The gentlemen deputized to compose the committee are Messrs. John E. De Ruyter, Chairman; H. H. Carlton, Dr. W. R. Cluness Jr., J. P. Norman, G. B. M. Grey, Merton C. Allen and J. W. Keene.

The appointment of these gentlemen is a very happy selection; it not only promises to promote in a material degree the kennel interests of the coast, but is another strong showing of friendship to and coalition with the Pacific Coast fanciers by the American Kennel Club.

Standards.

Blaze—A white mark up the face.
Brush—The tail, usually applied to sheep dogs.
Butterfly Nose—A spotted nose.
Button Ear—Where the tip falls over and covers the orifice.
Cat Foot—A short, round foot, knuckles high and well developed.
Cheeky—When the cheek humps are strongly defined.
Chest—Underneath a dog from brisket to belly.
Chops—The pendulous lip of the Bulldog
Coat—The hair.
Cobby—Well ribbed up, short and compact in proportion.
Couplings—Space between top of shoulder blades and top of hip joints.
Cow Hocks—Hocks that turn in.
Dew Claw—Extra claw, found occasionally on all breeds.
Dewlap—Pendulous skin under the throat.
Dish Faced—When nose is higher than muzzle at the stop.
Dudley Nose—A yellow or flesh-colored nose.
Flag—A term for the tail, applied to a Setter.
Flews—The pendulous lips of the Bloodhound and other breeds.
Forearm—Part of foreleg extending from elbow to pastern.
Frill—A mass of hair on the chest, especially on Collies.
Hare Foot—A long, narrow foot, carried forward.
Haw—Red inside eyelid, shown in Bloodhounds and St. Bernards.
Hocks—The hock joints.
Hucklebones—Tops of hip joints.
Knee—The joint attaching fore-pastern and forearm.
Leather—The skin of the ear.
Occiput—The projecting bone or hump at the back of the head.
Overshot—The upper teeth projecting beyond the under.
Pastern—Lowest section of lee, below the knee or hock.
Pig Jaw—Exaggeration of Overshot.
Pily—A term applied to soft coat.
Prick Ear—One that stands upright.
Rose Ear—Where the tip of ear turns back, showing interior.
Septum—The division between the nostrils.
Smudge Nose—A nose which is not wholly black.
Stern—The tail.
Stifles—The top joints of the hindlegs.
Stop—The indention below the eyes, most prominent in Bulldogs.
Trace—Black line extending from occiput to tail.
Tulip Ear—An erect or pricked ear.
Type—Every breed of dogs is possessed of certain characteristics of form and feature that stamp it so indelibly that a typical specimen once being seen it is never forgotten. In the human race, for instance, we say a man has a face of Malay type, Chinese type, etc. The same applies to a dog.

Notes for Novices.

Considering the enormous fatality which is due to worms among puppies, it may not be out of place to suggest in this column a remedy which has been tried by several persons with good results as a preventative. This is ordinary carbonate of iron, a little of which can be mixed with the puppies' food, acting both as a tonic and, it is thought, as a preventative of worms also. We do not profess to know why such is the case, but the remedy is a safe and simple one, and can, therefore, be published for the benefit of any fancier who is on the lookout for something which may prevent his puppies from being troubled with these life-suckers. There is no doubt that a little iron is a good thing for all breeds of puppies, whether it be in the form of carbonate, or chloride, or what not; it is the best possible blood purifier, or rather blood tonic, and on this account, if for no other reason, it can safely be recommended to the notice of fanciers.

Prevention is always better than cure, but as every experienced dog fancier knows, it is one thing to talk about preventing worms from appearing, and another thing to effect the prevention. However, a trial of the remedy mentioned in the preceding paragraph may prove a useful experiment, more particularly if it is backed up by the other precautions which every careful man takes, i. e., the administration of regular doses of mild, aperient medicine (to the dam during early days and subsequently to the puppies themselves). This keeps the intestines and bowels free from the foetid matter in which the parasites thrive, and it also brings away the creatures themselves or their ova, and so acts as a check on their too rapid propagation. Novices are often surprised at the rapidity with which a puppy becomes filled with worms—a barrel, in fact, in appearance. Now, a mild aperient given occasionally, if it did not entirely prevent their appearance, would at least act as a preventative of wholesome quantities.

We often are called upon to prescribe a simple ointment for skin irritation and other troubles in the kennel. Our idea of an ointment is that it should not be used in preference to a lotion. In the case of long-haired dogs especially this is important, because many ointments have the undesirable effect of causing the hair to become matted together, thus introducing one complication while removing another. Ointments of the tarry resinous kind we taboo altogether; any ointment used for dogs should be soft—almost semi-liquid—such as carbonized vaseline. If a dog has skin irritation let the parts be first bathed or sponged with some antiseptic lotion such as a solution of permanganates, and then after wiping them dry apply a little carbolized vaseline to keep the parts soft and moist. This points to the great secret in healing wounds—do not let them, between each dressing of lotion, become dry and inflamed. To prevent this use a simple lotion as suggested.

Carbolized vaseline may be made in the following manner, which represents the official British Pharmacopœie preparation in so far as regards strength. Take of crystalline carbolic acid ½ ounce; glycerine ¾ ounce; mix these two intimately together in a mortar, and then add them to 5¼ ounces of vaseline—the latter process being best conducted on a stone or earthenware slab. It is one of those universally useful ointments that may be applied to almost anything in the way of sores or wounds or skin irritation due to either an impure state of the blood or to parasites. It will be noticed that the percentage of carbolic acid in the above recipe is only about 4; this acid is very dangerous if applied carelessly to dogs, many valuable animals having been poisoned at times by its external use in baths when it has not been properly dissolved in the water. This is a warning that cannot too often be repeated, especially to novices.

"I have a dog," says a correspondent every few days, "which doesn't seem to put on flesh; do what I will, he always looks like a skeleton." Now, this is the commonest of common complaints which reach us, and we may as well devote a paragraph to it here. One thing is certain—leanness and scragginess are not the natural condition of a healthy dog, to whatever breed he belongs, and there must be a reason for any dog being of such an appearance as to answer to this description. To begin with, there is no likelier cause for it then worms, and the first thing a practical man does if one of his dogs seems "off his feed," or not quite up to the mark, is to give him a dosing for worms. This can do no harm—even though there be no worms it will clear the system thoroughly, and in this way, indirectly, will do good. But it does not necessarily follow because a dog is thin that he is a victim to worms; and we never advise fanciers to mercilessly physic a poor animal unless there are some grounds for supposing that he may be subject to these pests.

It needs to be born in mind that loss of flesh is the most natural first symptom of any kind of illness. Directly a dog has any feelings of headache, neuralgia, sickness or what not, he acts precisely as his master would act under similar circumstances—he 'gives way" in fact. If he is in this condition for several days some serious trouble may be looked for. He should be examined, if an old dog, to see whether it is likely that any of his teeth are causing trouble, and if so, these should be promptly removed. If a young dog, and one known not to have distemper, this is the likeliest thing to anticipate, and prompt measures should be taken to meet its onset. A great aid to the diagnosis of an ailment is to be found in that valuable little instrument, the clinical thermometer, by means of which the temperature can be accurately taken, and an impending illness be recognized by the degree of feverishness present.

There are very often cases of young growing dogs which seem never to put on flesh—especially those of the larger breeds such as mastiffs and St. Bernards. It would seem as if nature were concentrating all her energies on making bones—not flesh; and this really may be the true solution of the problem. See to it that such a dog has plenty of good bone-forming food, and in due course matters will right themselves. As soon as his limbs are fully developed and his frame has grown to its normal adult size, nature will alter her methods, and he will proceed to fill out, just as a lanky youth changes into the portly middle-aged "family" man. Then again, of course, there is the case of the full grown dog in health suddenly changing and going thin. This is due to one or other of the causes already dealt with, and must be treated accordingly. What we wish to impress upon our novic readers here now is that they must seek for the cause of thinness, and not jump to the conclusion that it is worms or something else. A correct diagnosis at first—even though it involve trouble—is the most economical.—Our Dogs.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Entries for the Merced meeting of the Interstate Coursing Club close to-night at 8 P. M. at Pythian Castle, 909 Market street.

A. & B. Kennels will run their crack greyhound, Rock Island Boy, against John Eagan's Mayflower for $250 a side at Ingleside Park to-morrow.

Mr. Geo. Raper has been so unlucky as to lose the excellent young fox terrier dog Re-echo, said to be one of the best—probably the best—sons of Go Bang.

The proceedings before the A. K. C. in the case of San Francisco Kennel Club vs. J. B. Martin have been published in the Fox Terrier Chronicle for September.

Union Coursing Park Association on October 11th declared the second monthly dividend of $2 per share. This is said to be equal to 25 per cent. per annum.

The St. Bernard Club of California held a special meeting on Wednesday evening. The coming Oakland Bench Show was the subject of considerable discussion, but action by the club in regard thereto was indefinitely postponed.

The litter of five cocker spaniel puppies whelped by H. A. Wegener's Tootsey W., is a remarkable one, tor the fact that all the puppies are red in color taking after the parents. Such a showing of one color in a litter is unusual.

A new candidate for recognition in collie circles is the pretty youngster who arrived here last Monday per steamer from Australia. Coogee is a dog puppy, now six months old, by Rex—Rene, bred by John Dobbe, the well known Sydney fancier. Prof. Kennedy, who brought him to this city, has presented him to Mrs. J. G. Deming.

Jim Maynard will try out his black pointer Thom tomorrow at Steten Island. The dog will have C. A. Haight's English setter hitch Flashlight (Starlight—Loya) as a working partner. The pointer pup has been down at Hanford working on quail and is a most promising youngster. Mr. Maynard had the misfortune to lose recently an excellent young lemon and white pointer dog puppy by Glenwood—Queen N.

The late Cavelier H. Jouett, who passed away in this city on October 9th last, was one of the staunchest supporters of bench shows on this Coast ever since their inception here. Mr. Jouett's favourite breeds were collies, Scotch deerhounds and bull terriers and he possessed some very fine specimens of each. Mr. Jonett filled the responsible position of general manager for R. Dunsmuir Son's Co., the large and extensive coal dealers. He leaves a wife and two sons, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Shortly following the loss of the fine young dog, Lygia, Curtis & Sons have met with still another misfortune, being no less than the loss of that grand greyhound bitch, Rosette, who died of blood poisoning on Friday, a week ago. Rosette was without exception the greatest bitch on the Coast, always a consistent performer and one of the cleverest workers ever seen on the sward. Rosette's winnings this year aggregate about $1 500. Leashmen are in general accord in expressing regret that this great greyhound is gone; the fact that she is represented by a promising progeny makes the loss all the more apparent.

The demise of George J. Harley at San Benito Springs last Saturday will recall to fanciers who are interested in English setters the fact that he was instrumental in improving the breed on the Coast to a material extent, he having brought out the celebrated Dan Gladstone (Gladstone—Sue) some years ago, the black, white and tan English setter who was the sire of Thomas Watson's Starlight and P. D. Linville's Flake L., both dogs having a creditable record of field trial and bench show wins. Mr. Harley hed lately taken to fox terriers, heing the owner of Mission Idol (Blemton Reefer—Dauntless Suzette) two promising pups by Warren Sage—Mission Idol and several others.

Mr Harley was the eldest son of the late Charles Harley and was for the past sixteen years at the head of the well known firm, the Charles Harley Company, and was widely known in business and social circles here and in the East.

Coursing at Stockton.

A large crowd was in attendance at the coursing meet on the Moss tract last Sunday. The two best courses of the day were the ones between Roger S. and Nick L and that between Rich and Artless and Arno. It was a fine day's sport, with fast rabbits and fast dogs, and even Dave Winders grew excitad; once he became so worked up that he almost treated. The officials were: Judge, Bud Wood of Modesto; Slipper, H. M. Carey; Steward, B. S. Milco.

The courses were as follows: First Round—

Ed Hutchins' Nina M. ran a bye with Ruby, 2—15. Gladiola withdrawn.

Grading Up Sheep.

I believe that grading, by which we mean in the first place the crossing of one breed of sheep with another and then following up by breeding to sires of the same breed until we have half-bloods, three-quarters and seven-eighths and so on to higher grades, is the most practicable and profitable way for ranchmen, writes Geo. E. Breck in Field and Farm. This involves the use of a prepotent sire for each successive cross. It means not only what is commonly called a full-blood sire, but it means the use of one that is true to the type of the breed chosen and one that is prepotent. In crossing the English mutton breeds on the common or merino sheep I would emphasize the importance of using a strongly prepotent ram. For hundreds of years the merino sheep have been bred much after the same type as those of the present time and thus it is necessary that a strongly prepotent ram be used to overcome the tendency to continue the characteristics of the dam. My experience in cross breeding among sheep has been confined to Shropshire top and I have found that a half-blood Shropshire is a better sheep than a merino grade both as to quality of wool and equal quantity and a better carcass, and that the higher the grade of Shropshire the better the sheep under the present changed conditions of the sheep business. For the foundation flock of ewes for cross breeding I would get the best type of mutton ewes that I could find with good fleeces rather than pay $2 a head for grade merino ewes weighing from seventy five to ninety pounds each, with heavy oily fleeces, and I would pay from $3 to $4 a head for good grade ewes carrying the blood of the mutton sheep. The latter ewes should weigh from 100 to 125 pounds each and shear from six to eight pounds a head and show in their general form and markings some of the characteristics of the mutton type. Of course I would select them short in the leg with good quarters, straight backs, full through the heart, with good, strong bone. Such sheep will breed well and feed well whatever the breed, and with such a foundation we have a shorter cut, saving one or two generations of cross breeding, the loss of valuable time and expense. During the past few years it has been cheaper to buy up than to breed up under ruling prices, and he who failed to secure for himself a good foundation flock of ewes for breeding mutton sheep in the future will be sure to regret it within the next three years. Many rangemen have been selling off the small merino ewes at the best prices obtainable and purchased foundation flocks of ewes of the type described at the low prices prevailing. I am sure of one thing, that the highest type of mutton sheep will never be produced under the short-grass conditions They require better food and better care than can possibly be given them in large flocks running on the open range. But the rancheman has a splendid opportunity to largely increase the value of the carcass without any loss in the value of his annual wool clip and it will certainly pay to breed along these lines.

Breeding For Sex.

We are frequently asked by readers of this paper how to mate fowls for obtaining a greater number of pullets than cockerels, and occasionally the opposite sex are wanted. It is generally believed that some breeds are more liable to produce pullets than others. We desire to say once for all that sex is governed by natural laws which apply alike to animal life. But in plain language this same controlling feature keeps the proportion of the sexes well balanced. It has been said that if a rooster is let run with an undue number of hens a large proportion of males will result, this being nature's method of equalizing matters. If, on the other hand, there be a large number of roosters running with a few hens, females will predominate as a result. That is one theory, although of course, there are other conditions which are supposed to cause variations. If one knew how to keep up the proportion of pullets, which are of the most value to the farmer, he would know a secret that has been greatly sought for, but which nature seems thus far to have kept to herself.—Iowa Homestead.

The Corn Trade News, an English journal, gives a detailed estimate of the world's wheat crop, making the total 325,800,000 qrs., or 42,000,000 more than for 1897, and 2,200,000 more than the maximum crop of 1894, but 4,232,000 less than the total of the Hungarian minister of Agriculture. For nearly all countries the estimates are much higher than those of last season, and Australasia is credited (for the harvest in December or later) with a record crop, which, of course, is very uncertain as regards.

Points About Horse Feeding.

There are a few important facts in horse feeding that every horse owner ought to know and that are frequently neglected much to the injury of the animal. A horse should never be fed grain after heavy work until he has rested half an hour. Hay will do no harm at any time. Never water a horse just after eating. To drink freely at this time will wash a large portion of the food from the stomach to the intestines, dilute the gastric acid and irritate the bowels. Always water before feeding grain. Never permit a fatigued horse to drink freely of cold water. A warm mash will do no harm at any time, or wet hay and fodder may be fed, and afterward a full drink may be given. Never let a horse suffer from thirst when it can be avoided, nor food either, but the first is more injurious. A horse employed in regular work should have a full feed at night, with hay to nibble at will, a light feed in the morning and a bran mash with hay at noontime. A horse should never be required to do heavy work with his stomach full of grain or entirely empty. Study your horse and feed according to his individuality. A greedy horse should be restrained. Others may be given all they will eat. Each horse should be fed seperately. Men, women and children should make their meals social occasions, but they are not horses.—Texas Farm and Ranch.

Texas Fever.

No fresh cases of Texas fever have been found in Solano county. The development of ticks that carry the disease has been retarded by the cold weather that has prevailed. The dipping process is proving satisfactory and the animals undergoing the treatment are being placed on clean pasture. Stockmen are taking all possible precautions.

In Napa county, however, a few cases of Texas fever have developed and quite a number of the cattle attacked have succumbed to the disease. Last spring a number of train loads of cattle were taken through Napa valley on the way from the drouth-stricken counties of the south to the pasture lands of the north, says the Journal. It is understood that about one hundred of these cattle were sold at Calistoga, and turned loose in different parts of the county, and undoubtedly it was through this means that the disease was introduced in this section. A number of farmers in the valley are having their cattle inoculated as a precautionary measure.

A prominent lamb feeder who has made as much money feeding sheep as the other fellow tells how he does it and says: "I commence feeding grain very slowly, starting with about half a pound of oats and shelled corn and gradually increasing the ration, so that in thirty days my sheep will eat, say one and one-half pounds a head a day, divided in three feeds. It is my experience that self-feeders can be used successfully only where screenings are fed in place of corn. If beans and ground oat cake are cheap they make a very desirable addition to the grain ration. I feed roughness twice a day, morning and evening. Alfalfa hay is the best, but early cut millet, sorghum, kaffir corn and corn fodder make a good substitute. I have fattened full grown wethers on nothing but corn and bright wheat straw for roughness. One of the essential things in feeding sheep is regularity. Commence at the same hour and minute ever day and at the same pen. The sheep will get to know their meal time and will be quiet until that time arrives. I never allow my men to very even ten minutes. When a long feed is intended I would not increase the grain ration much over one and one-half pounds a day until about the last thirty days, when I would feed all they will eat up clean three times a day. I have my grain troughs swept out after each feed and do not allow the water tanks to get foul."

In the grand sweepstakes for best yearling in the American fat stock show of 1883, the prize went to a seven-eighth Shorthorn steer, bred in Illinois, and called Scratch. This steer weighed 1,640 pounds at 630 days of age, a gain of 2.60 pounds a day from birth. Some days later, when slaughtered, at exactly twenty-two months, his weight was 1,650 pounds, and, after hanging thirty hours, his dressed quarters weighed 1,145 pounds, or 69.39 per cent. net to gross weight. It was believed at the time that, age considered, his equal had never been known. He was a roan with an extraordinary front, well-sprung ribs, good back and loin, deep body, short legs, but slightly defective at the rump, tapering off rather too abruptly. Taking all in all, he was a wonderfully compact, smooth and thoroughly pony-built animal.

Cleaning Milk Cans.

Milk cans and bottles should be cleaned as promptly as possible. Fresh milk is easily removed from the surface, but if it is allowed to dry on it becomes sour and hard to start. If the can cannot be cleaned at once fill it with water and let it stand. A long-handled brush, some hot water and sal soda are other needfuls. Special care should be taken to use the brush about all seams and joints.

Before using hot water the cans should be rinsed out with moderately warm water, or else the hot water will make the milk stick to the sides. After washing with brush and soda, another rinsing is necessary. When steam can be had its aid is very desirable. Each can must have hot water. When the water is not hot the grease is not removed, but simply spread over the tin. Cans taken in exchange, even though supposed to be washed, often need to be cleaned again. Their condition can be detected by the nose when there is no dirt to be seen. The outside of the utensil should not be neglected. Milk cans and pails should never be allowed to stand in the stable before they are needed there for use, and milk should not be left in the pails long before straining. All the details of washing milk utensils are very important. They can only be learned by experience and a taste for neatness. Probably the majority of milk routes which prove a failure are unsuccessful because of lack of thoroughness in keeping the milk and utensils clean.

Don't Waste Pomace.

About the use of apple pomace there is great difference of opinion. Lack of success in using it is often due to feeding sour and nearly rotten pomace. At the Vermont experiment station the milch cows liked it exceedingly and ate it in preference to other food, and did not shrink in milk. There it is considered about equal to good corn ensilage in feeding value. Ten pounds per day were fed each cow.

The only way to have it fresh is to put it into silos like corn ensilage. Some people object to pomace because of its acidity, but Dr. Goessman found that his pomace ensilage was less acid than corn ensilege. At the large mills pomace is made by pressing the ground apple between cloth, but in some of the smaller mills straw is used instead of cloth, and the pomace, when taken to the farm, is mixed with the straw. This straw pomace has been found to make good ensilege, and less acid perhaps than the ordinary pomace. It should be fed in small quantities, five to ten pounds a day, along with hay and a mixture of cotton seed and bran or other similar grain rations. Some feeders claim to give considerably larger rations of pomace without any bad effects. No doubt thousands of tons of pomace go to waste that ought to be turned into milk.

The Bureau of Animal Industry is firm in faith in the curative and protective power of its antitoxic serum in hog cholera. The use of this serum in infected herds is said to have saved 80 per cent during the past calendar year, and we are informed that in the last few months the methods of its preparation and use have been considerably improved, so that a higher degree of efficiency is hoped for. It is believed that a practical method of preventing the greater part of loss from swine plague has been finally worked out, although the Bureau awaits the results of the experiments planned for this year before claiming absolute assurance in the matter.

In dressing poultry, Americans have considerable to learn from the French. Not only do the French poulterers know how to stuff the fowls to get a plumper carcass, but they whiten and mould and manipulate the fowl after killing until it looks almost good enough to be eaten without further preperation. American markets might not yet appreciate so much care and attention to the appearance of dressed fowls, but it is well known that carcasses prepared with the greatest care by American methods always bring the best price.

H. B. Gurler, of Illinois, calculates that it will cost $30 to feed a cow, $10 to care for her and the interest on this investment is $2.50, making a total investment of $42.50 per annum. He allow $10 for the value of the skimmilk. The butter or cheese product therefore, would have to be $32.50 to pay expenses, if we allow nothing for the manure produced. It would require 203 pounds of butter at sixteen cents a pound to be produced before any profit begins.

Many tons of wheat will be used for horse feed this winter in the Sacramento valley. This is due to the scarcity of barley, the low price of wheat, and the fair price for barley. If the farmers throughout the State are to use as much wheat for feed as those in that valley, there will not be anywhere near the amount of wheat for export as many have been calculating on.

The Agricultural Department has made inquiry to ascertain whether the French Government would oppose a live stock exhibit by the United States at the Paris Exposition, Secretary Wilson says that such an exhibit depends largely upon the co-operation of breeders and the amount of space at the Exposition assigned for the use of the Agricultural Department. When the reply of the French Government is received and it is known officially that the French restrictions will be suspended and American cattle and sheep admitted for exhibition purposes the Department will take the matter up for action.

For the past ten years the reports of the Bureau of Animal Industry have been issued every two years, but this antiquated method of presenting to stock farmers facts designed to aid them in their battle against animal diseases has finally been abandoned and this arm of the Department will hereafter be made public annually. A special assistant has been employed to edit the various contributions that constitute this report in order that it may appear once a year. The fourteenth annual report has just been issued, and will be distributed through Senators and Representatives.

At Kansas City, last Thursday, the sale of Hereford cattle belonging to P. B. Armour, was concluded. The 113 head disposed of included several importations from the herds of Queen Victoria. Excellent prices were realized, the average for the entire lot being $384.91 per head. The highest price realized was $1,025 and $200 was the lowest.

The old bones about the farm which cannot be put to better use might as well be buried about the fruit trees and grape vines. They will get the plant food out of them. It is only a question of time.

Plenty of good feed for a cow is all right, but it will not make a good milker out of a poor one. Characteristics of a cow have more to do with the amount and quality of the milk than does the feed.

Spring Tooth Harrow.

"Farming made easy" seems to have been the study of the inventors of the past decade. The latest and far away the best of the inventions in the field is a Sulky-seated Harrow with Spring Teeth, so constructed that the weight of wheels and driver is entirely on the sulky, thereby allowing a free play of the spring teeth. On the last page of this week's paper we publish a cut and description of this Harrow. See the announcement of D. M. Osborne & Co.

THE OSBORNE SULKY SPRING TOOTH HARROW.

The Sulky Attachment has an easy spring seat and high, broad-faced steel wheels, 20 inches in diameter, fitted with sand-proof bearings.

The weight of the driver being entirely on the Sulky allows tooth frames to work independent of Sulky. On other Riding Harrows weight of wheels and driver are on the frames.

If it is desired to change pitch of the teeth on account of the condition of the soil, or because they have become worn or shortened by long use, it can easily be done by raising or lowering the frame through an adjustment of the shoes at front of Harrow.

WINTER RACING IN CALIFORNIA.

The Firet Week of the Season Showe It to Be as Popular ae Ever.

Before the California Jockey Club began its meeting last Satnrday there w re many prognostications floating about that there would he a scarcity of horses and a scarcity of patrons of the sport of kings—hard times, a political campaign and seveial other things heing given as reasons why gate receipts would he light. One week has proven, however, that the pesimistic prophets were wrong, and a trip to Oakland will convince one that San Franciscans still love the thoroughbreds in the same old way. It has been the inevitable rule here that the average attendance at the meetings increases steadily from the heginning up to the time when the eastern horsemen and hookmakers start across the continent in the spring, and as the numher of people at the track each day this week was as large, if not larger, than during any previous opening week, there is no fear hut the popularity of racing will suffer no loss this season. There is said to he by those who are familiar with the condition of the hetting ring, a little less volume of money this year owing to the fact that hut few of the heavy hettors have arrived, hut they are coming in every day and hy Thanksgiving Day it will probahly he larger than ever.

It is a little early also for high class fields to he expected every day, thongh, so far, a more than average lot of selling platers and handicap horses are contending. Form players have been in clover since the opening and hut few favorites have heen heaten. This has caused one or two of the hook makers to turn their slates to the wall. There is not a city in the United States where racing is as well patronized according to the population as here, and in no other place are there so many students of form and experienced handicappers at work daily trying to take money out of the ring. And they succeed wonderfully, too.

The features of the week have been the remarkable score of five wins made hy the Burns & Waterhouse stable on the opening day, and the wonderful race run hy Yemen, the nine-year-old gelding hy Alarm. On a track that was not fast, and with 131 pounds on his hack, he ran five and a half furlongs in 1:07, and was pulled up the last hundred yards as he finished eight good lengths ahead of his field. It was truly a remarkable performance.

There is a dearth of good jockeys at the track, but this will he remedied as the season progresses, as quite a numher of first-class riders, now in the East, will soon he here. We shall have Tod Sloan, in all probability, fresh from his English triumphs, and there is a rumor that he will he accompanied hy one or two of the leading jockeys from that country It is to he hoped the rumor is true as California race goers would watch with great interest the style of riding which is followed across the water and which is said to he so different from the American style.

Looking over the situation at the close of the opening week, there are many reasons on which to hase the prediction that the California winter racing of 1898-99 will be of a higher average class than any previous year.

The Transylvania Stake was trotted in Kentucky, won by a horse hred in Montana, owned by a man in Connecticut and driven by a Texan. This is about covering the whole country.

The Sale of the Year.

The most famous horse in the world is Ormonde, for whom the plucky Californian, W. O'B Macdonough, paid the princely sum of $150,000.

As a racehorse Ormonde was invincible at a time when such cracks as Bendigo, Melton, Paradox and Minting were striving for the laurels.

In the stnd Ormonde proved himself equally great by siring in his first season the mighty Orme, a winner of over $170,000, Llanthony, Orontes II., Gold Finch, etc.

Since his sojourn in Callfornia, Ormonde has not had many representatives on the turf, and, owing to ill-health, Mr. Macdonough decided, this season, to offer at puhlic anction all his yearlings which inclnde five hy Ormonde.

They are all fillies and as grand lookers as any in the world.

Such an opportunity has never occurred before for Californians to purchase snch a consignment of royally bred youngsters.

That they are not sold because Mr. Macdonough has lost faith in the horse is proved hy his refusal of $50,000 for the renowned stallion.

Messrs. Killip & Co. are also instructed hy the Menlo Stock Farm to sell all the other yearlings on the ranch, which include three St. Carlos' and one Morello filly.

James Mack, owner of Waldo J., 2:09, was np from Santa Paula last week. Mr. Mack has had bad luck with his gray horse again this year. He was attacked with the old trouhle with his stomach and would not eat as he should and got very weak. He was faster than ever, and Mr. Mack worked him some very fast quarters before shipping him East. At Buffalo, the horse got entirely off, however, and Mr. Mack returned home leaving him in the care of Thos. Keating, who took him down to Kentucky with his string, hut was unable to start him. Mr. Mack is enthusiastic over Keating as a trainer, and believes he stands at the very head of American harness horse trainers. Keating's work was not only a revelation, hut a surprise to the Easterners. and he clearly demonstrated that hard work is not needed hy all horses to prepare them for a hard race. Anaconda won one of his hardest and fastest races, going four very fast heats, the first time he had a harness on his hack for ten days. Dione's showing in the Transylvania, when she went to the half every time in the lead and trotted five heats from 2:08 to 2:10½, was made without a lot of hard work to "key her up" for the race. Keating studies the temperament of every horse in his string, and has done more than any other trainer to prove that "gameness" so-called is a matter of condition in many instances.

When he returned from the East "Sandy" Smith, who had several horses in the Keating string under his personal charge during the season, brought with him, as a present to Mr. A. B. Spreckels, one of the shoes worn hy the great Star Pointer when he paced a record breaking mile. In this mile Star Pointer went to half in 57 seconds, the fastest half ever paced hy any horse in the world. The shoe will be mounted and hung in Spreckels office.

For the first time since the Kentucky Futurity was inaugurated, it was won this year hy a youngster not descended from Geo. Wilkes. Peter the Great has no Wilkes hlood whatever.

LOS ANGELES HORSE SHOW.

Mr. John Parrott Will Exh'bit Hie Prize Hackney, Green'e Rufus, There.

The Los Angeles Express of a recent date says: Mr. C. P. Hnntington of New York has expressed a cordial approval of the aims and purposes of the Los Angeles horse show, and has given a substantial proof of his appreciation in the shape of a valuable cnp to he competed for in one of the events.

Another gentleman who has written to the association giving his hearty approval to the enterprise is Mr. John Parrott of San Mateo. Mr. Parrott is a gentleman of large means, and is devoting himself extensively to the breeding of fine horses, particularly of the hackney type in this State. His imported stallion, Green's Rufus, is one of the most beautiful and perfectly shaped animals in the United States, of the highest breeding. His picture is in the horse show rooms, and it is a delight to the eye. Green's Rufus is the winner of many hlue ribhons in horse shows, and as Mr. Henry J. C ocker says in a letter to the Horse Show Association, this horse "is a show in himself" The horse show people will be very fortunate to secure the co-operation of Mr. Parrott and his exhibits.

The details of the coming horse show are heing worked out to the entire sat sfaction of the association. The approval of the horse show hy the directors of the Chamber of Commerce was all that was needed to stamp this enterprise as one worthy of the support of our citizens at large Forty private boxes have been sold around the arena, and the management will he obliged to add more boxes to meet the demands. These boxes are the choice situation in the horse show, nothing but the promenade intervening hetween them and the arena where the exhibits take place.

Mr. Bettner of Riverside is husy in preparation of the Gymkhana portion of the program, which promises to he a very attractive feature of the exhibition.

Janie T., 2:14, winner of the two-year-old division of the Kentucky Futurity in 1897, has been sold hy George A. Fuller, Lincoln, Ill., to William E. Spier, of Glens Falls. The filly has made a poor showing on the turf this year, and it is said that she will be retired to the stud. Her record was made in her two year-old form. Janie T. is by Bow Bells, 2:19¼, out of Nida, by Monon, son of Nutwood

The Daily Breeder and Sportsman, containing the best handicap published, correct form chart of the races, a description of every race as run and all the racing news of the day, will be mailed to any address during the racing season for $1.00 per month.

A Handsome yearling colt by St. Carlo, out of Carrie M. (dam of Dancing Girl), by Hyder Ali, the property of Dr. A. C. Posey, of Oakland, will be sold by Killip & Co., November 21st, the same evening the Ormonde yearlings are sold.

We have heard on the most reliable authority tha there will be at least a dozen eastern and European huyers in California within the next few months looking for first class road and park horses.

Royally Bred Maree for California.

Samnel Gamble arrived home last Friday with several cbolce mares and fillies whicb he purchased last spring while East for Mr. Winthrop Lester. He also got a few good ones on his nwn account and they all arrived together. A ful[l] list of these mares and fillies was published in the Breeder and Sportsman at the time, whicb we hsre reproduce for the benefit of those interested in an importation which will be nf great benefit to this State as a bresding center. There is no better judge of a boise than Mr. Gamble, and he has the faculty of keeping posted on the blood lines tbat ere in the lead in the races and the show rings end believes in breeding for the futnre and not for the past. The list was furnished by Mr. Gamble himself end printed in these columne, May 21st. It is as follows:

La Belta, brown filly 15 3, fosled 1894, by Bow Bells 2:19¼, dam Lottie Thorn 2:23¾ (dam of Oscar William 2:12¾, by Mamhrino Patchen). Bred to Axtell 2:12.

Lady Simmons, brown filly 15 2, foaled 1895, hy Simmons 2:28, dam Jenet 2:28, hy Artillsry. Bred to Axtell 2:12.

Gianetti, hay filly 15.2, foaled 1895, by Axtell 2:12, dam Alice Black 2:29, by Jersey Wilkes. Bred to Grend Baron 2:18.

Perza, brown filly fosled 1897, by Allie Wilkee 2:15, dam Angalina 2:27 (sister to Patchen Wilkes 2:29, sire of Joe Patchen 2:04¼), by George Wilkes. This filly is handsome, good gaited and speedy.

Emma Smally, hay mare, 15 2, foaled 1894, by Blue Dawn 2:21; son of Jay Bird, dam Sally Russell 2:28, by Mamhrino Russell. Bred to Delmarch 2:11.

Melha, hsy filly, fosled 1897, a full sister to Henry Barrett 2:10¼, trial 2:07, the fastest record ever obtained by a green horse in his first season on the turf. Melha is hy Baron de stein, the best producing son of Baron Wilkes, dam Ellen Tree, dam of Henry Barrett 2:10¼, Lola Montez 2:16 (record mada in Europe), and Rschael 2:25, by Mamhrino Russell. Keep an eye on this miss. She is mnsic in the air.

Black filly 15 1, fosled 1897, by Simmons 2:28, dam, the dam of one with a record of 2:13, by Baron Wilkes, second dam hy Mamhrino Patchen, third dam a thoroughhred. This is nne of the handsomest filliee in the land, with the best of feet and legs, speedy and a hetter-gaited one is hard to he found. She trotted a qnarter as a yesrling last fall in 0:39.

Death of Dr. J.

Mr. H. L. Thornbrough, of Meridian, Sutter county, sends to the Breeder and Sportsman the news of the death, October 31st, of Dr. J., 2:16, by Alexander Button, dam Queen, hy Tilton Almont. Dr. J. was bred hy Dr. E. V. Jacobs, of Meridian, and was foaled in 1894. He started as a three-year-old for tbe first time at Marysville and won a hard-fought race of five heste, taking a record of 2:22½ in tbe first heat and trotting the last in 2:23. At Chico he started twice, being defeated by Anselor in one race, but heating Daymont and Joe Selby in the other and reducing his record tn 2:21¼. Tbis was a four-heat race. At Willows he defeated the sams horses in a five-heat race, his fastest mile being 2:24. He was unplaced at Woodland and won second money in a stake for three-year-olde at Colusa. This year he trotted soma good races and showed himself a game horse. Ha was trained hy the well-known reinsman, James Sullivan, and redneed his record to 2:16 at Sonta Rosa in a dead heat with May B. He was a good third in tbe two mile dash at the State Fair at Sacramento, won by Nellie Bly in 4:47, which is within two seconds of the record at the distance. As he was but four years old and had proven himself to be both game and fast, great things were expected of him next year, and his loss will he severely felt by his nwner. The cansa of his death was lockjaw.

Mr. Sullivan tells ns that Dr. J. had speed enough to trot a mila in 2.10 and ha thinks he would have done so in another year. He was one of those horses that could not stand being struck by the bits of dirt or gravel thrown from the feet nf other horses or the wheels of sulkies, and unless he got off in front or was away back out of reach he would be very unsteady. He was improving, however, and Mr. Sullivan thinks another season of racing would have cure[d] him of the habit.

The directors have added to the prize list of the National Horse Show, to be held next month at Madison Square Garden, New Yark, a class nf chargers, or horses used in cavalry service. Colonel Otto L. Hern, commandant of cadets at West Point, is a cavalry officer, and he has been asked to jodge the class.

A Wonderful Half Mile.

The last half of the speed treck at Golden Gate Park is the festest half mile in the world. There is no telling how fast a horse can go over it until he is given a trial, and then it will he faster than the most enthusiastic lover of his horse will ever guess. Geo. Berry says that he drove Fanadme, 2:19½, Dr. Dalziel's little Eros mare, the last half of the speed track mile one day last week in 1.01 1-5. It seems a pretty big story, doesn't it, but Mr. Berry is reedy to put up his money that he can do it again. On a regulation treck in good condition, Fanadma can trot a mite any day hetter than her record by several seconds, and we should not be surprised if ehe trotted e mile in 2:12, but 1:01 1-5 for a half is elmost too fast to believe. This we do know, however—the speed track in Golden Gate Park is at leest five seconds faster then any other track in California. The road drivers call the last half of it the "toboggan slide." Fenadma, like tbet other daughter of Eros, Dione, 2:09¼, is one of those nervy little enimals that requires but little work to get her ready for a fast mile, and at the same time is se gentle and eesy to handle as a dog. Tbere is probably not a horse in the Stete that can outbrush her on the roed when she is hitched to a light oert. "Sandy" Smith, who was Eest with the Keeting string this seeson, wes at the speed track the day Mr. Berry drove Fenadma, and corrohorates the statement that she trotted the helf in 1:01 1 5.

John A. McKerron, 2:12 1-2, Sold.

Mr. Mertin Carter hss sold his greet three-year-old John A. McKerron, 2:12½, by Nutwood Wilkes, ont of Ingar, by Dirsctor, to Dr. Tanner of Cleveland, Ohio. The Doctor, who is an enthnsiastic horseman, also purchased Irvington Belle, 2:18½, by Nutwood Wilkes. They are hoth Celifornia bred and raised horses, and when taken East last spring it was thought that the colt would prove the champion three-year-old of the year. He trotted as fast a mile as any colt that started in 1898, Peter the Great, winner of the Kentucky Futurity, trotting to the same record—2:12½, but the Nutwood Wilkes colt got into a miserable condition and could not win hard races. He got sick end thin and lost his strength but not his speed. The price obtained for the colt is not mede pnblic, hut is probably in the neighborhood of $1,500.

Montana Matrons.

It is an interesting fact that John Nolan, 2:08, and Dr. Spellman, 2:13½, are both out of Montana bred mares. Carrie Belle, the dam of Spellman, is hy Commodore Belmont, and in the 80's was freqnently seen on the Montana tracks. John Nolan's dem, Fantesia, is by Rsnchero, the famous Dser Lodge stallion that could out-stay any horse ever bronght to Montana. Both of these Montana bred mares are owned by Marcus Daly, and they have shown themselves to he superior to any of the high-priced Kentucky mares in Mr. Daly's establishment. Of Dr. Spellman's turf career this year it may be seid that he was never outside of the money. Mr. McEvoy, h is trainer, is enthusiastic in his praise of the three-year-old and says he is the truest and gamest trotter he ever held the ribbons on. He has a better head than John Nolan end never breaks. While his record this year is 2:13½ he could have lowered it if necessary. He could easily go in 2:10 and can trot any querter of a circuit in 0:30 flat.—Anaconda Standard.

Drivere Talk About Shorter Races.

One thing the horsemen discussed more than anything else et Lexington was the question of shortening the races. Before the Lexington meeting Berd Palmer, of Dover, said: "A few years ago, when James O. Gray wished to give a two in three mesting, I was as bitterly opposed to the innovation as any of the drivers. To-day I would welcome such a change. It is considerable of a task to get a horse ready to go one mile, and when the race is strung along to seven or eight there is no trainer who can figure to win, unless he is very lucky. In these long drawn out races a properly prepared horse is not sure to win, and it gives a great opportunity to lay up beats."

McHenry, who is considered one of the greatest teamsters in the country, and George Starr, who brought out Planet, were discussing light harness racing one stormy day at Lexington, and both agreed that there should be something done to shorten the racing and extend the card. Both favored the European idea of having desh races of from a mile to 2½ miles. With plenty of these kind of races, they both argued the handicapping would soon adjust itself properly, as in the European countries, and a good horse would be able to go out for the money a couple of times a week.

These drivers were not alone in their arguments, and a good deal of old straw was threshed over again, but it wes significant as indicating that the hest men in the husiness are looking for a chenge.

Not the leset of their argumente wea that hy shortening the races leying up of heats would he unprofitahle, and straight racing would hetter satisfy the pnblic. If a few of the big tracks of the country would make a united effort in thie direction the result would he watched wth interest by all horse owners.

The possihility of racing horses twice a week would greatly increase the prohahle money-earning capacity of all the light harness performers.—Boston Globe.

It is reported tbat in 1900 Capt. B. H. Tuthill, New York will take a strong stable of harness horses to Europe.

An Estimate of the Morgan Horee.

A writer in the American Agriculturist eulogizes the Morgan horse, and in the course of this article he seys:

At the time this breed originated the demend was for an all-purpose horse, end how well it filled this place, every well-posted lover of horse flesh the country over knows. Numeroos tests end trials estehlisbed the fact that Justin Morgan, the first of his rece, could outwelk, onttrot, ontrun, outpull end outstyle any other horse of his day, end this same claim was mede for his offspring for years to come.

The old time Morgan was e small animal, heing 14½ to 15 hends high and weighing from eight to nine hundred ponnds but the interesting and incredulous teles told of his wonderful achievements, bis strength, powere of endurance, speed, style and almost humen segacity would fill volumes end yet the story would not be half told. Up to the time that Ethan Allen was dethroned as king of the turf he had been the greet speed horse of the country, end even to-day many of our fastest, truest, handsomest and enduring speed horses carry a large percentege of the old Morgan blood, and it detracts nothing from their ability to achieve success, or their price when put upon the market. But the Morgan horse to-day excels, as he did a century ago, es a generel purpose horse. It is true that this is the age of specialties, end we now have breeds of horses adapted to meny special purposes, bnt withel there is e place and an increasing demand for an ell purpose horse, especially on the farm, and the Morgen of to-day comes nearer meeting the demend then anything else.

At the present time we find severel brenches of the Morgen family in different parts of the country, varying somewhat in size, condition and points of excellence. Some breeders there ere who still fancy the mekeup of the old-time pony Morgan, and breed along the old lines as closely as possible, aiming to keep out all blood foreign to tbe breed. Their animals trace in direct line through hoth sire and dam to the old Justin Morgan. The fault that is found with this sort of breeding is that it produces animals that are too small for present demands. Other breeders there are, equally as ardent admirers of the Morgen, who are bending their energies not only to perpetuate the many points of excallence that have been so long charecteristic of this breed, but hy a judicious infusion of speed and roadster blood, are producing animals of increased size, up to present demands for fancy roadsters and the farmers' all-round horse. Of these different branches of what we term improved Morgans, there are the Black Hawks, Golddusts, Fearnanghts, Morgan Eagles and some others. All these possess sufficient Morgan blood to fill the requirements and rules prescribing what should constitute a standard Morgan.

The futnre Morgan will be bred along one of the two linee as above indicated and while a few may persist in breeding along the old lines and producing the small 14 and 15 hand horse, the large msjority of Morgan breeders will strive to meet demands of fashion and markets instead of vainly trying to mold tastes and opinions. No stock breeder ever achieved success by producing a model after his own standard and then trying to educate peop[le] up to his ideas of perfection. Most any one will agree with me that a 16-hand Morgan is preferable for either sale or service to the 14 or 15-hand animal, providing we secrifice none of the important points of style, strength, durability or speed in obtaining it. Ahont the only objection urged against the Morgan to-day is that he is too small. Breeders who are getting them of desirable size have no great surplus of stock on hand, even in these times when the horse market is at its lowest ebh.

As to the adaptability of the Morgan to the general farmer or village resident there is no animal of the horse kind that will suit better. On the farm they are tractable and kind anywhere and everywhere their services are required, pushing along their work like any other indnstrions, ambitions American citizsn. They may not be able to draw as many pounds as the heavy draft, bnt they will take two steps to his one and at the end of the day will show as much labor performed, and with less signs of exhaustion. He always adapts himself to his work, be it in the field drawing the plow or hitched to the family carriage, or perhaps the road wagon, speeding as fest as one can go and feel safe. We have yet to find a farmer who ever owned and used a Morgan that did not speak in his praise [and wish] for another like unto him when he was gone.

And for the villager who desires a perfect roadster, an animal that is always level-headed, safe for any member of the family to drive that is old enough to manipulate the lines, one that is ever ready to do whatever is asked of him without the use of whip or spur, no mistake will ever he made in selecting a good Morgan. No horse will keep in good flesh and plight with so little feed and attention. He soon learns to stand just where you leave him without hitching, and in driving in strange places or at all hours of the night, he seldom, if ever, ehies or becomes frightened, or unmindful of hie duty.

Since most of the breeders of Morgen horses have quit striving for extreme speed, and pay more attention to the qualities which go to make an ideel roadster, they find that they are in a field where there is little competition and not much prospect of encountering any in the near future. Men who are breeding thie clase of horses are not boasting so much about what they can do on a track in two minutes as what they can accomplish on the road in an hour or a day, and then turn round and repeat it. Much more attention is being paid to the systematic breeding and perpetuation of the Morgan horse than there was a few yeare ago. Just now while the future looke gloomy and dark for the equine breeder, we know of many Morgan horsemen who are quietly culling out and improving their herds, and there ie no doubt but what they will reap their reward in the good time coming, and whicb is not so far off as many suspect.

Adabelle, by Advertiser—Beautiful Belle, and full sister to Adbell, champion yearling trotter of the world, is owned by Alexander McLaren, Buckingham, Canada. She ie in the stud and was stinted last spring to Larabie the Great (3), 2:12¾. It is thought ehe is safe in foal. She has never been worked for speed, hut her owner has seen enough of her way of going to warrant the belief that ehe can go into the list whenever asked to do so.

All a Jockey Can Do.

That Sloan has good hands and is a judge of pace has been exemplified more than once, says the London Field, but possibly one of the secrets of his success, which would at a pinch serve him well, is the way in which he finishes. Nothing can be more absurd than the invariable, but utterly useless practice of swinging the hands round in a circle, either from left to right or vice versa, when finishing; and we should extremely like to hear any jockey explain what possible advantage can arise from the gymnastic exercise. If it means anything at all, it is simply a superfine method of "jobbing" the horse in the mouth; for it is quite certain that the circular motion can neither ease nor steady a horse, nor add to his pace. In a race of a mile, or anything over it, the majority of horses need restraining, so that they should not run themselves out at the start, and by restraining the horse the stride is shortened. The only possible use of moving the hands at all at the finish is that, instead of shortening the horses stride by constant pressure on the reins, he shall be allowed to extend himself, and to this and the hands should be moved backward and forward with the stride of the horse, so that, while a firm hold shall be kept on his head, he shall not change his legs, nor shall the rider check the horse in his stride. Ever since the time when the Chifney rush was invented we have read over and over again about brilliant finishers, and of the jockey absolutely lifting his horse past the post, or doing all sorts of other wonderful things; while the more he swung his hands about the more he was supposed to do for his horse. Now, it is quite certain that no jockey in the world can make a horse go faster than his best pace, any more than can a man get into a bucket and lift himself by the handle. The utmost, it appears to us, that the finest horseman in the world can accomplish is to do nothing that will interfere with the horses stride or action; and this is exactly what Sloan does. With him there is no circular arm swinging; he simply yields to the stride of his horse in the manner we have mentioned just above, and suggested as the correct one many years ago, long before either Sloan or Simms came over here to ride.

The disposition of weight is not one that can be settled off hand; and no useful purpose would be served by theorizing upon it. Of course everybody knows that the primary duty of the forelegs is to sustain the weight, while the hind legs have to act as propellers; but possibly in this, as in other matters, the truth will be found midway between two extremes, as there must be a limit to the distance forward at which the weight must be carried. Where that point is can only be ascertained after experiment; though to obtain the very best results it would probably differ with each particular horse bestridden. It appears to us that Sloan, so far from adding to the mystery of race riding, has really simplified it by showing that a good deal of the nonsense which has been talked or written about it has really no foundation in fact. That it is an easy matter to ride a race no one for a moment supposes. On the other hand, to incline to the idea that a boy who before the days of board schools could hardly read or write should, directly he found himself in the saddle, show himself possessed of all sorts of gifts, is unreasonable. Sloan has shown—at any rate, to a certain extent—that sitting still, avoiding all useless show, and not waiting, are at least valuable factors in race riding. There is no reason to say that he has had absolutely picked mounts; but, at the same time, the American could not win on every horse he rode. He was beaten by Lostee at Newmarket yesterday week, nor could he on Tuesday at Nottingham succeed in taking either of his three mounts first past the post. It may be that he has had an extraordinary run of luck, or it may be that there is something in the system of riding which gives him an advantage. There is one thing to be said, viz., that not one single word has ever been breathed as to any unfairness in his riding; and that being the case, he is entitled to full praise for his victories. It would be equally unjust and ungenerous to deny him the full credit for what he has accomplished, for it is not sportsmanlike to attempt to explain away a defeat; but another week may tell an altogether different story, and the horseman who has during his visit here proved such a thorn in the side of our English jockeys, may often have to ride a stern race. Probably when the season is over the general idea will be that Sloan has not revolutionized race riding, except so far as he has shown the advantage of sitting still and the uselessness of arm flourishing at the finish.

Ormonde May Be Sold.

If reports speak truly, Ormonde, the "horse of the century," for which W. B. Macdonough paid $150,000 a few years ago, will soon be on his way back to England. It is said that the Duke of Westminster, his former owner, has offered $50,000 for the famous thoroughbred stallion, and that Mr. Macdonough is likely to accept.

It is known that the Duke of Westminster has been trying for some time past to regain possession of the horse. He offered $30,000 several weeks ago, but the information was conveyed that a much larger sum would need to be forthcoming before Ormonde would be allowed to leave California.

A. S. Baldwin is the representative of Mr. Macdonough in in this city. When seen last night he said:

"It is true that an offer has been made for Ormonde, but I do not care to say whether it was by the Duke of Westminster or not. Mr. Macdonough is at present in London, and the correspondence I have had has been with his brother-in-law, John G. Agar, in New York.

"The price offered is, I think, so low that if he were my horse I would not consider it, but of course if Mr. Macdonough has concluded to go out of the breeding business that is different. I think it would be a pity, in some respects, to sell Ormonde, for it seems to me he ought to be kept in California. If he gets three or four good colts or fillies Mr. Macdonough will get his money back. The horse cost $150,000, it is true, and about $10,000 besides for transportation, besides considerably more in commissions and other expenses, but he is without a flaw.

"He has got this year a colt out of Miss Brummal, one of the greatest mares in the world, a magnificent chestnut colt that has the grandest carriage I ever saw. He is as pretty as a picture, and ought to be worth, the way the better class of horses are selling in the East, at least $20,000. The colt and Ormonde are both at Mr. Macdonough's Menlo Stock Farm, seven miles from Menlo."—S. F. Examiner.

New Records This Year.

[Chicago Racing Form.]

Record-breaking performances were not numerous in 1898, and outside of jumping races were confined to two tracks, Oakland and Washington Park. Only one record was made at Oakland, but it was highly important, being the new mark at two miles set by Judge Denny. Washington Park track was so phenomenally fast last July that it is no wonder records were smashed right and left. The only wonder is that more was not done in that line. Unless something sensational is done at San Francisco before the beginning of the coming year it may be set down that the new records of 1898 are those here set forth. Mary Black's and Macy's records are of course only ties of those previously made by O'Connell and Flora Louisa at six furlongs and Maid Marian at a mile and twenty yards.

Three-quarters mile—Mary Black, 3, 93, Washington Park, July 7th, 1:12¾.

One mile and twenty yards—Macy, 4, 107, Washington Park, July 2nd, 1:40.

One mile and fifty yards—Florence, 3, 93, Washington Park, July 6, 1:42½.

Thirteen-sixteenths miles—Boanerges, 4, 110, Washington Park, July 7th, 1:58¾.

One and one-quarter miles—David Tenny, 4, 100, Washington Park, July 16th, 2:04½.

One and one-quarter miles—Algol, 4, 107, Washington Park, July 28th, 2:04¾.

Two miles—Judge Denny, 5, 106, Oakland, February 5th, 3:26.

HURDLES.

One and three-quarter miles—Challenger, 4, 154, Morris Park, May 18th, 3:17.

Two miles—Forget, 5, 158, Sheepshead Bay, August 31st, 3:45 2-5.

Eastern News.

Counsel for the New Jersey race track men, represented by Charles Betts, have appealed from the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision as to the legality of the anti-gambling amendment. The matter has been carried to the Court of Errors and Appeals for review. If the case takes its regular turn it will be reached at the March term.

Curly Brown has made three additions to the string which he is getting together to race at New Orleans. Thursday afternoon he bought from A. D. Payne the chestnut filly Chat of Me, by Charaxus—Ninone, winner of the first race at Latonia Monday, the two-year-old colt Jack Gay, a brother to Chat of Me, and the two-year-old filly Nayola—Chicago Racing Form.

A sample of the exquisite sense of justice of the stewards was noted at Westchester on Saturday. They fined one McIsaac for an assault on Trainer Tom Welch, when two witnesses said that Welch was the aggressor and struck the first blow. The poor fellow who demanded his salary was not only abused, but struck in the face by Welch, knocked down by three policemen, locked up and fined by the stewards. If that isn't a fair deal, then what is? Another sample of justice was the following: At Saratoga McCafferty started Lexington Pirate. The horse was not fit to race, and McCafferty was punished to the extent of having his jockey's license taken away. At Westchester Forget was started. She was not fit to race, either. But her owners, the Hitchcocks, were not reprimanded, nor was the trainer's license taken away. The affair was dismissed with the information to the public that the mare had sprained her back in a previous race. The cases were identical, but the Hitchcocks are powers in the racing world, while McCafferty enjoys no such prestige. It all depends on whose ox is gored.—New York Evening World.

Lucretia Borgia Sold.

Last week Boots & Son sold the champion four-mile race mare Lucretia Borgia to Prince Poniatowski. The mare is by imp. Brutus, dam Ledette and her record-breaking race was one of the sensational performances of last year. It was at the Oakland track May 20, and the day's racing was for the benefit of the Little Jim hospital, the California Jockey Club offering a purse and cup for the event, which was against time.

Lucretia Borgia carried little Dick Clawson, who weighed 85 pounds, and was paced. She covered the distance in 7:11, lowering the record against time nearly five seconds. The record was 7:15¾, made by the famous old Tenbroeck in 1876, and it had stood undisturbed for over twenty years. Lucretia Borgia clipped eight and one-half seconds off the world's record in a race, 7:19½, made by Fellowcraft in 1874. The mare was bred by William Boots & Son at Elmwood and was retired after this race.

THE OPENING DAY.

Burns & Waterhouse Celebrate It by Winning Every Race on the Card.

The person who tried to purchase a ticket at the new ferry building last Saturday, so as to cross the bay on the 1 A. M. boat, had a very forcible reminder that the winter racing season had opened and all the old patrons of the ponies were on hand. The service of boat and train provided by the Southern Pacific Company to carry passengers over the bay and to the cities of Berkeley, Oakland and Alameda, is probably the best ferry system in the world, but when large crowds are to be handled the company is woefully shy on ticket sellers. The result is a crush and jam at the ticket windows that is not conducive to calm features or unruffled raiment. Once through the outer gates, however, and no pleasanter trip can be taken.

The opening day of the California Jockey Club's winter season was not an ideal one. There had been two months of ideal weather previous to Saturday last, but the weather bureau doubtless thought there would be some inconsistency in opening a winter meeting with summer skies, so the sun was obscured by clouds and the temperature reduced a little. It was not cold enough to require wraps however, and old Boreas forebore the pleasure of playing with the winds and took a day off, so altogether the day was a delightful one without sunshine.

Entering the gates of the C. J. C. grounds, a beautiful sight presented itself. The lawns were in perfect order, and here and there were growing great clusters of chrysanthemums of varied hue, while roses, pinks and nasturtiums lent their lovely colors to add still more beauty to the scene. All the buildings were in that neat and perfect condition of cleanliness, which old race goers find difficulty in harmonizing with their old ideas of a race track.

Passing the length of the covered approach to the main building, and entering the betting ring seventeen slates were seen turned toward a crowd that filled the immense space so that it was difficult to pass through. Besides these, two field books were ready to accommodate those whose desires to bet are not backed with sufficient funds to enable them to play large sums. Many of the old faces are seen on the blocks, and a few new ones. Among the new sign boards up were "W. H. Harrison & Co." and the "Prussian Club."

When one reached the lawn in front of the grand stand several new features in the grand stand presented themselves. To the south of the stand is the new club house, its external surface covered with pure white paint, while the interior is richly and handsomely furnished, the prevailing colors being those of the Jockey Club—black and yellow. The furnishings have been very tastefully designed and bits, stirrups, saddles, whips, spurs and caps are worked into decorations here with excellent effect.

Across the track, about eighty yards north of the timer's stand, is a neat little pagoda, mounted on stilts and surrounded by a little porch with railing. Here, Chairman of the Board of Stewards, Chas. F. Price, stands while the races are run, and with a powerful glass focused on the jockeys, pays particular attention to their actions from the start of the race to its finish.

When the horses came out to warm up for the first race, another innovation was noticed. Each exercise lad wore a black jacket and yellow cap (the Club's colors) and on the back of the jacket the program number of the horse was fixed in a large yellow figure. The number is also on the arm the boy. This enables the program holder to identify the horses as they are taking the preliminary canters, and the feature met with unanimous endorsement immediately.

"Between five and six thousand" was the estimate of those who are accustomed to "sizing up" large crowds, and it was not far wrong. The grand stand has held larger crowds, but four-fifths of the seats were filled, and there were as many colors in evidence as the makers of bonnets and modes can imagine and arrange in bewitching effects. Down in the ring was the same crowd seen last year, looking for the same sort of information, betting the same sums on the same horses with the same bookmakers, and howling with the same delight when winning, or tearing up the tickets with the same curses "not loud but deep," when losing.

The first race went to the Burns & Waterhouse entry. The second race did the same. The bettors congratulated Colonel Burns by hundreds, and played the B. & W. horse for the third race. Again he won. Then all the old boys who were accustomed in the old days to put their money down in stacks on a three-time loser, or to "copper" a three-time winner, concluded the stake race would go to Rubicon. It didn't. It went to Recreation, another horse that carried the orange, blue and green of B & W. And then in the fifth race there was a sound of rushing water, (Shasta Water) and the day was over and Burns & Waterhouse had been first every time. They had won on their merits, too, and no better conditioned horses ever went to the post than the five winners. Five straight races won by one stable may not occur again in a lifetime. When the youth of to-day are the "old boys" of 1940, they will sit round the stove and tell of that day way back in '98 when Colonel Dan Burns saw five of his horses win in one day, and if you live until then, reader, you will probably hear some of those old boys telling the story and making seven straight instead of five, and swearing there were a hundred thousand people present and a million dollars and four or five Mexican mines wagered on the result. Or perhaps you may be telling such a story yourself.

The Opening Handicap for a $1,250 purse, distance one mile, which was the feature of the card, brought forth eight starters. Betting was light on this event with the exception of the money played on Rubicon who was backed from sixes to twos. Every other horse receding in the betting several points. To a good start the order was Rosormonde, Moringa and San Venado and in this order they ran to the quarter pole where Rainier took up the running closely followed by Rubicon and Moringa. Up the back stretch Rubicon and Rainier ran locked like a double team; Rubicon finally drawing clear at the half increased his lead, and turning into the stretch was two lengths in front of Moringa with Rainier in third position. It now looked as if Rubicon would deliver the goods, but Recreation and Grady coming up on either side of him, he stopped as if shot, and fell back beaten. Recreation now took command of affairs and won handily by one length from Grady, who was two in front of San Venado on whom Rutter had put up an exceptionally good ride.

The story of the other races is best told in the summaries, as there was nothing remarkable in any of them. This week the attendance has been remarkably good and is increasing There is no dearth of entries as some predicted, and the fields have been large. The sommaries of the races up to Thursday, follow :

The season just ended at Morris Park was probably the most successful in the history of the Westchester Racing Association, for every race day brought out a large attendance. The sport was of a very high class, and scarcely a day passed without some race that thrilled the spectators with enthusiasm for the magnificent sport. One of the lessons of the season was brought out more forcibly at the Morris Park meeting than at any meeting of the season, and that was the necessity of more races at a distance of upward a mile and a quarter. Short-distance races are all right, and they please the public, and at the same time give the gambling element on the turf a chance for "quick action," but they fail to arouse that interest in the breasts of the public that such races as the Realization, the Morris Park Special, the Municipal Handicap, the Morris Park Handicap, the Brighton Cup, the Coney Island Cup and such races do.

The Chicago Racing Association, of which Ed. Corrigan was one of the principal stockholders, has sold to R. Fitzgerald, superintendent of the Chicago Junction Railway Company, the Hawthorne race track. The transfer includes 105 acres, which includes the property inclosed by the race track fence. The consideration in the deed was $75,000, which added to mortgages amounting to $125,000, assumed by the purchaser, makes the price $200,000.

John Mackey has returned from Europe and is now in Kentucky. He is expected to arrive here in about ten days.

Theodore F. Bonnet.

Theodore, better known as "Jack," Bonnet, Democrat Non Partisan and People's Party nominee, has a record as a citizen and public servant which commands the admiretion of every resident of San Francisco.

In early life he received an excellent edocetion at St. Mary's College, which was supplemented by diligent study in the office of a prominent local attorney to the aim of dopting the law es his vocation.

He soon abandoned the study of the law, end insteed of poring over ancient volumes of legal lore, "which runneth whereof the mind of man noweth oot to the contrary," by the flicker of the midnight candle, he devoted his energy at this particular hour to chasing scoops for the Examiner. The fact thet he kept one job ten years, as City Hall reporter, is convincing evidence of his ability as a journalist. He was also on the staff of the Post, the Report and the Chronicle.

He hes always been exceedingly populer, but it was during his term es License Collector, when courageously refusing to do the bidding of the "boss" element in politics, that he beceme the most favored of the honest people in this city, although he incurred the intense enmity of the "bosses" whom he entagonized.

The estimeble qualities of character which heve distinguished him in his past career will undoubtedly be the mein force in electing him to the high position of San Francisco's next sheriff.

Superintendent of Streets.

The Mission district is ably represented in the candidates for public honors, in the person of the favorably known gentlemar, Mr. Martin Fragley.

He has had extensive experience in municipal street and improvement matters, and unites with a practical knowledge, that honesty of porpose and tenacity to enforce his principles, which may assure all citizens that the branch of service entrusted to him will be correctly cared for.

A long residence in this city has established him in the good wishes of a large circle of friends who are making a strenuous effort to land him on the winning side next election day, and although that was practically accomplished, the good work will continue to the end of piling up the handsome majority Mr. Fragley will have.

John D. Siebe.

Three terms as an assessor, that officer against whom property owners and taxpayers generally have all kinds of grievances, real or imaginary, and everybody satisfied, is the extraordinary record of Mr. John D. Siebe.

A sufficient testimonial of these years of patient labor, and conscientious stewardship, as a hired man of the people, is an expression of their confidence in him which time but increases, as is exemplified in his receiving a third nomination by them as assessor.

Illustrative of the vigilence he has exercised, we have but to mention the fact thet he has collected a graduated emount from previous years, showing that as the population and property interests have grown, the tax receipts heve been proportionately large, and where corporations paid less than their just share, Assessor Siebe took the correct measures to make them pay what was right.

Take the case of the banks; in 1890, before Mr. Siebe was elected, banks here were only assessed at $5,149,321 as a whole. Last year the assessment footed up $10,319,256, a difference of $5,169,935 over the former time.

In 1890 the various corporation franchises amounted to $4,831,250, now they have been swelled to $11,026,400, representing a gain of $6,195,150. In these figures it will be seen thet corporations have had to pay their just shere of taxation.

In the capacity of a neighbor and citizen, as well as in the world of politics his estimable traits of cherecter distinguish him. His success in life hes been a continuation of a hard struggle up to position, in which not for a moment did he fail to assert that honesty of purpose, which has marked his every step. His fine manhood makes him now, a universally esteemed end respected citizen. As the candidate of the Republicans, Non-Partisans and Socialists upon his record and reputation for honor, he will win.

The New York World has the following regarding the engagement of Sam Hildreth to train the Whitney horses: "The successful horseman, Sam Hildreth, who formerly lived in the East, has completed a contract with Sidney Peget to train the horses owned by William C. Whitney. Half a dozen prominent trainers have been applicants for the place, but friends advised Messrs. Whitney end Peget, and they decided to secure Hildreth. The new Peget trainer hed a stable of race horses of his own, the best known being George Keene, St. Cetaline end Twinkler, end when he entered into agreement with Mr. Peget it wes stipulated that the steble should buy all Hildreth's horses, to retain such as the treiner thought might prove useful, the others to be disposed of later

May W. is not in the best of condition hut is improving. Mr. Cameron thinks she will be in shepe in a couple of weeks. She was ill while in Chicago but is rounding to nicely.

HOOF-BEATS.

James Wilson, a British Columbia jockey, rode six winners in one day at Lac La Hache, British Columbia, recently.

The get of imp. Cherexus were in evidence on the opening day at Aqueduct, heving placed to their credit two races. Cherentus won the fourth race, and Cheragrace won the sixth. Cherentos is a good campaigner and a very consistent performer. The get of Cheraxus are the wear and teer kind and heve speed besides.

The Kentuckian won the Kentucky Centrel Stakes for two-year-olds at Latonia on Saturday, Oct. 22, with The Bert rister second and Shinfene third. The distance was one mile end wes won in 1:50, the track being muddy and heavy. The Kentuckian is e chestnut colt by imp. Pirate of Penzence, dam Lizzie Montrose and he won es he pleased.

Dr. Rowell scratched Collins on Wednesday. He said the horse hed not been doing very well, and he did not care to start him. Handicapper Brooks heard him sey the horse wes no good. "If you don't want him, give him to me," he seid, and on the word Collins was transferred to the ownership of Mr. Brooks. He will send the old gelding to a friend in Los Angeles.

Handicapper Brooks has allotted the following official weights for the Emeryville Handicap at one mile and en eighth, to be run at Oakland track to-morrow: Napamax 117, Buckwa 110, Grady 110, Cromwell 108, Recreation 107, Wheel of Fortune 102, Mistral II 100, Morellito 100, Rey del Tierra 98, La Goleta 98, Shasta Water 95, Mamie G. 93, San Venado 93, Ringmaster 75.

The American entries for the English Oaks of 1900 are John Daly's f, by His Highness—Carrie C. Marcus Daly's f, Telala, by Tammany—Wood Violet; f, Tampion, by Tammany—Sacrifice. Foxhall P. Keene's f, by Domino—Fair Vision; f, by Candlemas—Belle of Maywood. James R. Keene's f, by St. Leonards—Cerito. Sidney Paget's f, by Ben Strome—Queen of Trumps.

It is reported that Mr. J. B. Haggin has purchased St. Gatien, imp. Meddler's sire for $7,500, the amount of the reserve fixed for him when recently offered at the Easton sales. St. Gatien is still in England, but it is reported will soon be brought over end established at Mr. Haggin's Elmendorf stud in Kentucky or at Rancho del Paso. He is 17 years old and said to be in fine health and vigor.

A lot of horses of John Hoffman were sold at the Hawthorne track, Chicago, recently. Whet-er-Lon, bay colt, 4, by White, dam Alme Lamar, went to W. P. Magrane for $4,050; Found, bay filly, 3, by Buckmaster, dam Pick Up, D. Schneider, $1,600; Dere II, chestnut colt, 4, by imp. Oddfellow, dam Leonatus, Mare No. 1, C. Sloan, $1,450, and Marzella, bay filly, 3, by imp. Alber., dam Montvale, J. W. Conley, $550.

There is talk of a match race between Imp and Macy, should the track at Lakeside be in good condition and fast. Imp, ready for a go against the world's record, was not able to attempt the feat on account of the bad condition of the track at Harlem. Macy, who joined the Schorr string on Wednesday, is doing well, and his owner is said to be willing for a test, which would, no doubt, prove a great drawing card under anything like favorable conditions.

THE LAWRENCE-WILLIAMS CO., Cleveland, O

Saddle Notes.

THERE will be no racing at Oakland on Election day.

CHAS. FAIR has been a constant attendant since the meeting opened and is a heavy winner.

COUSIN PEGGY, twenty-five years old and the dam of Garsldine, is in foal to Homer. She is owned by Geston Ashe.

OUR old friend Dan Honig writes that he is busy collecting his rents in St. Louis, but will be out to these parts before long.

W. C. VREELAND thinks Piggott rides well enough to make a fair showing with the jockeys on the New York tracks.

S. C. HILDRETH has been engaged to train the Whitney Paget stable for next season, and his contract will begin on January 1st.

RACING on the Canadian circuit closed Sunday last. The majority of the American horses racing in Canada have been shipped to Nashville.

CATALOGUES for the E. J. Baldwin sale of yearlings will be issued to-day. An extended notice of these youngsters will appear in our next issue.

MORGAN CHINN has made a palpable hit at starting on the Eastern tracks. He may be the official starter on the New York tracks next season.

STONEY CLARK, of the old racing firm of White & Clark owners of Jim Murphy and other useful horses, is interested in a poolroom at Anaconda, Mont.

ORRIN HICKOK, the veteran horseman and great reinsman, is at the Palace and is suffering from rheumatism, but is not as dangerously afflicted as reported.

LITTLE O'CONNOR, well known on this Coast, who has done so much good riding for "Father Bill" has been engaged as light-weight for 1899 by Fleischmann Sons.

W. D. RANDALL arrived from Montana Tuesday with eight head. Marcus Daly did not ship any in Mr. Randall's car, but may send a carload along later in the season.

JOCKEY SPENCER, who will leave for California at the close of the Aqueduct Meeting, has signed a contract to ride for W. B. Jennings & Co. during the winter 1898-99.

MR. CORRIGAN is expected to arrive the latter part of this week. He has fully recovered from the effects of the accident in which he was thrown from his buggy in Chicago.

THAT there is a lack of good jockeys at present is apparent and it is sincerely hoped amongst bettors that some of the higher class riders will soon arrive from the Eastern tracks.

WALTER JENNINGS has returned from New York and was at the Emeryville track Tuesday; he is very proud of the showing made by Briar Sweet during the summer season in the East.

THERE are some real good things to be had "Among the Barrels" 863 Market street. Among them tha best and purest of liquors and a splendid hot lunch every day. Drop in and enjoy them. *

COMBINATIONS don't go at Oakland. President Williams is opposed to the nickel in the slot stand and rightly too. A combination hook is merely a trap to catch the fifty cent piece of the suckers.

WM. MURRAY, of Sacramento, has given the sale of all his horses, now in training, to Wm. G. Layng, Occidental Horse Exchange. There are many royally bred colts, fillies and broodmares among them.

MR. SYDNEY PAGET has purchased the good mare, Poetess, from Mr. William Laimbeer. The price paid was $3,000. This is a notable addition to a stable of horses which is the equal of any in the country.

GOOD TIMES, bay colt, 4, by imp. Rossington, dam Famine by Jim Johnson, the property of A. M. Orpen, Toronto, Can., when being thrown for the purpose of firing, in struggling with his head broke his neck.

BUCK MASSIE, Murphy's grand old race horse, will be sold at auction in Lexington, Ky., December 1st. He is broken down and will not race again, but his breeding and his record should make him valuable in the stud.

HANDICAPPER BROOKS wants to bet that if he makes a race up for any one horse that horse will win. He ought to lay at least a thousand to one on that proposition. Any old handicapper would be willing to bet the same way.

N. TURNER has signed a six-months' contract to ride for "Kid" Wellor and will arrive on the Coast very soon, along with the latter's string of a dozen or so horses, among which are Hugh Penny, Don Quixote, Harry Grines and Sutton.

OLD Yemen, despite his nine years, is quite a shifty horse yet. Five and a half furlongs in 1:07 flat with 131 pounds in the saddle, and over a track that was not extra fast, is a performance that would do credit to any horse ever trained.

THE ROSE which graduated from the two-year-old maiden class at Morris Park on the last day of the meeting, running five and one-half furlongs in 1:06, is a full sister to Marquise, the game little mare which performed so creditably here last winter.

ALEC. COVINGTON is contemplating an invasion of England with his stable. He says it is as cheap, if not cheaper, to go to England than to California, and he thinks of wintering his horses there so as to have things ready for next spring.

W. O'B. MACDONOUGH has refused the offer of $50,000 for Ormonde. Any person who has seen the fine fillies by the great horse, that are to be sold next month, will not wonder why Mr. Macdonough considers Ormonde worth all he paid for him.

J. S. QUINTON, of Philadelphia, and a party of capitalists are to start a big breeding establishment near Trenton, N. J. They will be in the market for breeding stock, and have bought the mares Peg Woffington and Divide, both in foal to Meddler.

HENRY FORSLAND was on deck when the season opened. He will send a daily report and the form chart of the races to the Daily Telegraph of New York. There are few brighter men in the business than Mr. Forsland, and as a "celler" he has few equals.

MESSRS. APPLEGATE & MACKIN, Oakwood Stud, near Lexington, Ky., have purchased of E. Corrigan the bay stallion Riley, foaled 1887, by Longfellow, dam Geneva, by War Dance out of La Gitana, by Uncle Vic, and eleven brood mares.

JOCKEY GRAY says Tully Coulter will visit the Coast during the holidays. Early in the summer he disposed of all his horses at auction, and even sold his broodmares, which he had at his farm in Kentucky. He retained a few yearlings, which he will race next year.

IN a list of winning owners at Morris Park it appears that the money has been quite evenly divided among the big stables, thirty-three having won over $1,000 each, S. C Hildreth stands seventh on the list with $3,211 to his credit and W. B. Jennings twelfth with $1,955.

IT is a remarkable fact that all the winners at Oakland since the commencement of the present season have been either first or second choices in the betting, and have all been well backed. If this state of affairs continues, there will not be so many books in the ring at the next cut in.

RILEY GRANNAN was a visitor at the track Wednesday and took a fall out of the hooks over the victory of First Tenor. He backed this horse up and down the line and must have made a big clean up. Mr. Grannan is looking much thinner than he did when here before, but is apparently enjoying good health.

CHARLES ROOTS has sold the four-mile record breeder, Lucretia Borgia, to Prince Poniatowski. The daughter of Brutus ran four miles in a special exhibition at the Oakland track in the wonderful time of 7:11. The Prince also purchased a yearling, sister to Lucretia Borgia. The price was not made public.

ZEKE ABRAMS has a promising two-year-old by Three Cheers from a War Dance mare; this grand-looking youngster, while not at all overgrown, is nearly as large as a four-year-old and has shown some remarkably good work in his trials. He is about the last of the get of Three Cheers which has not yet faced the barrier.

THERE are a number of stable boys at the track who would like to get a mount. As the class of jockeys now riding at Oakland is very poor, why not give a race in which the condition will bar all the professionals? A race or two of that character might develop some good riders, and would certainly be a hard one to pick a winner from.

THE salary which Dick Clawson will get from Whitney & Paget is $7,500 per year, besides being paid the regular sum for winning and losing and outside mounts. For a youth, who but a few years ago thought he had a good job when he was picking strawberries for 50 cents a day, this is quite a jump. But Clawson deserves it all. He sticks to business and tries to win all the time.

DR. ROWELL, the owner of Satsuma and other well-known flyers has not been having the best of luck of late. Ahine broke down and was given away; Tom Cromwell has been fired; and old Satsuma does not take kindly to training. The Doctor says that he made a mistake in shipping his horses from here to the East, but expects now that he has taken them back here in cooler weather to get them into shape before long.

IT has been definitely decided that a meeting will be given at the Kentucky Association grounds immediately after the Latonia meetings. As the Latonia meeting will probably be extended to about November 10th, the Lexington meeting will probably begin about November 12th, and continue one week, or two, as the weather is favorable or unfavorable. Messrs. Milton Young and Gus Straus have the arrangements in charge, and a high-class meeting will undoubtedly be held.

MESSRS. S. SANFORD & SONS, Hurricane Stud, New York, have purchased of E. S. Gardner, Jr., the brown filly, White Frost, 4, by Iroquois, dam Wildflower, by imp. Mr. Pickwick. White Frost is one of the fastest mares of the turf, and for the present will continue to race. After her retirement she will go into the stud at Hurricane, where she should have a career as a matron equal to her record as a race mare. Price paid, $7,500.

W. B. SINK, the American handicapper, was at the track on the opening day. He reports that he sold Alvarado II. to Bromley & Co. before he left Chicago. The price for the old horse was $3,000, and the remarkable race he ran over the jumps at Hawthorne, October 10th, when he beat a good field and won after being practically left at the post, was what brought the money.

THE following Stakes are announced for the Ingleside Meeting, to be run after Jan. 1, 1899. Entries close Nov. 26.

The Balboe Boulevard, Presidio, California Oaks, California Derby, Tanpey, San Rafael, Lakeside, Crocker-Woolworth Bank, Evergreen, and the California Steeplechase stakes. Seven other stakes will be announced later. The two-year-old stakes to close January 7th, are the Ocean View, Malowansky, Androus, Olympic, Occidental, Corrigan and Schreiber.

ROBIGON, which was supposed to have received special preparation for the Opening Handicap, proved a great disappointment to his backers, who forced the books to cut his odds from sixes to twos. This horse has shown great improvement in his running of late and was supposed to be somewhere near his form of two seasons ago, but it was another case of sending an animal to the post short, and after making the running for three-fourths of the distance he stopped badly when challenged in the stretch.

SAYS the Melbourne Age: The new rule of racing establishing a minimum distance of two miles for hurdle races came into force at Epsom on September 1st. As anticipated, its effect has been to completely revolutionize the way in which enhurdan hurdle races have been run in the past. Instead of adopting a breakneck pace from the jump the three contested the earlier part of the journey leisurely and the subsequent portion gave the jockeys every opportunity to use their judgment, which promises to be one of the chief recommendations of the change.

AT the dispersal sale of the Hobertville Stud in Australia there were no very high prices, and for the whole lot only 5,900gs. were obtained. A New Zealander, Mr. Henderson, bought Broadside, a mare by Goldborough, out of Powder covered by Trapeze, for 115gs, and Little Paradise, by Cheviot (imp.), from Paradise, served by Stormlight, for 40gs. Firecross, by Patrol, from Crossfire, covered by Far Niente, was secured by Mr. J. B. Reid for 100gs. The biggest price was obtained for Weiting, by Goldsborough, from Meditation, who realized 260gs.

EDWIN F. SMITH, the new presiding judge engaged for the Ingleside track, is strongly against the use of a recall flag with the starting gate. He was told that the non-use of a recall flag made it an easy matter for a boy to get left standing on purpose. "The jockeys must be very careful not to get left," said Mr. Smith, "as I intend to punish boys who do not get away when the barrier shoots up, and if I am convinced that the horse was left purposely by his pilot I shall never allow that boy to ride again." It will therefore behoove all jockeys to be on the alert, as it will not pay to get left at the Ingleside track.

A CORRESPONDENT in West Australia says that at a recent gold field meeting two horses ran a dead heat under peculiar circumstances. Before the race their jockeys had a quarrel and they continued it in the race. When they were coming up the straight neck and neck, one rider leant over and tried to push the other off the horse. He nearly succeeded. Then the other got to work with his whip, and the pusher responding, the pair cut at each other until the post was past, and the judge declared a dead heat. The stakes were divided, so there was no chance of a return flogging match between the jockeys. "The stewards," the correspondent says, "took no notice although the flogging was going on right under their noses."

THE outlook for racing in Chicago next summer is very promising. It looks as though the bitter hostility between Mr. Corrigan and Mr. Brennock is at an end; not because any truce has been patched up but because neither are in a good position to carry on the fight. Brennock has not much money left, and neither has Mr. Corrigan for that matter, although the latter is far from being a poor man. The absence of quarreling between these two will tend to restore confidence. Besides the re-entrance upon the turf of the Washington Park Club, has acted as a wonderful stimulant on racing about Chicago. If the cheap people and knockers can be circumvented, a good summer's sport is assured.

THE American-bred colt, Caimen, recently won the Middle Park Plate in England. This race is called "The Two-Year-Old Derby," on account of the fact that its winner is almost invariably made winter favorite for the great three-year-old event. Unfortunately, Caiman, through some oversight, was not entered for the Derby, but he is eligible for the St. Leger, Two Thousand and other big Stakes. Besides his best and greatest success, he recently won the rich Cleerwell Stakes at Newmerket. Caimen is by Locobatchie (he by Onondaga and out of Sophronia, by Ten Broeck) and out of imp. Happy Day, by Coeruleus; second dam Rasherville, by Cremorne; third dam Vertumna, by Stockwell; fourth dam Garland, by Langar.

THE season's two-year-olds have been in general an inconsistent lot, and it will be a wise trainer or horsemen, indeed, who can tell which of the lot, except, perhaps, three or four, will prove to be fair three-year-olds. Of all that were shown Jean Beraud, in his earlier form, looked to be of the highest class. His races later in the season, however, proved that he had either lost the marvelous burst of speed which brought him so much fame, or that he was of condition and entirely unfit for racing. Manuel has been a fairly consistent performer, but he seems to like distance of ground better than a sprint, for he is always coming at the end of a race, while he is slow to move at the start. That he has some sterling qualities is evident, for one of the best judges of two-year-olds in the country, Wyndham Walden, advised the Morrises to buy him, and when that astute trainer counsels the purchase of a two-year-old for $15,000, the colt must be a good good one. Martimas looks like a fair colt, but unless he loses the habit of swerving he will be a bad horse in a race. Kentucky Colonel, Mr. Clay, Hamtina, Black Venus, Ethelbert, Autumn and a few others will also be carefully looked after during the winter, but the crack three-year-old of next season may after all come from outside of the lot.

KEATING'S RECEPTION.

How He was Received by the Pleasanton People on His Return

The Pleasanton Times publishes the following account of the reception given Mr. Thomas E. Keating and his string of horses on his arrival at Pleasanton.

Tom Keating and his string of celebrated race horses that have been cleaning up the Eastern races during the past few months have returned and are once more at the Pleasanton race track.

As Tom has always been known to come out ahead in everything that he has started in no matter how difficult a task he undertook, he again succeeded in surprising his Pleasanton friends by rolling into town on the morning train one day ahead of his scheduled time.

All of his horses except Klatawah were brought back to town and each one in excellent condition.

Keating, who has been having bad health during his stay in the East, is looking remarkably well but complains of taking cold two weeks since and giving him somewhat of a setback, but by a few weeks time in Pleasanton climate he will be the same old Tom as of old.

The reception given on his return from the East will long be remembered in the history of Pleasanton, and the honors to the celebrated horses, Searchlight, 2:04¼, Anaconda, 2:04½, Dione, 2:09¼, Miss Logan, 2:07½, and Sister Alice, 2:11, will be a pleasing memory for both C. L. Crellin and Mr. Keating to talk over in years to come.

At two o'clock the Livermore Cornet Band arrived and met the celebrated horses at the corner of Angelita and Main streets where the line was, formed and escorted the horses to the square, corner Main and Neal streets where a halt was made, and after an appropriate selection from the band beautiful wreaths were placed over the necks of Searchlight, Anaconda and Dione. A most appropriate address of welcome back to Pleasanton was made, in which were recounted the wonderful feats performed by these horses.

The line of march was then up Main street to the bridge and countermarching to Neal, to the depot and track.

Immediately after the parade the band and a few intimate friends of Mr. Keating and Crellin were given a banquet at the Louvre, prepared by the well-known host, D. F. Tillman. Here speeches and addresses were made by Mr. Keating and Crellin and others.

The wreaths presented to Messrs. Crellin and Keating for the horses were the gift of D. F. Tillman and were very beautiful and costly.

That for Searchlight was of white chrysanthemums and green leaves bordered by carnation pinks with the name of the horse in blue letters.

Those of Anaconda and Dione were of red and yellow chrysanthemums interspersed and bordered with smilax.

Besides this Mr. Keating was presented with a large horseshoe made of white and yellow chrysanthemums interspersed with carnation pinks and maiden hair fern. In the center of the shoe were white chrysanthemums interspersed with carnation pinks with the following words, Searchlight, Anaconda and Dione.

The day's programme closed with a social dance in the evening.

J. B. Chase's Auction Sale.

The inaugural auction sale of thoroughbreds, this season, will be that of J. B. Chase's yearlings and older horses, which is to be held on Tuesday, November 15th, at the Occidental Horse Exchange. The eloquent and talented auctioneer, Ed. R. Lowry, of St. Louis, has been engaged, so lively bidding for the royally bred youngsters is anticipated.

Catalogues of this sale have been issued and as the footnotes are more complete than those heretofore published; these little books are invaluable works of reference. From the preface the following is taken; it gives credit where it is deserving:

"This extremely choice collection of yearlings and horses offered for sale were bred by James B. Chase at his Sonoma stud. This breeder has just cause to be proud of the horses that he has reared, and it can be said without fear of contradiction that no other man has bred such a number of stakewinners from a corresponding number of stud matrons. From the Chase paddocks have come Hidalgo, Gilead, De Bracey, who beat the best three-year-olds in the Middle West and California and ran a mile in 1:40; Monterey, Marigold, who ran a mile in 1:41, two miles in 3:30½ and four miles in 7:20½, the world's record for mares; Centella, winner of twelve races and $9,265; Kildare, Morven, Del Norte, who broke the Coast record at a mile and a sixteenth; Top Gallant, winner of fourteen races and "in the money" on fifty-three occasions; Horatio, Phoebe Ann, a winner East and West; Mischief, a stake-winner and producer; Glen Ellen, a winner and phenomenal producer; Mystery, who won three Derbies and took the measure of Geraldine and Acclaim; Manzanillo, who won two races at Sacramento this fall; Rebecca, a winner and one of the most wonderful producers alive; Marian, mother of St. John, Sykeston, Lady Marian, etc, and now Modwena, a stake-winner this season. Many others might be mentioned, going to show that Mr. J. B. Chase has had a greater measure of success as a breeder than often comes to a man. The horses in this consignment are closely related to most of the flyers above mentioned, and the three-year-old have never been tried either in public or in private."

Each horse listed in the catalogue is choice in every way. There is a filly by imported Trentola, the best bred grandson of the immortal Musket in the world, out of Mary E. (half-sister to Miss Pollard, etc.), by Ironclad, and consequently related to Geraldine, and she traces to the famous Hennie Farrow family, through Electra, that queen of nations. The colt by imp. Trentola, out of Centella, the gamest Joe Hooker that ever lived, and she was out of Katie Pease, the great four-miler, is also worthy of being trained at once. Another is out of Amanda, Matt Storn's famous mare by Warwick, out of Mischief, by Thad Stevens, next dam Katie Pease. These are as fine individuals as a man ever looked at and should be invaluable either for racing or breeding purposes.

There's another Australian horse represented in this sale, whose fame as a sire of race horses that not only go over a distance, but are great weight carriers, is recognized in Australasia as the best ever bred there, and that is the magnificent bay stallion, Clieveden, which that learned student of equine conformation and pedigrees, the late C. Bruce Lowe brought to this country a few years ago. So highly is Clieveden esteemed that the price at which he was offered for sale in America was withdrawn and orders were received to ship the horse back, and last month he started. We have seen Stromboli, his stable companion, leave the same way and every breeder in California regrets his departure.

Mr. Chase believes in following the plan which made Lord Falmouth of England so successful a breeder of famous race horses, and that is, to introduce the best stallions and different ones every other year; hence the horses he has bred shows his theory is a correct one.

He secured Clieveden, and the colts and fillies by this sire of Olive, Crighton, Affinity, Los Prietos, San Antonio, etc., out of such mares as Rebecca (dam of Glorianne, Misfortune, Darnilla, Fortune, etc.), Catalina (dam of Randwick, Centenella), Mistake (dam of Gilead, Hermitage, Mystery, Glen Ellen, etc.), Mystery (the best three-year-old of 1891), Phoebe Ann (a stake winner), Aretbusa (dam of Phoebe Ann), Miss Lon (one of the best daughters of Volturno and a stake winner everywhere). Glen Ellen (dam of da Bracey, Monterey and Modwena), Rosedale (dam of Manzanillo), Lady Clara (dam of Top Gallant and Rosedale), are as fine a collection to make stake winners of as there is in America. They are just as well proportioned as their choice breeding would indicate.

Then there is Pilot, a Morello! His dam is Amanda, by Mariner, second dam Mischief, by Thad Steven's, etc. He is the last Morello ever foaled and horsemen say he is the best.

There are several Creightons, besides those great horses Dare and Del Norte, to be sold, without reserve. Send for catalogues at once.

The "Thirteen" Hoodoo.

This settles it. When Samuel Gamble wrote to Trainer Geo. Sanders to get Percy, 2:13, out of that class, as ill luck would stay with him as long as he had the unlucky 13 opposite his name, we all thought it a joke and accused Mr. Gamble of being too superstitious. Word now comes that Percy died at Cleveland, Ohio, last week. The horse was taken sick while being shipped on the train from Portland, Me., to Cleveland. The American Sportsman of October 27th says: "Percy first became known to the general public when the closing-out sale of Harmitage Stud was announced by W. B. Fasig & Co. last February. He had trotted miles in 2:14¼ and quarters in 30¾ seconds as a four-year-old, and when he was led in the sale ring at Madison Square Garden horsemen looked upon one of the highest-formed animals that had ever been offered at auction. Mr. Kent purchased him for $3,800. The world will never know how fast a trotter he was, but those who ever had anything to do with him are convinced that few faster trottars ever lived. In his campaign this year, no effort was made to race him to his limit. He was a green, uneducated colt of peculiar temperament and extremely nervous, and Mr. Saunders let him trot his own races, fearing that with force he might ruin what would eventually develop into a wonderful race horse. His showing on the Grand Circuit against great horses was truly remarkable. He was game, fast and well behaved for a horse of such limited education. He won a good race at Detroit, trotted to a record of 2:13 and earned about $3,000. The loss is a serious one to Mr. Kent, for he understood the horse thoroughly, was well pleased with the showing he made this year, and certain that had the son of Ponca de Leon lived he would develop into an extremely fast horse." But it could not be. The 13 hoodoo was on him as Mr. Gamble said, and he is dead.

The Splan-Newgass Sale.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Won't you kindly allow us space in your columns to explain to the would-be-consignors to our December sale the kind of a sale we expect to hold and also the accommodations we have for keeping, showing, selling, etc.

We advertise to hold a special sale of track and road horses; we do not mean an ordinary combination sale where people send all classes of animals they wish to unload on the public.

What we want, and the only kind we shall accept, are animals with speed, good manners, breeding and size enough to be useful for track or road purposes. For this class of animals we have an unlimited demand at fair prices. I know at the ordinary combination sale, they are in the habit of taking all kinds of goods, good, bad and indifferent. We never have done anything of that kind and do not expect to in the future.

We have here the best building in the world to ship, show and sell a horse in. The Dexter Park Horse Exchange, where we hold our sales, is the largest and most convenient building in the world. It is six hundred feet long, two hundred feet wide, contains four hundred open stalls and a hundred box stalls, harness rooms, offices, a covered track fifty feet wide and six hundred feet long and has a seating capacity for eight thousand people. The whole building is lighted by electricity and heated by steam and is light and comfortable in all kinds of weather. It is surrounded on four sides by wide streets nicely paved with block pavement and gravel, so you can have a chance to show the horses in doors or out.

Believing we could better further the interests of our consignors and buyers by commencing our sale earlier in the week, we have decided to open the sale on Monday, December 12th, instead of the 13th, as formerly advertised.

Chicago is a large and wealthy city, the light harness horse is given a great deal of attention here and we have as many good buyers as any city in the world. Horses shipped to us can be unloaded right at the door from any part of the country. By making this plain to your customers you will greatly oblige us.

Uihlein Bros., of Milwaukee, are sending us thirty-six head of handsome, well bred, sound and fast geldings from four to seven years old. Mr. Richard Veech, proprietor of the Indian Hill Stock Farm, Louisville, Ky., has consigned twenty head by such well-known sires as Red Wilkes, Expeditioo, Axtell, Simmons and others. They are as fine a lot of matured animals as were ever offered for sale from one farm. Mr. Scott Newman, of Louisville, will send twenty head, many of them the get of Boreal and other noted sires. In this consignment are two of the fastest young animals ever offered at public sale; one, a pacing filly, by Boreal, no record, but went a public trial in 2:15; the other, a two-year-old pacing filly, by Gazette, no record, but went a public trial in 2:17½; Greenlander Boy, record 2:21, a born race horse and tried sire is also in this consignment.

Ninety per cent of the animals offered in our sale are matured and will be fit to show in harness; 50 per cent have records better than 2:30, which proves that we hold a horseman's sale. Yours truly,

SPLAN & NEWGASS.

Used With Success for Cocked Ankles, Etc.

Angola, Ind., June 22, 1897.

Wish to use "Gombault's Caustic Balsam" on an outside splint, and as our dealer has no printed instructions, I would be thankful if you would mail me pamphlet. Have used the above remedy with success on cocked ankles, curbs and enlarged glands, but want some instructions on this splint, as the patient is one of my favorite driving mares.

F. W. Kinney.

Freeport, Ill., June 6, 1898.

Mr. W. F. Young, Springfield, Mass.

Dear Sir:—I have been using Absorbine on a leg that has improved very much under the treatment.

Yours truly, W. E. McHenry.

JOHN SHILLINGLAW, who was driving the pacer Edward G., 2:12½, when he dropped dead at Allentown, Pa., was wearing the unlucky number 13 on his arm when the accident occurred.

Sulky Notes.

Ed. Geers has driven the winners of $36,150 this year.

Toggles, 2:09¼, was the nineteenth trotter to enter the 2:10 list this year.

Marshall 2:24½, is from the dam of Eagle Flannagan 2:07¾. He is by Egbert.

Wilton, 2:19¼, the great trotting sire has been consigned to the Fasig New York sale.

It is thought that Lady of the Manor is better now than ever in her life. Look out for her in 1899.

The Board of Review of the National Trotting Association will meet in New York, December 6th.

It is more than probable that Rilma, winner of the Transylvania in 1896, will be out as a pacer in 1899.

The good mare, Miss Sidney, 2:14, by Sidney, that won two races at Lexington, has been sold to the Austrians.

The meeting at Columbus and Mansfield, O., were declared off after two days of racing at each place last week.

Star Pointer, 1:59¼, the fastest harness horse that ever lived, has been consigned to the Fasig sale in New York.

Rilma 2:09½ still enjoys the distinction of being the only trotter previously in the 2:10 list to reduce her record this season.

The majority of those who bought animals at the late Parkville Farm sale will find that they have made profitable purchases.

Keating's stable won $3,000 at the Lexington meeting. Andy McDowell raked in $1,100 and Dr. Boucher, of San Jose, $750.

Ottinger, 2:09¾, will be driven to the pole this winter in Philadelphia, his companion being Jacksonian, 2:10¼, by Autograph.

Grattan 2:13, sired five of the foals of 1893. Among these five are Grattan Boy 2:08, trotting, and Palmyra Boy 2:07¾, pacing.

George Saunders has Klatawah, 3, 2:05½, at Cleveland and will take care of him until he is sold in the Fasig sale at New York.

Michigan has a guidaless trotter, the only one in existence. He is called Diving Bell, and was recently exhibited at Grand Rapids.

One of Star Pointer's strides, as he came around the last turn on Friday at Terre Haute, was measured and found to be twenty-four feet.

Driver Jack Trout is sixty years old, and his father, who lives in Huntington county, N. J. is well and hearty at the age of ninety-two.

The success of The Merchant (2), 2:20, shows that Scott McCoy understands how to develop and campaign youngsters without ruining them.

George West, the trainer of Directly, says he is willing to start that horse in a three-cornered race against Joe Patchen and John R. Gentry.

W. C. Hendrickson, of the Bella Meade Farm, has sold to Dr. Albanesius, of Jersey City, the bay stallion, Stambold, by Stamboul, dam Biscari, by Director.

There are quite a number of big bettors on the Eastern trotting circuit. Andy Welch is one of them. He lost $25,000 on one race this year, the Transylvania.

It is claimed that Woodside, 2:22¼, lately bought by Nick Hubinger, can step a mile in 2:14. Mr. Hubinger makes few mistakes in selecting his campaigning material.

A weanling by Directum 2:05¼, out of May Day 2:18½, was sold by its owner R. H. Plant of Macon, Georgia, to J. H. Thayer of Lexington, Kentucky, last week for $600.

The bay gelding, Charlay Logan (brother to Jupe, 2:10½), paced a mile at Cleveland the other day in 2:13¼, and it is said that he had not been keyed up to a mile at his limit.

Matt Hinkle, of Cleveland, has purchased for $1,000 the three-year-old filly, Juana, by Dexter Prince, dam by Electioneer. She has been a mile in 2:22¼ and is very promising.

Sweepstakes, dam of Star Pointer, 1:59¼, and the old game cock, Hal Pointer, is though to be in foal this year. She is twenty-seven years old and has been barren for several years.

J. P. Staley, of Cleveland, Ohio, who purchased Mia Louise, 2:15¼, at Killip & Co.'s combination sale, Thursday of last week, for $250. is a returned Klondiker, having been absent from the United States for two years. Mr. Staley saw Stainway take his record of 2:25¾ as a three-year-old. He wishes to thread Mia Louise to McKinney before he ships her East.

Nellie Medium, that took a record of 2:29¼ at Windsor, Conn., is said to be a daughter of Happy Medium. The old horse has been dead for nearly eleven years and was twenty-five years old.

John M. Forbes, father of the prominent New England horseman, J. Malcolm Forbes, died a few days ago at Milton, Mass., aged 85 years. He loved the trotter and took great interest in his son's horses.

Score one for Ohio as a breeding State. The three leading living sires of 2:15 trotters—Robert McGregor, who has 14; and Simmons and Guy Wilkes, who have 12 each—are all owned within its borders.

Rosebud, daughter of Gen. Washington and Goldsmith Maid, 2:14, is now a double producer, being dam of Artus, 2:29¾, and Regy, 2:30 She and her brother, Strangar, were the only foals of the old queen that lived.

Peko, 2:11¼, by Electioneer, will not go to the New York sale, Mr. C. G. Barkwill, of Cleveland, having exchanged Harry B. for her, and the Gentlemen's Driving Club will have for next year one of the most consistent trotters.

Owing to the fact that Montavista, 2:28, by Nutwood 2:18¾, had taken so many prizes in the show classes at the Ontario county, N. Y., fairs, he was this year barred from competition, being awarded a special diploma. Quite an honor.

O. A. Zingg, of Pleasanton, owns a fine Diablo colt that he is confident will be a record breaker. The colt is a three-year-old, and has never had much training, but can step a half in 1:11 on the Pleasanton track. Zingg has named him "Diablo Bill," after his former owner.

Echora 2:23½, dam of Direct 2:05½, sold at the Moore Cloverdell Farm sale last spring for $80, did not prove to be a grand financial success to her owner, as her service to Red Wilkes failed to materialize. Like some others her breeding days appear to be over, as she is now nearing her twenty-seventh birthday.

Mr. John Parrott, owner of The Baywood Stud, has sold to Mr. A. H. Rennie of Hongkong, China, the prize winning saddle horse "Mousie," and the handsome harness filly "Okra," the price for the two animals being $1,000. This is another hit of evidence going to show that the market for trained horses is on the rise.

The good among horses do not always die young, but a real good yearling filly by McKinney, out of the great brood mare, Elsie, by Gen. Benton, died at Palo Alto a short time ago. To show how good she was, she trotted a quarter in 0:38 the first time she was ever hooked to a sulky, and it did not bother her much to do it, either.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association lost money on its meeting this year for the first time in more than a dozen years. This is due to the miserable weather, as neither the horses nor the people could be held on such uncertainties as confronted them as regards the purse races. The program, however, was carried out to the letter, and verified the motto of the association never to declare off.

Star Pointer, 1:59½, champion harness horse, will be offered at auction in New York next week. Wet weather this fall was the hoodoo of this stallion. He did not have fair opportunity to demonstrate his undoubted ability to lower his record. He cost his owner $16,500 in March of 1897 at auction. At that time he had paced to a record of 2:02½. Since then he has beaten two minutes no less than five times and paced in 2:00½ in a race.

A report is current in Pleasanton that the track property there will be sold to a water company which proposes to sink wells on the place and establish a pumping station. It is well known that there is a gravel strata under the surface soil that contains a large flow of water. It is to be hoped that the track will not be destroyed. The champion trotters of the world have been trained on that historical track, and it would be a pity to see the place devoted to other uses.

The three-year-old pacing filly, Sylvanway, 2:10¼, by Stainway, that was sold last November for $85 at Fasig's Cleveland sale of California horses, is not the only one of the Oakwood Park Farm's consignment that has turned out well. The three-year-old brown gelding, Freelance, the first of the farm's offerings at that sale after a few weeks handling this fall, paced a mile in 2:23¼, on the Cleveland track. Freelance is closely inbred to Steinway, his sire being Charles Derby, 2:20, son of Steinway, and his dam, Steinola, by Stainway.

Baron Wilkes has fifteen new performers to his credit this season, ten trotters and five pacers, while four of his get have reduced records formerly held in the charmed circle. The complete list is as follows: trotters, Alica Dohrman, 2:15; Baron Bal, 2:27¼; Annie C., 2:29½; Baroness Zeka, 2:25; La Jollia, 2:29¾; Spanish Baron, 2:29½; Snowdrift, 2:18½; Tesla, 2:21½; Entertainer, 2:30. Pacers, Extasy, 2:10½; F. H. Y., 2:17¾; Nashawana, 2:24½; Gilkey, 2:23½, and Otis Baron, 2:17½; reduced records, Royal Baron, 2:28 to 2:22½; Sistar Alice, 2:18¾ to 2.16½; Bumps, 2:04¾ to 2:04½; Edward G., 2:16¾ to 2:12½.

The purchase of the young prize-winning Hackney stallion Mars, son of Cadet, by Mr. F. A. Hornbeck, Kansas City, as the head of the stud of this breed to be established near that city, was recently announced. It appears that Mr. Hornbeck has associated several horse-loving gentleman with him under the name Missouri Hackney Club, and will locate the home of the new stud in the vicinity of the Country Club, south of Westport. In addition to Mars a number of highly bred mares have been secured, including the Danegelt mare Lucerna and her two daughters by Cadet—the two-year-old Lorna and the weanling Josephine. Lucerna is rarely bred, uniting the Denmark blood through Danegalt with the high-acting blood of the Fireaways through her dam. It will be remembered that Mars is a son of Madge, among the best daughters of Mr. Mitchell Harrison's famous old Wildfire, one of the greatest-acting and best-breeding stallions that the Hackney blood has ever produced.

The following owners won $1,000 or over at the Lexington meeting, just concluded: D. D Streeter, $7,300; Villaga Farm, $5,650; Keyetone Farm, $5,000; T E Keating, $3,600; Gretna Farm, $2,825; Marcus Daly, $2,800; Scott Hudson, $2,750; Roy Miller, $2,750; J E. Huhinger. $2,500; J. Malcolm Forbes, $1,900; Geo. C. Grady, $1,800; H. C. McDowell, $1,450; M. E McHenry, $1,300; C. E. Caton, $1,200; A. McDowall, $1,100; J. C. Welty, T. W. McCann, A. J. Caton, each $1,000.

A harness meeting is to be given at Selma, Alabama, December 5th, 6th and 7th, on which dates $4,000 will be distributed in purses. Selma is an ideal place for racing in winter, as the climate is all that could be desired, and has a fast regulation mile track. Many of the greatest horses seen on the turf the past three seasons were wintered and developed at the Selma track, and such horsemen as Ed Geers, Millard Sanders, S. A. Paddock, L. A. Dovell and others testify to the great advantages offered by the management there. A circuit of Selma, Montgomary, Mobile and one or two other towns will probably be arranged for.

Don't breed to a horse that can't trot himself, but depends entirely on the performance of some of his relations for his reputation. A horse cannot transmit what he does not himself possess. There are many stallions parading under a fashionable pedigree and a number that can't trot as fast as a pig can swim. A horse that is bred to trot and cannot trot, cannot do what he is bred to do, is a fraud. Breed to a horse that is good sized himself, that can trot himself, that is trotting bred through proved trotting lines, a handsome horse, one from a handsome family—a good sized, good colored, good gaited one. Find the stallion, then breed to him.—Colman's Rural World.

F. J. Berry & Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, write: "There has been but little change in the condition of the horse market. Receipts have been strong, with a liberal demand for all of the choicer offerings, also for plain, heavy horses for logging and truck purposes. There are a large number of foreign buyers here in search of stylish drivers, 1,300 to 1,400-lb chunks and heavy drafters, but all must be of good quality to meet the requirements of the export trade. More ordinary, heavy horses meet with ready sale at fair values, while common and medium-weight horses are only salable at moderate figures, although there are buyers for everything at market values."

The pacing mare, Miss Logan, wears, or did wear, shoes on her front feet that would frighten lots of trainers to look at them. The shoe was a light one, but it has what might be called a narrow, continuous calk from the center of the toe to the heel on the outside edge of the inner half of the shoe. The object was to keep her from hitting herself to break over her outside toe and it also prevented the foot from twisting as it left the ground. The calk was, of course, very shallow and narrow so that it would easily bury itself in the track and is not as liable to strain the leg as one might imagine. Mr. R. C. Nash, John Hussey's blacksmith, has used this shoe exclusively on knee hangers with excellent success.

Some of our readers may want to lay out a half mile track on the farm and train a few colts this winter. Here is the rule for it: For a half mile track draw two parallel lines 600 feet long and 452 feet and 5 inches apart. Half way between the extremes of the two parallel lines drive a stake, then loop a wire round the stake long enough to reach to either side. Then make a true curve with the wire, putting down a stake as often as a fence post is needed. When this operation is finished at both ends of the 6 00 foot parallel lines the track is laid out. The inside fence will rest exactly on the line drawn with the wire. The turns should be thrown up an inch and an eighth to the foot. The stretches may be anywhere from forty-five to sixty feet wide.

Samuel Gamble, who returned from his Eastern trip last week, says Nico, 2:08¼, is the best prospect for championship honors he saw while away. Nico has not yet had his neck stretched, and the limit of his speed is still problematical. There are many who think him a likely candidate for champion honors. His gait is as pure and frictionless as that of any trotter ever foaled, and he goes with so little apparent effort that when speeding at a 2:04 gait he seems to be moving easy. He has considerable but not excessive action in front, and he goes light all around. He is, in short, what his sire was, a natural-born trottar. His sire, Arion, was one of the purest-gaited trotters that ever appeared, and made his unapproachable two-year-old record without toe weights and with six ounce shoes.

A large transaction in trotting stock took place recently at Providence, R. I, Col. Isaac L. Goff, of that city, has sold to a syndicate of well known Providence business men five-sixths interests in all his horses, numbering 23, including Bright Regent, 2:06¼; Lady Garaldine (2), 2:26¼; Wilark, br s, by Wilton; Lieut. Hobson, blk c, by Guy Wilkes (a full brother to Lesa Wilkes, 2.09); Gen. Brayton, b s, by Sprague Golddust; I. L. G., blk c, by Ora Wilkes; Adondre, ch g, by Advertiser; Lenora, b f, by Mendocino; Rio Doncallo, b f, by Rio Alto, 2:16½; Consolador, b c, by Altivo, and a number of promising colts and fillies. The well known Western trainer, Erastus E. Ecker, has been engaged, and under his management at Narragansett track they are all stepping well. The stable will be known as the Fern Cliff Farm.

Colorado horsemen propose to canvass the State during the coming winter to learn if a horse show in Denver next fall would receive enough support to make it a financial success. The Du Bois brothers, W. T. Duncan and other members of the Gentleman's Driving Club, Denver, are of the opinion that a scheme of this kind might be carried out successfully, whether there be a festival or not. Furthermore, there is some talk of having a state fair and include therein an agricultural, horticultural, fat stock and poultry show. The men who are thinking of this are of the belief that it would receive much co-operation from the farmers and breeders, notwithstanding the fact that some years ago two attempts were made on these lines and failed. It is argued that the Colorado industries were then less developed than now, and the entire community were engrossed more in mining than agriculture and allied pursuits.

San Francisco, Saturday, November 5, 1898.

BEFORE ANOTHER ISSUE of the Breeder and Sportsman has reached its readers, the voters of California will have decided upon the man who is to act as the Governor of this great State for the next four years. Among horsemen and all interested in the breeding of live stock, there is one issue that stands out with more prominence than any other in this campaign, and that is the District fair issue. The five thousand readers of this journal all feel and know the importance which attaches to a restoration of the appropriation by which fairs are maintained. To many, who have their all invested in breeding farms, it means prosperity if the fairs are resumed, or ruin if the same policy is pursued in regard to them as has been the rule during the administration of Governor Budd. With this condition confronting them, it is not strange that hundreds of breeders and horse owners throughout the State, who have heretofore voted the Democratic ticket straight, have this year declared their intention to cast a ballot for Henry T. Gage for Governor. The reason for it is plain. Mr. Gage and the platform on which he is running are outspoken in favor of the restoration of the district fairs. There is no beating about the bush in the matter, but an open and avowed declaration for a renewal of the appropriations. The platform of the opposing party is silent on the matter, and the candidate has only given the fairs a qualified and very lukewarm endorsement. It is no time now, after four years of prostration in the breeding business, for the horse owners and breeders to accept any eleventh hour promises, or to favor the election of any State legislative or executive candidates who are squarely in favor of restoring the fair appropriations and brave enough to say so without any qualification whatever. Mr. Gage is the man who has done this and he is the candidate worthy the support of all interested in the live stock industy of California. This is a year when voters can cast all politics aside and give their support to those candidates who are known to be friendly to their interests. It is the duty of every one connected in any capacity with the horse interests to cast their vote for Mr. Gage for Governor. He is the horseman's outspoken friend, and is truly a friend in need.

AMONG the lovers of true sport in this State there is a growing sentiment that park coursing as carried on at the present time in California is an injury rather than a benefit to the community. The greatest portion of the crowds that gather at the coursing parks of this city, Stockton and Los Angeles every Sunday does not attend from any love of the sport, but simply for the opportunity it offers to gamble on the results. There are some enthusiastic leashmen among the participants, and some excellent gentlemen who are admirers of fine dogs and have invested large sums of money in purchasing the choicest of the breed, but the vast majority have no interest in the sport whatever, the pool box and not the coursing occupying their whole attention. Like all other sports which are carried on simply for the money that can be made out of the "rake off" from the money wagered, it encourages and fosters gambling in the worst form, and hundreds of young men, and women too, are neglecting their business and household duties for the pool boxes at the park in the vain hope of earning large sums from small investments. It is a well known fact that when any sport gets into the hands of the people who make gambling its chief feature, that sport is eventually killed in the community where such conditions exist. California will prove no exception to this rule, and unless the warning is heeded, the proprietors of the coursing parks in this State need not be surprised if the people become so aroused that coursing will be stopped entirely just as it has been in nearly all the eastern states.

ATTENTION is called to the advertisement of Splann-Newgass, the Chicago auctioneers, in this issue of the Breeder and Sportsman. Their great speed sale will take place in their magnificent pavilion at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, during the week beginning December 12th, and will continue six days. These gentlemen positively assert that high-class California horses will bring high prices in Chicago at the present time, and they greatly desire to have a few consignments from this State. Horses with records are especially desired. Messrs. Splenn & Newgass want nothing consigned to them but high class horses for this sale. There are a number of good horses now in California that could be shipped to Chicago and sold at this sale to advantage. This is the last time the advertisement will appear Those desiring to send horses to the sale should apply at once.

ONE of the handsomest catalogues that has been issued for some time is the one containing the tabulated pedigrees of the nine yearling fillies from W. O'B. Macdonough's Menlo Stock Farm, which are to be sold November 21st in this city. The catalogues were compiled by Messrs. Killip & Co., and contain a fund of information that is invaluable. The typographical appearance of the book is excellent. The pedigrees of Ormonde, St. Carlo, Morrello, and of the dams of the fillies are accurate and elaborate, while the historical matter and foot notes are very full and complete. We have never seen a catalogue more thoroughly up to date.

THREE RICH STAKES, The Foam, The Surf and The Tidal, are offered by the Coney Island Jockey Club for foals of 1897. The first two are for two-year-olds, the other for three-year-olds. The two-year-old stakes are to be run in 1899, The Tidal in 1900. Each of these stakes will be worth $4,000. Read the announcement and conditions in our advertising columns and make your entries on or before Tuesday, November 15th, with the Secretary.

Great Demand For Road Horses in New York.

[Daily Telegraph.]

Never before in the history of the horse market in this city has there been such a demand for high-class horses as there is at present. New York, as the metropolis of the Western world, has always presented an excellent field for the operations of the dealer or breeder who confined his business to the sale or raising of first-class stock. In this city, or in the near-by outlying districts, reside thousands of wealthy men to whom the possession of a stable of horses is a necessary adjunct to the enjoyment of life.

There was a time, not many years ago, when only a few of the wealthiest men in the community owned fast roadsters. They were, and are yet, enthusiastic horsemen, to whom the pleasure of an inspiriting ride behind a well bred and fast-moving animal represented the acme of recreation. But of late, especially since the Speedway became an established fact, the fad has extended, until at the present time everyone who can afford the luxury is either in possession of a good horse or looking for one. One has but to take a trip over the favorite driveways almost any pleasant afternoon to realize the extent to which this form of outdoor pleasure has become general. Hundreds who several years ago did not know how to drive, are seen handling the ribbons over horses that can step close to the 2:20 mark. The old standbys are to be seen, as usual, but the large number of new faces to be observed gives positive proof of an increase in popularity that bids fair to envelop into a veritable craze.

Naturally, dealers who trade in the class of horses needed for road riding are the first to feel the effects of the new conditions that have arisen. Every one of the local dealers reports a vast increase in demand during the last week, and some of them have been able to supply just the sort desired by their customers.

There was some difference of opinion expressed as to Mt. McGregor's win, some contending that he won easily, in fact pulling up, and others claiming that he was stopping badly. In any event Butch Fisher's old jumper was gaining on him when he passed the paddock gate and Thorpe was forced to let out a link to keep his lead.

Of the two-year-olds which have started three or more times this season, the only unbeaten one is May Hemsteed (owned by C. T. Patterson) winner of four races. The best general performer, however, is Spirtnelle, daughter of Spokane and Narka, with a record of eleven first and five second moneys to her credit.

The many friends of W. Ford Thomas will be pleased to learn that he is in a fair way to speedy recovery. Mr. Thomas underwent a very serious surgical operation, two weeks ago, which was so successfully performed that thanks to the strong constitution his ultimate recovery seems assured.

Race Records for 1898.

The Chicago Chronicle has the following to say in regard to Tod Sloan being left standing at the post on the Prince of Wales' horse in the Cambridgeshire: "Inasmuch as the Prince of Wales is the most popular and influential turfmen in England, it is thought here that Sloan's action in allowing himself and his mount to be left standing at the post when the flag fell for the great classic was more of a matter of deliberation than anything else. The starting in England is regulated in a most careful manner, and it would appear that the men with the flag would be more careful of the Prince's Horse than any other in the race. The feeling on the part of the starter would be accentuated by the fact that the great American jockey had the mount, and large amounts of money would be bet on the combination of the Prince's horse and the leading American jockey, who has created such a furor on the other side. It is entirely probable that the incident of yesterday will effectively close the career of the little Yankee rider on the other side. His remarks about the discrimination of the English turf officials were about the worst things that could have been said, and that alone was enough to end him with the British. The turf there is so managed that little fraud creeps into the racing at any point. When Tod said he was being ruled against unfairly, it is little wonder the Englishmen rose in wrath and asked that the little fellow go home. Sloan has probably been spoiled by the great amount of petting he has received by the English and his head may be turned."

Schlessinger & Co., of Vienna, Austria, who have been buying fast trotters in Lexington and vicinity during the past few weeks, shipped the lot from this port last Saturday, on the steamship Phoenicia, for Vienna. Among them were Ceid, 2:07¾; Cut Glass, 2:10¾; Dornee, 2:18¾; Marie, 2:19¾; Mary Gill, 2:21¾; Mabel Moneypenny, 2:20; Susie Howe, 2:21¾; Sister Lewis, 2:21¾; Lizzie Fogel, 2:24¾; Doris Wilkes, 2:14¾; Fern, 2:14¾, and Rother, no record, but showing extremely fast trials. Mr. Schlessinger said that he considered this one of the very best lots that was ever shipped to Europe. In fact taken collectively, he thought it the very best that had ever left these shores.

There is syndicate betting at Lakeside, the management holding this to be the only way a meeting can be conducted without losing money. A syndicate, of which James O'Leery is the head, pays the purses, which amount to $2,400 a day, for the betting privilege.

Burns & Waterhouse are very fortunate in having the services of such a competent and conscientious trainer as Mr. Ben Timmons. He is one of the best conditioners in the country and always sends his horses to the post fit.

Little Johnny Reiff gave an exhibition of the horse manship for which he is celebrated, in the last race Thursday His effort on Oraibee was well timed and he finished a most determined one.

Barney Schreiber, the well-known bookmaker, who was supposed to be on his way to this Coast is still at his farm at Woodlands, and will not be here for some time.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Plumas, San Barnardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyon, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Alpine—Deer. Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Kern—Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hunting prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5. Ducks, Nov. 1 to March 1. Docks and quail, shipment from the county restricted as follows: No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds a week.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Diego—Shipping quail out of the county prohibited.
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).
San Mateo—Deer, July 15 to Aug. 26. (Use of dogs not prohibited. Market hunting prohibited). Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. (Shooting from boat at high tide prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Quail, any variety, Oct. 1. to Nov. 1.

Words of Wisdom.

When you feel assured that you are fairly well skilled in the handling of your gun, you can begin practice at a target. The very best practice for a beginner is to prove by actual test at a stationary target just what is the proper charge for his gun, as while doing this he will not only determine this important matter, but at the same time will obtain valuable knowledge upon other points that will be of great service to him when he comes to try a moving target. He will benefit by the practice, and should he learn so well that he will not forget it, that his gun will shoot where it is aimed, and not where he intended to aim it, he will have accomplished more in the way of education than many far older hands at the business have done.

In making this test there are several very important points to be attended to. The result should show you just how you should load to obtain the best possible work that your gun is capable of performing. Penetration and uniformity of pattern you must have. They must be obtained with a charge that will not knock all the shoot out of you by an excessive recoil. I am well aware that many good shots can stand the racket of a heavy charge and its recoil, but I also know that many others cannot, and if the strain upon their nerves is too severe they become gun-shy and will dodge at the instant of pulling trigger, except perhaps when under the excitement caused by a nearby rise, when they can shoot well enough; but when birds that they have had their eye upon for any length of time come within shooting distance they nearly always escape, owing to the fact that the shooter's nerves had time to prepare to cringe from the expected shock. When it comes, or just before it comes, they do cringe and destroy their aim, although the proprietor of these sensitive tissues may never know or suspect the reason why he nearly always misses these fair shots.

In order, then that your score shall not suffer from this cause—to say nothing of bruised cheek and black and blue shoulder—it will be better for you to try, if you cannot find by experiment, something in the way of ammunition and in the manner of loading that will do proper work without pounding you to a jelly and unsettling your nerves to an extent that unsteadies your shooting and mars the pleasure of your days afield.

Now in order that we may accomplish our purpose and obtain the best results, let us make the test an exhaustive one, so thorough that no change will be necessary so long as you keep the gun that you have selected.

In the first place you should decide just which particular brand of powder you will use, and after you have made the selection, stick to it until you are thoroughly well convinced that something decidedly better can be had, and after you have proven by practical test at the target that it will suit you better than the brand you are using. All the prominent manufacturers of powder, black and so called smokeless, or nitro, turn out excellent articles, and you can scarcely go wrong in making your selection provided you choose a brand of good quality. Cheap goods are usually dirty and often lacking in power, but the chief fault to be found with them is that they are often deficient in the very quality that we are now so anxiously seeking, and that is, uniformity. You should, therefore, select a brand of good quality, not necessarily the highest in price, but something that is good enough to be reliable. If you select black powder, choose a brand with a grain of medium size—not too coarse nor too fine. Should you decide in favor of the nitro—which at the present time is in very general use and appears to have come to stay—the selection should be made as advised for the black, taking care to choose a brand that has been in use long enough to test its quality, follow the directions as to the manner of loading the nitro which accompany each package; or, if such directions are not given, the dealer will furnish you the necessary instructions, which should be implicitly followed so far as the manner of loading is concerned, taking great care when you change the quantity in experimenting that the added or lessened amount be very slight until you obtain the charge that is best suited to your gun. The nitro is quicker in action than the black, but this will make little difference to the deliberate shot. The snap shot, however, will find that in crossing shots, he must hold nearer to his birds, or be will get badly left—Hitting vs. Missing.

Exchange Notes.

Every old shooter who attends a modern tournament, whether the shooting is at inanimate targets or at live birds, never fails to remark on the great change that has come over the contests of that nature during the past ten years. It is not so long since a man who attended a shooting match was looked upon as a shiftless fellow, who was no good unless he was drinking rum or shooting a gun. Now, things have changed, and those who attend shoots are a totally different class of men. The business man with a few hours off is glad to try his hand and his gun at the traps. Drinking is no longer a feature of the game; in fact, it is something that is generally entirely absent from a modern tournament. The loud-mouthed, vulgar-tongued man of years gone by has given place to the genial, joke-loving sportsman, who seeks no benefit in swearing if he loses a target or a pigeon, and who takes and gives joke for joke, enjoying his day out just as if he were in the woods or on the lake side. The wives and sisters of the shooters now attend the shoots, and that fact speaks more strongly than any other for the improved condition of affairs at tournaments.

Despite the custom of many hunters it is but very seldom that a dog should be allowed to flush a bird. Where a man is hunting alone, and where he has a dog that is under perfect control and able to reason for itself, there are conditions where it would be admissible to send on his dog to flush a bird it was pointing. Such conditions would be a thick bunch of rhododendrons or a small patch of cedars. If a dog points a bird in such cover, it would be manifestly hopeless for the gunner to go in and flush the bird if he wanted a shot at it. Where he has company, he and his mate should take it in turns to go in and flush the bird. Sending a dog on to flush his bird is apt to teach the best of dogs the bad tricks of "breaking shot" or "winging." It is always well to remember that dogs, like children, learn bad habits far quicker than they do good ones.

Hitting vs. Missing.

An original work of absorbing interest to the dyed-in-the wool sportsman or the novice has just been issued. The clever pen of S. T. Hammond (Shadow) being responsible for the same. Choosing the Gun, The All-round Gun, Ammunition, Loading Shells, Practice at a Mark, Practice at a Moving Mark, Shooting Companions, Among the Birds, Skipping Stones and Flying Birds, In the Field—are subjects treated in a graphic style and manner that will commend the work to sportsmen wherever they may be. Mr. Hammond enjoys among his field companions the repute of being an unusually good shot, and one who is particularly successful in that most difficult branch of upland shooting, the pursuit of the ruffed grouse, or partridge. This prompted the suggestion that he should write down for others an exposition of the methods by which his skill was required. The result has been the very interesting and original manual above mentioned. It is termed original for the reason that a perusal of its pages will show that the author is self taught; the expedients and devices adopted and the forms of practice followed were the author's own. As the author's experience has been particularly successful it is fairly to be assumed that the subjects written about being set forth simply and intelligibly will prove none the less effective with others.

The Forest and Stream Publishing Company, New York, offer this addition to sporting literature, the price for the same being $1.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

E. Klevesahl bagged one canvasback and two sprigs at Alvarado on Sunday.

C. Carlson was the luckiest hunter of the Alvarado contingent last Sunday. Twenty-one sprig paid tribute to his gun and skill.

Dr. Vowinckel whilst quail shooting on the preserve of the Country Club Sundey killed a large wild cat which his bird dog treed.

The hunters who favor Reclamation district for a day's shooting were not overly burdened with game when they returned to the city last Sunday evening.

Chas. M. Fisher and Frank Gardner tried for quail near Nicasio, on Sunday last. Birds were not numerous and conditions for favorable work by their dogs being adverse, the bags were correspondingly small.

Andrew Jackson, Joe Terry, of Sacramento, and Geo. Jackson shot over the Country Club grounds on Saturday, the combined bag was forty-three quail and eleven ducks. Mr. Andrew Jackson was afield again on Sunday; four English snipe, six ducks and the quail limit was his bag for the day.

Quail shooting is not at its best on the Country Club grounds, the sportsmen claim that the birds lay low and when hunted seek the high coverts. In fairly open ground they have been restless and uneasy and when worked by the dogs will lie close, flushing unwilling, then taking to the dense brush and running.

John Kerney and Jules Bruns have strong faith in the shooting generally afforded by their hunting spot at Sears Point, but last Sunday the bag was just three sprig, three widgeon and four teal, this being better than the average made by hunters in that district. The day was too hot and ducks were very scarce.

"Sbermen" made a bag of thirty-seven widgeon and two fat black jacks at Antioch on Sunday last. The Black Jacks missed a good shoot, birds were numerous on the preserve, but in the light of the experiences of the past three weeks the boys thought it advisable to postpone a trip until the weather was propitious for the appearance of those long looked for northern visitors. Secretary Markland has collected a sackful of fines for this oversight.

Some of the hunters who tried the marshes on the Marin and Sonoma shores last Sunday gave vent to their disappointment in not finding ducks by distributing chilled lead visiting cards among the meadow larks and other small fry.

The Colorado authorities are having their annual ghost dance with predatory Utes who to the number of 500, are illegally killing deer in great numbers in the vicinity of Rangely. Game wardens have overlooked that section this fall and the Logang are hagging much venison.

Considering the luck generally falling to sportsmen of duck hunting proclivities, the shoot Al Cumming and two friends indulged in at Byron on Saturday and Sunday last is calculated to create a small fund of envy amongst the shotgun brigada. The bag counted up fifty teal and widgeon and twenty geese. The shooters happened to get in on flights at the right time each day. Mr. Cumming, Johnny Coleman and several other sanguine sportsmen propose to shoot in the same district to-day and to-morrow. Feed is plentiful and birds are numerous, particularly geese, almost countless flocks of the latter frequenting the vicinity of Byron. The shooting grounds, covering a rather wide extent of territory, makes necessary the presence of at least half a dozen hunters located in different positions on the field; this distribution of the disturbing element will keep the birds going from point to point, the results following are naturally lots of sport and bountiful bags.

"A few scraps for my dog." Hunting men know how often they hear one of their brother shooters uttering the above few words when in search of food for his dog. Some people think that "any old thing" will do for a dog; but the exact opposite is the case, especially if the dog is a hunting dog, whether hound, pointer, setter or spaniel, that has undergone a hard day's work with his master, and for his master's pleasure. The dog at the end of the day's hunt is often far more tired than his master, and needs a good meal just as badly as does the two-legged hunter. What a different feeling there is between the way a man feels after a hard day in the woods and before eating dinner, to the way he feels after eating that meal. It is just the same with the dog. He wants a good meal after his hunt, and "few scraps" won't do. With the patent dog cakes now manufactured at so low a price, there is no excuse for any man going on a hunt, whether into the woods or to a hunting resort, and running the risk of being able to secure "a few scraps," subject to the favor of the cook. If your dog won't eat dog cakes when broken up and without being steeped, soak them for a while, and then get a little pot-liquor from the cook and make them into a tasty dish. Any dog will soon learn to eat and relish them, and they make excellent material on which to build up bone and muscle on a dog.

Where Should the Reel Be Placed on the Rod?

The proper position of the reel on the rod, so that it may be easiest controlled, is a subject that has been discussed pro and con innumerable times by many anglers. This question has also been taken up by various publications devoted to outdoor sports, notably so by the American Angler, who says recently on this theme:

It has not yet been decided. Anglers are fixed in their ideas and not easily led to depart from any methods they have used with comfort and success. Of the many writers on the subject, and they numbered scores a decade ago, D. W. Cross, of Cleveland, Ohio, now deceased, was one of the most practical and experienced, Mr. Cross says in a communication, from which we make liberal abstracts:

Habitual use of the reel in one way tends to make us believe it is the best, but it does not always follow that it is so; for the same habit of using it another way would be equally conclusive.

The place for the reel may depend upon the fish you propose to catch, and your method of casting for them. If you choose your position for the reel on that basis and habitual use in that way, with an enlightened judgment, confirms its success, then, no doubt, you have found, for yourself, at least, the correct position.

There are four ways in which the reel may be placed upon the rod, all of which are, more or less, in use by the angling craft, viz:

1. Above the hand-piece and on top of the rod.
2. Above the hand-piece and underneath the rod.
3. Below the hand piece and on top of the rod.
4. Below the hand-piece and underneath the rod, the handle of the reel being always to the right hand.

To the old angler who has acquired a fixed habit in any one of these ways, and finds it "good enough for me," we make no appeal, since, if he has not actually chosen the best method, he certainly believes he has. Honest belief hanged the poor innocent "witches." But to the beginner who desires to start right on the best experience of others and acquire a habit of its use, based on reason, in preference to one of simple habit, without rhyme or reason, something may be said.

1. For fishing with a Hanshall or similar rod, with a minnow or spoon bait, for bass, pike, pickerel, mascalonge, etc, if you place your reel above your hand and on top of the rod, you will be able to cast your line further and better, and can easily prevent an overrun by placing your thumb on the spool.

The expert bass fishers, with bait and spoon, on the St. Clair river, among the islands in Lake Erie and on the St. Lawrence, adopt this mode, and it is the one recommended by Dr. J. A. Henshall, the best authority in the world on bass fishing, except that Dr. Henshall prefers to place his reel underneath the rod, but when casting turns his rod over, with the reel on top.

2. If the reel be placed above the hand-piece and under the rod for bass fishing, with bait, the position would be found very inconvenient in controlling the line when casting at a distance, unless the rod be turned to bring the reel on top.

In casting flies with a fly-rod, it is all right to have the reel beneath the rod and the line hanging loosely in the rings, but it is an awkward place for the reel above your hand, especially in striking your fish and retrieving your line after a cast. And when the reel is above the hand, in reeling in a fish the position is necessarily awkward and ungraceful, and the rod, unless you run the butt into your stomach and place your left hand above the reel, will shake, wriggle and sway like a "sawyer" in the Mississippi. We find that a large majority of expert anglers do not adopt that method of fixing their reels.

3. This method is objectionable for two reasons. First, the weight of the rod on top and below the hand tends constantly to turn the rod over and the reel under, and the handle on the wrong side without a constant and tiresome grip of the fingers. Secondly, when the line is wet and lays flat along the top of the rod, there is manifold more friction in rendering or reeling up than there is when the line hangs in rings several inches apart underneath.

Again, you can pull out slack for a new cast longer cast much handier when the line hangs below the rod than when it lays flat upon the rod, as it generally will when wet.

4 In the use of all rods for fly-casting, this method of placing the reel below the hand and underneath the rod is recommended and practiced by a large majority of anglers.

Holding the rod thus in your hand, either when the line is out, floating over a riffle, or as you walk along reeled up, it seems to balance nicely, and gives you no muscular effort to hold it. Your fingers grasp the line when you desire to strike a big fish solid and not miss a strike by an easy springing reel and a slack line. You can temper the strain on the rod by letting the line slip through your hand. The line always hangs lightly in the rings, wet or dry; renders end reels up freely; and when reeling up with the butt to your big fish, the reel seems to hang just in the right place and exactly where you want it.

There may be objections to this mode of placing the reel, but there is one angler, at least, who has been over fifty years trying to find them.

In the biennial report of the Fish and Game Commissioners recently submitted to Gov. Budd, among other items of interest we note the statement that all the waters of California are now free from obstructions in the nature of sawdost, mill and factory refose; low water in the streams has depleted the game fish supply; the run of salmon is greater now than ever before; the number of fry hatched in two years reaches 55,066 908. The amount of $3,125 in fines has been imposed in 297 arrests for infractions of the fish and game laws. Striped bass are increasing rapidly (despite the piratical raids of the market fishermen). The market shipments received in 1893 were 70,738 pounds, 358,194 pounds in 1897 and for the half year ending June 1898, 263,144 pounds were received. A close season during the month of June, the spawning period, is recommended. Protection for pheasants is also recommended, the killing of the same to be prohibited for an indefinite period. From March 1st to October 1st as a close season for snipe is suggested and the netting of any kind of wild fowl should be made unlawful. The prohibition of sale of striped bass less than a pound in weight is also requested.

While the foregoing prohibitory measures are steps absolutely essential and worthy of the attention and support of sportsmen, they are only a few of the many changes in the present laws that are necessary for the protection and propagation of the fish and game of this State. A matter that has not been touched upon as yet—one of serious importance which has already been taken up and acted upon by a majority of the States and territories—is the limit of the game bag or catch of fish to each individual hunter and angler, not only for a day's sport but the aggregate individual bag or take of fish for the season. This is a subject of growing importance and is given favorable consideration by many sportsmen who have discussed the situation.

Among old-time anglers in Eastern waters, the striped bass is looked for at his best in cloudy weather and disturbed water. In fact, the giant bass of Eastern waters will rarely touch the most tempting baits possible to offer when the water is smooth and clear. Per contra, when an east wind prevails, and the continuous beating of the surf has well thickened the water inshore and turned over and over the various submarine algæ under which the infant lobster and other crustaceans hide, then the generally wary bass forsakes his fine weather haunt along the smooth beaches, and, presto! change! becomes the bold sea rover in search of prey along the rocky ledges.

The log booms in Pilarcitos and San Andreas lakes are high and dry just now—where heretofore has been found a good depth of water is now a shallow. It is feared that the fish spawn will show a small percentage of the fry this year. A mud bottom is not conducive to good results in trout propagation.

The Truckee is now free and unobstructed from Pyramid Lake to its headwaters, thus giving the trout a chance to reach the spawning grounds. Recently under the supervision of Commissioner Vogelsang a number of dams, etc., were destroyed.

Anglers have been taking quite a number of fish in the Pilarcitos water recently. The best catches were made by casting in the shadow of the lone pine tree, a beacon well known to the frequenters of the lake.

Eel river is prolific just now in sport for the angler—although the big fellows are not yet so plenteous as to cause that keen excitement and enthusiasm created by a tussle with the lusty steelhead.

Vallejo anglers are taking striped bass with rod and line at present. Upon examination of the fish it is noticed that they are feeding on carp and catfish.

The E. T. Allen Co. have just received some O'Shaugnessy hooks that will meet with the approval of the striped bass anglers.

Pacific Coast Field Trials.

Prospects for a successful and well attended meet in January are becoming stronger every day. The Members Stake promises to be a feature that will become a permanent event for future field trials on the Coast. The indications for a strong Derby entry are more than favorable judging from the number of second forfeits paid.

A Registered Dog.

What is the difference between a registered dog and one without a number? Quite a good deal when one looks at the matter in a comparative way. If you want a doctor in a case of emergency you may take the first one you come across, but your family physician is one with a diploma, a license granted by a college, a registration that his pedigree of education is thoroughbred. If you buy property you have the title searched to see that there is no flaw in the descent from the foundation stock. Your lawyer looks up the pedigree of the property and you get a certificate that it is straight. You do not want any mongrel cross in matters of grave importance, such as sickness in your family or loss of property through error of some sort. If you seek employment with some companies you will likely be called upon to give security, and the guarantee company to which you apply looks up your pedigree of conduct and if it is thoroughbred gives your employes a certificate of guarantee against loss.

It is the same desire to be assured that all is straight and above board that has resulted in the keeping of pedigrees of animals and their registration in stud-books. The dogs are not by any means the only animals that are provided with registration facilities, and there is a stud book for the thoroughbred horse, the trotter and pacer, the Percheron, the hackney, the shorthorn and others; cattle breeds, also sheep and pigs. All are supplied with such facilities for proving claims to recognition on the score of breeding.

The peculiarity about dogs is that all breeds are covered by one club, whereas in all other cases the club in charge is concerned with but one breed of horses or cattle. In this way the American Kennel Club has jurisdiction in everything and controls all matters connected with dogs throughout the country and is recognized by the United States Government as the authority on the subject.

An acceptance of a pedigree by the American Kennel Club gives it an indorsement that cannot be obtained in any other way, and to show that the Club recognizes merit it also allows dogs to be registered that have won a certain number of prizes, but whose pedigreee are lost. The reason for this is easy to be understood, for dogs are given away to friends who do not care anything about pedigree, and in one way or another a dog of excellent breeding gets astray in the matter of his ancestry. In such a case he is allowed to demonstrate that he posses what pedigree indicates he should have—typical points of his breed. Having proved this under two or more judges by receiving at least two first prizes, he becomes eligible for registration. The club is now compiling its 15th volume and is now on its last thousand dogs to complete its "Jubilee" and reach 50,000 registrations. This is a good deal more than the English Kennel Club has registered in a much longer period, the numbers at the close of 1897 being 46,327 for the American and 43,808 for the English, although the volumes were only No. 14 for the former to No. 24 for the latter.—The Southern Fancier.

Pacific Kennel League.

The rules governing clubs and shows as set forth in Article 10 of the constitution of the Pacific Kennel League, which new body was organized September 28, 1898, are as follows:

Section 1. Every club or association, a member of this League, shall be the arbitrator of its own internal affairs, and shall have power to suspend or expel its members, or disqualify any other person from exhibiting at its shows. It shall have the right to hold shows under the rules of this League, offer such prizes as it sees fit, and perform any other act not in conflict with the constitution of the League or the powers it has delegated to the League by becoming a member thereof.

Sec. 2. Every club or association, a member of this League, shall hold its shows under the following rules which it shall publish in its premium list:

RULES GOVERNING SHOWS.

1—Every dog must be the bona fide property of the person or kennel making such entry on the day of closing the entries and the entry blank must contain his or her name or the name of the owner of the kennel. The entry must clearly identify the dog to be exhibited by name, and, if known, its date of birth, name of sire and dam, and the name of its breeder. Should any of these particulars be unknown to the exhibitor, it must be so stated on the entry blank. If the dog is registered in any Stud Book, the number should be given with the entry.

2—If the name of a dog which has won a prize has been changed, the old name must be given on the entry blank and inserted in the catalogue, together with the list of all prizes won by the dog, until such time as it wins a prize under its new name.

3—The breeder of the dog is the person owning the bitch at the time of her whelping.

4—The bench show committee may decline any entries they see fit, or may remove any dog on account of disease, vice or any other good cause.

5—A castrated dog or spayed bitch shall be disqualified. Total blindness, deafness or lameness shall disqualify. If the judge or veterinary surgeon is satisfied that the deafness or lameness be temporary, the dog shall be allowed to compete.

6—A dog suffering from any contagious disease shall be disqualified and shall be at once removed from the building. The regularly appointed veterinary surgeon shall alone decide as to the condition of the dog, and his decision must be given in writing.

7—A judge may disqualify a dog which in his opinion has been improperly tampered with, subject to the decision of the veterinary surgeon. Should the judge's disqualifications not be sustained, the class must be rejudged.

8—Discretionary power is given the judge of each class to withhold any or all prizes for want of merit, and appeals can only be entertained where misrepresentation or breach of the rules is alleged.

9—Should an appointed judge be unable to fill his engagement, the committee shall have the right to fill the vacancy.

10—In any class where there is a limit of weight, a dog entered in such class may at any time after the opening of the show, and before the judging, be weighed, and the weight of the dog shall be registered and bold good at the time of judging.

11—The following classes shall be provided:

A Puppy Class, for all dogs over four and under twelve months of age. If the date of birth is not given on the entry blank, the bench show committee must be satisfied that the puppy is under twelve months old or the entry cannot be accepted.

A Novice Class, for all dogs that have never won a first prize in any class at any previous show, puppy classes excepted.

An Open Class, for all dogs never having won four first prizes in the open class under these rules or under American Kennel Club rules prior to their adoption.

A Winners Class, for all dogs that have won four or more first prizes in the open class under these rules or under any recognized club prior to their adoption. Three wins in this class shall confer the title of champion.

A Champion Class, for all dogs having won three or more firsts in the winners class.

12—Clubs may substitute for the Novice class a "local class" open to dogs from such territory as they may designate that have never won a first prize at any previous show.

13—All wins of first in the "limit class" at shows held on the Pacific Coast during the year 1898, and previous to the adoption of these rules, shall be counted as open wins except in cases where the dog won first in the open class also. Dogs winning first in the open class on the Pacific Coast during the year 1898 shall, in case these wins and any previous first prize wins in the open class exceed four, have the excess of four counted as winners class wins toward his championship. For example: If a dog had won two firsts in the open class under the old rules, and then, since January 1, 1898, he has won three firsts in the open or two firsts in the "limit" and then one in the open, which would be the equivalent of five firsts in the open class, then the fifth win shall count as a a win in the winners class and one toward his championship.

14—Should a dog having three first open prizes to his credit when he is entered, win the fourth first subsequent to the entry at some show held between the time the entry was made and the judging at the show for which he has been entered, then the committee shall transfer him to the winners class and have him judged therein.

15.—Whenever a dog has been entered in the wrong class, either on account of weight limit or other cause, the committee, if satisfied that no fraud was intended, shall transfer him to be judged in the class in which he properly belongs.

16—Should a prize winner be disqualified the next dog be placed by the judge shall be moved up to his place; provided, that no dog shall be moved into any place where the prize has been withheld by the judge.

17—Equal firsts shall not be given, but the judge may divide second and third between two dogs, in which case the win shall count as a second for each dog.

18—All dogs eligible to compete for specials must be judged unless it is stated on the entry blank that the dog "will not compete for specials." No special prize can be accepted after the show has opened; nor can any special be accepted for the best in the show, or in any way where one variety competes with another.

19—The age of the dog shall be computed up to the day preceding the opening of the show.

20—Bench show committees may receive bitches with puppies of any age for exhibition.

21—Any exhibitor or his or her representative may file an objection to any dog, in writing, stating the reasons therefor, at any time prior to the close of the show, and depositing with the committee the sum of $2, which shall be forfeited if the decision is against him. In which case the committee shall meet at once and decide the matter, and from their decision there shall be no appeal.

22—No person under sentence of disqualification, suspension or expulsion by the club holding the show, or by the League, can exhibit a dog or handle a dog in the ring for anyone else. The sentence of disqnelifiсetion of an owner disqnelifies ell his dogs. Bnt this rule must not he so constructed as to abridge the rights of en innocent party.

23—The handler of a dog or the person whose neme eppeere on the entry blank as the hendler shall he considered es the egent of the owner in ell trensections, nnless the clnh is otherwise notified.

Peech Mark has changed hends egein. Mr. W. W. Ven Arsdele of Siskiyon connty recently pnrchesed from P. J. C. Kenna the wall-known English setter hitch, winner of the Pecific coest ell-ege fer 1897.

Mr. Geo. E. Gray, who is at present in Bekersfield, has sent the English setter hitch Spots Gray to the Verone Kennels to he hred to Count Gladstone IV. Spot wes the winner of the Continentel Field Triels, 1897.

A sentiment is deily geining ground emong prominent fenciers thet tha speciel committee recently eppointed hy the A. K. C. should he so constituted and empowered es to act in tha neture of e conrt of inqniry in regard to coest affeirs—with ot course, the seving clense, of the right to eppeel to the governing hody in New York. The idee is cne that will consolidete kennel effeirs end facilitete husiness for locel end coest dogdom.

Tha turn-out of Mr. H. A. Wegener in the parade lest Seturdey evening wes a feetnre that ettrected universel attention. The team of six cocker speniels driven hy petite Miss Wegener wes composed of Palome, Ch. Hevoc, Coloredo, Jake, Dnfferin Pestime and Polly Pestime. Incidentelly he it remembered thet this nniqne disploy of cenine intelligence end ntility was rewerded hy e first prize tendered to Mr. Wegener, the seme heing a handsome perlor clock.

A meeting of the special committee recently eppointed hy the Americen Kennel Clnh who ere to represent the Coest interests of the A. K. C. was celled hy the chairman, J. E. De Ruyter, Esq. to he held on Thursday evening, November 3rd, 1898. The purpose of the meeting was for preliminary organization end a genaral discussion of such kennel metters as the present statns of affairs will necessitate. Our going to press earlier this week then nsnal prevents giving e full eccnnt of the hnsiness trensected.

Otto Fendner is now the owner of the handsome pointer Ashhury (formerly Bummer W.) which ha purchesed from P. J. G. Kenna. Ashhury is a liver and white dog eighteen months old hy Beldy ont of Beuleh G. He has a crediteble hench record to date es follows: First in puppy and novice classes, Sacramento, 1898; second in junior, Secramento, 1898; first in the limit cless, San Jose, 1898; first in limit class, second in open dogs and reserve in winner's class, Sen Francisco, 1898. Ashhury is a Derby candidete for honors in tha coming field trials at Bakersfield. Mr. Fendner will place his dog in charge of W. B. Coutts, the well known hendler.

Private advices to a well-known fancier of this city are to the effect that the poor showing mede hy Dash Antonio end Lock recently at Manitoba field trials wes attrihnted to tha worn and worried condition the dogs were in—"they ected es if they had no heart in their work," es if "they had tha life cowed out of them." Whatever may have been the direct cause for snch miserable condition of these two grend dogs we do not know, hnt snrely this would have been enough to nnplace eny dog. To a certain extant the reason for their mediocre performance is now nnderstood hy those who saw Lock and Dash at Bekersfield lest yeer end who natnrally expected good tidings of our coast represeotatives.

There is a jengle emong the Stockton leashman over the result of lest Sunday's meeting. The Stockton Independent makes comment es follows: There was a nnmber of plunges meda hy the talent on what looked to he eure things, hut invariably something went wrong end they lost their money. A few of them were very sora aftar tha day'e sport wae over and did not hesitete to etate that thay were "jobbed" ont of their monay. They claim that they were not given a feir deal end naver had tha leest chanca of winning.

Tha assertion wes freely made that thera was a ring which handled tha "surethings" and it waa useless to put up money ageinst tha combination.

If tha sport is to ha conducted hera thare should not he the leest snspicion of "jobbing" or the club will have to depend on the pool box for their revennes, end es soon es the public decide thet their is crooked work it will refuse to plece e bet. The people who ere "kicking" mey he misteken, hut ell such insinuetions tend to injnre the reputetion of the pestime end greet cere should be teken to see thet there is no telk.

Coursing at Merced.

The meeting of the Interstete Coursing Clnh et Merced, on Tuesdey end Wednesday of this week, was well ettended hy lovers of legitimete pleins coursing. The Californie Cnp, the coveted prize of the ennnel meeting, was won hy J. H. Rossiter's greet imported dog, For Freedom (Sir Sankey—Flitting Fer), the Californie-hred dog, Sente Alicie (Major—Deisy), also owned hy Mr. Rossiter, being the runner np, J. J. Edmonds' Morning Glory heving been withdrewn. Weather end other conditions going to meke a snccessfnl meeting were perfect. The heres, as e rnle, ren like demons possessed end gave the long teils meny a grnelling conrse. Glenstone, e good dog, efter e herd rnn on Tnesdey, expired the next dey. The phenomenel running of For Freedom wes the featnre of the meeting. He hes now won nine streight stekes without ever losing a course or heing led to e hare. His victories on the pleins heve been more decisive then at the parks in San Francisco. He simply ran ewey from everything. Meny were confident of his ahility to heet everything et the perks, hut believed he would not stey on the pleins if given e herd triel. He has demonstreted thet he is prohehly the greetest dog in the world. Eestern end Eoglish critics sey he proved this hy his work on Wednesdey.

Both courses Wednesdey were with Dr. Leek's well stimnleted hounds, Right Bower and Ace of Clubs. For Freedom ren all eround them, end let neither score a point. In hoth ceses she quickly broke down heres so strong thet they eventuelly esceped, and worked them so repidly, plecing end pessing the other dogs so eesily thet the crowd howled with enthusiesm. After the here wes well sterted, For Freedom hed to do ell the work elone. Still he never tired, though the running wes over plowed fields, the hares esceping into holes.

Morning Glory wes most nnfortnnete in getting two grueling courses end a no conrse over e plowed elkeli field thet cut up her feet hedly. She went ont efterward and finished e herd run off, hut hed to he withdrewn, leaving only Sente Alicia and For Freedom in tha staka

THE FARM.

A Big Lamb Sale.

There was shipped from The Dalles last week the largest lot of lambs ever taken from one ranch in the Northwest, and we doubt if another lot like them of equal number, size, and quality can be found on any one ranch in America. The lot referred to was the 1898 crop of grade Shropshire lambs bred by George A. Young and son, of Ridgeway, Wasco county, Oregon, and numbered 5,000 head, and required a train of 20 cars to ship them. They were sold to Ray Bros., of St. Paul.

Some idea of the quality of the lambs can be gleaned from the fact that the buyers had the privilege of 10 per cent discount on any of the lot that did not come up to their requirements, but found it necessary to throw out only 4 per cent of the entire lot.

The price paid for the lambs was $2.50 per head at the ranch, which is from 35 to 50 cents more than the ordinary lambs are selling for. Messrs. Ray Bros. will take them to St. Paul, where they will be put on feed for 90 days and then sent to the Chicago market.

This will be a good advertisement for Oregon as a sheep-raising country. With the lambs Messrs. Young and son sold 1,000 grade Shropshire ewes. These gentlemen use nothing but pure bred rams for sires. They consider the Shropshire cross the best for early lambs and will breed 7,000 ewes that way this fall. The lot sold were lambed in March and April, and the loss from cold and other causes was very light, as they were able to take care of themselves from the first. —Rural Spirit, Oct. 28th.

Buying Cows.

Probably the least satisfactory way to get a good paying herd of dairy cows is to go into the market and buy cows. Of course when one is starting in business the only way to get cows is to buy them, but every dairyman should get himself into shape to raise his own stock, says "Homestead." Anybody can pick out a good looker, and a great many people have a good idea of dairy form, but still it is hard to know what a cow will do from mere appearance. The cows that are in the market for sale are not the good cows; they are almost invariably the cullings of the herd that the seller could not make pay. If he did not find them remunerative after trying them, are you likely to? Often when fairly good milkers they are sold because they are kickers, hard milkers, have had tempers, or had habits of some kind. If one could apply the Babcock test to cows he was about to purchase for a sufficient length of time, to determine their milking capacity, the task of purchasing cows for the dairy might be more hopeful, but it has not become the fashion to do this as yet, although it may some day. The best way to get and maintain a herd is to raise it. Breed the calves well from the best cows you have, using the best butter bull that can be obtained; develop and train the heifers carefully, so as to make good milkers easy to live with, and the best will be done that can be done. Then if they become kickers or otherwise vicious, you won't have to blame the other fellow for it.

Grain Philosophy.

It's periodical, this thing of predicting that the world is going to have a terrible wheat famine and as the years roll around some fellow is always ready to assume the role of prophet in this line. Do you remember how a few years ago one Davis, statistician and forecaster, had the whole world right on the verge of going bread-hungry, and how the changes have been rung on that idea from time to time ever since? And now an eminent English authority rises to say that the famine must come. Well, through it all wheat is cheap and bread everywhere obtainable. The famine fails to materialize, and prices fail to remain permanently high. The fact is that when wheat advances many people work off easily into other grains, and the discounted trouble, which the nervous statistician over apprehends never comes. Wheat is low—much too low—and the outlook does not point to excessive supplies anywhere within a reasonable time; but wheat must become scarcer than now if the bread question is to become anything like a despairing problem with the masses.—Stockman and Farmer.

Horse Notes.

Plank floors are a fruitful cause of bad feet.

Undeveloped horses are as a rule uncertainties.

Let horses bedding be dry and clean.

Oats and corn ground together make a good ration for work teams.

Good food will be wasted on growing colts unless they are kept in good health.

One advantage to the fall colt is that the dam will not have much labor to perform.

Bad dispositions are generally the result of bad management and handling.

The more quiet and steady horses are kept the better it is for them.

Nothing should be left in the feeding boxes after meals.

Size, power, bone and constitution should be considered in breeding.

Thorough grooming of the horse should clean the hide as well as the coat of hair.

Keep a close eye on the growing colt as blemishes are liable to appear which if taken in time might be cured, but if let alone would ruin future value of a horse.

A horse that has the habit of over-reaching should be shod often so that the feet should not get too long.

The dirt and sweat that accumulates on a horse during the day should never be allowed to remain on over night.

The longer colts are allowed to run without handling the wilder they will become and the harder to break.

A horse's stomach is small and much injury often results by allowing them to drink too much water when it has eaten too much dry food.

Besides improving appearance of the horse good grooming stimulates the skin to action, producing a strong, healthy circulation throughout the system.

Soundness is an essential feature in the make up of a driving or riding horse when thrown upon the market. Small blemishes will often materially reduce value of a horse.

The price of a horse depends much upon his manners. If well broken and has a business air about him small blemishes will often not interfere with the sale. He should also be in good condition.

Hens and Cows.

From $60 to $80 a year is considered a fair profit for a good cow, and she will take up three acres of ground. She must be milked every day and on Sunday, have her food regularly, her stalls cleaned and other work performed, such as skimming the milk, churning, etc. One hundred good hens on an acre of ground will produce nearly twice as much as a cow, and yet if the houses are to be cleaned daily and one-tenth of the work given them that is done for one cow on three acres, the complaint would arise that poultry requires too much care; yet if the poultry are not housed and their roosts cleaned often, how can the poultrymen expect them to be free from lice and disease or prove profitable. All the difficulties are not with the poultrymen. The dairymen have their troubles, but they work hard and make the business pay.

The difficulty of healing wounds and open sores of horses, if caused by the friction of harness, is well known, and it is almost impossible to effect a thorough cure unless the animals are taken out of service for a while. The various treatments now in use are either ineffective, because dust and prespiration are not kept off from the sores, or, where ointments are resorted to, the healing process is at best weary and uncertain. All these difficulties are said to be obviated by the use of a German system of protective rings. These rings, made of rubber and leather, are applied on any part of a horse's body, so as to fit perfectly over the sore, protecting it not only from pressure, but also from dust, perspiration or any other uncleanliness. The rings are made in several sizes and shapes, will fit any kind of sore and may be attached either by straps or by being sown on a piece of blanket. With this appliance the horse may not be withdrawn from service for an hour, without entailing suffering on the animal. For larger stables, where the rings would be wanted frequently, the inventor has constructed a whole harness, where the rings may be applied at any point.

A statement prepared at the General Land office shows that at the present time there are 579,368,274 acres of unappropriated and unreserved public land in the United States, exclusive of Alaska. Of this area 546,549,655 acres, or more than 94 per cent, are in the thirteen so-called desert land states and territories. Of the vacant lands in these states and territories it is estimated that 332,176 000 acres are of a character that may be denominated as desert under the law providing for the disposal of desert lands; that is, islands that do not produce native grasses in sufficient quantities to make an ordinary crop of hay in usual seasons which, without irrigation, do not contain sufficient moisture to produce a natural growth of trees or make an agricultural crop of any kind in amount to make the cultivation thereof reasonably remunerative.

Selection of Stock Cattle for Feeding.

Practical and experienced feeders, who breed and purchase steers for fattening, observe striking difference in the aptitude of animals of varying types and make-up to lay on flesh readily and in such form and quality as to command the highest price on the market. It requires a well-trained eye to detect in all cases the possible variation of results in the store or stock steer; but there are some distinctions that are easily detected. There are certain types of cattle, for instance, that never feed profitably under any conditions, and it is quite as important to discriminate against these in the feed lot as to be able to recognize the excellence in other types.

The characteristics that make the profitable feeder are naturally more difficult to detect in animals in stock condition than when fattened, but notwithstanding this there are a number of indications that are fairly reliable. Though the young steer may be comparatively thin in flesh and temporarily lacking in the thick, even covering of the back and ribs so essential in the finished carcass, he must nevertheless present that blocky frame and stoutness of build, accompanied by short, straight legs, wide back and loin, well-sprung ribs, fullness back of shoulders and in flanks, prominent brisket, full neck vein, wide chest and well-rounded barrel, together with a good, soft, mellow handling skin and fine, silky hair, giving what is termed the thick, mossy coat, without coarseness, and with it all a good, strong, vigorous head, clear, full eye, and quiet temperament. The importance of an even covering of flesh and good handling quality can hardly be overestimated. The bone should be moderately fine and clean. Coarseness either in the bone or about the head and horns is particularly objectionable, as it indicates coarseness of texture throughout and a greater percentage of offal and cheap meat, as well as a tendency to sluggish circulation. The head should present a certain refinement, finish and vigor that in a measure indicate general quality and superior excellence of finished product, though this refinement must not be accompanied by delicacy.—Prof. C. F. Curtiss, in Fourteenth Annual Report of Bureau of Animal Industry.

A sensible suggestion of Farm Journal is that clay makes a better stable floor than plank, for it contains a little dampness, conducive to good feet, and the horse finds irregularities on its surface, and by placing the heels on the higher surfaces the tendons are relaxed, giving them needed rest, while in plank floors the slant is backward, making the animal stand with the tendons always on a strain." Of course the clay floor should not be wet, but a small amount of moisture in it gives a degree of elasticity that is helpful to the feet and legs of the horse.

If you want the foal to mature into a big and symmetrically developed horse keep it growing all the time on muscle, not fat producing feeds. Give it enough exercise, good treatment, plenty of outdoor life, and when stabled let it be in a roomy box or stall, light, well ventilated, clean and free from offensive odors.

CONDUCTED BY

WM. F. EGAN, M. R. C.V.C., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through these columns in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified.

C. B.—I have a bay colt, three years old, and as far as I can see, not a blemish on him. For the past week he has gone lame in the right front leg, I think it is the shoulder. There is no veterinary near here, and I would like to know what to do with him. He is so lame that I cannot drive him, and I wanted to break him this fall. He is well bred and I think going to be fast. Please reply in next week's BREEDER.

Answer—

Has your colt been driven any?

Does he go lamer down hill than up hill?

Does he go very much lamer when trotting than walking?

Does he show more lameness when turning around than when walking in a direct line?

Does he drag the limb when backing?

Does he go lamer when starting out, and warm out of the lameness as he is driven, or is it the reverse?

Has he a splint, thickened tendons, ringbone, or any other visible blemish on that leg?

Examine him carefully, answer above questions, and give any further information as to the history of the case, characteristics, symptoms, etc., that may assist in diagnosing the case, and we will advise you as to the lameness, treatment, etc., in next week's issue.

P. K.—I have a good work horse that stopped eating a few days ago. He feels sick and breathes fast. I think he has the lung fever. What is best to do for him? [Answer Keep him warm. Let him have plenty of fresh air (without any draughts). Blanket him, give him warm bran mashes, some good hay, no grain. Apply some mustard and water (to make a paste) to his sides. Rub it well into the skin and wash it off with warm water after about half an hour. Dry him thoroughly and blanket him well. Give him a dram of quinine to a winegiassful of whisky three times a day. If the horse be valuable, call in a veterinary surgeon immediately, as other complications may arise which an ordinary horseman could not detect, such as pleurisy, liver or heart complications, etc., and which would need special treatment according to the existing complication.

Thrifty heifers from well bred cows if allowed the chance will breed too young. It is true that early breeding tends to make better dairy performers, but excessive early breeding does not make good cows but tends the other way. To establish the milking habit milking must not only be commenced early in life, but the heifer must be milked for a full milking period and not be allowed to dry up early, and if she goes dry after a short time she will establish that practice as a habit.

SALE OF GRANDLY BRED YEARLINGS

FROM MENLO STOCK FARM.

KILLIP & CO., Auctioneers, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

AT SALESYARD, CORNER MARKET ST. AND VAN NESS AVE.

Monday, Novem'r Twenty=First

AT 7:30 P. M., BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

FIVE FILLIES BY ORMONDE,
THREE FILLIES BY ST. CARLO,
ONE FILLY BY MORELLO.

The Pick of the Foals for 1897.

Chestnut filly by imp. Ormonde, foaled 1897, from Mu'a, a mare bred at Palo Alto, sired by Wildidle, out of imp. Mutiny, daughter of Adventurer, by Newminster and Muta, by The Duke, son of Stockwell. This is said by every person who has seen her to be the grandest-looking filly ever foaled in California. She is not only large and well developed, but strong and compactly built, and with every appearance of a race animal.

Bay filly by imp. Ormonde, from Geneva, by Fonso, a Kentucky Derby winner, and sire of Frank K., Monte Fonso, Rudolph and many others; second dam Welsbaden, by Baden Baden, another Kentucky Derby winner; third dam Diana, by imp. Glencoe; fourth dam by Lexington, and on to the fourteenth bam by Rattle. This is a very fine-looking filly.

Chestnut filly by imp. Ormonde, from Bud, by Glenmore; second dam Blossom, by Ballinkeel, and so on to the twentieth dam—a natural Barb mare. Bud, the dam of this filly, is the dam of Cadeau; Blossom, the second dam, produced Glenrose and White Wings; Rosette, the third dam, was the dam of five or six winners, and her fourth dam, a mare by Stockwell, was the dam of several.

Bay filly by imp. Ormonde, from Santa Cruz, the dam of St. Cuthbert. Santa Cruz is by Donhle Cross, sire of Gnido, her dam Eliza (dam of Monowai), by Norfolk; next dam Mary Wade (dam of Joe Shelby), by Woodburn; next dam Viola (dam of Ironwood), by imp. Knight of St George, and so on, every dam to the seventh having foaled a winner.

Bay filly by imp Ormonde, from Libhertifiibhet (dam of Valencienne), by Bullion; second dam Flihbertifiibbet, by Kingfisher; third dam imp. Filagree, by Stockwell; fourth dam Extasy, by Touchstone, fifth dam Miss Wilfred, by Lottery, etc. This filly is also from a line of producing dams.

The St. Carlos are three in number, a chestnut filly from Prince Idle, daughter of Prince of Norfolk and Lizzie Idle, by Wildidle; a chestnut filly from Bessie W. (dam of St. Philip), by imp. Darebin, second dam Glendora (dam of Dorian), by imp. Glenelg, and a chestnut filly by Ormonde or St. Carlo (the latter given), out of Moonlight (dam of Ajax), by Princeton; second dam Simnon, by War Dance; third dam Saratoga, by imp. Knight of St. George. These fillies by St. Carlo are all extra fine lookers.

The filly by the great Morello is from Kosciulottie, and is a strong made handsome miss.

This consignment from Mr. Macdonough's Menlo Stack Farm, contains the first of the get of Ormonde that he has put on the market

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY!

IN BUYING A VAPOR BATH Get one with a steel frame that stands on the floor. Men whose success in whatever they engage depends on perfect physical condition, will be interested in the claims made for The Niagara Vapor Bath Cabinet.

A hunter, John C. Bayler, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I began to feel as though my happy hunting days were over. I thought I was getting old, my joints were getting stiff, and a day's outing after game always needed another day to rest up in. Since I am using The Niagara Vapor Bath, I feel like a new man. It keeps me limbered up and in good shape for work or sport."

The Niagara Vapor Bath, if used regularly, keeps a man in the most perfect physical condition, keeps his system aglow, his weight normal, his head free and clear, his muscles pliant and elastic, and not only prevents, but also cures, some of the most stubborn cases of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout and completely eradicates all the ailments arising from over-indulgence in liquor or food.

Get one with a thermometer attachment. Don't go it blind—a bath that is too hot or not hot enough will be of no benefit to you.

Get one that you can return and have your money back if not satisfactory in every way.

ORMONDE YEARLINGS.

No sale of thoroughbred yearlings ever held in the United States has drawn the attention and interest which has been aroused by the announcement that the yearlings by the great Ormonde will be sold in this city one week from Monday next by Killip & Co., that old reliable firm of live stock auctioneers which has sold nearly ninety per cent of all the first-class horses ever put under the hammer in California. From every portion of the United States where race horses are owned or bred have come inquiries about the aristocratic young fillies sired by the horse of the century, and it looks as though the California breeders who are looking with covetous eyes upon them, will have to meet the bids of some of the best buyers and most enthusiastic breeders of the East if they keep the young maidens here on the golden shore. There are only five of them, but all are out of grandly bred mares, and for looks, size and conformation, are a credit to that grand "horse of the century," who outlooked and outran every horse in England that was ever pitted against him.

"What will they bring?" was asked one of the best posted horse dealers in America the other day, and the answer was, "I don't know, but I would like the opportunity of securing the lot at the price they will be sold for, and taking them to England to be resold. I am absolutely certain that those five fillies would sell for more money than any five yearlings by one horse ever brought at a sale in Europe, and some mighty high prices have been paid there."

These fillies are the very cream of the year in America. The first one to be led into the ring, Orthia out of Muta, by Wildidle will create a sensation. Muta won the Ladies Stakes, Vestal Stakes, The California Derby and California Oaks and produced Charlemagne. All of her dams back to the seventh have produced winners and good ones too, and most of them were winners themselves. Orthia is probably the grandest looking filly in America of her age.

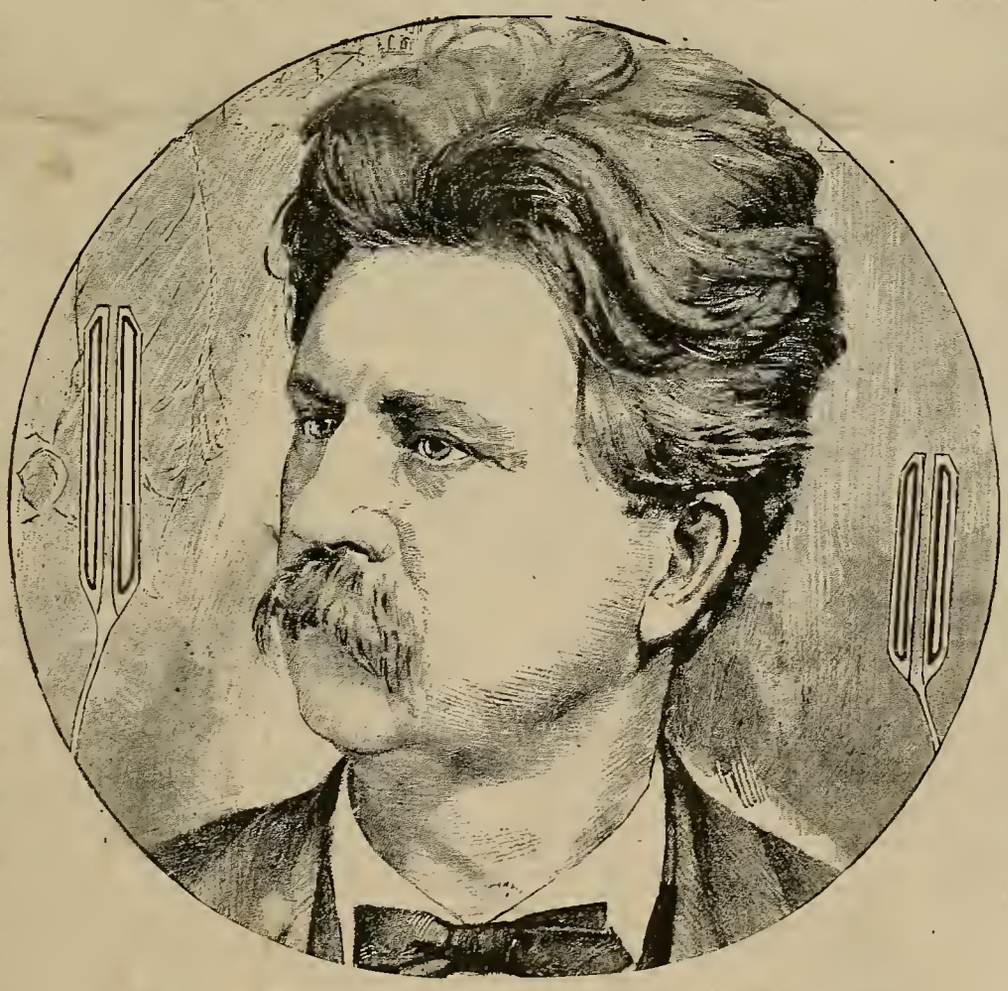
Oriva, from the young mare Geneva, by Fonso, is another high class beauty with all the appearance of a race mare about her now, and looks like a winner.

Gold Lace, from the producing mare Libbertiflibbet, which is the dam of Valencienne, Gibbitiflibbet and Joy is a handsome filly and from a great family of race horses and producing dams.

Rose of Ormonde is out of the dam of Cadeau, and Oremus is from the dam of St. Cuthbert. Both are grandly bred and highly formed young damsels.

While the five daughters of Ormonde are the piece de resistance of the sale, there are three fillies by St. Carlo and one by Morello that will attract considerable attention themselves, as they are grandly bred and splendid individuals. The sale is to take place at the corner of Market street and Van Ness Avenue and will begin at 7:30 P. M. under cover and by electric light. It will be the great feature of the winter sales of 1898–99, and there is certain to be the largest attendance ever seen in San Francisco at an auction sale of thoroughbreds.

Racing at Ingleside begins next Monday.



HENRY T. GAGE—Governor Elect of California.

Who Is Pledged to Restore the Appropriations for the District Fairs.

THE WEEKS' RACING.

The second week of the California Jockey Clubs winter meeting ends to-day and on Monday the scene of operations will be moved across the bay to the Pacific Coast Jockey Clubs beautiful grounds at Ingleside.

Since our last report there has been nothing very remarkable about the racing at Oakland. The sport has been clean, (that might be considered remarkable, however, on some tracks), the weather has been delightful, and the racing of a fair average class. The favorites have met with defeat oftener than during the previous week.

On Saturday last the feature of the day was the California Maiden Stakes of the value of $1,000. The fact that it was a stake and of more value than any other race on the day's card was its main feature, and the ease with which Midlove won it the other.

On Tuesday there was no racing, it being election day, and every official of the track and all the patrons took a day off to vote for Gage for Governor. When the gates opened on Wednesday everybody turned up, smiling over the victory, and as five favorites won form players went home happy.

Thursday the Naglee Selling Stakes were run and the big end of the $1,250 which the stake was worth went to Moringa, a gelded son of Sobrante, that was purchased for $35 as a yearling.

The dearth of good jockeys continues, and any boy that can sit astride of a horse is spoken to respectfully in California at the present time, while one that can ride any kind of a race is in demand.

The attendance keeps up and there have been seventeen regular books on during the week.

Horses and owners are continually arriving from the East, so that by the first of December the fields will be much improved.

A New York exchange says that some years ago the number of fatal accidents that occurred from careless or furious driving by boys led to the adoption of an ordinance prohibiting the driving of a tradesman's wagon by any person under sixteen years of age. It was a very wholesome and needful ordinance.

THE GRAND CIRCUIT IN 1899.

Some Suggestions for Fairs to Be Held in California Next Year.

The voters of California have selected a Governor and a Legislature pledged to the restoration of the district fairs, and it is not too soon to begin looking over the grounds and preparing for a grand revival of prosperity all along the line. If the Directors of all the principal agricultural societies will meet this month and announce officially that a fair will be held during the summer of 1899, and that purses ranging from $500 to $1,000 will be given for harness horses, and liberal premiums for agricultural products and well bred stock of all kinds, there will be a revival of these industries before January 1st, that will almost amount to a boom.

The election of Mr. Gage for Governor had not been announced twenty-four hours before a dozen owners had said, in effect, to the writer: "I will get ready to put some horses in training now, and if the district associations will give liberal purses I will train all the likely ones I have." There is no doubt but a splendid circuit can be arranged next year that will be extensively patronized and profitable to the associations. The time is ripe for a revival of the fairs that will put them on a higher plane and more prosperous footing than ever. To do this the directors must make an effort to give as high-class fairs as possible. There should be good liberal premiums for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, and for agricultural and horticultural products, particular attention being paid to providing premiums for live stock and products suitable for profitable culture in the district where the fair is given. The aim of a district fair should be to give an exhibition that will interest and attract the attention and patronage of as many residents of the district as possible. The premium list should be prepared with the idea of encouraging the breeding and cultivation of the best, and rewarding those breeders and tillers of the soil who accomplish these results. It should be so arranged that farmers, horticulturists, stock breeders and manufacturers will find it profitable to make exhibits of their products—not a prospective profit but an immediate and monetary one. The person who breeds the best stallion, mare, bull, cow ram, ewe, boar or sow in his district is entitled to a larger premium than has heretofore been awarded him by the managers of fairs, and the same is true of the person who raises the best wheat or fruit or manufactures the best wagon or plow or other useful implement. Make the fair an attraction that will draw the farmers, fruit growers and stock breeders, and it will be a success.

The speed contests, which are always one of the leading features of the district fair, should also be conducted on the same high plane. None of the money appropriated by the State can be used for the races, and this is right. The entrance money, the gate receipts and the amount received for privileges are sufficient to pay all the purses and expenses of a good race meeting, if the agricultural exhibit is of sufficient high class to draw the people to town. They take in the races as an annual diversion that they have the opportunity to enjoy but one week in the year.

In making up the program of the races this year there should be an earnest effort to bring together the best horses in the State. With liberal purses, and return to the old system of auction pools and mutuals, with judges in the stand who are selected for their knowledge of racing and their reputation for firmness and honesty, instead of for their popularity in the district on their imposing presence, there is no reason why the racing feature should not be as popular and as satisfactory as it ever was in the history of the State. The principal thing for the associations to keep in mind is to so prepare their programs, and conduct their races, that the horse owners will see more profit in winning the purses than in trying to beat the pool box. Give all who wish the opportunity of placing a wager on their favorite horse, but do not pander to the gambling element, nor make it the most conspicuous feature. Make the fair high class, aim to please the respectable portion of the community by giving them a good program of honest racing each day that will be finished by 5:30 P. M., make the pavilion a place of entertainment in the evening, and there need be no fear of the result. There is not a district in California but can give a profitable fair in 1899 with the aid of the appropriation that is now certain to be restored, provided the fair is properly managed.

YARRUM'S THEORY.

"Yarrum," the well-known correspondent of the Horse Review, has a most interesting article in last week's issue of that journal, in which he takes the ground that the double-gaited horse, that is, the horse that can be trained to go at either gait, will develop into a faster trotter, and do it quicker than the horse that has but one gait. There is no doubt but many fast trotters are double-gaited. Watch the scoring in any trotting race where there is an average size field, and more than one of the contestants will be seen jogging back on the lateral gait. The expression is often heard: "This colt was a little mixed-gaited at first, but I like them that way, as they generally go faster when they find out what one wants them to do and are properly balanced." Down at the closing out sale of the Corbitt horses, two or three of the colts led beside a saddle horse would mix up a little when first started off, and an old trainer there remarked: "The majority of the best ones that ever left this farm were double-gaited and could be trained to go at either gait." But here is what "Yarrum" says on the subject:

"I believe that a mixed-gaited colt, even one that changes his gait every few feet and has no natural speed whatever, has a better chance to learn to trot better than 2:10 than a colt that can do nothing but trot and can step a 2:40 gait the first time he is hitched. Of course, any horse with four legs is double gaited, in a way, but the double-gaited horse I have reference to is the one that shows right from the start that he can go either gait; and, of course, there are several different kinds of the latter sort; some are more teachable than others, and some worthless horses have been truly double-gaited. I will admit, too, that the double-gaited horse wants expert handling and that it is an easy matter to spoil him, and that a rattle-headed or an unbalanced double-gaited horse is a very poor piece of property, but all that certainly cuts no figure as against the evidence showing that there are thousands of horses in training that have but one natural harness gait and a much smaller number that possess the ability to go both harness gaits, and that among the latter division are the most precocious baby trotters that have ever lived, the speediest trotters that have ever lived, the steadiest trotters that have ever lived, the best-gaited trotters that have ever lived, the fastest trotters that ever lived, and the greatest all-around race horses that have ever lived.

It has been demonstrated over and over again that the fact that a double-gaited colt shows a decided preference for one gait does not prove that he can go any better or make speed any faster at that gait than he can at the other. For instance, if a colt prefers the trot in the pasture and only takes to the pace once a month, he will make speed at the pace, if balanced and trained to go that gait, just as fast or faster than he would have made it at the trot, and for that reason any so-called trotter that paces a few steps of his own free will be generally considered a double-gaited horse, and any such horse could have been balanced or trained at either gait.

At the close of the season of 1896 I printed evidence to show that the best horses of that year were double-gaited, and at the close of 1897 I showed that the best horses of that year were built the same way, consequently I do not think it will be necessary at this time for me to mention any but the best of 1898.

We will start with Bingen, 2:06¾, the fastest trotter of the year and the fastest stallion of the year. He is a double-gaited horse by the double-gaited sire, May King, and as a two-year-old he wore hobbles a few times to square him away as a trotter, and even now he sometimes shifts to a pace and shows great speed at that gait. I have seen both him and his sire pace when they were rigged to trot on several different occasions. If, as they say, the members of the family he belongs to are seldom double-gaited, is it not possible that the qualities that make him double-gaited have something to do with his superiority?

The second best stallion of the year (and many would call him the best) is Directum Kelly, 2:08¼, and as everybody knows he is a double gaited horse by the double-gaited sire Direct.

The two fastest trotting mares of the year, Diona, 2:09¼, and Mattie Patterson, 2:09½, are both double-gaited, and I have seen both of them pace when they were rigged to trot. Mattie carries lots of weight on her front feet to keep her on a trot, and Diona can go one gait as easy as she can the other. Is it not possible that one of the reasons why these mares are great is that they are double gaited?

The best gelding of the year is John Nolan 2:08, and he is also the largest money winner of the year. It is a matter of history that he paced a mile in 2.18 as a two-year-old, and he has shown on several occasions this season that he has not forgotten how to pace yet. They say that there are not many double-gaited horses in the Prodigal family, but would it not be a good thing if there were more of them?

The fast gelding Nico 2:08¾, that is touted as the coming champion, is a double gaited gelding by the double-gaited sire Arion. Mr. Titer, the gentleman who developed Nico, says that he can pace just as fast as he can trot. They say that there are not many double-gaited horses in the Electioneer family that Nico is a member of, but does it not look as if that family would produce more Nico's if more of them could go both gaits?

Peter the Great 2:12½, the winner of the Kentucky Futurity, was the best three-year-old of the year. Mr. Johnston, his trainer, informed me that he was obliged to use as much as eighteen ounces on the colt's front feet to keep him from pacing during his early training, and that he had often shifted into a pace in his work, consequently Peter the Great is a double gaited colt. The California-bred three-year-old, John A. McKerron, that equaled Peter the Great's record of 2:12½, and showed that he possessed as much speed as any trotter of his age that ever lived, is also double gaited. His trainer, Mr. Cecil, informed me that McKerron rather preferred to pace when he first took him in hand. Is it not possible that the superiority of these two three-year-olds is largely due to their being double-gaited?

Take the two-year-olds. The best one of the year was, probably, The Merchant 2:20, as he won the two-year-old division of the Kentucky Futurity and beat all the good ones. Scott McCoy, his trainer, tells me that The Merchant would always pace, and in his first race I saw him switch over into a pace in scoring. Crystalline 2:18¼, the winner of the $7,550 division of the Review $30,000 Combination Futurity Purse, like The Merchant, is also double gaited and can pace fast without training. These two colts are the two largest winners of the year, and yet there were hundreds of other colts in training that were not double-gaited. How do you account for that?

You will notice that I have not simply picked out a few good ones as examples, but have taken the few greatest horses of the year, and according to my way of reasoning, the facts that I have brought out in regard to these horses prove that all breeders that are trying to breed natural trotters or natural pacers that can go but one gait are on the wrong track. Space forbids a further decision on the subject at this time, but it is my intention to take it up again, and in the meantime I will be pleased to publish the views of any-one else who has given the subject any thought.

A Horse Parade at Watsonville.

A very successful horse parade was given in the streets of Watsonville one day last week, alike gratifying to its managers, the exhibitors and the spectators, says the Pajaronian of that city. A strong showing was made of track, road and draft horses, and the parade was witnessed by a large number of people. The initial showing was a success, and it is proposed to make it an annual event in this valley. E. A. Hall, Dr. P. K. Watters, J. H. Goulding, E. K. Shelby, P. Jessen and J. S. Watts were the managers of the exhibition. Prizes were awarded as follows:

Best standard-bred stallion—First prize, Microbe, owned by Dr. P. K. Watters and P. J. Thompson; second prize, Valentine, owned by P. Jessen.

Best standard-bred mare with colt—Dr. Watters' Delnado first prize; L. P. Helmer's bay mare, second prize.

Best standard-bred mare or gelding, any age—Dr. Watters' Delnado, first prize; J. H. Goulding's May W. second prize.

Best standard-bred stallion with family of three to five colts—Watters & Thompson's Microbe, first prize; E. W. Davies' Con Brio, second prize.

Best ladies' driving horse—Thos. Kennedy's black mare (driven by Miss Pearl Nevins), first prize; Mrs. P. J. Thompson's black horse (driven by the owner), second prize.

Smallest span of horses—Miss Hazel Watters.

Best span of carriage horses—Thos. Kennady.

Best single surrey horse—R. W. Mann, first prize; L. A. Moody, second prize.

Best four-horse team—Henry Stoffers.

Best six-horse team—Chas. W. Rowe.

Best saddle pony—L. Oksen, first prize; Frank Perry, second prize.

Best yearling in any class—R. W. Mann, first prize; Andrew Tuck, second prize.

The 2:05 Class.

Twenty five horses have gone in 2:05 or better in harness, 22 of the number being pacers, while the other three are trotters. Six of these horses made their best records in actual races, all being pacers. Directly, the six-year-old son of Direct, by Director, with a mile in 2:03¼, at Louisville heads the list of new ones, and now ranks fourth among the harness performers of the world, only Star Pointer, 1:59½; John R. Gentry, 2:00½; Joe Patchen, 2:01¼, and Robert J., 2:01½, having beaten his time. The only stallion that is the sire of more than one in the 2:05 list, Baron Wilkes, taking that honor with Bumps, 2:04¼ and Rubanstein, 2:05. The 2:05 list is now as follows, those marked being trotters, while the others are pacers:

An October 25th dispatch from Nevada, Mo., says: "A remarkable case of long life without food or drink developed here yesterday, when a horse, supposed to have been stolen from F. T. Letton the night of September 25th, was found alive in one of the stalls at the fair grounds. It had got loose from its owner and strayed into the fair grounds, where it was shut up in a stall by one of the fair managers, who supposed it belonged to people camped there. When found it had eaten all the pine timber in reach, and though greatly emaciated, was able to walk. It had subsisted without food or drink the whole time."

American Methods Beat.

As a horse loving Englishman "Kelston," of New York Telegraph, has in his time seen much of breeding, training and racing methods in the birthplace of modern racing and is also familiar with American methods. As a result of his observations he has written some comparisons touching the handling of broodmares and young stock that is decidedly interesting. Some of his conclusions are here produced.

"While I would award the palm to the English breeder in the matter of generally showing more intelligence and looking further ahead in the matter of mating his mares than the American breeder, there I think the superiority in management ends, as while it costs the English breeder at least three times as much for the actual keep of mares and the rearing of young stock for market the system in vogue among English breeders in the treatment of mares and foals is much more on the artificial order than is the case in the most successful stud farms in America.

"In the big breeding establishments here the stock generally is much more out in the open, and in the care of mares in foal I know from personal observation that even in cold and stormy weather foaling mares, equally well cared for in the matter of feeding, will show better results year in and year out than mares that are housed twelve hours out of the twenty-four from the beginning of October until the deisies are in bloom the following spring.

"In the raising of yearlings for market the American breeder is, as a general thing, away ahead of his English brother. As, instead of shutting them up in small paddocks, they have plenty of range, and from early in April troops of young things can be seen gamboling together and racing with one another before they are four months old; and after weaning time from twelve to a score or more will be turned out all together to wrestle and race themselves to a standstill.

"The result is that the bone is hard, the tendons and sinews elastic and clean, while all of the vital organs are thus kept in good condition. It is this system of rearing yearlings that enables so many of them to stand the strain put on them in yearling trials, and I notice that the more range they have had before leaving the stud farm the better they stand these early trials, and also that they come to hand earlier as two-year-olds.

"The average English raised yearling would never be heard of as a racehorse if put through the mill, as is the custom here, in two or three months after leaving the sales ring. Many instances indeed have come under my notice here of youngsters being tried out a quarter of a mile in three weeks after leaving the sales ring. In England a trainer would be reckoned crazy who would attempt trying even so early as the end of August. In fact, as a rule, he knows but little of the running abilities of his young division until the spring when they are two-year-olds, which is better than knowing so much of them as yearlings.

"But what I went to say is that the average English yearling could not be got into the same condition of fitness to try for the reason that they have not had the liberty and range, and have also in most instances been forced and fattened, the average English studmaster being daft on the subject of having sleek coated and lusty yearlings to lead into the salesring. It is this pampering of young thoroughbreds on the other side which enables the American bred one to hold his own as well as he does.

"The English breeder and trainer have so many other advantages that if they were to adopt the more common sense plan as to less pampering and more range and roughing it their horses would be sounder of limb with better constitutions, and there would be fewer bad winded ones among them, and the improvement all around would be most apparent.

"From what I have seen in the two countries this is the one thing that is working injury to the thoroughbred in England, and were it not that trainers go so slow and are so careful in the handling of yearlings, there would be far more unsound horses in England than there are, and the proportion is as three to one in this country, which in my opinion is directly the result of coddling and lack of range in the first fifteen months of their existence.

"In the matter of the handling and treatment of stallions, the system generally in this country is more on natural and common sense lines on the best regulated stud farms. While the stallions are well taken care of, they are not fussed and babied with, but are allowed in the proper season to have plenty of liberty in roomy paddocks. The result of this natural way of treating a horse doing stud duty is that vicious or bad-tempered stallions are rare indeed in this country, while in England the opposite is the case, which is little to be wondered at considering what they have to put up with in the way of fussing and cleaning, while to let a stallion, especially any of the swells of the harem, have his liberty in a paddock where he could roll in a mud puddle would be to the average swell English studsman a shock he would not get over in a hurry.

"It is this more natural way of treating thoroughbreds generally which is responsible for American horses being so much more free from all sorts of vice which is common in both stallions and horses in training in England, and while the breeders and trainers of America may be able to learn in some ways from their kin across the sea, they can give them points in the raising of yearlings and in the handling of stallions."

Albert Edwards' Horses.

The following account of a visit to Sandringham Stud owned by the Prince of Wales, is taken from the London Field of Oct. 15th:

The breeding of live stock is carried on at the Prince of Wales' Norfolk residence on a tolerably extensive scale. Shorthorns and sheep, shire horses, heckneys, and blood stock are all reared at Sandringham, and with no little success, though at first sight, perhaps, the locality would scarcely strike one as well adapted for the production of the thoroughbred. The Sandringham estate, however, which now extends to about 12,000 acres, includes a variety of soils and it is to the advantage of horse breeding that limestone is found. On Monday last it was that a small party of journalists visited Sandringham, at the invitation of the Prince of Wales, to look over the stud farm devoted to the thoroughbreds.

Persimmon is, of course, the central figure of the Sandringham stud, and evident honor is paid to him. Outside his spacious box is a brass plate setting forth his victories and the amount won by him in stakes, the sum representing (including second money) about £35 000.

Persimmons has developed into a remarkably fine horse—his appearance, as well as that of the mares and foals, reflecting the highest credit on Walker, the stud groom. The horse's coat is just breaking now, and that, of course, makes a little difference, but most other horses are in the same boat St. Simon, as every one knows, is a grand horse, but he is unquestionably light of bone. His son, Persimmon, on the other hand, is a horse of great substance, a characteristic which is doubtless due to the coarser Melbourne blood nicking with the lighter Vedette strain. At all events, Persimmon is a grand looking horse, and as his subscription list is full for the next two or three years at 300 guineas, it is evident that breeders think highly of him. His Derby victory is not yet forgotten; in fact, few will fail to remember his final tussle with St. Frusquin, or the scene which followed the hoisting of Persimmon's number, while the popularity of the royal colors was evinced later on when the horse won the Ascot Cup.

The yearlings we did not see, as they have been sent to Newmarket to Marsh's place to be trained for their engagements; but the brood mares were on view, and they are a very nice collection. The first to be looked over was Fanchette by Speculum—Reticence, the dam of Versailles and Eventail. Perdite II. is a Hampton mare, naturally an object of interest, for is she not the dam of the famous Persimmon and Florizel II. (the latter is at Newmarket)? She was foaled in 1881, and is beginning to show signs of age, but, barring accidents, she should be good for several more foals yet. Merrie Lessie was on the sick list, for she was unlucky enough to slip twins to St. Simon about ten days before our visit. Before she became the property of the Prince of Wales she threw Grig. Fosco and Jest, and possibly she was not dear at the 3,500 guineas Lord Marcus Beresford gave for her on behalf of the Prince of Wales. Merrie Lassie, like Laodamia, Pierette and Sweet Muscat, have been put to Persimmon, and, with ordinary luck, the produce should be worth some money, either for racing or stud purposes. Persimmon, it will be remembered is home bred, so it is only right and proper that he should now stand where his babyhood was passed. The foals are eight in number, and several of them show great promise. The colt foal by St. Simon—Merrie Lassie is the favorite, and a good-looking youngster he is, with the best of shoulders. Next to him, perhaps, comes the filly foal by Ladas—Unrefined.

Clawson's Play Beat Charentus.

Some day or other when he is brought up with a round turn by the Stewards for not riding his horses out, Jockey Clawson will realize that, while it may be pleasant sport to indulge another rider, and then beat him out, that it is not what the public or the racing officials care to see. Clawson tried this trick once too often yesterday, very much to the cost of the backers of the favorite, Charentus, and although it was apparent that Clawson was not criminal in his intent, that fact nevertheless failed to appease the wrath of those who bet on Chereutus.

The latter was the favorite in the mile-and-forty-yard race while Frohman, was ridden by ten-year-old "Johnnie" Daly, had only a poor support, Young Daly, who a few days ago beat his cousin "Danny" Maher with Frohman, took Frohman to the front, but Charentus was pounds better than the leader, and could have caught him at any stage of the race, but Clawson thought it a good idea to indulge the midget jockey, so he rated along through the stretch, acting as if he was trying in vain to pass him. It was a fatal mistake to make with a jockey of Master Daly's training, for every scion of the family that has produced "Father Bill" and "Brother Mike" is a born horseman and knows about horses and the ways of jockeys almost from the cradle. Instead of fooling Daly, Clawson was being fooled by the midget, and when it came to a final drive, in which Clawson felt confident, Master Daly, with rare judgment, managed to keep his mount going long enough to win by a head.—N. Y. Times.

THE Kentucky Derby of 1900, entries to which closed October 15th, received 130 nominations. J. W. Schorr & Son have nine entries, George C. Bennett, nine; John E. Madden, eight; W. F. Schultze, seven, and George J. Long, six. Notwithstanding the invincible determination of the Arkansas Sage, W. A. McGuigan, to retire forever and ever from the turf, he is represented by a Pursehearer colt and an Albert colt. Barney Schreiber is in with a colt by Boundless—Parolee and one by Foul Shot—Gratitude, home breds both. The Clark Stakes received 119 entries and the Oaks 83.

EX-STARTER H. D. BROWN has bought Merry Day, 3, by Eolus—Mermaid and Annie Payne, 2, by Jim Gray—Vigilette. Merry Day is fast but unsound, but Brown thinks he can cure him and induce him to be a breed winner.

Polo in England.

A writer in Baily's Magazine has the following in regard to the game of polo and the ponies used in playing it:

The two points, that polo is a country game, and not beyond the reach of men of moderate means being established, its progress as a national sport has been rapid. Some people, I know, will not allow that polo is a sport, but I think it will be admitted that it is so near akin to it, as at all events to be the link between sport and play. In a hunting country, polo connects the close of one season with the opening of the next, and provides a school for horsemanship which is unrivalled. To reach the higher ranks of polo players, a certain skill in horsemanship is absolutely necessary even for the man who can afford to buy his ponies ready made, and for the country players of moderate means who must choose, buy and train his ponies for himself, polo is unsurpassed as an education in the higher arts of horsemanship.

The polo pony market is likely to encourage men to take great pains with the training of ponies. Every season shows us more and more that no care is wasted that is expended on the careful training of polo ponies. Mr. E. D. Miller told the Daily Mail the other day that the chief cause of the improvement of polo was to be found in the superior training received by the modern pony compared with that of bygone days, and he spoke what we all know to be the literal truth. Improved ponies make improved polo, and faster games increase the demand and the price for the finished article. It is the usefulness of a pony in a good game, being as the phrase goes, up to tournament form, which brings high prices.

The supply of ponies still remains a difficulty, but in spite of this the Arab pony has gone down in favor and has hardly ever been seen in first-class matches. Some good Argentine ponies and useful Americans, too, we have, but still the desire of every one is to own a really first-class English pony.

Horse Racing.

How far back the history of horse racing dates no one can tell. In discussing the subject, an historian says that it has probably been coeval with the possession of the horse by man.

From the Persians the Greeks perhaps derived the secret recess which they held at the Olympian, Pythian, Isthmian and Nemean games which were conducted with clumsily built chariots, without springs, exceedingly difficult to drive, the course involving as much danger as skill. The charm of the Greek races apart from the interest in the victor, consisted of the excitement of seeing the chariots strike and shatter each other and the horses tumbling on and killing the fallen drivers, in which the whole populace of refined Athenians delighted.

The Roman races were much like those of the Greek; prizes were given to the victors. The horses were entered thirty days in advance and were trained; the jockeys were in four colors, green, red, white and sea color, to which Deminitien, the Roman emperor, added yellow and purple. The jockeys or drivers were paid large amounts or princely sums in their own coin. It is related of the sixth century that the winner of a horse race received for a prize the hand of a princess. From the twelfth to the fourteenth centuries feudal grants were awarded at annual and regularly established races, but not until the reign of Louis XV was it that the history of horse racing in France really began.

Modern horse racing began practically with James I. of England, who inaugurated regular running games at his palace. Feeding and training of the horse and instructing of the jockeys then became the custom. Down through the reign of monarchs the sport in horse racing was encouraged and the value in high-bred horses increased. But this was in the runner, with the harness horses the sport was confined until a comparatively recent period exclusively to America, and it takes not even a reader to know that history of the sport is almost part of the people.

Here in 1859 Flora Temple had a record of 2:19½ placed to her credit, a record which sat not only the people of America agog, but those of continental Europe as well, down through time, until the great horse "Star Pointer" eclipsed all previous performances, the record of the harness has been one grand procession of merit.

Bookies Have Won in New York.

Never in the history of racing in these parts have the opportunities for the bookies been more satisfactory. A season long prices have ranged low and business brisk. Upsets have been frequent and losses rare. The plunger and the piker have contributed almost daily. The best judges of form have found their figures a delusion and a snare. The rail birds, the handicappers, the backers of stable information, owners, trainers, in fact, bettors of all description have gone the one way. The bookies who have stepped down and out must be classed as the unselfish ones. They have won enough money to satisfy themselves, and will enjoy their winter's rest at the expense of the public, who have, but with few exceptions, lost heavily.

One need only to make a tour of "the line" to find evidence of all this prosperity. The very natures of the pencilers seemed changed. They are positively polite in their treatment. Errors are corrected with profuse apologies, and it is not an unusual thing to find one giving a regular customer a shade better price than the one quoted. All this is, of course, pleasing, but there are reasons for it. It is a civility that has been paid for.—New York Evening Journal.

UNCLE DAN HONIG admits that he made a mistake in shipping his stable East last summer. He says the only good stroke of business he did was to trade Zacatosa for Umbrella, which, however, came near turning out a bad bargain, as Umbrella was very sick on the way out here and nearly died. Dan has nine horses in training at present, and says they will be heard from before long.

Daly May Race in England.

Whether Hamburg has retired permanently or not is a question which was eagerly discussed among horsemen during the week. Trainer W. Lakeland returned from England, where he had been on a mysterious mission, and when seen at Aqueduct dropped a few hints that were interpreted as signifying that he may take a string of horses over there for next year's campaign. He expressed belief in the ability of high-class American thoroughbreds to hold their own among the Britishers, and as he is supposed to be acting in the interests of Marcus Daly, the situation is summed up as signifying that the "Copper King" will play a strong hand abroad next season with Hamburg as his trump card. Hamburg was retired so abruptly after winning the Brighton Cup that it was feared he had run his best race, but it is now surmised that, if he winters well, his retirement to the stud will be deferred for another year. These statements are, of course, hearsay, as all the connections of the stable, especially Trainer Lakeland, are proverbial for their reticence. Should Hamburg train on and cross the ocean he would have a royal chance in the big English cup events and handicaps, but in any case the best wishes of American horsemen are with the rumored international enterprise of Marcus Daly. He has invested fortunes with small returns on the turf here and it is just possible that a change of venue might bring a change of luck.

Ir Bertolacci & Co. would send up country and hire some shepherder to ride their horses they would have a possible chance of winning a race. They had a good chance of winning the mile dash with Fleming Thursday with any rider but H. Smith up. It is even doubtful if Smith could ride in a boy car.

Opportunities for Horsemen.

The election of Henry T. Gage, as Governor of California, signifies plainly that we will have District Fairs in California for the next four years, at least, and District Fairs means racing as well as the awarding of premiums for the finest horses of every breed. Nothing has occurred during the past four years that has done more to inspire hope and confidence in the minds of our stock breeders than this election, and the man or men gifted with foresight, who do not start in at once to get the very best horses of every breed, will live to regret it.

At the Occidental Horse Exchange, as noticed in the advertisement, there is to be a number of sales of the very best bred thoroughbreds ever offered in California. Next Tuesday evening, Auctioneer Lowry, will be calling for bids on as fine a lot of yearlings as ever entered a sales ring. They are by imp. Trentola, imp. Clieveden and Morello, out of great producing mares, such as Catalina (dam of Randwick and Centenella) by Wheatley, second dam Carrie, is dam of Marin (the mother of Martinet, Seaside, Mermaid and Marinette), Dare, Sam Leake, Sobrante and Sonoma; Rebecca, dam of Glorianne, Misfortune, Fortuna, Darnilla, etc., second dam Electra, dam of Fitz James, Hidalgo, etc., all well known race horses; Mistake, dam of Gilead, Hermitage, Mistletoe, Kildare, Mystery and Glen Ellen, second dam, Katy Pease, the great four-mile champion and great broodmare, Mystery, by Three Cheers, out of Mistake; Centella, the game racing mare, half sister to Marigold, Mistake, Lurline, etc; Amanda, by Warwick, out of Mischief, by Thad Stevens, second dam, Katy Pease; Arethusa, dam of Phoebe Ann, Miss Lou, by Volturno, Glen Ellen, dam of De Bracey, Monterey and Modwena, Rosedale, dam of Manzanillo, Lady Clare, dam of Top Gallant and Rosedale; Marigold, the great four-miler, and Adelaida, by imp. Mariner, out of Mischief, by Thad Stevens.

The collection, although small, is replete with equine gems and as they have all been raised in a hilly country, they have splendid feet and limbs, and it can be truthfully said of them they are "sound in wind." The most successful racehorse owners in the world adhere to the theory that to get a great racehorse, one must look for the colt to have a great mother as well as a worthy father. Mr. Chase has been a life-long student of the breeding of racehorses and the success which has marked his efforts is attributed to this one fact.

His two horses, Del Norte and Dare, are to be sold as well as Pilot, the last Morello ever foaled and, by many horsemen, considered the best. Catalogues of this sale are ready, and may be obtained at this office. Special seats reserved for ladies. Everyone should attend this sale.

Big Stock and Grain Ranch for Sale.

One of the best stock and grain ranches consisting of 7,000 acres located in the Northern part of the State and near the Nevada line, is for sale. Of this ranch there are fully 3,000 acres of first-class alfalfa land of which between 500 and 600 acres are now planted in alfalfa. Fifteen hundred acres were cleared and plowed this season, a large traction engine (bought at the expense of $5,000) doing the work. The engine is used for all kinds of work about the ranch, such as sawing lumber, thrashing, plowing, clearing land, harvesting etc. and is an invaluable article on such a large property. 12,000 bushels of wheat were harvested this season from about 250 acres, which shows the great fertility of the soil. All of the land suitable for alfalfa can be irrigated from a reservoir now constructed on the property of large capacity and which covers about 160 acres with an average depth of about ten feet.

This lake is fed from springs and creeks and lies in a high valley of about 800 acres of excellent meadow land for hay purposes, all well fenced with cedar rail fences. The natural growth of vegetation on the unimproved land is sage brush and grasses indigenous to this portion of the country. About one-half of the tract is completely fenced and the crops are fenced in to five fields. There is upon the ranch about 500 head of stock, 50 head of work horses, several broodmares, 2 stallions and considerable young stock. The improvements consist of 2 large dwellings, large stock barns with extensive sheds, granaries, corrals, etc. One of the largest granaries in the State was built on the ranch this year with lumber sawed by the traction engine, the logs being procured on the property. There are all the necessary implements, wagons, etc., suitable for working such a large property. This ranch cost nearly $150,000, and can be now had for $80,000 upon easy payments; if preferred, 850 shares of the 1,300 shares of the stock can be purchased for $55,000 on easy payments, and the balance of the stock secured eventually at a low figure.

Fine Team at Auction.

Among the many excellent animals consigned to J. M. Nelson's auction sale at Alameda there is nothing more attractive than the matched team Percy G. and Princess Ida, by Pilot Prince, 2:22¾. This team should bring a fancy price, as they are young, strong, gentle and stylish. They would make a valuable team for a physician, as they attract attention in all directions whenever seen on the street. Since medical ethics forbids a doctor to advertise in newspapers, the best way to call attention to himself is by the possession of a handsome team. It will be noticed that successful physicians always avail themselves of this opportunity and nowadays the extent of a doctor's practice can often be largely determined by the team he drives. Any physician desiring an extra fine turnout should visit Alameda on Thursday, November 17th, and purchase this pair of horses. They have never been used except as a gentleman's private team and are well known in Golden Gate Park, having until very recently been used by Prof. E. P. Heald, of this city, as a favorite pair of roadsters among the many owned by him. They are consigned to the sale by Mr. F. H. Lombard, who is one of the best judges of horseflesh in San Francisco and who acquired this team with the express view of placing it in this sale, believing the public will appreciate a good article and be willing to pay a good price for such a high-class pair of horses.

E. J. Baldwin's Sale.

The marvelous success which attended the purchase of horses offered by E. J. Baldwin last season has prompted him to send his entire list of yearlings foaled at the Santa Anita Stock Farm to this city, and next Saturday evening Wm. G. Layng will sell these to the highest bidder at the Occidental Horse Exchange. These are sons and daughters of Emperor of Norfolk, Honduras (brother to Wheel of Fortune), Imp Duncombe, Amigo, Santiago, Verano, Cerito II, Imp. Chesterfield and imp. Islington out of Rosebud, by Grinstead, Violette by Grinstead, Seven Up by Casino, Florentena, by The Hook, Lady Bess, Santa Anita, by Virgil, Aritta, by Virgil, Belinda, by Belmont, Essenada III., Ruby Payne, Miss Baldwin, Jamie, Formoso, Gloretta by Lever, Florilla, by Rutherford, Leola, by Leed On, Santa Anita Belle, Orange Leaf, Savanna, Atlanta, etc.

These yearlings have never been handled, are just halter broke and are the finest ever foaled on this farm. Catalogues are issued and will be sent to any address on application to this office or at the Baldwin Hotel.

Since I have practiced my profession (Veterinary Surgeon) in this place I have had occasion to prescribe your "Gombault's Caustic Balsam," contrary to my usual method of practice, which is to avoid the use or recommendation of any proprietary medicine, but experience has shown me its value. When I came here in '93 the remedy was unknown. I think if I can make some arrangement with you for an exclusive agency for this community I can push the sale of the same in a way that will be highly satisfactory to you and profitable to myself. If you will come to some understanding with me, please advise me of the terms you are willing to give.

Saddle Notes.

COLONEL WHEELER was fired last week and will he turned out until he recovers.

NINE of Pat Dunne's horses arrived in good condition Paul Griggs was among the number.

COL. DAN showed great improvement over his last race, probably owing to the difference in jockeys.

JOCKEY GRAY is recovering very slowly; he was more seriously injured than was at first supposed.

AL COONEY reports that he has lost $3,100 since his return from tha East without cashing a ticket.

HENRY SHIELDS was sent down for the balance of the meeting for heating the harrier with Rainier.

JOHNNY COLEMAN is about the heaviest loser at the present meeting. He lost about $5,000 on Monday.

G. W. SCOTT, the owner of Kruna, and Lady Brittanic has added two fine looking Morello colts to his string.

W. P. FINE will have charge of the horses formerly trained hy the late Lee Shaner and which arrived from Montana last week.

SOME stranger in the betting ring mada a killing over the win of Morinel. He went up and down the line betting a hundred in every hook.

THE injory to Excursion, the Burns & Waterhouse two year-old which was cut down, was eo serious that the animal had to he destroyed.

COL. DAN BURNS was seen at the track Thursday and was all smiles; appaiently over tha result of the election, which want tha Colonel's way.

W. B. JENNINGS will hring quita a string from Rancho del Paso in the course of a few weeks. He will have at least twenty head in training.

BILLY KERWIN, a well-known horseman, is on the way to the Coast with his stahle. His hest horses are Hush, Helen, Gardner and Miss Dewey.

THE hoises are arriving very slowly from ahroad and from the looks of things it will he difficult to get a fair sized field together this season.

LADY HURST acts as if track sour at the post, refusing to break and on two occasions has heen left. The mare is very sore and should he given a rest.

NONE SUCH, the Montana sprinter, running in the colors of W. P. Dingley, showed none of the speed usually attributed to the Montana short horses.

THE management of the Lakeside track have decided to refuse the entries in fotnre of both Refugee and Alvarado II, both horses being confirmed had actors.

A NEW starting device, similar in operation to the one used at Sacramento last summer, was tried in the last race Thursday and worked very successfully.

ED LOWRY, auctioneer and hookmaker together with Phil Hammill of Butte, Mont, have arrived and announce their intention of making hook on the local tracks this season.

JUDGE STOUFFER is liable to prove a pretty shifty sort of selling plater this season if he continues to show the improvement manifested thus far over his form of last year.

THE hetting has heen very light of late and will prohably continue so until the presence of hetter jockeys will give some assorance that hackers will get a ride for their money.

CHARLES PRICE, tha racing steward, last week received a telegram stating that Emil Bourlier, the well-known proprietor of the Turf Exchange, Louisville, Ky., died suddenly Friday night.

CHARLIE BOOTS was at the track on Monday; his first appearance this season. He reports his horses in training to he coming along nicely and statea that they will soon he seen on the local track.

THERE are some real good things to he had "Among the Barrels," 863 Market street. Among them the hest and porest of liqoors and a splendid hot Spanish—no, not Spanish, Mexican—lunch every day. "Chile con Carne" and "Frijoles ab lib." Drop in and enjoy them.

VENTORO is one of the first of the get of Golden Garter to face a starter; he has performed very creditably during the season of 1898 and his six furlongs in 1:14 flat on Saturday was a remarkably good performance.

MR CORRIGAN has arrived from Chicago. He still feels the effect of his recent severe injury, hut is measnrably recovered and has no douht that he will he wholly so when snhject to the influence of "our glorious climate."

HUGH E. KEOUGH, the hrilliant writer on horse matters who has heen presiding in the judges' stand at Windsor since John J. Carter came to California, will he presiding judge at Cumberland Park also, and it is proha le that Dick Dwyer will do the starting.

PROFESSOR NEWMAN was telling a story ahout looking up the performances of a horse called Kaiser, which after a long course of training was retired a maiden, although never finishing outside of the money during his long career and being second forty-eight times.

MAHER, the lightweight jockey, surprised Dr. D. T. Sullivan of St. Francis' Hospital, Hartford, Conn., Friday, hy a donation of $500 to that institotion. Maher's home is in Hartford and he thought a contribution to the hospital at this season would he productive of good.

MOUNT MCGREGOR should have proved a success in the stud; he is a young horse, and shows to he possessed of great vitality besides heing a grand looking individual. He is hred in the purple and is probably closer in the direct line to imp. Glencoe than any sire in America.

BURNS & WATERHOUSE have a formidahle string in training comprising about sixty head of horees of all ages. For lack of room in their own quarters they had to engage most of the new addition at the south end of track for the accomodation of the horses trained hy M. J. Kelly.

DAN HONIG must have made a heavy losing on El Gartland. He expressed the opinion early in the day that there was no money in piking, and that the next het he put down would he a good one. As he was particularly sweet on Ed Gartland's chances he must have been hit hard.

A MORNING contemporary is authority for the statement that Mr. W. B. Jennings intends to confine his racing operations on this Coast to the Ingleside track. If such is the case, the large string of horses running in Mr. Jenning's name and now stahled at Oakland, will shortly hava to find other quarters.

ESPIONAGE, the crack filly owned hy Louis Ezell, up to October 15th, had started thirty times, and had only heen outside of the money on six occasions. A record of nineteen wins, three seconds and two thirds against all kinds of horses and over all kinds of tracks is a record seldom equalled hy a two-year-old.

LAST year it was Ornament who returned at the end of the season with the highest honors. This year it is Ben Halladay. Ornament wintered at Memphis, and after heing trained there was shipped East and won the Brooklyn Handicap. This year Ben Halliday will receive his preparation at Memphis also.

YEMEN again demonstrated that he still retains his old-time speed, and it is douhtful if any horse in training here at present, with the possihle exception of Rubicon, can take his measure. A race hetween these two high-class sprinters at heavy weights would fornish a most interesting contest and should make a great betting event.

TOM BOYLE has a good-looking yearling hy True Briton, from Wah-ta-wah, hy Greenhack, that has heen working quarters in 0:24 Wm. Murray also has two True Briton fillies, one from the dam of Dunhoy, the other out of a daughter of Sir Modred and Snowdrop, which show considerable quality in their appearance. True Briton is at present in Yolo county.

W. B. SINK, JR., says Formero, who was a crack colt in the spring, has had about every disease a horse can have since then, the latest heing pneumonia. He is no account at all now. Mr. Sink purchased The Ace and Dr Sharp from his father recently for $600 They are hoth hy Pontico and Sink Sr. raid Mr. Legg $2 500 for them. Neither were of any account this summer. Sink, Sr. now owns no horses, and says he is glad of it.

BOOKMAKER JOHNNY O'NEIL is not going to Europe as reported, hut is coming to California. He was in partnership with Eckert and Joe Ullman on the New York tracks last summer, and it is estimated that the firm won $75,000 They lost $50,000 during the last three days they hooked, which hronght their winnings down below the $100,000 mark. Eckert will accompany O'Neil, hut Ullman will remain in New York. Coley and Alec Ullman, Joe's brothers, sra advertised to appear here.

OF the sixty-threa horses in training, comprising the Burns & Waterhousa string, thirty of them ara yearlings, of which twenty-eight are at the Oakland track. As yet they have not discovered any Hamburgs or Ornaments among tha lot, hot expect to get a few selling platers. The firm did not pay any fancy prices for them; ahout $400 apiece would be a good average. As for three-year-olds, the stahle will he rather short the coming year, having only Humidity, Midlove and First Tenor. These are the only ones having any class.

WADE MCLEMORE, who has raced in California for several seasons, has retired from the turf and gone back to Texas, his former home. McLemore and Standfield were formerly partners and in 1893 at the old Bay District Track attempted to cut loose Brownwood for a good thing; starting the horse, which was a fair handicap animal, against a field of dogs in a race for non-winners at the meeting. After hacking the horse for enough to win ahout $30,000, they had the chagrin to see their money hornt up hy the incompetency of the jockey employed to rida him.

THE present racing season has been prolific in accidents to horses, many of them of such a serious nature as to cause the destruction of the animal. Moylan, from the Corrigan Stahle is the latest victim. While heing galloped Monday morning he was so hadly injured that his owner decided to destroy him. Moylan was a fair selling plater, possessed of quite a turn of speed, and in the ordinary fields which are running here at present would have proven a most valuable aoimal.

THIS will prohably he the Wheel of Fortune's last season on the turf. Joe Harvey, her owner, has made up his mind to breed and retire her to his ranch. "I will not race her any longer than this season, and mayha not all of this," said Harvey Monday. "I want to breed her to some good stallion and turn her out. I have been thinking ahout mating her to Ormonde. She ought to make a fine broodmara. She is well bred and is as sound as the day she was horn. Seldom you see a horse raced as much as she has come out without a blemish. They invariably have some little faults. But she is an exception.

MR. MATHEWSON, Lowell, Mich., is one of the oldest breeders in the United States, having been engaged in breeding and raising horses for twenty seven years. Although he has heen in the business such a long time, it was not until last season that he saw one of his horses come under the wire a winner. This year Mr. Mathewson has a novelty in the white thoroughbred White Ivey, who recently won two races at Windsor. They are a few grey thoroughbreds, hut Judge Carter, who occupied the stand, said that to his knowledge White Ivey was the first white thoroughbred that ever won a purse on any American track.

"WHAT has become of old Braw Scot?" Dick Williams, Barney Schreiber's popular trainer, was asked yesterday. "When I left St. Louis, Barney was breaking him for driving purposes," he responded. "He needed a team to use on his farm and ha concluded to break Braw Scot and Don Carillo to drive together. He won't do any hard work with them, merely fix up fences and use them for such other light work as he may have to do. Old Braw is a great pet on the farm. He has such a gentle temper and kind disposition that all the boys are very fond of him. He is a great pet and you can bet he will never do any hard work."

DR. HARNESS' black beauty, Imp, has made a record this season of which any four-year-old filly might he proud. Imp is hy imp. Wagner, dam Foundling, and is undoubtedly the most popular horse in the country to-day. She has started thirty times this season, her first appearance heing at Newport on April 9th. At that track she won four straight races, breaking two track records, the five and one-half furlongs and the mile and fifty yards. Next at Lakesida she was beaten once oot of five starts, and then hy that great sprinter Ahuse. Then came three successive victories at Harlem. One notable performance at Washington Park on June 9th, when with 112 lbs up, she ran one and one eighth miles in track record time, 1:51¾. At a recent Harlem meeting she captured six straight races, including the Monadnock, Austin and Speed Stakes. Her earnings up to data amount to $11,385 —Memphis Commercial Appeal.

A COUPLE of track habitues were standing on the asphalt in front of the grand stand at Oakland one day last week discussing the chances of a horse one of tham had just placed a het on and was advising his friend to get down on the good thing.

"But he won't win," said the other. "I was talking to tha owner only two weeks ago, and he said he would not win with the horse until he struck Ingleside, as a couple of defeats over hera would assure a long price against him over there."

"You're not such a wise guy as you think," was the reply. "I learned this morning that the owner was up in the country for a week and had left instructions with tha officials to pay the winnings of the horse over to his head groom if the horse won. He did this as a blind so there would be no suspicion that tha horse was pulled. Well, he went away, and the groom and all the stahle hands got together and concluded it was a good chance to get back wages, long due. So they are going to win to-day, get the money and pay themselves before the owner can get back. I'm giving it to you straight, so you had better get your money down."

The two repaired to the ring, a few plunks went up on the horse, and they came back in time to see their choice get off in the lead and win comparatively easy. The tip was a good one, hut they say the owner got back a week after and hasn't cooled off yet.

ONE of the most talked of operators now on his way to California is Beroard Weller, whose youthful appearance and small statore have given him the soubriquet of "The Kid" among his intimates. Weller's has heen a busy life, and he has crowded into his thirty years an experience which few men can hoast at 60. First as a traveling salesman and later as a devotee of the racing game, he has traveled all over the Western Hemisphere, and, having had a good education to commence with, his wits have received the sharpening which only contact with the world can impart. About six or eight years ago he entered the racing business, and at the outset he assomed a grasp of its intricacies and technicalities that astonished old men who had heen at it for years. Now he is one of half a dozen men who are recognized as leaders in the speculative hranch of the sport. He has abiding faith in his mathematics and he is a ripe student of figures, as applied both to form and prices. He has no prejndice and cultivates no friendship among owners that can influence his actions. He lays and plays strictly to form, and no one that has ever operated in the West will wager mora on one ha likes or take more against what he does not like. The hest proof of the soundness of his reasoning is that he has heen eminently successful. Mr. Weller likes horses for themselves as well as for to het on and against them. Early in tha present season he set ahoot organizing a small racing stahle, and he proved himself just as shrewd at picking out serviceable, ready-made horses as at figuring their chances. With Hugh Penny and Don Quixote for a nuclens he is in a fair way to gather together a string that will win him additional money and distinction on the turf. Personally Mr. Weller is what is colloquially termed "a clever little gentleman." His tastes ara unquestionable, and although of a modest, retiring disposition, he makes friends quickly, and, what is more to the purpose, keeps them.

The Fasteet Performere.

The following list comprises the fastest five trotting meres, geldings and stallions, and the festest five pacing meres, geldings and stallions:

TROTTING MARES.

Alix, 2.03¾; sire, Patronage, by Pancoast (2:21¾).
Nancy Hanks, 2:04; sire, Happy Medium, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian.
Fantasy, 2:06; sire, Chimes (2:30¾). by Electioneer.
Beuzetta, 2:06¼; sire, Onward (2:25¼), by George Wilkes (2:22)
Kentucky Union, 2:07¼; sire, Aberdeen, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian.

TROTTING GELDINGS.

Klamath, 2:04½; sire, Morookus, by Altamont (2:26¾).
Eagle Flanigan, 2:07½; sire, Eigle Bird (2:21), by Jay Bird (2:31¾)
Ryland T., 2:07¾; sire, Ledger Jr.
The Abbott, 2:08; sire, Chimes, by Electioneer.
John Nolan, by Prodigal, also has a record of 2:08.

TROTTING STALLIONS.

Ralph Wilkes, 2:06¾; sire, Red Wilkes, by George Wilkes (2:22).
Bingen, 2:06¼; sire May King (2:20), by Electioneer.
William Penn, 2:07½; sire, Santa Claus (2:17½), by Strethmore.
Grattan Boy, 2:08; sire, (2:13), by Wilkes Boy (2:24½).

PACING MARES.

Lenna N., 2:07¼; sire, Sidney (2:19¾), by Sante Cleus (2:17½).
Bessie Bonehill, 2:05½; sire Empire Wilkes, (2:29½), by George Wilkes (2:22).
Lottie Loraine, 2:05¾; sire, Gambette Wilkes (2:19¼), by Georga Wilkes, (2:22).
Pearl C., 2:06½; sire, Roy Wilkes (2:06¼), by Adrian Wilkes.
Pearl Onward, 2:06½; sire, Onward (2:25¼), by George Wilkes (2:22).

PACING GELDINGS.

Robert J., 2:01½; sire Hertford, by Herold.
Frank Agan, 2:03¾; sire Mikegen (2:19¾), by Onward (2:25¼).
Flying Jib, 2:04; sire, Algone, by Almont.
Mascot, 2:04; sire, Deceive, by Rysdyk's Hambletonien.
Bumps, 2:04¼; sire Baron Wilkes (2:18), by George Wilkes (2:22).

PACING STALLIONS.

John R. Gentry, 2:00½; sire, Ashland Wilkes (2:17¾), by Georga Wilkes (2:22)
Joe Patchen, 2:01¼; sire, Patchen Wilkes (2:29½), by George Wilkes (2:22).
Directly, 2:03¾; sire, Direct (2:05½), by Director (2:17).
Online, 2:04; sire, Onward (2:25¼), by George Wilkes (2:22).

The above table shows most strikingly the superiority of Rysdyk's Hambletonian over all others for producing extreme light-harness speed. The pedigrees of not less then 28 of the above 30 noted animals show one or more crosses of this famous son of Abdallah and Charles Kent mare. Some authorities also claim that Ledger, Jr., sire of Ryland T., 2:07¾, was a descendant of the old Hero of Chester Star Pointer, 1:59¼, the fastest of the lot, does not trece to any of the noted founders of trotting families.

Not less than 13 of the animals represented in the above table carry the blood of Rysdyk's Hambletonian's femous son Georga Wilkes (2:22) His name occure most frequently in the pacing division, but it ie found in every one of the six classes. The nama of Electioneer occure four times, all in the trotting classes. The Mambrino Chief crose is found in the padigrees of a large proportion of the above, although only one of the lot, Alix (2:03¾), treces directly to him in the paternal line. The Clay cross is found in a number of them, and some of the fastest trotters have the popular Seely's American Star cross, among which are Nancy Hanks (2:04) and Directum (2:05½).—American Horse Breeder.

Give the Foale a Chance.

A good horse, like a good house, is built "from the ground up," the superstructure of the future horse being formed in the weanling colt, and while a "lousey calf" sometimes comes out all right "in the spring," one that has escaped the "vermin" is just so much the better off, says the Western Horseman. As the character of the future man is generally formed in the boy, so also does complete development in the future mature horse depend on tha thriftiness of the weenling colt. Therefore, that a good horse may result, the colt should not only be given a good start eerly in life, but should be kept in a healthy and thrifty condition throughout the growing stage. It is a noteworthy fact that he who takes the best care of his growing colts always has the best mature horses. Young colts are just now being weaned, and hence this is a good time for breeders to contemplate the necessity and self-interest of giving their weanlings good care and plenty of good, wholesome and nutritious food. It is a notorious fact that breeders of trotting stock have, as a class, always paid too little attention to growing their colts To many are content to let their weanlings "root hog or die," practically seeming to think that a rye patch or a rack of clover hay to run to is all that a weanling is entitled to. This is a grave mistake. A young and growing animal of any class requires something more than mere "filling." It must have nutritious tissue-building and blood-making food. It is a great deal easier and cheaper to put two years' growth on a colt the first year of its age than it is to "make up" for a year's loss of growth in two or three years Yearlings that are "large enough for two-year-olds" are all right; but two-year-olds that are no larger than yearlings ought to be, are ever after outclassed. A good growth the first year of a colt's life costs less than at any other age, but is twice as valuable to the breeder—a fact that is too often ignored Spare the feed and spoil the colt is as true as a certain old saying with which all are familiar.

What a Turf Career Offers.

John Splan, the veteren treiner end ell-round horsemen, was asked advice by e young men in regerd to following a turf career. Replying, Splan said: "A professionel turf career is simply e eerie of two movements. They are so easily executed that in time it requires little exertion to make them. One is the movement from the sendwich to the henquet, end the other is the movement from the henquet to the sendwich."

While there is no business or professionel cereer but that partekes, in a degree, of the sandwich-hanquet movement, the turf, possibly from its neture, exceede ell others in thie respect. Leeving the pool box entirely out of the question end considering only trotting for the purees, the charm of e lottery's uncerteinty even then lingers eround and pervedes ell Unlike e lottery, however, the rece-horse men hes emple field for the exercise of his judgment, end the riper thet faculty, es e rule, the better, es in other pursuits, ere the finenciel results.

An essociation offers e purse of $2,000 for the 2:40 class, which means thet ell horses ere eligible to compete thet do not heve e record fester than 2:39½. Treiner Brown hes in his stehle e horse that he has been fitting for several months, which is eligible; the fesfest he hes driven him is in 2:28, yet he is confident thet he cen win part of the money, and he psye his $100 fee end enters for the rece. Treiner Thompson hes e horse that cen trot in 2:23, yet he declines to enter, es the trotter cen't go fast enough. Treiner Snow has been out campeigning with e horse that he hes started in five reces, and teken second or third money in every rece when every heat was trotted from 2:13 to 2:20. He hes driven his horse in 2:13½ in e race. Trainer Snow thinks it about time thet he let his horse win if he cen, end concludes to try for thst $2,000 puree.

It was a large field of trotters that scored down, and for e 2:40 class they fairly flew. Snow won the rece, stepping the first heet in 2:15 end distancing Brown. In this event Snow got $800 end Brown nothing. Wes it not rether inviting a movement toward the lunch counter on the part of Brown in attempting to win e $2,000 purse with a 2:28 trotter? As rapidly es they go now, even Snow hed no sure guarentee that with e 2:15 horse he would win, for he might find himself in company with one thet could step a little faster than he could. It takes high-class meteriel to win money in these days, and unless one can control thet kind it is better to he prudent then velorous.

Thie season a trainer who hes hed yeers of experience came through the grand circuit, sterting e certain horse at every meeting end only once geining better then fourth position. Worse than thet, the seme horse wes started at Louisville end Lexington, where he earned nothing. Ahout $1,200 wes burned up in entrence fees alone, which to en onlooker appears to he e sendwich movement of the clearest kind.

While the income of treiners mey not depend entirely upon their success in winning reces, yet marked ahility in that branch of the business or the development of e phenomenel trotter or pacer, generelly insures e good selary with some prominent establishment, or eesists greetly in heving a large or select public stable.

High-Class Road Horses.

Why will it not pay breeders to go to work et once to produce e class of up-headed, stylish, well-colored, good-gaited, big trotting horses thet can trot at leest fairly fas? It will pay them, end they may rest essured that if they select the right foundation stock the returne will he much more certain than if they essey to hreed speed alone. For the handsome, large-sized trotter with a nice way of going, but without recing speed, the prices now heing paid return a very handsome interest on the investment. Moreover, eires and dams with size enough, hreeding enough end spsed enough to insure the reproduction of these desirable characteristics in their progeny may now he obteined, if care is teken in their selection and, taking the whole situation es it exists there is no reeson why eny intelligent hreeder mey not rear quite high priced horses at comperatively low cost. The hreeding of the high-class road horse presents a most inviting prospect for the immediate future. Of course, the more speed the animal hes, providiog he hes an equal shere of good looks, the hetter he will sell, but with the brood stock to he had nowedays, if the hreedere look first for conformetion, style and action the speed will come along, too. Surely, we have hreedere wise enough to quit the struggle for speed and teke advantege of the splendid demend for good road horses.

About three thousand people interested in the de elopment of the American carriege building art recently visited the Grand Central Palace, Lexington avenue end Forty-third street, New York, where the annual exposition of the National carriege and harness association wes held. Many novelties in tires were shown, the sectional ruober tire end the cork tire claiming most of the interest.

The 2:10 Trottere of 1898.

During the seeson of 1898 twenty trotters were edded to the 2:10 list. Of this number five were hred in California end three others were sired by stellions hred in this Stete. The list is as follows:

The Horee of Manila.

Among the first things to impress a stranger ere the horses, writes a correspondent from Manile. Descended from the horses hrought from Mexico, they heve hecome much more shepely. In fect, I heve never seen e hetter looking hreed. There is nothing of the pony ehout their shepe, though in size they renge hetween 48 end 52 inches. At first it looked ebsurd to see them ridden hy hig men whose stirrups hung to the horse's knees, but I soon found out thet they eesily carried a rider weighing 200 pounds. The foreigners heve a jockey club which holds two meetings e yesr et the heautiful turf track et Sante Mess. To avoid sherp practices, members of the club only are eligible to ride. This necessitates a scale of weights sterting at 112 pounds end rising to 154 pounds. It demonstrates the speed and strength of these miniature horses that a mile has been run in 2:10 hy a pony carrying 150 pounds. Only stellions ere used. Maree cannot even be brought into the city.

Nohody welks; everybody rides, end on eny speciel fieste thousands of cerriegas fill the streets. I doubt if there is a city in the world thet can turn out half the number of private vehicles in proportion to the population.

Plunkett, 2:13¾, hes sterted in 43 reces, in 12 of which he got first money, and second money in 13. He hes met ell the fastest pacers in Californie end hes heen outeide the money hut very few times. Although eleven yeers old he is as game a horse now ee ever, end hut few horsee cen heet him on the road, while he can pece a mile to his record most any day on a good treck.

The two-yeer-old filly Keffa, hy Allerton, who recently recured a record of 2:27¼ at Galesburg, is a sister of Falfa, 2:20, Imperino, 2:20, and Herhor, 2:19¼, heing out of Cyprue, 2:22½, hy Strathmore.

Now it is esid thet the Russiane, thoroughly convinced thet their Orloff trottere cennot compete with Americen importations, talk of herriog the latter.

Summer Ridge Stock Farm.

J. M. Stanley, proprietor Summit Ridge Stock Farm at Chase, Ind. writes as follows: "I have been using Quinn's Ointment for several years and would not be without it. It does everything you recommend. I have never found anything like it for curbs, splints and windpuffs." This is the general verdict of the leading horsemen all over the United States For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunches Quinn's Ointment has no equal. Price $1.50 per package, smaller size 50 cents If you cannot find it at your druggist, address W. B. Eddy & Co, Whitehall, N. Y.

The horsemen voted straight for Gage,
So that's a horse on me.

PROSPERITY is coming.

THERE will be District Fairs next yeer.

THE value of every herness horse in Californie increased this weak.

A BIG circuit with good purses will be seen in California next season.

WHEN Gracia Onverd won the two-yeer-old trot at Lexington she wes barefooted.

THE 2:10 trotters should mske some hot recing on the California tracks next yesr.

BUTCHER BOY, 2:17, a sure 2:12 horse, is to he sold at Nelson's Speed Sale next Thursday.

WHEN Ster Pointer is sold next month it will be his fourth appearance in the auction room.

NEW YORK's speedway hes made thet city the greatest merket in the country for light roedsters.

HART BOSWELL, Lexington, Ky., who bred Nancy Hanks, 2:04, was stricken with paralysis a few deys ago.

AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION DIRECTORS should get to work immedietely and prepare for the fairs of 1899.

MARCUS DALY hes started his horses et Lexington since 1895, and they have heen behind the money hut once.

THEY say although the fastest horse io Europe, Que Allen, will hardly do when the distance is over e mile.

A QUARTER in 31 aeconds is not an uncommon occorrence at the speed track in Golden Gate Perk these fine days.

TWO good seddle horses and four elegant carriege teams ere to be offered at the Nelson Speed Sale next Thursday.

WE look to see three of the greatest meetings ever held in the State to he given et Santa Rosa, Napa end Woodland next year.

THE pecing stallion Al Noble, by Noblemont, won six races at the lata Dallas, Tex., meeting. He started without a mark and quit with one of 2:10¾.

FRANK FRAZIER, ex-owner of Chehalis, 2:04¼, is quoted as saying that he believes Rubinstein can step down to the half faster than any other pecer living.

BOW BELLS, 2:19¼, will stay in Kentucky again next year. He is ona of the most popular sires ever kept in the hlue grass and his fams grows steadily.

LONG DANG, tha Lima, Ohio, Chinese owner and driver, is still in the game and has heen meeting with fair success on Ohio tracks with his trotter, T. Roherts.

"DOC" BISHOP, tha well known horseman, is dead. For many years he was a familiar figure on Eastern harness tracks and was an expert veterinary dentist.

THE trotting mare Bush, 2,05½, by Alcyone, recently stepped a mile in 2:13½, over a half-mile track, at Great Barrington, Mass. She is now twelve years old.

THE number of horses in training in California will be larger next year than for several years past. And records will he hroken right and left hefore the season closes.

IT is not too eerly to begin advertising stallions for the season of 1899. Thera are many parties making inquiry already as to what stallions are to stand for service in California.

AT The Dalles, Oregon, October 21, Del Norte turned the half-mile track once in 1:02 1-5—truly a wonderful performanca when the condition of the track is taken into consideration.

THE best opportunity to purchase a first-clesa daveloped horsa that has hsen offered for some time is at Nelson's Speed Sale. It will be held next Thursday at the Alameda track.

WILLIAM S. SAMUELS, one of the hest known trotting horse hreedera in Kentucky, died at Lexington last Wednesday, the result of typhoid fever. He was forty-six years old and unmarried.

WE should like to see the stallion, Eclectic, full brother to Arion, hrought out from his seclusion this year and mated to some first class mares and resulting produce trained when at the proper age.

PURSES of from $500 to $1,000 will ha the rula at all the principal meetings in California next year. There is also a probahility that some of the associations will inaugurate stakes for classes on tha plan of the Transylvania and other hig Eastean features. Entries to these will be made early, but horses not named until later.

COL. KUSER 2:11½, hy Stranger, now owned in Austria, trotted over the Vienna track not long ago 2,840 meters, a little over a mile and three quarters, going the entire distance at a 2:13 gait.

SOME of the California horsemen who were on the circuit this yesr seem to think that the two in three system as given a practical demonstration at Santa Ross this year is hetter and mora satisfactory than either dasb reces or three in five.

OAKLAND, Santa Rosa, Nape, Woodlend, Willows, Chico. Marysville, Stockton, San Jose, Salinss, Hollister, Fresno, Santa Ana and Los Angeles are all certain to have fairs next yeer, with speed program accompanied by good liberal pusres.

THE challenge cups of the Cleveland Driving Club for 1898 have been awarded. That for trotters goes to W. M. Cummer's Temper, hy Elryia, whose best mile was 2:13½; thet for pscers goes to H. K. Devereux's Ripper, who stepped in 2:16¼.

FOR the offense of taking his horse, Al. Sulten, out of a race at Pittsfeld after having trotted one heet and without permission from the Judges. R. H. Merrill, of Guilford, has heen 6ned by the Nationsl Associetion $100, and hoth horse and owner suspended.

AMONG the visitors to Californie this winter will he Mr. N. W. Hubinger, of Boston, owner of John Nolan, 2:08, and many other fast trotters and pacers. Mr. Hubinger is one of the most enthusiastic harness horse owners in America, and is one of the heaviest winners of 1898

SAM GAMBLE expects to leave in a few days with a cerload of horses for the East. Amorg them will he Directum, 2:05¼, tha champion stallion of tha world, who is to be shipped to his new owner, W. E Spiers, owner of the Suburban Stock Farm, Glens Falls, New York.

HORSE buyers from tha East will be numerous in California this winter if rumors ere true They have found out that this State is a regular mint for good horses, and they desire to have an opportunity to pick up some of the choice new ones before tbey are handled too much.

A BOSTON contemporery is authority for the fact that Star Pointer earned $500 a minute for his owner in his record-hreaking trial at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, hot his exhihition cost the three promoters of the trial hut $125 each. Still, they are dead game and love the sport.

NUTWOOD WILKES, 2:16¼, is the champion sire of three-year-olds, having had two sons trot in 2:12 and 2:12½ respectively. A daughter of Nutwood Wilkes is to he sold at Nelson's Speed Sale at the Alameda track next Thursday. Thia is the mare Central Girl witb a record of 2:22½ and she is faster than that,

THE Americen Horse Exchange, New York, announces through its manager, Francis M. Ware, that it will hegin immediately the publication of a weekly paper to he called the Horse Fancier, and to he devoted to thoroughhreds, harness and saddle horses, hunters and ponies and to public and private horse marts, hoth domestic and foreign.

AMONG the stables that will winter at Lexington are those of Bowerman Brothers. Scott Hudson, W. J. Young, J. L. Tarlton, C. C. Harris, Richard Curtis, John Farris, T. W. Price, John Davis, J. H. Thayer, Wallace Brothers, W. F. Freeman, Brook Curry and W. R. Brasfield.

AN Eastern psper makes mention of a race where Butcher Boy, by Secretary, was beaten by the pacer Hal Frye in 2:24 at Reading, Pa., two weeks ago. This is an error, as Butcher Boy, hy Secretary, is owned in California, was never out of the State, and it takes a 2:10 horsa to heat him.

MONTEREY, 2:09½, is still in Los Angeles, and his owner, P. W. Williams, will probahly leave him there and make the season of 1899 in the citrus helt with the son of Sidney. A number of high-clasa mares owned in Southern California heve already been booked to Monterey for next year.

THERE will be a good deal of training done in California next spring, hnt the majority of horses put in training will probahly he green ones that have never had aoy race track work. The stock of horses on hand with records is not large in this State. still there are enough to 6:1 a week's program with if there is an opportunity to race for decent purses.

WE are under ohligations to Mr. Graham Babcock for a very good photograph of tha handsome trotting gelding Toggles, 2:09½, recently purchasad by him. Our only regret is that the peculiar background and light effects of the pictura make it impossible to reproduce it in half tone for this paper.

WE would ba greatly ohliged to hear from any of our readers who know anything of the dam of tha gelding Hoho 2:14½. Ha trotted to his record last year at Marysville, and is in the Year Book as by Arthur Wilkes, dam untraced. Is there any one who knows whether this is correct or not. Any information in regard to this horse will be gledly received at this office.

DUROS, the four-year-old 6lly, by Anteros, who has trotted to a record of 2:23¼ this season, is out of Durango Queen, by Durango, who is fast making a great record as a producer, being also dam of Ruth H. 2:24½, Arena C. 2:29¼ and Beautiful Bell 2:29¼, trotters, and Frank F. 2:21¼ and Ruth H. 2:22, pacers, all five of which ara hy different sires. She is now in foal to La Norval, son of Norval.

THE only thing that will put racing on its feat again on this coast and encourage the hreeding of harness horses is to organiza a Paci6c Coast circuit, consisting of certain places in Californis, Oregon, Washington and Montana, and hang up purses sufficiently large to keep our hest horses at home. —Portland Rural Spirit. [Wa are going to hava a good circuit here in California all right]

JOE HUNTER hss accepted a position at the Little Spokane Stock Farm, where he will handle some Delpho youngsters this winter. Ha will retein his old charge, Nettie Hem, for next season's campaign.

EVERY egricultursl association in the State should announce as soon as possihle that it will give a fair in 1899. The sooner it is known the fairs will he given, the more horses will he put in training for them.

W. G DURFEE is working eight head of trotters and pacers at Los Angeles, among them two green ones by McKinney. Mr. Durfee is ona of the hest handlers of horses among the new trainers in California and will make a soccess of the hnsiness of training. That his heing ruled off et tha Los Angeles meeting was not warranted is proven by tha fact that his reinstatement was ordered at the close of the meeting.

TERRA HAUTE seems to be in a fair way to have better trotting meetings than ever. The stockholders in the Terra Hante Trotting Association and the Vigo County Agricultural Scciety have agreed to consolidate their interests end in future tha fair and trotting meet will he held the ssme week. Heretofore some personal jealousy has stood in the way of consolidation, hut the way for a pooling of issues has finally been smoothed.

A PECULIAR incident happened at the recent autumn meeting of the North Penn Trotting Association, at Belmont Park, Philadelphia. In the last heat of the 2:28 class Ned W. was snddenly checked up, as the hell rung for the start, and pocketed Hard Times; the latter reared up end his front hoofs cenght in the seat of Ned W.'s solky. Hard Times went the first furlong of the mile on his hind feet before heing extricated, but was not injured.

WHEN the horsemen unite on a candidate he need heve no fesr of election. Mr. Ed Aigeltinger, Vice-President of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association, received a larger majority for Supervisor, last Tuesday, than any of the twelve gentlemen elected, except John Lachman, who was the candidate of hoth Republican and Democratic parties. And just pnt a pin in this spot. Mr. Aigeltinger will meke a good Supervisor and will see that the money spent on streets end roads is not wasted.

AMONG the horses to he sold at J. M. Nelson's combination speed sale at Alameda next month, is Mr. E. Stewarts' hay geldiog Localeer 2:30 a pacer hred at Palo Alto. He is by Machenton (son of Gen. Benton and a mare hy Old Hembletonian 10), and oot of the great broodmare Laura C. (dam of Laurel 2:13½, and Langton 2:21¾, his second dam heing the thoronghhred mare Fanny Lewis. Localeer is a splendid road horss and a very fast pecer, heing cepeble of pacing a qnarter in 31 secon s.

THE memhers of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association are in need of a track where they can hold matinea racing. Tha Clnh has a large and enthusiastic memherahip, but are unfortunate in heving no place hut the speed track in the park to race on end this is unsatisfectory as it is a straightaway track and actual racing with purses and an admission fee cannot he given there. Some of the members are in favor of getting the Alameda treck, bnt it is across the hay, and many think a San Francisco driving clnh should not he compelled to go ont of tha city to do its racing. The idea of secoring a piece of land and building a track has heen dehated many times, hut no soitable piece of property has yet been found upon which a track could he located. A half mile track would probahly he huilt if the gronnd could he secured, and there is no donht hut that it would be a vary popolar reiort for road drivers and the lovers of harness recing if properly conducted.

"ABOUT the worst thing we encountered during our trip East," said "Sandy" the other day over at the Oakland track, while talking about Dione (a snhject of which he never tires), "was at Detroit, where the mosqoitoes wera as hig as hlackhirds and as persistent as a raca track tout. Tan minutes after we arrived in that city I had to go down town and get mosquito netting to cover all the horses, and some evenings wa made 6res and tried to smoka the mosquitoes out. Those Eastern mosquitoes are a great pest to tha California horses and raise welts all over them."

"What did you feed the little mare that made her trot so fast and so game, Sandy?" was asked.

"Watermelon," was the reply. Of course she had her regnlar feed of hay and oats, hut in the warm weather she got two good-sized watermelons every day. All I had to do was to cut the melon in two and put it in her feed hox. Sha would eat out tha inside and spit out the seeds as well as any Alabama coon ever did. I think they did her lota of good, and I know sha enjoyed them. She might ha standing in her stall, looking as though sha wera asleep and utterly oblivious to evarything, hut if I said 'watermelon' she would get to the door as quickly as possihla and begin hegging for the fruit. And say," added Sandy, "that little mare knows more than most men."

IT turns out that H. K. Devereaux, of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the most prominent members and officers of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of that city, is tha purchaser of the great colt John A McKerron (3) 2:12½. In a letter to Mr. Martin Carter of Irvington, Cal, the hreeder and former owner of McKerron, Mr. Davereaux says that he is much plessed with his purchase, and helieves that the son of Nutwood Wilkes is one colt in a million. Ha has watched him during the entire season and thinks he did remarkahly well for tha severe treatment ha received and stands an excellent chance to yet gain tha atallion record of tha world. Since he came into Mr. Deveresux's possession he has hegon taking on flesh and is much improved in appearance. It is not the naw ownar's intention to race the colt next year, except at a few of tha matinees given hy his clnb, but ha intends to get him in proper condition and when opportunity offers to send him after the stallion record in an actual race. Mr. Carter helieves tha colt would have trotted helow 2:10 thia year had ha been in proper shape, and it is the opinion of many horsemen, including T. E Keating, that John A. McKerron was the fastest and best threa yaar-old in the United States this year. Tha statement that tha price paid for him was close to $1,500 is an arror as the sum, while private, was much in excess of that amount

HENRY T. GAGE is Governor elect of the State of California, and the Breeder and Sportsman congratulates its readers on the fact. Many issues and questions arose during the campaign, the solution of which by the voter led to the election of Mr. Gage, but there was not one that operated as a single-handed vote-getter more effectively than the issue by which this journal was led for the first time in its existence to take part in a political campaign, viz.: The renewal of the appropriations for district fairs. There were no politics in our fight. We did not favor Mr. Gage or his candidacy because he was a Republican, nor oppose Judge Maguire because he was the nominee of the Democracy. "Restore the district fairs" was our creed and platform. The live stock breeders and horse owners of California, in whose interests this journal is published, saw in the closing of the country fair grounds during the past four years a blow which struck at them and their property and threatened the very life of their enterprises. Believing that the cutting off of the appropriations for the district fairs by Governor Budd was the act of an individual and not of a party, they sent their representatives to both State conventions at Sacramento and asked for an expression in the platform that would pledge the candidates for Governor to favor the fair appropriations, which for so many years had aided in building up one of the greatest industries in the State. The party which placed Mr. Gage in nomination granted the request, while the parties which named Judge Maguire as their candidate flatly refused it. Mr. Gage gave the plank favoring the restoration of the appropriations his hearty endorsement. It was then that the horse owners and breeders and all interested in the great industry, concluded to throw their politics aside, for this election at least, and unite in the defense of their property and business interests. From one end of this State to the other, from the top of the Sierras down to the shores of the ocean there was scarcely a voter interested in any way in the breeding, training, driving or caring for road or track horses that did not announce himself in favor of Gage for Governor. This journal saw in the election of Mr. Gage a restoration of good times in the horse industry, one of the leading industries of the State until it was almost killed by the stroke of a Governor's pen. It feared in the election of Mr. Maguire a continued attack upon it, and its duty to the horse owners and the breeders of live stock, whose interests it represents, was plain. It therefore supported Mr. Gage, and without conceit or self-laudation firmly believes that the greater part of Mr. Gage's large majority was due to the votes of horsemen, who cast aside their politics and voted solidly for him for Governor. Now that the election is over and the desired result has been accomplished and our interests will be in the hands of a man who is friendly to them, there will be no politics in the columns of the Breeder and Sportsman until such time as we can see a great industry again threatened by office holders or candidates who would strike it down. When that time arrives, and we do not apprehend it will be very soon, the lesson of this campaign having had its effect, this journal will be again found fighting to uphold and sustain an industry which, second to no other, has advertised this glorious State to the people of the world as one of God's garden spots and the greatest farming and stock breeding country on the globe.

DISTRICT FAIRS WILL BE HELD all over California in 1899. The voters of the State have said they desire them and do not begrudge the very small amount paid by each taxpayer to maintain them. The Governor elect is pledged to favor the appropriations, so restoration of fairs is only a question of a few months. Every district organization now owes itself a duty, and that is to meet immediately and make an effort to arouse all the interest possible in the exhibits to be made next year. One of the principal drawing cards is a first-class speed program, and no plan has ever succeeded as well as an early announcement that a meeting will be given and a statement of the purses that will be offered. It is not absolutely necessary to claim the week desired, nor to fix date of closing until later on. Horse owners only want to know whether a meeting is to be given and how much money will be hung up With this information at hand they know what to do, and there is not a particle of doubt if ten reliable meetings are announced by January 1st, with purses ranging from $500 to $1,000, four or five hundred harness horses will be in training in California by the first of February. This alone will make the fairs a success. There must be a good premium list for agricultural, horticultural and mechanical products. The races will only be an adjunct to the fair. They will furnish the sport for the people who congregate to attend the exposition and compete for premiums. If the district boards will meet immediately, announce fairs for 1899, and get to work with enthusiasm there will be such a revival all along the circuit next year that the good old times will be recalled. Which association will be the first to announce a fair for 1899?

MANY COMMENDATIONS have reached this office for the stand taken by the Breeder and Sportsman last week in relation to coursing as at present conducted in this city. As they are from gentlemen who are admirers and supporters of all genuine sports, they are, therefore, greatly appreciated. There is a sentiment among all classes in California that the dignity of all true sports is destroyed when the public's desire of an opportunity to gamble is made the principal incentive toward the establishment of parks where it can be carried on. And where admission to these places is practically free, and the revenue almost entirely derived from the percentage deducted from the money wagered, the gambling feature is encouraged and fostered and given a prominence which eventually results in an attack being made by unthinking people on the sport itself. Those who allow such a condition of affairs to exist are simply providing ammunition for the enemies of sport to use in their efforts to destroy it.

A LEADING FEATURE of the county fair is the live stock show. A special effort should be made next year in all the districts to have a good exhibit of cattle, sheep and swine as well as horses. It is unwise to try to provide for every breed, however. The directors can pick out those which are the most desirable and then offer premiums of greater value than in the case where so many breeds are provided for. Give $75 or $100 for the best stallion, or bull, and $50 or $75 for the best mare or cow of any breed. This will be worth competing for and will attract many entries. A large exhibit will draw a big crowd to see it. Make the fairs high-class and they will pay.

SAMUEL GAMBLE will start East on Monday, the 21st, with the stallion Directum, 2:05¼. In the two cars will be two dozen or more horses consigned to the Fasig sale in New York. Mr. Gamble wishes to get three more horses to fill up the second car. He wants horses that are sound and with records. Parties who wish to embrace this opportunity to ship horses to this great sale should apply at once to Mr. Gamble at this office.

INGLESIDE PROGRAM.

Two Stakes to be Decided the Opening Week.

Secretary Green has issued the program for the first six days of the meeting which will open at Ingleside on next Monday.

It provides for five races each day, and none of the purses will be under $400.

The University Stakes is down for decision on the opening day. The conditions are as follows:

A sweepstakes for three-year-olds (foals of 1895). The association to guarantee the value of the stake $1,000, of which $200 to the second and $100 to the third horse. Entrance $10 each, to accompany the nomination; $25 additional to start. Winners of two stakes of $1,000 or one of $3,000 to carry 5 pounds; of $1,000, 8 pounds; maidens allowed 15 pounds. Closed October 22d. One mile.

There will be two races at six furlongs, one at seven and another at a mile and a sixteenth on the opening day.

Wednesday there will be a hurdle race at a mile and a quarter, and a steeplechase event is carded for Saturday November 19th.

The San Francisco Stakes will be the attraction on Saturday, Nov. 19th. It is a sweepstake for two-year old fillies (foals of 1896). The association to guarantee the value of the stake $1,200, of which $200 to the second and $100 to the third horse. Entrance $10 each, to accompany the nomination; $25 additional to start. A winner of a stake of the value of $1,500, or two of any value, 3 pounds; of one of $2 500, or three or more of any value, 5 pounds penalty. Other horses, non-winners of $500, allowed 5 pounds; maidens allowed 12 pounds. Closed, October 22d. Six furlongs.

The youngsters entered are: Reina de Cuba, Lady Meddlesome, Jingle Jingle, Felicite, Furia, Fuga, Engea, Humidity, Midlove, Hemera, Racery, Violence, Tenebrae, St. Kristina Alhafa, Jinks, Magdalenas, Don't Tell, Sweet Cakes, Maud Ferguson, Modwena, Ann Page, Loyalitta, Flamida, Geraldine B, Elizabeth R, Miss Marion, Good Hope, Rosehean.

The officials who will serve at Ingleside this season are as follows:

Judges—Edwin F. Smith and Harry Kuhl. Starter—James F. Caldwell. Patrol and paddock judge—H. F. Moore. Stewards—E. Corrigan, M. F. Tarpey, W. S. Hobart, Joseph Cairn Simpson and E. F. Smith. Official timers—J. G. Brown and R. Havey. Clerk of scales—N. Brough. Superintendent of the Course—G. W. Cushing.

Nelson's Speed Sale.

At the Alameda track on Thursday next, the 17th inst, Mr. J. M. Nelson will hold his second annual combination speed sale. There are thirty horses to be sold, consigned by different parties, and all will be shown in harness. Many of them can show better than a 2:15 clip and several have records below 2:20. By reference to the advertisement in this issue the names of these horses, with their records, can be learned. There are a couple of very fine saddle animals and four elegantly matched teams to be offered. The Alameda track is an ideal place for a sale of this kind, as there are seats for a large crowd, and the track is in splendid shape for the horses to show what they can do. Remember the date and don't miss the sale.

HOOF-BEATS.

Seventeen books and the usual two field books cut in Thursday; the new-comers were Riley Grannan and Barney Schreiber. Schreiber hooked under the name of Stanford & Co.

The filly by Islington—Not Idle, which ran at Oakland under the name of "Alhafa," was incorrectly named on the program. Her name is "Alhaja" and she is registered in the Stud Book under that appellation.

There was a contest in Glenn county this year over an office in which the Republican candidate was a friend of the horsemen and the Democrat was not. Glenn county is strongly Democratic, but the friend of the horsemen won out.

Johnny Woods, who was cautioned on Monday by the Judges in regard to his listless riding, gave another exhibition of somnolence on Shasta Water; he sat still on the mare throughout the race and was of absolutely no assistance to her from start to finish.

Quite a number of politicians were at the track yesterday seeking relaxation after the arduous duties of election times. Conspicuous among the number were Sam Rainey, Chief of the Fire Department Sullivan, Eddie Graney, "Captain" Delaney and Sammie Kohlman.

Devin rode a masterly race on Moringa, in the Naglee Selling Stake; waiting patiently until the leaders had exhausted themselves, and timing his finish accurately, he had enough left to stall off the rush of the fast coming Recreation and won rather handily by a length.

Gin Guerne of Santa Rosa goes east Nov. 21st with four head of horses for the Fasig sale, among them two fillies by Direct. Mr. Goerne will remain in Kalamazoo, Michigan, where he is interested in a large factory which turns out track harrows that are very popular in the Eastern States.

J. A. Murphy, J. J. Carter and Charles G. Price of the Board of Stewards of the California Jockey Club, convened in the rooms of the club Thursday evening. George Miller and Edward Blazer, lessees of the horse San Mateo, whose performances at Oakland did not suit the officials, were suspended for sixty days, and P. Sullivan, who rode the sprinter in his two races, was indefinitely suspended. Mike Hennessy, the jockey, was ordered suspended until November 28th for appearing at the track in an unfit condition to ride. The past ruling in the cases of James Long, Sandy McNaughton, Jockeys Glenn, Enos, Nichols and Trainer Chas. Murray were reaffirmed.

S. R. Montgomery, President of the American Turf Congress, has announced the following appointments: License Committee—James H. Rees, representing the Pacific Coast Jockey Club; Joseph A. Murphy, St. Louis; E. C. Hopper, Latonia. Appeal Committee—E. F. Clay, Lexington, Ky; George H. Wheeler, Washington Park, Chicago; General W. H. Jackson, Cumberland Park, Nashville. "In making these appointments," said President Montgomery last week, "I have endeavored, so far as lies in my power, to give every section of the country a representative on one of the committees. Every member of the Turf Congress has an equal interest in the welfare and success of the Congress; therefore, I have made my selections with the view of dividing the honors just as far as they would reach and at the same time recognize all interests in the make-up of the two committees.

Fish Lines.

Sunday afternoon last, at least fifty boats were in circulation at the mouth of Eel river, their occupants in search of the "selamoan." Not many fish were caught until toward evening, and then the majority of the fishermen and women departed. Myriads of the finny quarry were seen on and above the surface of the water, but they couldn't be induced to take hold with any regularity.—Ferndale Independent.

The annual report of the Commissioners of Fisheries, Game and Forests of the State of New York has just been issued. It is full of interesting reading, and is the second report issued. The Commissioners have illustrated their handsome and well-printed volume with elegant cuts of fishing and shooting incidents and scenes.

Among other matters of interest to the angler, the report contains a great deal of information respecting brook and rainbow trout. The most fascinating paper of the series in the report is, perhaps, that dealing with the saibling or golden trout. Here is a sporting fish which vies, indeed, with the Herculean tarpon and the deshing ouaniche. It is only some sixteen years since American anglers were first stirred by accounts of a beautiful, silvery, deep-water trout, to be found and captured in Lake Sonanee, New Hampshire. In October, 1885, a gentleman accidentally came upon a mid-lake spawning bed of an acre or so in area, covered with hundreds of these then little known fish, ranging from three to ten pounds in weight. Specimens were sent to the Fishery Commissioners, and by them identified as members of a family of Alpine charr, whose presence in United States waters had been, up to that time, unsuspected.

Fred Johnson returned Monday evening from a two weeks' trip through Humboldt county. Being an enthusiastic angler it is needless to say that he had some excellent sport on the Eel river. He reports the sport to be good at points on the upper river now, the fish having gone up stream. The large fish are still kept out of the river owing to low water at the entrance. Mr. Johnson says quail abound in Humboldt county in thousands. Deer and other game are also very plentiful.

Game Warden Ferguson of Fresno is authority for the statement that the black bass planted by him in the San Joaquin river recently are thriving excellently; within a few years, if the fish are properly protected, the San Joaquin bids fair to become one of the best waters in the United States for black bass angling.

Salmon and yellow-tail are still plentiful in Monterey bay. The boat fisherman and anglers are making good catches.

Rock fish give local anglers at Monterey a chance to catch big strings of these fine fish without any great exertion.

Bay fishing continues to be first-class.

The Game Law.

The open season for shooting quail, doves, deer and wild duck as fixed by the State law is as follows: Doves, 15th July to 15th February. Mountain quail and grouse, 1st September to 15th February. Valley quail, wild duck and rail, 1st October to 1st March. Male deer, 15th July to 15th October.

The clerks of all the Boards of Supervisors have advised us that no changes have been made this year, but the ordinances passed last year hold good if they do not conflict with the State law. The following counties have not passed any ordinances that alter the open season as provided by State law: Amador, Butte, Inyo, Modoc, Mono, Mendocino, Mariposa, Nevada, Napa, Pinmas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Joaquin, Santa Clara, Sacramento, Solano, Sonoma, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Tehama, Yolo and Yuba.

The changes are as follows:

Alpine—Deer. Sept. 2 to Oct. 15.
Alameda—Rail, Oct. 15 to Feb. 15.
Colusa—Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.
Calaveras—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Contra Costa—Deer, July 20 to Sept. 2. (Use of dogs prohibited).
El Dorado—Doves, July 20 to Feb. 1.
Fresno—Market hunting and shipping game out of the county prohibited
Humboldt—Grouse and Wilson snipe, Sept. 1 to Feb. 15. Killing of waterfowl prohibited between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
Kern—Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Lake—Deer, Aug. 1 to Oct. 1.
Marin—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 15.
Madera—Market hunting prohibited.
Monterey—Deer, July 15th to Sept. 1st. (Use of dogs prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.
Orange—Doves, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Deer, Aug. 15 to Oct. 1. (Market hooting prohibited). Quail, Oct. 1 to Oct. 5. Ducks, Nov. 1 to March 1. Ducks and quail, shipment from the county restricted as follows: No person shall ship ducks or quail out of the county in quantities to exceed two dozen birds a week.
San Benito—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. (Market hunting prohibited).
San Diego—Shipping quail out of the county prohibited.
San Luis Obispo—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1. Doves, July 15 to Dec. 1. (Use of hounds prohibited. Hunting for markets situated outside of the county prohibited).
San Mateo—Deer, July 15 to Aug. 28. (Use of dogs not prohibited. Market hunting prohibited). Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. (Shooting from boat at high tide prohibited).
Shasta—Deer, July 15 to Sept. 1.
Sierra—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Sutter—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Doves, July 15 to Jan 1.
Trinity—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.
Tulare—Deer, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15. Shipping game out of the county prohibited.
Ventura—Quail, any variety, Oct. 1, to Nov. 1.

Olympic Gun Club.

Pursuant to the requirements of the Constitution, the annual meeting and election of officers of the Olympic Gun Club will be held in the club rooms on Wednesday evening, November 9, 1898.

The popularity of the new club house up to the present time has fully equalled the most sanguine expectations.

A series of entertainments during the winter months is in contemplation and neither time nor labor will be spared to maintain the position that the Club now holds at the head of all similar organizations in the West.

The services of Mr. Stanley G. Scovern as superintendent has been secured; this gentleman was formerly one of the directors of the Club and is a thorough sportsman. He has an office in the club house and is ready at all times to furnish such information as members may desire regarding the Club, its game preserve or trap shooting branch, etc.

If inconvenient to call at the club house personally, call up telephone Main 930, and ask for the superintendent.

Suggestions from members as regards improvements in service, or in any way looking toward the betterment of the Club, will be thankfully received by your Board of Directors and should be communicated through the Superintendent.

The chief factor in the future success of our organization must necessarily be a community of interest and a general determination upon the part of each individual member to secure that desideratum.

It is not sufficient to elect your Board of Directors and then never come near the club house nor render any aid personally to the common cause.

You have one of the best appointed, most cheerful and central club houses in the city, which is open to members at all times; show your appreciation of these facts by rendering the administration the moral and material support of your frequent attendance; drop in if only for a few minutes at a time and make the acquaintance of your fellow members.

All the newspapers and sporting journals are now on file and arrangements are being perfected to furnish the standard magazines and other current literature, also proper facilities for correspondence, suitable stationery, etc.

The annual meeting of the Olympic Gun Club held Wednesday night resulted in the election of the following officers: President, H. H. White; Recording Secretary, M. C. Allen; Financial Secretary, George Walker; Treasurer, A. A. Borlini; Captain, Edward Schultz, Directors—C. W. Hibbard, C. H. Shaw, N. H. Neustadter and W. H. T. Huie.

The club grounds are now in excellent shape; the members will avail themselves of the chances offered for duck shooting as soon as the birds arrive.

Five gentlemen had an initial shoot on the preserve last Sunday, the total bag was fifty-seven birds, a few cans being among the lot.

Exchange Notes.

Several nimrods were out at the lake last Sunday and killed—time. Geese and ducks continue to be obstinate and lie far out on the waters.

The mighty hunters, Bernard, Bailey and Snelling, returned last Sunday from old Camp Warner, where they chased the festive buck for three days. They have each a "mule tail" to their credit, one for each day's hunt, and they brought the meat home and divided with their friends—which is more than most hunters do.—Lake County Examiner.

Messrs. Ed. Tallant, Al. Pierce and Charley Bergin, from Santa Barbara, are spending the week at Guadalupe lake, hunting ducks.—Santa Maria Graphic.

The members of the Drawbridge Shooting Club, of Vallejo, were the guests of the Napa Gun Club Saturday evening and Sunday and were hospitably entertained. Little shooting was attempted or could be done owing to the scarcity of game, but Al Kelshaw succeeded in landing a 12 pound striped bass.—Vallejo Times.

Adolph Toepperwein, who has been astonishing the Londoners by drawing pictures of Commodore Schley and other notables with a target rifle, is of German descent, as his name shows. He is of the German type also—burly, blond, blue-eyed, jovial and phlegmatic. He is the son of a small farmer who lives just south of the Helotes hills, fifteen miles north of San Antonio, Texas.

Young Toepperwein was known as a remarkable shot in a community of good shots when he was sixteen years old. He has been familiar with the rifle since he was big enough to hold one up, and he has used it steadily in the field, where blowing winds and running shadows and different lights force a man to learn all there is to be learned of the science of projectile hurling. He is not only a strangely efficient long-distance shot, but he is a wonderful trick shot, and it is trick-shooting that he is doing on the other side of the water. Severing swinging strings, and splitting bullets driven against the edges of knives, and snuffing lighted candles fifty yards away, and boring holes through silver dollars tossed in the air are matters of everyday practice with him. It should be said of him, too, that in these exhibitions he uses always the single ball of 22 caliber. Many people who have seen William F. Cody career around the ring, smashing glass balls with a repeating carbine, are not aware that the colonel uses a shell loaded with fine shot, but that is what he does. He does not use the single ball in the carbine for two reasons: He could not hit anything with it except at infrequent intervels and the bullet has a habit of flying a mile or so and killing the inoffensive stranger who is standing on the corner not meaning any harm.

The picture of Commodore Schley, which he makes with 200 bullets fired with wonderful rapidity from a target rifle, is not a speaking likeness, but still it is a clever piece of work.

It is singular but true that a comparatively restricted territory has produced three single-ball shots who are probably the greatest the world has ever known. Toepperwein is one of them. A boy named Petmecky is another. This youth, who is now in his early twenties, is the son of an Austin (Texas) gunsmith, inventor of the well known "Petmecky gun cleaner." Young Petmecky is as remarkable for the rapidity of his firing as for its accuracy. He is also in the picturesque language of the southwest, almost to "melt the bullets together in the barrel." A man cannot count the shots he fires when going at full speed any more than he can count the beats in a drum roll. A favorite feat of his is to toss a brick in the air break it in two and then break both pieces before they strike the ground. This feat is especially remarkable because nobody can toss a whole brick to a great height, and the shooting must be done with inconceivable rapidity. I have never known any other person able to repeat this performance, and I do not believe that Toepperwein can do it.—Chicago Times-Herald.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Mongolian pheasants are thriving in Miami county, Ohio. They will be protected until 1900.

F. Surrbyna begged fifteen teal and sprigtails on the Olympic Club grounds Sunday last.

Quail hunting near Fairville is only passing fair. J. Campo managed to bag nine birds on Sunday.

H. Justins and a friend made a combined bag of one dozen English snipe at Schellville on Sunday last.

B. Sherock was one of the lucky hunters on the marshes near Newark last Sunday. He bagged ten ducks.

W. E. Murdock was at his favorite spot on Petaluma creek last Sunday—an even dozen sprig and teal was the bag.

McGills furnishes the snipe hunters with a fair amount of sport. G. Cook bagged ten of the dainty birds at that place last Sunday.

Eastern sportsmen are hooked for plenty of quail shooting this season, birds being more numerous in most sections of the country than for years past.

Jules Bruns and J. Karney selected a new shooting place on Sunday. They made a combined bag of twenty teal, sprig and widgeon near Fairville.

The probability of a late train this season on the S. F. & N. P. Ry. Co.'s line is a remote one. The majority of club members are not favorable to the proposition.

Snipe shooting is reported to be good near Collinsville, Alameda county. Captain Anderson one day last week bagged thirty-one English snipe near that point.

At Willow Creek in the northern part of Humboldt county, panthers and bear are reported to be very numerous. Two local hunters captured a large bear in fine condition recently.

The Olivina ranch near Livermore is posted against hunters. Last Sunday G. Carreva was arrested for shooting on the land; he was subsequently fined $25 by a Justice of the Peace.

James L. Looker, a New Jersey game warden, who recently shot and killed a game law violator who pointed a gun at him, was upon trial acquitted. The law-breaker appeared about to shoot the warden, who shot in self-defense.

The San Mateo Leader of the 5th inst. says: Although the quail season is not many weeks old there is scarcely a quail to be found in this region. Sportsmen are anxiously awaiting the rainy season when duck hunting on the marshes will be the order.

The Fresno Game Protective Association intend to import not only pheasants, but also other breeds of game birds. There is some discussion in regard to procuring prairie chickens, and, if possible, the Scottish blackcock, which is said to be a very fine and desirable bird.

Reports from the north state that the bosom of Humboldt bay is at present covered with immense flocks of many varieties of ducks. Our local shooters will give them a most cordial welcome as soon as they wing themselves this way following the long expected and needful rains.

The rarest bird in existence is a certain kind of pheasant in Anam. For many years its existence was known only by the fact that its longest and most splendid plume was in much request by mandarins for their headgear. A single skin is worth $400, and the living bird would be priceless, but it soon dies in captivity.

On the Tamalpais Club grounds the sportsmen are having but fair sport with quail; the prevailing dry season precludes good shooting conditions and makes the work tell on both the hunter and his dog. Of the gentlemen who were out last Sunday, H. F. Wegner, W. C. Brown, John Bergez, A. Pissis, Dr. Winterberg and C. A. Osborne had but ordinary luck, while Fred Butler with a bag of fifteen birds was best man for the day.

Of the shooting clubs located on grounds adjacent to Petaluma creek, the Alameda Gun Club have so far this year had the cream of the shooting; the average bag per shooter has been twenty ducks. This club has been forehanded in providing water for such ducks as come their way, having early in the season, on a very high tide, flooded their banked-up ponds and then closed the sluice gates, thus insuring a series of well-baited ponds for the ducks to come to for feed.

C. A. Haight and Jim Maynard had a pleasant shoot together last Sunday. They have a private preserve of their own it seems, for they invariably return with nice bags. The Sunday morning shoot was devoted principally to English snipe, the combined bag was a fine one notwithstanding the adverse conditions of the ground over which they shot. Their dogs Flash and Thom helped the sport in a happy way. Fifteen fine ducks were also added to the bag before the shoot was over.

A duck hunting quintette composed of Commodore Lemmer, Midshipmen Wyman, Chaplain Nye, Navigator Sherman and Ensign Geary manned the Black Jack flotilla at Antioch on Sunday last. (Secretary Marklaod was notably absent, having lost his dog last week, he endeavored to find him at Union Park.) The slaughter of ducks was great, the principal bag being made by Wyman, who is rated becoming the crack duck shot of the club. Wyman is also an expert snap shot with the camera. Ensign Geary had the pleasure of pulling the Commodore out of the water, the latter's boat having capsized in one of the trails.

The Empire Gun Club is at present in a flourishing condition in several respects. The club grounds are now in first class order. New blinds have been erected; two tons of wheat are stored at the club house and will be used for baiting the ponds which are now nearly dry, as soon as they are filled by the rains. Last Sunday a number of the members, among them being, C. W. Hunt, J B Haner, Frank Bowers, W. W Lambert, Dr. W. H. Fearn and H. Tellerson had a pleasant but not very prolific shoot. A half dozen birds fell to each hunter with the exception of Mr. Hunt, whose bag counted up fifteen ducks. The variety was composed principally of teal, with a fair number of mallard and one sprig.

The bags of ducks and geese made by northern shooters sound very meagre when compared with those made by market hunters and others down in the great southwest. In Texas, for instance, some enormous bags are made, 1,000 ducks in a day being by no means an unusual occurrence for a party of six or eight guns. In fact, so great has been the slaughter of members of the duck tribe down in the Lone Star State that the wonder is not that the ducks are growing scarcer in numbers, but that there are any ducks left to shoot. Yet reports for the season show that the supply of ducks, although slightly less than last year, is still by no means exhausted. With careful legislation, the observance of the game laws, shorter open seasons and a limit put to the number of ducks to be killed by one man in any one day (as in Minnesota), the duck supply may yet last long enough to be a source of sport for several generations to come.

Eastern sportsmen are having happy times these early days in November. The coast sportsmen, whilst indulging in the pleasures of anticipation, can peruse the following notes about the doings of the hunting fraternity east of the Rockies and cogitate over the present unequal territorial distribution of fur and feather.

"Tuesday next, November 1st, is a day that will bring much sorrow to the rabbit and quail family on Long Island. On that day the season of 1898 opens and many thousands of loaded cartridges will be fired on the Island that day. Quail are reported as very plentiful in some parts, but rabbits are said to be "scattering." Toward the eastern end of the island are some covers famed for the ruffed grouse that inhabit their fastnesses, and these same covers will be thrown open to gunners permitted to traverse them on Tuesday next. Long Island is practically a vast game preserve, and nowhere else in the country are the laws relating to game better observed as a rule. Robin's Island is really a part of Long Island, and as such may be taken into consideration when speaking of the whole. Robin's Island is controlled by a club that owns it in its entirety, and propagates game, quail, English pheasants, etc., in numbers sufficiently large to afford sport for its members and their friends during the whole season. A limit is put on the bag allowed each shooter per day, and this rule works very well, as it keeps down the spirit of the game hog, and provides sport for all.

On five days next month, viz.: Nov. 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30, the deer on Long Island will be harried and shot at by numbers of men, armed with every kind of weapon, from the 10 bore muzzle-loading shotgun loaded with buckshot, to the long-range and spiteful 30 30, or the more coarse-mouthed 45-90 All these weapons will probably be as dangerous to human life as to that of the deer the owners of such guns and rifles are after. Last year there were comparatively few accidents when the number of deer hunters present is taken into account; but in the previous November there were several accidents, some of them serious, and it seems more than probable that there will be some this year. At these Long Island deer hunts there is something of a lawless nature to be found. No man who kills a deer is likely to bring any portion of the carcass home unless he is a member of a party strong enough numerically to stand off the pirates who would not only claim the deer, but carry it off bodily. Thus there is an additional excitement in deer hunting on Long Island, outside of that to be obtained in dodging bullets and buckshot from the rifles and guns of men who don't hesitate at shooting at any object in the brush that is rash enough to move.

The woods of Maine are full of sportsmen in pursuit of moose, caribou and deer, and no doubt by this time many hundreds of deer have been killed, and some few moose and caribou bagged into the bargain. Moose are scarce enough to be hard to find; that is, bull moose, for the law does not permit of the killing of cow moose. Some of the more experienced guides seem to be of the opinion that unless a close year or two is soon made on bull moose, the cows left in the woods will find it a difficult matter to find a fitting mate when the season for mating comes round. This seems a sensible view to take, and if carried out, would no doubt be of great future benefit to the big game supply of that sporting state. In any case the subject is one that would stand ventilating, and that should receive attention at the hands of those interested in the preservation of big game in the state of Maine."—Commercial Advertiser.

Blue-Rock Shoot at Los Angeles.

There was a small attendance at the regular weekly shoot of the Los Angeles Gun Club last Sunday. The principal event was a 100-bird competition, which resulted as follows: C. Van Valkenburg, 88; Vaughan, 87; S Smith of Riverside, 81, and J. Matfield, 80 Two pools of 25 birds each were shot and resulted: Van Valkenburg, 23; Vaughan and Smith, 20, and Bruner, 19. In the second the score was: Smith, 23, Van Valkenburg, 22; Matfield, 21; Bruner, 20. The club will give a tournament on the 19th and 20th of this month.

A Thoroughbred.

H. T. Wagner, who shot with W. C Brown last Sunday on the Tamalpais Club grounds, had Achille Roos' lemon and white pointer dog Cap as chaperone for his young pointer Rex. He praises in the warmest terms Cap's field qualities; the dog seems to be a glutton for work, which he performs in high-class style. The mention of one incident, which happened Sunday, will be most palatable to lovers of a good field dog. Mr. Wagner lost track of Cap for about fifteen minutes, although he called repeatedly for him and hunted high and low for the missing pointer. Billy Brown finally discovered him on a staunch point, but loyal old Cap was so tired and worn that he laid prone on the ground but with head erect and on a bird for all he was worth. Brown's setter Nick backed in and then pointed also. Cap took in the situation at a glance, it seems, for with a sort of shamed acknowledgment of his violation of the field code he immediately stood up on all fours and stayed with his work in grand stand style until the bird was flushed and bowled over. Cap is by Glenheigh out of Sal II, and was formerly owned by H. Biers. A field companion like Cap is surely one to be proud of. It is needless to say that nothing was too good for Cap when the sportsmen returned to the club house.

Quail Shooting in Marin County.

Quail shooting is not at present at its best in Marin county the persistent and unremitting hunting of the birds for several seasons past, coupled with the present adverse weather conditions, have opened the eyes of sportsmen to the most disastrous results that will undoubtedly follow unless positive measures are taken in the near future to protect the "hoodlums of the valley" from almost total extinction in a locality that has heretofore afforded many a days good shooting to numerous ardent followers of sports afield.

The drubbing the birds have received, this year, has made the bevies, what few are left, wary and difficult to approach; when the hunter does get among them, it is but a short time until they take to the dense brush or other secure cover and then they are gone for good, despite all efforts to find them, the experiences of hunters recently in this respect have been almost identically the same.

The present conditions and the threatened results for the future have lately been taken into serious consideration by a number of sportsmen, notably so by the gentlemen who compose the Tamalpais Gun Club, many of whom strongly advocate action by the Marin county Board of Supervisors tending to bring about the close of the season on January 1st; another measure that finds strong support among sportsmen is that the ordinance, if passed, should also provide against the killing of more than a limited number of quail in a day by any hunter.

The closing of the season in Marin, on January 1st, would be a move in the right direction, this question was agitated to a certain extent recently but interest now seems to have temporaly subsided among the pioneers in the movement.

Coming Events.

Pacific Field Trials

The number of second forfeite paid in for the Derby entries, all having been sent in but two whose money was eligible at last advices, ensures now a strong list of startere for this event.

Mr. J. M. Kilgarif, the secretary of the club, is in receipt of a communication from Col. Merriman, in which he tenders his acceptance of the club's invitation to act as judge of the coming field trials at Bakersfield. Col. Merriman also warmly expresses his readiness to avail himself of the opportunity to renew a host of pleasant acquaintances made amongst the genial sportsmen who were present at last year's trials and others whom he met elsewhere during his brief sojourn on this coast last January.

Standards.

THE BULL DOG—General appearance is that of a medium-sized, smooth-coated and low-swung body, thick set, broad, powerful, compact dog, with massive head and face extremely short; wide shoulders and sturdy limbs, suggesting great strength and stability. Disposition equable and kind, resolute and courageous. Gait loose-jointed and shuffling, giving the characteristic "roll." Weight for mature dogs, about 50 pounds; bitches, about 40 pounds.

The head is very large, the larger the better. Skull, large, very high from corner of lower jaw to epex and very broad and square. Forehead, flat, large wrinkles hanging about the head. Cheeks, well rounded and protruding sideways. Stop, well defined, high, deep and broad. Eyes, low down in the skull, as wide apart as possible, should be quite round and very dark and showing no white when looking forward, the lids should not show any haw. Ears, small and thin, set high, as wide apart and as far from the eyes as possible; "rose ear" being most desirable. Face, short, skin, deeply wrinkled, muzzle being very short, turned upwards and very deep from corner of eyes to corner of mouth. Nose, large, broad and black, tip deeply set back almost between the eyes; nostrils wide, large and black, with well defined straight line between them. Chops or flews, thick, broad, pendant and very deep, hanging over lower jaw at the side, but not in front. Front teeth should show slightly when the mouth is closed. Jaws, massive, broad, square and "undershot." Teeth strong and large.

Neck, short, very deep, thick, strong and well arched, with much loose skin at the throat, dewlap pronounced. Shoulders, muscular, heavy, wide and slanting outward. Chest, broad, deep and full. Body, capacious, with well-rounded ribs and very deep from shoulders to where it joins the chest. Back, short and strong, with slight fall close behind the shoulders, and should be "wheel-backed." Forelegs, set wide apart, short, stout, straight and muscular. Elbows, low and standing well out. Hindlegs, strong, muscular and longer in proportion than forelegs, stifles turned outward, hocks slightly bent; lower leg short, straight and strong. Feet, medium size, forefeet straight, compact and firmly set; toes compact, high knuckles, nails short. Tail, straight or screwed, never curled or curly, and without fringe, short-hung, low, downward carriege, thick root and fine tip.

Coat, straight, short, flat, close, fine, smooth and glossy; skin soft and loose.

Colors, in order of merit; if bright and pure of its sort: Red brindle, all other brindles, solid white, solid red, fawn or fallow, piebald and mixed colors.

The Legal Status of a Dog.

The Dog Owners' Protective Association, of Cincinnati, have, in less than a year's time, by thorough organization and ceaseless vigilance succeeded in changing the position of "man's best friend" from that of a social outcast, without recognition or standing to that occupied by all other animals which conduce to the pleasure and profit of humanity.

A law is now in force which is uniform throughout the State, the statute which gave the Humane Society of Cincinnati the special and profitable priviliges it enjoyed has been repealed. This change of affairs was brought about by the high handed methods of the Society's minions.

"There are foolish dog laws in nearly every city, town or county of the United States, based on the presumption that dogs are not property, but such laws would not stand investigation and the interpretation of the higher courts. A dog catcher who seizes dogs and puts them to death is acting without warrant of law, whatever the local ordinance. Property cannot be taken from a citizen without giving him an opportunity to be heard in a court of law and before a jury."

On this question the Amateur Sportsman cites the following cases: "Charles Peshall, the well-known lawyer of Jersey City, has frequently gone out of his way to befriend the dog, and only recently he applied for a warrant from Police Judge Potts for the arrest of President George McCarthy of the Hudson County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and an officer acting in his behalf. A dog owned by Mrs. Fieber, of 1010 Summit avenue, Jersey City, was caught without a license tag, and the charge is for stealing this dog, Mr. Pershall holding that any local ordinance giving a society or an individual authority to seize a dog is contrary to the Constitution of the State. We call to mind a case where a doctor residing at Newark, N. J., contested a similar case, and defeated the city of Newark that was the defendant.

The highest courts of New York and other States have held that dogs, like horses, are animals of value and hence property, and that no Humane Society has any right to seize or destroy such.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has done much in New York and elsewhere by the introduction of a system of seizing stray dogs and destroying them by far less objectionable methods than those formerly in use, but the law is law, nevertheless.

The action of the local pound officials upon various occasions recently and the internal dissensions of the powers that be in the manipulation of the city institution shows that the situation at our doors at present seems to be tarred with the same brush that has excited inquiry and successful action in the East.

American Kennel Club Notes.

The local situation in dogdom is commented upon at some length in the October issue of the American Kennel Gazette. A recapitulation of the proceedings before the Pacific Advisory Board in the investigation of charges alleged against Mr. James Mortimer is given. Subsequent local developments are touched upon as follows:

"The meeting held at San Francisco on July 27th was adjourned sine die and could not be reconvened. It was called "for the purpose of discussing the advisability of petitioning the A. K. C. to adopt certain new rules of classification sat forth in the invitation," and it was not legal for the delegates at that meeting or any adjournment thereof, if such had been decided upon, to take action upon any subject other than specified in the invitation. Notwithstanding this thoroughly well understood parliamentary principle, Dr. D'Evelyn issued a call for a meeting to be held in September, signing himself, "Chairman of preliminary meeting," and stating that the object of the meeting was the "taking such action as may be deemed advisable for the best interests of Pacific Coast Dogdom."

The proceedings of the meeting as published in the Call of October 1, 1898, prompted certain inquiry on the part of the American Kennel Club who were informed that Stockton, Seattle and Tacoma were represented, and as their six votes, together with two for Santa Clara Valley Association and the California State Poultry Association, with one from the Collie Club, made up the eleven votes for "secession." Of the clubs that voted for the proposition three only are members of the American Kennel Club, the Collie, Santa Clara and California State, and it is their action that concerns the American Kennel Club.

The same course will be followed with these clubs that has marked the action of the American Kennel Club in all cases of a similar character. Article IX, Section 1, of the constitution reads as follows: "The Association shall have power by a two-thirds vote of the delegates present to suspend for a stated period or to expel any club or delegate or individual whose membership it may deem prejudicial to the welfare of the Association." The facts and papers in the case have been laid before Vice President Brooks and the clubs named as members have been notified to show cause why this article should not be put in force. A meeting to consider the several cases will be held on November 18, 1898.

Continental Field Trials Club.

The list of entries for the All-Age stake embraces eighteen setters and thirteen pointers, thirty-one in all. Among them we notice two of the progeny of Count Gladstone IV., one of them out of Dan's Lady, who was again bred to Gladstone recently. Judging from past results this breeding seems to "nick" in a very satisfactory manner. The Daisy Croft bitch should show well also; she divided third with Harwick (Topsy's Rod—Opal) in the All-Age at New Albany, Miss., January, 1897.

The Derby entries appeared in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN issued September 17, 1898. These trials will be run at Lexington, N. C., December 5, 1898. The entries for the All-Age are as follows:

SETTERS.

Cotton Grove Dick, orange and white dog, by Dick—Donna; Victor Humphrey.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

A two days' bench show in Chicago this month is in prospect.

The drawing for the Ingleside Club Coursing meet at Maried takes place tonight at Pythian Castle. The limit of entries is sixty-four dogs.

The San Jose show will probably be held sometime in April, after the poultry show.

Challenge Le Prince, the splendid smooth coat, owned by Fred H. Bushnell will probably be taken over the Eastern circuit of bench shows this year, if necessary arrangements can be made with capable and trustworthy handlers.

Recent advices are to the effect that there seems to be a favorable prospect for an almost phenomenal number of entries in the several events of the Ohio Field Trials—particularly the Members' Stake. This is especially encouraging to the Ohio sportsmen, as the prime movers in organizing the club feared at one time that it might be necessary to abandon the project of holding field trials this year.

The California Collie Club will hold a specialty show in Oakland on December 8, 9 and 10, 1898, under Pacific Kennel rules. An innovation on the Coast in judging will be noticed in the fact that the collies will be judged by the score card system. It is claimed that this will be the first time in America where a score card has been used in determining the prize dogs on exhibition at a bench show.

The California Collie Club has taken up the Oakland show in earnest. It has not been decided yet who will officiate as judge, but the Secretary, Mr. Norman J. Stewart, of Aromas, Cal., is now in correspondence with several gentlemen, and a definite selection is counted upon very shortly. The Oakland Kennel Club has kindly donated the use of its benching for the show. Mr. Percy Ward has been appointed superintendent.

A meeting of the special committee recently appointed by the American Kennel Club was held Thursday evening a week ago. Certain and minor business was disposed of. Owing to the unavoidable absence of several of the members definite action on various important questions was postponed until Thursday night last. Particulars of the meeting held this week were received too late for publication in the present issue.

Ehret Bros., of Sacramento, who fancy Gordon setters have recently made arrangements with E. H. Morris, of Nordhoff, N. J., to purchase the Gordon setter bitch Clarmont, a daughter of Doc. Although this bitch is four years of age, her sire only commenced his winnings lately, and has been described as the finest son of the old Champion Beaumont. The dam is Salmont, a bitch from Champion Bellmont that was never defeated, and was quite good in the field. Such blood as this should be of service on the Coast and shows the enterprise of Californian fanciers.

At the annual meeting of the American Coursing Club, held at Flandrean, S. D., October 14th, the following officers were elected: President, J. Herbert Watson, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Vice President, H. C. Lowe, of Lawrence, Kan., Secretary, H. G. Nichols, of Mitchell, S. D; Treasurer, Roy Avery, of Sioux Falls, S. D. Executive Committee, John Charlton, Minneapolis, Chairman; Sam F. Handy, of Davenport, Iowa; E. M. Kellogg, of Gilmore City, Iowa; Charles E. Root, New Richland, Minn; Frank J. Mead, Flandreau, S. D. Seven new members were added to the rolls.

The owners of the A & B Kennels were in bad odor with the Ingleside Park management this week. The facts stated are that the A. & B. people withdrew a dog from the stake, whatever their motives might have been, good, bad or indifferent. This serious infraction of the rules and regulations was of importance enough to come under the cognosure of a board of stewards, who did wisely ponder over this lapse of the dog owners and subsequently announced whether the offenders were to be penalized by the awful doom of "ruled off" or not. This seems to have been a grand stand play, for an easy-going public, which like the mantle of charity was used "to cover a multitude of sins."

A prominent fancier and one who has taken quite an active part in the formation of the Pacific Kennel League expresses the following sentiments in regard to the end and aims of the new organization: The Pacific Kennel League will be run for the whole fancy on this Coast and not for the personal benefit of any one man or set of men. We have organized simply for the purpose of holding dog shows, and, so far, have done nothing at all contrary to the rules of the A. K. C. It has from the very beginning of the A. K. C. never been even suggested that any club, or combination of clubs, could not hold shows under their own rules regardless of the A. K. C. if they chose to do so. To maintain that in doing so we infringe on any right of the A. K. C. is, it seems to me, preposterous. It has been called a "secession" movement, but as yet we have, as a body, expressed no such purpose. True, we do propose to govern ourselves, but the A. K. C. has never yet considered that secession. Its business lies with clubs that propose to hold shows under its rules, not with those that adopt rules of their own and simply ask to be allowed the privilege of minding their own business. What we may do if the A. K. C. undertakes to dispute our right to self-government, remains to be seen. It is they who will start the row if there is to be one, and though we do not seek it, yet being forced to defend ourselves, we may be obliged to fight.

THE FARM.

How Smith Made His Money.

"Did Smith make all his money farming?"

"Yes—and raising hogs and other stock."

This was the question and answer overheard on the grounds of the Omaha Exposition between two farmers who were renewing acquaintance and discussing a roast beef sandwich and the affairs of their former mutual friends.

It was a remarkable reply. It sounded the depths of many a farmer's experience. It was remarkable no less in its substance than in the manner in which it was made. The man questioned unhesitatingly answered "Yes," and then as if it suddenly occurred to him that he had told the truth but not the whole truth, he proceeded to give the specifications in the count. Smith had indeed made his money farming, but in a general sense. The real source of his wealth was not indicated in that general reply. He had been a specialist; he had sought competence from live stock. He was not a mere soil-robber. He did not simply plow and plant and reap and sell the raw materiel. He operated a condensing factory. He put corn and fodder and clover into pork and beef and mutton. His grain crops walked to market. And he saved their manurial value to restore to the land which had fed his crops.

In history, sacred and profane, in song and story the stock farmer has been the best-to-do in his community. From the fatness of his herds and flocks he has stored up a competency. He has reared and educated sons and daughters who have become powers in the communities in which their lots have been cast. His broad acres have enlarged their boundaries with the advancing years, and he has been the man of wealth and prominence in his section. That he stands in what may be called a class by himself among agriculturists is plainly if unconsciously indicated in the reply quoted. The manner of the reply would almost indicate that stock-raising was a separate and distinct industry from farming; the man questioned spoke almost as he would if he had said, "Yes—and by keeping store." He spoke as if it would tax the credulity of his friend to ascribe Smith's wealth merely to farming, and hence he specified the special branch of farming that had brought him financial independence.

It was a curiously significant answer. It is worthy to be pondered.—Breeder's Gazette.

Correct Management.

Correct management is everything. Two men living next to each other may have the same breed of fowls and even the same strain; one has grand success with his fowls, while the other makes a failure, and yet you visit their places and both of them seem to take good care of their fowls. We believe, and have had it proved to our own satisfaction, that there is such a thing as fussing too much with fowls. We mean well by it but it is to their detriment. Too much care cannot be exercised in taking care of fowls, but then again too much care will kill fowls. That seems a queer statement to make, but it is so nevertheless. We have seen chickens actually killed from exercising too much care. Possibly we should not say from exercising too much care but from fussing with them too much. Exercising care is one thing in raising chickens and obtaining the best results from them after they are raised and fussing around them all the time, though our motives may be of the best, is a horse of a different color; and we think to distinguish between these two characterizes one of the essentials of a successful fancier. A number of our prominent fanciers do not confine themselves to one particular breed of fowls, but have several varieties, all of which are kept up to the highest standard of excellence. For ourselves we prefer one or two varieties, and find that we have all we care to attend to, to bring them up to a high standard of perfection that something which we are trying to reach, but can never hope to attain.—Poultry Monthly.

Buttermilk in most localities is used as food for pigs only, but this by-product near large cities is very much sought after as a beverage, especially in warm weather. It furnishes more nutriment than almost anything except new milk.

When an Animal is Ripe.

How shall we know when an animal is ripe? An experienced eye and hand can tell this, says the Stockmen, Farmer and Feeder. When a steer is fully ripe his flesh is firm. When the finger tips are pressed against the muscles of the animal there is less of yielding and softness than in the half-finished animal. The shoulder blade, the loin and the pin bone will have an appearance of plumpness all over them. The weigh scales will also tell a tale. When the steer is not ripe he should go on making the usual gains. When he is ripe the gains will drop. When a beast, therefore, that has been gaining two or three pounds a day, and his appetite is still good, drops down to one pound a day, and his appetite is still good, begin to examine him for ripeness. It is one of the curious things about the animal economy that a cattle beast will go on and eat after he is ripe, but he will not make a corresponding increase in weight. It is a curious question as to what becomes of the food.

A good horse, like a good house, is built "from the ground up," the superstructure of the future horse being formed in the weanling colt, and while a "loosy calf" sometimes comes out all right "in the spring," one that has escaped the "vermin" is just so much better off, says Western Horseman. As the character of the future man is generally formed in the boy, so also does complete development in the future mature horse depend on the thriftiness of the weanling colt. Therefore, that a good horse may result, the colt should not only be given a good start early in life, but should be kept in a healthful and thrifty condition throughout the growing stage. It is a noteworthy fact that he who takes the best care of his growing colts always has the best mature horses Young colts are just now being weaned, and hence this is a good time for breeders to contemplate the necessity and self-interest of giving their weanlings good care and plenty of good, wholesome and nutritious food. It is a notorious fact that breeders of trotting stock have, as a class, always paid too little attention to their growing colts. Too many are content to let their weanlings "root hog or die," practically seeming to think that a rye patch or a rack of clover hay to run to is all that a weanling is entitled to. This is a grave mistake, A young and growing animal of any class requires something more than mere "filling." It must have nutritious, tissue-building and blood-making food. It is a great deal easier and cheaper to put two years' growth on a colt the first year of its age than it is to "make up" for a year's loss of growth in two or three years. Yearlings that are "large enough for two-year-olds" are all right; but two-year-olds that are no larger than yearlings ought to be ever after outclassed. A good growth the first year of a colt's life costs less than at any other age, but is twice as valuable to the breeder—a fact that is too often ignored. Spare the feed and spoil the colt is as true as a certain old saw with which all are familiar.

A choice calf this year brings $20 at weaning time. It was not worth half that price five years ago. Calves by the bunch, big and little, realize $15 to $16 a head and have been extensively sought after this fall by Colorado alfalfa feeders. Yearlings have brought as high as $25 while cows have sold for $30 Choice animals sell higher, even to $35 and $40. Five years ago the ranchmen who shipped their fat cows to market were compelled to be satisfied with from $13 to $15 for them. An appreciation of 100 per cent furnishes an encouraging basis for the present boom, if such it may be called. Of course, cattle will not add 100 per cent in the next five years. Nobody expects it. If the prices will remain steady the reisers and dealers will be satisfied. Figuring upon the shortage, and also upon fairly prosperous times, which will enable the American people to consume beef at the present rate, they count on a continuance of present prices for some time to come. There is a good margin now, enough for a division between the man who furnishes the capital and the man who puts in the labor and feed.—Field and Farm.

The latest dip or wash used in Australia to prevent tick fever or Texas fever as we call it here in America is unexpensive and is prepared in the following proportions: Eight ounces of coal tar, eight ounces of washing soda, four ounces of soap, to five gallons of water. Dissolve the soap in hot water, put all into a vessel and boil for at least two hours. This mixture may be used as a wash or as a dip. For oil dipping on a large scale the American vacuum oil is the favorite at present, but oil dipping is quite impracticable as applied to large herds of cattle.

Big Shortage in Milk.

The following, which is taken from the Los Angeles Herald, sizes up the situation in the other Southern California counties:

A milk famine, or at least an uncomfortable shortage in the local milk supply, is one of the possible if not probable conditions that will confront the people of this city if the hot, grass-killing weather of the last few months does not soon give way to much-needed rain. For the past few weeks the local dairymen have sent up a persistent cry for rain, knowing that, unless it soon arrived, they would be ruined.

Poor milk, or milk that comes nearly within the requirements of the city's standard, said the local milk inspector yesterday, has been the principal article furnished by the majority of milkmen for over two months. Two causes are directly responsible for this state of affairs. The first, and by far the most important, is the shortage in feed and pasture; and, second, the general demand for cheaper milk. The latter thorn in the milkman's side is making itself felt to such a degree that within the past two weeks no less than ten dairymen have canceled their licenses and have gone out of business, claiming that they could not pay expenses at the rate milk has been selling. As many more informed the inspector last week that unless there was an unforseen change for the better in the market, they would be compelled to retire until better times.

At present the average cost of alfalfa hay is in the neighborhood of $15 a ton, although certain grades that are not considered cow feed are sold for less. Bran, shorts, etc., which are necessary in a first-class dairy, are so high that, with the other expenses, it is impossible for the average dairyman to sell his milk for less than from $2.50 for thirty quarts. A few of the larger firms have cut these figures a little and manage, by their superior numbers, to hold their milk within the required standard.

Farmers who live in or near the city, and who have been in the habit of selling the milk of from two to six cows to dairies, have in many instances stopped the supply because there was nothing in it.

Glucose and oleomargarine are both perfectly wholesome. If going upon a yacht or to the Klondike, I should take oleomargarine rather than butter. But when I go to my grocer for butter, I don't want him to have the chance to give me oleomargarine. The object of a pure food law is to protect the poor. It is in the poorer quarters where most of the adulterated goods are sold, and because they are cheapest. The rich can buy what they please, but the poor must take what they can get. A pure food law must represent the enlightened public sentiment, or it will be a dead failure. The purpose must be to so regulate interstate commerce that both consumer and producer will be protected; the honest farmer can have an honest buyer and the honest consumer can have what he pays for.—Professor H. W. Wiley

According to the Prairie Farmer, it is estimated that there are 50 per cent more ewe lambs in the range country this year than male lambs, a fact that may be attributed to the larger use of young rams than were formerly used on the range flocks. "If this be true" says the Farmer, "the theory of French experimenters that young sires get more ewe lambs than ram lambs is pretty well attested by American experience on a larger scale."
